TOKYO (AUG. 17) - Iraq has barred an estimated 230 Japanese citizens from leaving the country, a Japanese Foreign Ministry official said Friday.

The official said that the foreign ministry in Baghdad had advised Japanese Ambassador Kunio Katakura of the decision Thursday.

The fate of an estimated 278 Japanese in Kuwait was not immediately clear.

The ambassador was informed of the decision after seeking to clarify whether restrictions on most Westerners leaving Iraq also applied to Japanese.

Mr. Katakura protested the decision, the official said, describing it as an unacceptable contravention of international law. He also said it was deplorable from a humanitarian point of view, considering the number of Japanese women and children in the country.

Japanese citizens in Iraq are mostly businessmen and their dependents, although some tourists are also stuck there, the foreign ministry said.

TOKYO (AUG. 17) - Japan plans to dispatch medical teams to Saudi Arabia and is considering sending non-combat military personnel as part of multinational forces in the Middle East, a newspaper reported Friday.

The Asahi Shimbun said the foreign ministry had "tentatively decided" to send medical teams while examining the possibility of sending transport and communications personnel as part of a package of measures to be announced soon.

Other measures would include economic assistance to Middle East countries -- particularly Turkey, Egypt and Jordan -- to improve the effectiveness of U.N. sanctions against Iraq and Kuwait, the report said.

The foreign ministry was "still considering various options," an official said, refusing to comment on whether the options include dispatching medical teams and military personnel.

The issue of sending Japanese military personnel abroad is extremely controversial in Japan because the country's post-war constitution renounces "the threat or use of force as means of settling international disputes."

The government is also cautious about sending military personnel abroad because of the acute sensitivities of Asian neighbors such as China and Korea and other victims of Japanese military aggression during World War II.

The Asahi report came as Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama prepared to leave for an eight-day tour of Saudi Arabia, Oman, Jordan, Egypt and Turkey.

Mr. Nakayama is undertaking the tour in the place of Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu, who postponed the trip for at least a month following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

The news also coincided with an Iraqi ban preventing an estimated 230 Japanese citizens from leaving the country.

KUALA LUMPUR (AUG. 17) - The United States has rejected three petitions from U.S. labor organizations alleging violations of workers' rights in Malaysia and calling for an end to trade privileges for Malaysian exports, a U.S. embassy spokeswoman said Friday.

She said the petitions had failed to provide substantial new information on earlier petitions as required by the U.S. Trade Policy Staff Committee.

One petition was from the American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial Organizations' (AFL-CIO), its second petition in three years criticizing Malaysia, and the other two from the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) and the International Labor Right Education and Research Fund (ILRERF).

The AFL-CIO and the ILRELF alleged that Malaysia had denied workers, especially in the electronics sector, their basic right to organize while the IBEW claimed that Malaysian exports led to thousands of job losses in the United States.

All three groups were pressing for the exclusion of Malaysia from the preferential market access provided by the U.S. Generalized System of Preferences (GSP) to aid developing countries.

Trade and Industry Minister Rafidah Aziz told reporters that Malaysia welcomed the United States' decision to reject the petitions.

"This dismisses all accusations that Malaysia does not provide workers' rights comparable with those recognized internationally," she said.

Malaysia exported 1.71 billion dollars (633 million U.S.) worth of goods to the United States under its GSP scheme last year, a 37 percent rise from the previous year.

The major items exported under the scheme were electrical products, natural rubber goods, watches and clocks, machinery, toys and sports equipment.

TOKYO (AUG. 17) - Japan's money supply growth slowed from an annual rate of 12.6 percent in June to 12.2 percent in July, mainly reflecting a slowdown in bank lending, the Bank of Japan said Friday.

"The biggest factor was a decrease in the growth rate of lending by banks " a central bank official said. "Other reasons included a decrease in domestic commercial paper issues and increased tax payments."

The growth in money supply -- as measured by M-2 (cash in circulation plus demand and time deposits) plus certificates of deposits -- marked the eighth consecutive increase of more than 10 percent.

The July figure represented only a modest slowdown from April and May when the annual rate of growth rate hit a 14-year high of 13.2 percent.

A senior central bank official said last month that the money supply was growing "too fast," adding that the bank would prefer a growth rate of less than 10 percent. The Bank of Japan is willing to accept "if necessary" a consequent slowdown in the economy, the official said.

But a senior Finance Ministry official later said that concern about the rapid rate of money supply growth was sometimes "not realistic" because the growth was being artificially boosted by financial deregulation.

BEIJING (AUG. 17) - Chinese farmers' real net income fell four percent and their spending 3.4 percent in the first half of this year due to a sharp drop in crop prices and higher input costs, the China Daily reported Friday.

A State Statistical Bureau survey taken in 29 provinces, regions and cities found that farmers' net income was 296.5 yuan (62.95 dollars) in the first half of the year, 1.7 percent more than in the same period of 1989.

But after adjustments to take inflation into account, the figure was four percent lower than last year.

Average household spending was 196.5 yuan (41.8 dollars), a 1.4 percent rise in nominal terms and a real 3.4 percent decline.

The drop in income affected even richer areas such as the eastern province of Jiangsu, Guangdong in the south and the capital Beijing, the report said.

After paying 1.3 percent more for raw materials, China's farmers face depressed prices after a record summer harvest.

CANBERRA (AUG. 17) - Australia should stop restricting the number of foreign banks allowed to operate here, European Commission Vice President Sir Leon Brittan said Friday.

Sir Leon told reporters his views had received a "sympathetic hearing" from officials here.

"It's difficult to see why there should be a limit to the number of banks that can get licenses to operate in Australia if they come from Europe," he said.

"We don't want to discriminate against Australian banks coming into the European Community ... we're just asking for the same," Sir Leon said.

Treasurer Paul Keating issued only 16 licenses when he allowed in foreign banks in 1985, and many of the foreign banks that opened struggled against the large local banks and lent heavily to Australia's doomed entrepreneurs.

Sir Leon said recent events in Eastern Europe and Germany had not reduced Europe's commitment to the Uruguay round of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) due to be finalized in December.

He said there was no reason why "a successful result should not be achieved" in the negotiations.

Earlier this week, Australia's Trade Minister Neal Blewett said uncompromising stands on agriculture or market access by Europe and other major powers were undermining GATT.

Blewett said he saw a new hindrance for GATT progress in what he dubbed "Euro-arrogance," Western Europe's belief that it could afford to snub other continents after the opening up of Eastern Europe.

Sir Leon said Europe had recently signalled it would be willing to cut agricultural support.

"European support for agriculture is quite a lot less than the level of Australian support for industry," he said.

OSLO (AUG. 17) - Kuwait's state oil company Kuwait Petroleum is considering buying Norwegian oil to feed its European refineries and gas stations to compensate for lost Kuwaiti deliveries, the Aftenposten newspaper said Friday.

Kuwait Petroleum has stocks for two to three months, but will eventually need some 420,000 barrels a day for its refineries and 6,000 service stations in Europe, after international sanctions were imposed on Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil following Iraq's invasion and annexation of Kuwait, the newspaper said.

The Kuwaiti company and Norwegian state oil concern Statoil have been in frequent contact since the August 2 Iraqi invasion, but discussions have not yet reached the stage of negotiations, a spokesman for Kuwait Petroleum in London said.

A Statoil spokesman confirmed that contacts had been stepped up, but would not give any further details.

Kuwait Petroleum, which operates petrol stations under the "Q8" name, has outlets in Sweden, Denmark, the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Britain and Italy.

Statoil would not be able to meet all of Kuwait Petroleum's oil needs, as 420,000 barrels is equivalent to a quarter of Norway's entire daily production and a quarter of Statoil's.

The European branch of the Kuwaiti state oil company is looking to Saudi Arabia for short-term oil deliveries, the Kuwait Petroleum spokesman was quoted as saying.

But he noted that Riyadh, as a member of the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries, was committed to not exceeding its OPEC output quota.

Kuwait Petroleum has not lost its market share as a result of the Iraqi invasion and appreciated what the spokesman described as strong support from customers all over Europe.

The last shipment of oil loaded in Kuwait before the invasion is now on its way to Europe, but after that the company must rely on its stocks and other suppliers.

MANILA (AUG. 17) - The Philippines said Friday it was lodging a protest with Iraq in connection with alleged abuse of Filipino workers in the Gulf by pro-Baghdad forces.

President Corazon Aquino said the protest would be filed through the Iraqi ambassador here.

"We will definitely speak out in the strongest terms against these reported abuses and press for all possible means to protect our nationals abroad," she said.

About 60,000 Filipinos were working in Kuwait and 5,000 in Iraq during the Iraqi invasion, and fewer than a thousand have been able to return home.

A Filipina dressmaker told reporters at Manila airport on her arrival from Kuwait on Thursday that she had been raped by a Palestinian volunteer militiaman.

Presidential spokesman Adolfo Azcuna said the Philippines' embassies in the Middle East had been asked to collate data on abuses, which would be used to lodge a detailed protest.

SINGAPORE (AUG. 17) - Singapore Telecom said Friday its net profit for the year to March rose 40 percent from the previous year to 888 million dollars (493.3 million U.S.).

The company also said it would raise its capital investment by 50 percent to 2.7 billion dollars (1.5 billion U.S.) in the next five years to meet what it said was growing demand for services from local and foreign companies.

Revenue in the year to March increased by 12 percent to more than two billion dollars (1.12 billion U.S.), while expenditure dropped by one percent to 1.3 billion dollars (722 million U.S.).

Net profit for the 1988-89 financial year was 633 million dollars (351.2 million U.S.).

International telephone calls remained the core business, contributing revenue of 1.03 billion dollars (572 million U.S.), Singapore Telecom said.

Chairman Koh Boon Hwee told a news conference that one of the challenges facing the corporation would be a demand for more sophisticated telecommunications services from domestic users.

More than 35 million dollars (19.4 million U.S.) was spent to upgrade the digital international telephone exchanges to provide better International Direct Dialing (IDD) and 9.1 million dollars (5.1 million U.S.) was spent on training in 1989-90, Mr. Koh said.

A new 73 million dollar (40.6 million U.S.) customer and services information system will be ready by late 1991, he added.

Singapore Telecom plans to spend 2.7 billion dollars on capital investment in the next five years, an increase of 50 percent on the 1.8 billion dollars (one billion U.S.) it spent in the last half-decade.

Mr. Koh said Singapore Telecom had formed strategic alliances with telecommunications companies in Britain, the Netherlands, Japan and Thailand to boost its long-term growth through international expansion.

On the proposed privatisation of Singapore Telecom, Mr. Koh said a consultant had been appointed to work out details and that it would take about two years to finalise the process.

LONDON (AUG. 17) - Brent North Sea crude oil prices rose in London early Friday as the latest news from the Gulf again raised fears of an escalation of tension.

Brent was quoted at 26.70 dollars a barrel for October delivery, up from 25.40 at Thursday's close.

The rise came after a meeting between King Hussein of Jordan and U.S. President George Bush disappointed hopes that it would ease tension, and a warning from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein that he was ready for all-out war with the United States if necessary.

TOKYO (AUG. 17) - Japanese trading firm Chori Co. Ltd. has started to buy chemicals and textiles from the Soviet Union to produce detergent and garments at factories in China, a company official said Friday.

The Osaka-based company recently bought 18 tons of chemicals in the Soviet Central Asian city of Chimkent for 1.1 million dollars and transported the material to Tianjin in northeast China for processing, the official said.

The company has also acquired about 2,000 tons of silk and cotton from the Soviet republics of Uzbekistan and Turkmenia for the manufacture of shirts and blouses in Guangzhou in southern China.

Chori, which mainly trades in textiles and chemicals, plans to re-export the detergent and garments produced in China to Japan and Southeast Asia, the official said.

The firm already has strong trading links with both countries and plans to form a joint venture with Soviet parties to sell rare metals.

HOBART, AUSTRALIA (AUG. 17) - Australia will ban mining and mineral exploration in its Antarctic territory, Foreign Minister Gareth Evans said Friday.

Mr. Evans said in a speech here that Canberra would enact laws to ban any mining on Australia's 42 per cent slice of Antarctica and would prohibit Australians from mining in the remaining sectors.

"This legislation is an important step in Australia's campaign to maintain the Antarctic forever as the world's last great untouched and unexploited wilderness," he said in a joint statement with Environment Minister Ros Kelly.

France and Australia, as two of the seven territorial claimants to the area, vetoed a mining convention adopted in 1988 which would have allowed mining on the frozen continent.

Mr. Evans said he hoped that a special consultative meeting of the 22 Antarctic Treaty countries in Chile in November would come to an agreement that would help preserve the area.

Opponents to mining in the area want Antarctica declared a world park which would be off-limits to all developers.

Mining on mainland Antarctica is so far mostly only a theoretical threat. There are coal and mineral reserves under the ice, which is three kilometres (nearly two miles) thick, but they are too expensive to recover at current prices.

FARMINGDALE, NY (AUG. 17) - A 14-year-old hacker suspected of penetrating a Pentagon computer has been arrested with 12 others on charges of breaking into a computer at a university in Washington state, officials said.

The boy, who was not identified because he is a minor, was alleged to have broken into the computer at the City University of Bellevue in Washington in May, using a toll-free telephone number used by students and faculty, according to Senior Investigator Donald Delaney of the New York State Police.

The boy, who signed into the computer as "Zod," allegedly set up a program that gave other illegitimate users access to the university computer, Mr. Delaney said.

More than 40 hackers from across the country were believed to have penetrated the computer using the system, which required hackers to answer 11 questions to gain entry.

"Zod" also was suspected of breaking into an Air Force computer in the Pentagon last November, Mr. Delaney said.

Police arrested 13 people Thursday in the New York area and charged with computer tampering, computer trespass, unauthorized use of a computer and theft of services, Mr. Delaney said. Three more arrests were expected.

According to Mr. Delaney, university files were altered and deleted and consultants have had to be hired to reprogram the system.

RABAT (AUG. 17) - Morocco is holding talks with the Soviet Union, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates to obtain oil supplies to compensate for lost Iraqi deliveries, Moroccan weekly "Economic Life" said here Friday.

Morocco, one of the few Arab countries not to produce oil, spent 3.22 billion dirham (392 million dollars) on Iraqi oil last year, or 52.8 percent of its total oil bill of 6.09 billion dirham (742 million dollars).

It currently has three months' supply of fuel in stock and has recently bought 230,000 tons of crude from the Emirates and 160,000 tons on the free market, the weekly said, quoting industry sources.

The recent purchases were to compensate for the loss of two Iraqi deliveries of 240,000 tons apiece, due to have arrived August 9 and 16 and representing 20 days' consumption, the weekly added.

The two ships carrying the deliveries were expected at the port of Mohammedia, north of Casablanca, but neither had appeared and it was not known where they were.

"Economic Life" also said that Morocco was suspending export credit guarantees for exports to Iraq and Kuwait.

HONIARA (AUG. 17) - The Solomons Islands has signed a fisheries access treaty with Taiwan, enabling its vessels to fish within the Solomons' 200 mile (320 kilometre) exclusive economic zone, officials said here.

Officials said under the access agreement, Taiwanese fishing vessels can apply for a year's fishing permit for 500 U.S. dollars.

Taiwan's Ambassador Chi Kun Ning presented Solomons Natural Resources Minister Allan Paul with a check for 70,000 U.S. dollars at the signing ceremony as a downpayment on behalf of Taiwan's Kaohsiung Fishermen's Association.

The agreement is the second for the Solomons, which has a similar deal with Japan.

Fish exports grossed 30 million U.S. dollars for the Solomons last year, about 40 percent of its export income.

The fishing industry here is dominated by Solomon-Taiyo Ltd., which is 59 percent government-owned and 41 percent Japanese-owned, and Canadian-owned National Fisheries Development Ltd.

LONDON (AUG. 17) - British retail prices rose by 0.1 percent in July taking the increase during the last 12 months to 9.8 percent, the same level as in June, official figures showed on Friday.

The 12-monthly increase remained below ten percent because food prices fell by one percent, and the price of shoes and clothing fell by 2.4 percent due to summer sales, but a Treasury spokesman said that the rate of price rises was "still too high".

Analaysts had forecast that the increase in July would be 0.2 percent and for the last 12 months 9.9 percent. City sources said that recent increases in fuel prices would certainly take the 12-monthly figure above ten percent in August.

If the statistics are analysed on a basis similar to that used in other leading industrialised countries, excluding the effect of interest rates on home mortgage repayments, and excluding the incidence of local taxation, the inflation rate in the year to July was seven percent compared with 6.9 percent in June.

The government has said that it will not place sterling within the exchange rate mechanism of the European monetary system (EMS) until this underlying rate of inflation is close to the European average, currently well below the British levels.

FREETOWN (AUG. 17) - Sierra Leone's one-party system is under review at a crucial meeting of the ruling All People's Congress which began here Friday amid growing calls for multi-party democracy, delegates said.

President Joseph Momoh, who opened a special central committee meeting before hundreds of delegates, has come under growing pressure in recent months to abandon the APC's monopoly on power as the West African state slides deeper into ruin.

"The APC is discussing it's own future at this meeting," one delegate told Agence France-Presse.

In June, the Sierra Leone bar association passed a resolution at its annual convention saying the "poor economic performance can be attributed to the ineptitude of the ruling party".

Such outspokenness had been rare in a country which has been under the same party since 1967. Major-General Momoh is party secretary-general and national leader.

The lawyers' stand has found support among students and university staff as well as backing from a section of the press, but opposition parties are banned under the constitution.

Finance Minister Thomas Taylor-Morgan surprised many on June 29 with a devastating assessment of the economy, at a time when the country is embarking on an economic recovery plan with the backing of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

MANAMA (AUG. 17) - The Iraqi News Agency said the Iraqi authorities had eased the curfew to 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. (2000 to 0300 GMT) in Kuwait City and in Nida and Jahra, two cities in the northeast of the emirate.

An earlier INA dispacth gave the impression the curfew was new, but a second dispatch a few minutes later said it had been shortened. Since August 6, the curfew had been from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. (1600 to 0400 GMT).

Kuwait has been virtually cut off from the outside world since Iraq invaded on August 2 and annexed the oil-rich emirate.

PIGGS PEAK, SWAZILAND (AUG. 17) - A dog at the centre of an ownership wrangle in the magistrate's court here showed his contempt for the proceedings by urinating on the floor and walking out.

The South African Press Association said Zeeman Ngubeni was trying to prove that Makhehlane Nxumalo had stolen the animal from him by demonstrating that the dog knew and respected him.

Instead of obeying commands, the bored canine lifted his leg, relieved himself and then disappeared. The court adjourned amid peals of laughter.

CAIRO (AUG. 17) - Arab forces sent to defend Saudi Arabia are to operate under Saudi command, the Egyptian Defense Ministry announced here Friday.

Egyptian, Moroccan and Syrian troops have arrived in the kingdom in accordance with an Arab League summit resolution to shore up Saudi defenses against a possible attack by Iraq, whose forces invaded and seized Kuwait August 2.

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, in an interview with a U.S. television network, said Thursday that some 2,000 Egyptians had been flown to Saudi Arabia. Press reports here had put the number at around 3,000.

Morocco and Syrian have each contributed an estimated 1,200 men.

In addition the United States has deployed 50,000 air and ground forces in Saudi Arabia, which Washington says is now threatened by Iraqi troops in Kuwait.

BRUSSELS (AUG. 17) - The North Atlantic Treaty Organisation is reducing the scope of its autumn military manoeuvres because U.S. warships and personnel committed to the exercises have been deployed in the Gulf, a NATO military spokesman said Friday.

Major Robert Dittmer, spokesman at Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe (SHAPE), which is the alliance's military HQ, confirmed that 4,500 U.S. marines would not take part in a three-nation exercise in northern West Germany called Bold Guard.

West German Defence Ministry officials announced Thursday the U.S. pullout from the September 24-October 19 exercise, which gathers U.S., Danish and West German forces in a rehearsed reinforcement of the Danish peninsula in times of tension.

In a second development, the Norwegian Defence Ministry said Friday that the United States was withdrawing from a joint exercise called Teamwork-90, scheduled for September 6 to September 22, as some of the 6,000 U.S. personnel committed to it had already been sent to Saudi Arabia.

The 16,000-men exercise also require a U.S. aircraft carrier to provide air support for troops reinforcing Norway. But three U.S. aircraft have already been deployed in the Gulf and a fourth is en route.

Maj. Dittmer said he had not been informed about the U.S. pullout from Teamwork-90.

The only other big NATO exercise this year that combines different national forces is Display Determination, a land and naval operation involving Italy and Turkey, Maj. Dittmer said.

He said that this and the other exercises are scheduled to continue even without the U.S. presence, but cautioned that a cut in the size of Display Determination could not be ruled out.

"Are the forces that are normally pegged to these exercises available? That, I think, is the critical question to ask, and in some cases, I suspect the answers aren't around," he said.

"The U.S. may surprise us with more announcements," he said. "There could be more changes, certainly."

TOKYO (AUG. 17) - Iran has agreed to boost its daily direct crude oil supply to Japan from the current 280,000 barrels to 700,000 barrels in October-December, industry sources said here Friday.

The accord was reached between the Japanese oil industry and Teheran's National Iranian Oil Co. (NIOC), the sources said. Government officials confirmed press reports from Cairo Friday that Saudi Arabia had withdrawn an earlier decision to cut crude oil supply to Japan.

The officials said Thursday that Saudi Arabia had informed Japanese oil importers that it would cut crude oil exports to Japan by 16 percent from September.

Saudi Oil Minister Hisham Nazer denied that Saudi Arabia would implement such cuts, and said the kingdom would "continue to supply its clients according to their usual quotas."

PARIS (AUG. 17) - The Franco-Italian ATR aircraft manufacturer took a cautious line on Friday about U.S. reports that American Airlines was ordering 100 ATR 42 and ATR 72 regional airliners.

"Nothing is certain, we are still negotiating and the competion is wide open with the Swedish Saab company and Dutch Fokker in particular", an ATR spokesman said.

It was reported from reliable sources in Washington on Thursday that American Airlines, the second biggest U.S. airline, was about to announce that it had ordered 100 aircraft from ATR in a deal worth about one billion dollars.

American Airlines spokesman Ed Martelle said that the company would announce a major order on Aug. 22, but declined to name the identity of the manufacturer.

But the ATR spokesman here declined even to mention the number of aircraft under negotiation.

CAIRO (AUG. 17) - An Iraqi cargo vessel, prevented earlier in the week from using the Suez Canal because of a financial dispute, has finally been authorized to pass through the waterway, the Middle East News Agency reported Friday.

The Zein al-Qaws was given permission to use the Canal after paying 12,000 dollars in transit fees, the agency said.

The vessel's owners, according to the agency, had initially refused to pay the fee because of heightened risks that the cargo would be seized in the Gulf, following announcements by Britain and the United States that ships travelling to and from Iraq and Kuwait would be intercepted.

The Zein al-Qawas arrived at Port Said on Tuesday with a cargo of food, press reports said, without disclosing the origin of the shipment.

Egyptian authorities earlier this week stressed that they could not prevent Iraqi vessels from using the canal, despite United Nations trade sanctions on Baghdad, because of their commitments under the 1888 Constantinople accord on freedom of navigation.

The U.N. Security Council imposed the measures August 6 following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait four days earlier.

PARIS (AUG. 17) - Some 360 guests invited to the first international fair for the protection of the gorilla in the eastern African country of Rwanda are stranded at airports in Paris and the United States waiting for their plane, the Rwanda Embassy said here Friday.

The fair, starting Saturday, is to run for a week.

A plane scheduled to pick up guests from Washington, New York and Paris on the way to Kigali had been chartered by the event's organiser, Guinean Mamadou Barry, who planned to finance the fair by contributions from U.S. and European private enterprise.

But the charter plane, which was supposed to arrive in Washington on Thursday, never appeared.

An embassy spokesman said the Rwandan government had tried in vain to contact Mr. Barry, 22, and that the authorities hoped to find another plane to take the guests to Kigali.

The government also reserved the right "if necessary" to take legal action against the fair organisers.

Several hundred gorillas, a protected species, live in a nature reserve on the Rwandan border with Zaire and Uganda.

PRAGUE (AUG. 17) - The government of Czechoslovakia has decided to privatize part of the CKD engineering group which has annual sales of 765 million dollars and has 40,000 employees in 18 factories. On September 1 the company will become a limited liability company involving a state shareholding.

From October 1 it will become a holding company capitalized at 400 million dollars, and will allow its 18 subsidiaries to be operated independently, CKD general manager Jan Havelka said Thursday.

CKD has been in contact for several months with the Swiss-Swedish Asea Brown Boveri, French Alsthom and U.S. General Electric companies with a view to finding a non-majority foreign shareholder, Havelka said. The company was founded in 1927 through the amalgamation of three private companies and still bears the names of its founders, Kolben and Danek.

CKD workers were among the first people to join the November revolutionary movement led by students and artists, and one of them - Petr Millar - became Minister for Labor and Social Affairs.

CKD manufactures 500 railway locomotives a year, is a leading world manufacturer of trams, producing 1,000 units a year, and also manufacturers compressors, diesel engines, cranes, and electronic components for transportation equipment. Contracts for trams have been signed this year with France and Brazil, and negotiations are being held with Algeria, Havelka said.

The restructuring of CKD should enable the company to modernize its facilities and to win new markets to compensate for the loss of many traditional clients in eastern Europe which accounted for 80 percent of exports, of which about 70 percent went to the Soviet Union, he said.

Similar privatization arrangements are due to be enacted for all Czechoslovak industrial groups, including the giant energy equipment company Skoda-Plzen.

LONDON (AUG. 17) - The Shell oil company will seek to obtain a court order to end strikes by workers on its North Sea oil rigs, a company spokesman announced Friday.

According to the company, some 240 employees were continuing to hold sit-ins on the drilling platforms, whose activity has been affected for over two weeks by a series of strikes.

The workers are demanding recognition of their unions and improved working conditions.

The Offshore Industry Liaison Committee, which has been coordinating the strikes, has decided to organize a vote among the workers to select a future course of action.

The new strategy could affect land-based facilities, a spokesman said Friday.

PRETORIA (AUG. 17) - Reduced exports and increased imports cut South Africa's trade surplus in July to 491 million rand (190.5 million dollars), according to preliminary figures released here Friday by Customs and Excise.

The monthly surplus showed a 65 percent drop from June's figure of 1.395 billion rand (541 million dollars), and a 59.5 percent decrease from the 1.207 billion rand (468.3 million dollars) recorded in July 1989.

In May, the monthly surplus stood at 1.083 billion rands (420 million dollars) while in April a figure of 971 million rand (376.7 million dollars) was recorded.

The July surplus was way off the year's peak in February of 1.765 billion rand (684 million dollars), but the cumulative surplus for the year to end-July showed a 20.64 percent improvement on the trade surplus for the same period in 1989.

The figures showed that the cumulative surplus for the first seven months of the year has now topped 8.118 billion rand (3.15 billion dollars) compared with 6.729 billion rand (2.61 billion dollars) for the same period last year.

Exports were down 7.8 percent from June at 4.815 billion rand (1.87 billion rands), while imports, at 4.815 billion rand (1.86 billion dollars), rose 17.5 percent over the previous month.

In July 1989, exports stood at 5.269 billion rand (2.04 billion dollars) while imports amounted to 4.062 billion rand (1.57 billion dollars).

TEHERAN (AUG. 17) - Iran on Friday prepared to free 1,000 Iraqi prisoners of war to match the same number of Iranian POWs released by Baghdad earlier in the day.

The POW exchange comes two days after Iraq announced its decision to withdraw from Iranian territory, free prisoners of war and accept the terms of an accord on sharing sovereignty with Teheran over the strategic Shatt al-Arab waterway.

Iranian Foreign Ministry spokesman Morteza Sarmadi said the 1,000 Iraqi troops were transferred from their detention centers to the western border with Iraq for repatriation, the official IRNA news agency reported.

Earlier in the day two representatives of the International Committee of the Red Cross arrived in Teheran from Geneva to supervise the repatriation operation, IRNA said.

IRNA also confirmed that Iraqi troops had begun to withdraw from Iranian territory.

TEHERAN (AUG. 17) - Syrian Vice President Abdel Halim Khaddam Friday said Syria and Iran should adopt a joint strategy in the Gulf region, stressing that the two countries sought an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait.

Mr. Khaddam was quoted in an interview with the official IRNA news agency shortly before he left here for Damascus after talks with Iranian officials on the Gulf crisis.

"In our meetings ... we stressed the need for the withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait and the return to power of the legal government," he said.

"Iran and Syria believe they should adopt a joint strategy to promote their goals," he added.

Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati, who saw the Syrian delegation off at the airport, described the visit "as very sensitive and important at this juncture."

Mr. Khaddam had arrived here Wednesday with Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk al-Shara.

Syria and Iran, united in their opposition to Iraq, have joined the near universal condemnation of the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

MOSCOW (AUG. 17) - A final political settlement on the external aspects of German unification should be concluded on September 12 in Moscow at a meeting of the four victorious World War II allies and the two Germanies, the Soviet and West German foreign ministers said here Friday.

"I think it will be a concluding meeting, a concluding dialogue," said Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, adding that he hoped the final document which, "in its essence has been prepared," would be signed.

Addressing a joint press conference following day-long talks on unification and future bilateral relations, Mr. Shevardnadze and his West German colleague Hans-Dietrich Genscher said ratification of the settlement by parliaments in the five countries (a united Germany, the Soviet Union, the United States, France and Britain) should take place very rapidly.

AMMAN (AUG. 17) - A dozen women and 15 children will be among a group of 230 Soviet nationals expected to arrive in Jordan at midnight (2100 GMT) from Kuwait, Soviet diplomatic sources here said Friday.

The group will enter Jordan from Iraqi territory at the Roweished border post, 270 kilometers (167 miles) east of Amman, and catch flights to Moscow on Saturday.

The sources said the Soviet government had sent a cargo plane and a passenger aircraft to Jordan to repatriate its nationals -- contract workers and their families employed by Kuwaiti petrochemical and geological firms.

The Soviet workers decided to sever the contracts and return home following Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait, according to the sources.

Another group of 150 Soviets from Kuwait is also expected in Jordan via Iraq over the next few days.

The Soviet community in the oil-rich Gulf emirate before the invasion numbered 800, according to Moscow, while 8,000 Soviets live in Iraq.

A Soviet Foreign Ministry official, Yuri Gremytskikh, said Thursday in Moscow that the "evacution" of Soviet nationals from Kuwait and Iraq would be carried out in stages, with "sick women and children having priority."

Some 200 Romanians are also expected in Jordan over the next few days. A Romanian diplomatic source said their departure from Iraq was not an evacuation and that 3,000 other Romanians were still working in Iraq.

Polish diplomats said that 443 Poles were also expected to arrive soon in Jordan from Kuwait.

Hungarian officials in Budapest said earlier that Iraq had reversed a decision and barred some of the 33 Hungarians living there from leaving the country, saying that their work contracts were still in force.

The officials said 159 other Hungarians remained in Kuwait.

DAMASCUS (AUG. 17) - Syrian Vice President Abdul-Halim Khaddam and Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharaa returned Friday after a two-day visit to Teheran, during which they held talks on the Gulf crisis and delivered a message from President Hafez Assad to Iranian President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani.

Khaddam said in a statement that the two sides held ''identical views about the situation and ''its dangers and destructive repercusiions on the region''.

''We have stressed that Iraqi forces must withdraw from Kuwait, because resorting to using force to solve the outstanding problems between neighboring countries will cause great damages to these countries, and their future'', Khaddam continued.

The vice president sais Syria and Iran ''have identical strategic policies'' and ''shall continue consulting and cooperating, because the subject is sensitive and delicate.''

Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati said in a statement to the Syrian news agency Sana that contacts between the two countries would continue in the future ''more than ever before''.

Velyati said cooperation between Syria and Iran was considered as ''one of the factors in making a balanced situation in the region''.

Sources said the talks in Teheran also touched on the situation in Lebanon and the fate of foreign hostages there.

COPENHAGEN (AUG. 17) - Waters off the Danish coast, in the Baltic seas, in the Flensborg fjord and between Denmark and Sweden have been losing oxygen due to pollution at an alarming rate, Danish biologists say.

The loss of oxygen has been especially worrisome in the Flensborg fjord and in Baltic seas south of the island of Lolland.

"When oxygen disappears, toxic substances are produced at the bottom of the sea and asphyxiate the fish close to the surface," said Nanna Rask, a biologist working on the island of Fionie.

The problem, recurrent throughout the 1980s, is caused by the discharge of of azotes and nitrates, pollutants that cause the growth of oxygen-absorbing algae.

The agriculture industry is primarily responsible for discharges of nitrates into waters in the region.

The Danish parliament adopted an anti-pollution strategy in 1987, demanding that nitrate discharges be reduced by half and that phosphate discharges be cut by 80 per cent before 1992.

Experts say, however, that the Danish agricultural sector has been slow to abide by the reduced pollution levels.

NEW DELHI (AUG. 17) - U.S. military forces have evacuated some 330 Indian nationals from Liberia at New Delhi's request, an Indian government official said here Friday.

The 330 out of some 430 Indians trapped in war-torn Liberia were moved to a U.S. naval vessel before being airlifted by helicopters to Freetown, the capital of Sierra Leone.

The external affairs ministry official told reporters that Indian diplomats were making further arrangements for sending the expatriates home.

He said New Delhi was keeping in touch with the U.S., Nigerian and Ghanaian authorities to help evacuate the remaining 100 Indians from Liberia, with which India does not have diplomatic relations.

More than 6,500 Indians had left Liberia earlier as the situation deteriorated.

TUNIS (AUG. 17) - The 12-nation European Community (E.C.) Friday called on the Arab League to do everything possible to ensure the safety of foreigners in Iraq and Kuwait and their safe return home.

The request was conveyed by a group of three E.C. ambassadors to Tunis in a meeting here with Deputy Arab League Secretary-General Adnan Omran.

The E.C. was concerned over the fate of foreign civilians stuck in Iraq and Kuwait, which was invaded by Baghdad troops on August 2, the Arab League Tunis headquarters said.

The call came a day after Iraqi occupying forces in Kuwait ordered all Britons and Americans there to assemblein hotels in a move that raise fears in the West that they might be interned in Iraq.

GENEVA (AUG. 17) - The International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) is negotiating with Iraq to send workers to Kuwait to help foreigners trapped there since the August 2 Iraqi invasion, ICRC Middle East representative Angelo Gnaedinger said here Friday.

The move comes as Western fears were growing over the safety of the 240,000 to 300,000 foreign nationals in the oil-rich Gulf emirate annexed by Iraq.

Iraq has ordered British and U.S. citizens to assemble in a Kuwait City hotel, raising speculation that they could be used as hostages in the event of a Western military response to the crisis.

According to the Red Cross "tens or hundreds of thousands of people" in Kuwait are being prevented from contacting their families and friends.

Some have been moved, others arrested, and there is a danger that provisions, medicines and water may run out in some areas, it said.

Mr. Gnaedinger said more than 20 governments had asked the Red Cross to help, and the agency was holding a "difficult" dialogue with the Iraqi authorities to allow its volunteers into Kuwait.

He said any action taken by Red Cross would respect "the strictest neutrality."

Turning to Red Cross workers in Baghdad, Mr. Gnaedinger said the 20 or so volunteers there were expecting to be joined by some 10 others for the task of repatriating Iranian prisoners of war being released under the new peace deal between Iraq and Iran.

RIYADH (AUG. 17) - Some 170,000 Indians still trapped in Kuwait were reported Friday to be in imminent danger of starvation unless a rescue effort was mounted quickly.

The Saudi English-language daily Arab News quoted some of the 500 Indian refugees arriving in Saudi Arabia as refuting reports by All India Radio that the situation in Kuwait was returning to normal.

On the contrary, the situation in Kuwait ''is on the boil ...,'' an Indian refugee told the newspaper

''The food is scarce, water is in short supply, supermarkets are empty and the little that we scrape up by standing in day-long queues are snatched by the gun-totting Iraqis,'' he was quoted as saying.

The Indian, identified by the paper as S.S. Raju from Andhra Pradesh, added, ''Unless the hundreds of thousands of remaining Indians in Kuwait are evacuated within a week, they are doomed to perish.''

Raju charged that Iraqi soldiers were ''striking terror in the hearts of the people by sitting on rooftops at night and firing in the air.'' He said this practice ''helps them bulldoze into houses and seize anything that catches their fancy.''

All the refugees said they had lost their savings, and had gone into debt in order to escape.

''We have lost everything. We have no money even to pay for our travel from Bombay to our respective destinations,'' the refugee was quoted as saying.

The paper quoted Sayed Akbaruddin, an official at the Indian embassy here, as saying that the embassy and Indian volunteers were working around the clock.

He said they had deployed 18 vans to tranport Indian refugees from the Saudi-Kuwaiti border points of Al-Khafji and Hafr al-Batin to their makeshift homes at Indian schools in Saudi Arabia.

LONDON (AUG. 17) - Shipowners are finding themselves once again in between a rock and a hard place, being squeezed on the one hand by higher bunker costs and insurance premiums, and on the other hand by declining freight rates, tanker brokers E.A. Gibson said Friday in their latest report.

This situation could persuade owners to cease trading until such time as equilibrium is restored, they added.

Some 20 VLCCsULCCs (very and ultra large crude carriers, over 200,000 tonnes), totalling nearly five million tons, found employment in the Middle-East Gulf over the past week, and there is no doubt that additional private business was concluded.

Rates varied, according to different insurance premiums depending on loading zones and the proportion of premiums being absorbed between owners and charterers.

Demand for smaller units from the Middle-East Gulf was sparse.

After last week's firm trend, the West African market experienced an absence of enquiry this week. But Mediterranean loading zones were more active, although rates remained static due to the large number of vessels available.

A similar scenario was seen in the Caribbean area and in the North Sea where, despite increased activity, an excess of tonnage led in some instances to a fall-off in the rate structure.

DARMSTADT, WEST GERMANY (AUG. 17) - Seven people suspected of involvement in illegal shipments to Iraq of equipment used in the production of poison gas have been arrested in West Germany, a prosecutor said Friday.

Darmstadt prosecutor Friedrich Hoffmann said an agent of the West German BND secret service, Al Kadhi, was arrested along with employees of various West German businesses in Hamburg, Hanover and Darmstadt.

An employee of the Preussag export group in Hanover and employees of Water Engineering Trading (WET), a Hamburg chemical company, were also among those arrested on charges of violating West German export laws.

The inquiry by the prosecutors's office into the activities of 20 people believed to be implicated in illegal shipments to Iraq was begun in 1987, Mr. Hoffmann said. He said suspicion was directed at individuals and not companies.

The arrests followed revelations about the case Monday in the West German weekly magazine Der Spiegel citing the public prosecutor's office and West German customs sources. Der Spiegel implicated about 50 West German firms in illegal shipments to Iraq.

BND agent Al Khadi allegedly acted as an intermediary between WET, in which he owned shares, and Baghdad for equipment to be used in the manufacture of poison gas, Der Spiegel said.

Secretary of State Lutz Stavenhagen, the government official in charge of the BND secret service, has denied that the BND had "directly or indirectly" helped Iraq in the production of chemical weapons.

ALGIERS (AUG. 17) - Tens of thousands of Moslems demonstrated in the centre of Algiers on Friday in a fundamentalist-organised protest against the deployment of foreign forces in the Gulf.

The protestors, mostly bearded men dressed in the traditional white robes of their faith, gathered after weekly prayers to condemn the presence of foreign troops in Saudi Arabia and the "Islamic Gulf."

The protest was organised by the Islamic Salvation Front, the fundamentalist opposition party which swept to victory in local elections in June.

Loudspeakers set up around Martyrs Square blared out verses from the Koran.

Banners emblazoned with "No to American Military Presence in Holy Sites" and "No to Colonial Frontiers Dividing Islamic Unity," hung from the balcony of a building overlooking the square.

Demonstrators in the crowd held banners aloft delivering such messages as "Jews and Christians Will Not Be Satisfied Until You Adopt Their Religion," and "It is Time To Build the Koranic State to Unify the Islamic People."

Posters signed by the Salvation Front's spokesman Abassi Madani on walls, bus stops and telephone booths in the city called on the faithful to march throughout Algeria to "express their condemnation of aggression towards the Islamic community."

BANJUL (AUG. 17) - All of the logistic problems delaying deployment of a West African peacekeeping force in Liberia have been ironed out and the 2,500 troops will be sent in next week, the force's Ghanaian commander General Arnold Quainoo said here Friday.

He denied that the summoning of a conference here in 10 days of all parties to the conflict to form an interim government would negate the force's mission.

The conference has been called by Gambian President Dawda Jawara, who is also the current chairman of the 16-nation Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) which is assembling the peacekeeping force in the Sierra Leone capital Freetown.

Sir Dawda and Gen. Quainoo had two lengthy meetings here on Thursday, which sources interpreted to mean there were still obstacles to deploying the peacekeeping force.

ECOWAS has failed so far to get the belligerents in Monrovia to agree to a cease-fire, and there is still the outstanding issue of finding 50 million dollars to finance the military operation.

Gen. Quainoo was due to visit the troops at the weekend, then return here for Monday's scheduled talks with Liberian rebel leader Charles Taylor and the foreign ministers of the seven ECOWAS mediating nations, authoritative sources said.

Mr. Taylor had been due here on Thursday, but called the encounter off for what ECOWAS termed "technical reasons."

An informed source said however a rebel official had sent a message that Mr. Taylor was unwell. The source was unable to confirm reports that Mr. Taylor had been in a car accident.

Monday's meeting chaired by Sir Dawda will be a bid to get the rebels to accept a ceasefire and the despatch of the multi-national force.

To date Mr. Taylor has opposed having the force come in without his express invitation, and has dismissed it as a "regional dictatorship club."

Political observers believe the National Patriotic Front of Liberia leader fears it would prevent him from claiming final victory over President Samuel Doe and taking power.

NEW YORK, UNITED NATIONS (AUG. 17) - The United Nations Security Council met Friday to discuss the situation of foreign nationals trapped in Iraq and Kuwait, council president Aurel Dragos Munteanu, of Romania, said.

The meeting was held amid growing speculation on the possibility of an action by U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar to guarantee the security of the foreign nationals who have not been allowed to leave Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

In London, British Foreign Office Secretary Douglas Hurd said that his country would do its utmost to obtain an orderly evacuation of its citizens from Iraq and Kuwait, following an order Thursday by Iraqi authorities for the 4,000 Britons in Kuwait to gather at a hotel in the Kuwaiti capital.

A U.N. source said that Mr. Perez de Cuellar, who is currently visiting Peru -- his homeland --, may cut short his tour of Latin America and return to U.N. headquarters if it were necessary.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 17) - Hopes for a diplomatic settlement of the Gulf crisis dimmed Friday with U.S. warships now ordered to intercept Iraq-bound ships and worry rising over foreigners in Kuwait.

It was still not clear what was happening with an estimated 4,000 Britons and 2,500 U.S. citizens ordered the previous day by Iraqi occupation forces to report to two hotels in Kuwait.

Britons who turned up at one of the hotels were met by no one from the occupation forces, according to diplomatic sources. There had been fears foreigners would be interned in Iraq, virtual hostages.

In New York, Italian United Nations ambassador Vieri Traxler, on behalf of European Community states, called on U.N. Secretary-General Xavier Perez de Cuellar to ask Baghdad what it intended.

The E.C. also called on the Arab League to do all possible to ensure the foreigners's safety in a request made in Tunis by three ambassadors meeting Deputy Arab League Secretary-General Adnan Omran.

Washington expressed greater concern over the fact that its diplomats were denied access to 38 Americans detained in the Hotel Rashid in Baghdad.

The State Department said another 30 Americans had been taken to an unknown place in Iraq. The U.N. Security Council was meeting later Friday to discuss the fate of foreigners in Iraq and Kuwait.

Tass news agency reported that five busloads of Soviets would be flown from Jordan Saturday after being allowed out of Kuwait. Most were women and children of the 800-strong Soviet colony there.

Baghdad Radio said a nightly curfew was being imposed in Kuwait City and the Jahraa area of Kuwait between 2300-0600 hours, but gave no reason.

Pentagon orders meanwhile took effect early Friday for the U.S. Navy to intercept merchant ships in the Gulf to assure no goods reach Iraq. Washington said it hoped other navies would join the action.

There are almost 30 U.S. warships in the Gulf region, and vessels from several other countries, including Britain, France, Canada, the Soviet Union and the Netherlands are also there or on their way.

It was believed the U.S. Navy would be directed to take action in phases, such as first asking a suspected ship to identify its cargo, then firing a warning shot across the bow if necessary.

The order went into effect as U.S. President George Bush met at Kennebunkport, Maine, with Jordan's King Hussein. It was unclear if Hussein gave a specific pledge to close the Red Sea port of Aqaba, last remaining harbour open to handle imports for Iraq.

U.S. intelligence reports, quoted by U.S. media, said the the flow of imports to Iraq via Aqaba was down to a trickle compared with normal, when 30 freighters would be in dock.

As the U.S. force in Saudi Arabia was about to be increased to nearly 100,000 with the arrival of 45,000 Marines, Defence Secretary Dick Cheney was due in Riyadh Friday for talks with Saudi leaders.

MOSCOW (AUG. 17) - The rise in world oil prices caused by the Gulf crisis is too little to "make a serious difference in Soviet income," as Soviet production is declining markedly, the government daily Izvestia said Friday. Soviet oil output this year should be 560 million to 580 million tons, against 607.3 million last year and 624.3 million in 1988, the newspaper said.

It explained that "In 1988, as now, the Soviet Union was the world's leading (oil) producer, with 12.4 million barrels a day. Four million were for export, including two million for non-communist countries."

It added that "Already in 1989, output dropped by three percent, to 17 million tons (a day), and production was off by four percent in the first quarter of 1990 ... It is expected that oil exports to the West will decline from 54 million tons in 1988 to 25 million tons this year." The Soviet Union is now able to export "only 1.6 million barrels of crude oil a day," Izvestia said.

Speaking of the oil situation, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said Friday that "If one defers to the judgement of realists, one must not expect any improvement in the situation in the next few years."

On Thursday, Foreign Ministry spokesman Yuri Gremytskikh said that the Soviet Union was not in a position to offset world oil shortages due to the international embargo imposed on Iraq and Kuwait following the former's takeover of Kuwait on August 2.

The current harvest, heralded as an exceptional one, is threatened by a number of practical problems, including serious fuel shortages. One reason is that Soviet energy infrastructure, particularly Siberian pipelines, is in deplorable condition.

Last month, one gas pipeline and one oil pipeline exploded near Tyumen, the main Soviet oil-producing area. Last year, a leak in a gas pipeline near Ufa, in the Urals, caused a rail accident that killed more than 600 people.

SAN JOSE (AUG. 17) - Japan's ambassador to Costa Rica, Chusaku Nomura, died Friday when the small plane he was piloting collided with another light aircraft 10 kilometers (six miles) west of here, authorities said.

Killed along with the 56-year-old envoy was his flying instructor, Albert Janssen, a Norwegian, who was in the same plane, officials said.

Witnesses said the accident occurred at 8 a.m. (1400 GMT) while the two planes were on training flights some two kilometers (1.2 miles) from the airport from which they had taken off minutes earlier.

The bodies of the two victims were recovered from the wreckage of their plane, which went down in the yard of a private residence.

There was no word on the fate of the person or persons aboard the other plane.

LONDON (AUG. 17) - Iraq's air force is no match for that of the United States, which would gain the upper hand within 48 hours of cambat breaking out, a military expert said here Friday.

Michael Dewar, Deputy Director of the London Institute for Strategic Studies, said that only half of the 513 planes Iraq has were actually combat-ready.

The United States by contrast had 150 land-based F15s and F16s and three aircraft carriers each with 86 planes. Britain had 36 combat planes in the Gulf.

''The Americans have better aircraft, better air-to-air weapons, much better electronic equipment and - especially important - much better control and communications facilities,'' Dewar said.

During the eight-year Gulf war with Iran, the Iraqis had not managed to shoot down a single Iranian plane in aerial combat, he said.

MALMO, SWEDEN (AUG 17) - A Swedish jockey was arrested on Friday and charged in connection with the doping of a racehorse in the Swedish Derby last week.

The 37-year-old jockey, whose name was not disclosed, apparently admitted administering a tranquilizer to the horse, Derby favourite Becam Badge, an hour before the race at Jagersro last Sunday.

The horse finished 13th out of 14 and an inquiry revealed traces of the drug Plegicil in the horse's system.

The case is expected to go to trial on August 31.

AQABA, Jordan (AUG. 17) - Fewer ships are calling at Jordan's southern port of Aqaba in the wake of the Gulf crisis, while the number of trucks transporting goods from here to Iraq has been slashed by half after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

(Shipping sources in Israel said that traffic at the Aqaba port monitored in Israel had dramatically decreased over the past few days with only one boat unloading on Thursday.)

(These sources added that out of 10 million tons of goods unloaded each year in Aqaba -- which overlooks Israel's Red Sea resort of Eilat -- some 80 percent were destined for Iraq.)

Customs agents said fewer ships had arrived at Aqaba port amid the international trade embargo on Iraq announced on August 6 by the United Nations Security Council, four days after the Iraqi invasion of its neighbour.

But they said goods for Iraq continued to arrive by boat normally and were then trucked on to Baghdad across the Jordan-Iraq border.

A source at the Jordanian port, Iraq's only outlet to the sea since the embargo took effect, said as many as 400 trucks used to load goods for Iraq each day at Aqaba before the invasion of Kuwait.

But after the August 2 invasion of the tiny emirate and its annexation one week later by Iraq, only 200 trucks a day arrived at Aqaba.

Dozens of these trucks were meanwhile sighted by correspondents visiting the Jordan-Iraq border at Roweished, 270 kilometers (164 miles) east of Amman, as their drivers went through customs before entering Iraqi territory.

At Aqaba itself, port activity was normal Friday, one day after crucial talks in Washington between U.S. President George Bush and King Hussein during which the American president requested that the port be closed to Iraqi goods.

One customs agents said goods usually arriving here for Iraq include sugar, wheat, milk and industrial raw materials.

LONDON (AUG. 17) - Natural rubber prices were pressured by sterling's strength this week on the London physical market.

The price for Ribbed Smoked Sheet No. 1 (RSS 1) for September delivery closed at 515 pounds per ton against 525 the previous Friday.

Traders said that lower grades had been affected by a persistent lack of interest from tyre manufacturers, but that higher grades were steadied by a shortage of latex.

Market sources suggested that higher oil prices might result in increased production costs for synthetic rubber, and that some buyers might therefore switch to natural rubber.

Statistics released by the International Rubber Study Group showed that natural rubber (NR) and synthetic rubber (SR) consumption had fallen by 10,000 tons each to, respectively, 1.33 million tons and 2.63 million tons in the first quarter of 1990, compared with the same period of 1989.

The fall was due to a decline in U.S. demand, as a result of a slowdown in tyre sales, the Study Group said.

NR production fell by 20,000 tons to 1.25 million tons, and SR output fell by 5,000 tons to 2.61 million tons.

World stocks of NR at the end of March 1990 had fallen to 1.41 million tons, 215,000 tons lower than at the end of March 1989, while those of SR were 110,000 tons lower at 1.52 million tons.

CAPE TOWN (AUG. 17) - South African oil exploration company Soekor announced on Friday a major offshore oil find some 100 kilometres (62 miles) south of the Cape coastal town of Mossel Bay.

Soekor said the discovery was yielding 7,700 barrels a day. Tests recorded 3.4 million cubic feet of gas a day through a one-inch choke.

However, the company was cautious about the reserves that could be exploited.

"Although the oil column of approximately 27 metres (yards) is the best yet discovered in South African waters, there is reason to believe that the reservoir itself is not very large," it said.

South Africa is currently almost entirely dependent on foreign oil for its fuel needs, importing some 100 million barrels of oil a year.

BURGOS, SPAIN (AUG. 17) - A car bomb explosion Friday, slightly injuring 20 outside the police station in the centre of this Spanish town 350 kilometers (217 miles) north of Madrid, was probably the work of Basque separatists, the town's governor said.

The explosion, which destroyed vehicles, including three vans, and shattered windows over a 400 meter (439 yard) range, "carried the mark of ETA," the official said. No one claimed responsibility for the attack.

The bomb practically destroyed the building next to the police station, but four officers, away from the blast area inside the station, were unhurt. The injured, most hit by flying glass, received first aid for slight wounds at Burgos hospital. Bomb experts examined the wrecked car for clues.

In the same region Friday, a bomb explosion on a railway line was believed the work of ETA, after Monday's announcement by the organisation of a fresh terrorist offensive against Spain's railways.

San Sebastian, in the Basque heartland, was the scene of a series of suspected nationalist-inspired incidents Wednesday, including clashes with the authorities after an Assumption day parade.

LONDON (AUG. 17) - Britain's film censors Friday lifted a ban on the screening of a Pakistani movie depicting novelist Salman Rushdie as an alcoholic and a torturer of Moslems.

The decision came after Rushdie, a Briton who was born to a Moslem family in India, demanded that the film ''International Guerrillas'' be released. Rushdie said he was against any kind of censorship.

Iran's late spiritual ruler, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, issued a ''death sentence'' against Rushdie in February 1989 over his novel ''The Satanic Verses'', which many Moslems consider blasphemous.

Rushdie has been in hiding since then.

TUNIS (AUG. 17) - Palestine Liberation Organisation chairman Yasser Arafat met with PLO leaders here Friday to study a Palestinian initiative aimed at defusing the Gulf crisis, the Palestinian news agency WAFA said.

WAFA gave no details of the plan but said it aimed at avoiding war following the formidable military build-up in the region after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait August 2.

The discussions, grouping members of the PLO Executive Committee, Fatah's Central Council and heads of various Palestinian factions, were to continue Friday.

PLO political advisor Bassam Abu Sharif earlier told reporters the initiative resulted from contacts between Sudanese President Omar al-Bechir, Libyan leader Colonel Moamer Kadhafi, Yemeni President Ali Abdallah Saleh and Tunisian President Zine el Abidine ben Ali.

All four Arab League members abstained from denouncing the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait at an Arab summit last week.

Sudan, Yemen and the PLO later voted against an Arab League resolution to send an Arab force to Saudi Arabia, while Libya and Tunisia were absent from the vote.

TEHERAN (AUG. 17) - Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati called Friday on U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar to revive the United Nations supervision of Iraq's troop withdrawal from Iran.

Meanwhile, Iraqi troops Friday began pulling out of Iranian territory still occupied after the Gulf war, and a first batch of Iranian prisoners of war arrived home, according to the Iranian news agency Irna.

Velayati, in a letter to Perez de Cuellar quoted by Irna, said the validity of the 1975 border accord for peaceful coexistence signed by both countries and registered and distributed at the United Nations in 1984 had now been confirmed by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's letter to Iranian President Hashemi Rafsanjani of August 14.

Iran was therefore requesting Perez de Cuellar to instruct the U.N. Iran-Iraq Military Observer Group (Uniimog) to take action in confirming ''the withdrawal on the basis of the 1975 accord which, according to the Iraqi government's announcement, has started today (Friday) and will be completed in five days.''

Iran reaffirmed its commitment to U.N. Security Council resolution No. 598, adopted on July 20, 1987, urging a withdrawal of forces to international boundaries and the cooperation of both countries in mediation efforts to achieve a peace settlement.

Irna said its correspondents saw a pull-out of Iraqi troops from 425 square kilometres in Ilam border province of the total 2,600 square kilometres still under Iraqi occupation after the Gulf war.

Iraqi forces began evacuating the Meimak and Kalleh Qandi Heights in the early hours, the agency said.

It reported scenes of jubilation at the town of Qasr-e-Shirin towards the northern end of the common border as the first batch of prisoners of war returned home from Iraq.

The return was made possible after Wednesday's peace offer to Iran by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in a move widely seen as an attempt to take military pressure off his eastern border.

The International Committee of the Red Cross in Geneva confirmed that an initial batch of 1,000 Pows had crossed from Iraq to Iran, and that Iran had also brought a group of Iraqi Pows to the border.

An official welcoming announcement by Iran's President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani praised the Pows for ''the honour you brought to us and the Islamic homeland''.

First Vice-President Hassan Habibi headed a delegation of ministers and Majlis deputies welcoming the returning Pows, who were initially given full medical examinations at mobile clinics.

Only 2,312 prisoners have been exchanged since the August 1988 ceasefire - mainly sick and wounded. In his peace offer Wednesday, Saddam proposed freeing all prisoners-of-war.

PASADENA, CA (AUG. 20) - Scientists played hide-and-seek with the space probe Magellan Friday but said they would soon release "pretty damn good" radar pictures it took of lava flows and cinder cones on Venus.

The signal between the spacecraft and Earth flickered in and out, with National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) scientists saying it may have locked on to a wrong star when calibrating its antennas.

They said they expected on-board computers to fix the problem.

The radar images, originally due to be released in September, will now be released Monday, said project manager Tony Spears, who said the probe had produced "some raw images that looked pretty damn good."

The craft is circling cloud-shrouded Venus, the second planet from the Sun and Earth's closest planetary neighbor, taking "noodle" radar pictures as it goes -- strips about 1,600 kilometers (1,000 miles) long by 24 kilometers (15 miles) wide.

When assembled side-by-side, they will provide a picture of the entire planet, with resolution 10 times more detailed than that of any of the pictures taken by the approximately 20 U.S. and Soviet spacecraft which have investigated Venus so far.

The pictures, which can distinguish surface details the size of two football fields, show "lava flows and faults and fractures and cinder cones with craters in the top," said scientist Steve Saunders.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 17) - Iraq, having accepted Iran's conditions for peace, could now seek an agreement to export its oil through Iranian pipelines, the chairman of the House of Representatives Armed Services Committee said Friday.

Representative Les Aspin admitted, "I'm suspicious and worried about it."

Iran's oil terminal at Kharg Island is capable of pumping out some six million barrels a day, but it currently only moving some two million barrels of Iranian oil a day, said Mr. Aspin.

He said it would take "just a couple of weeks" to construct a link-up between the Iraqi and Iranian pipeline systems, allowing Iran to pump out Iraqi oil along with its own.

Thanks to the increase in oil prices since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, Mr. Aspin believed such a deal would allow Iraq to recoup around 60 per cent of its pre-invasion oil revenues.

Mr. Aspin said he believed the decision by Iraq to withdraw from the Iranian territories it had conquered in the eight-year war between those two countries was connected to a possible oil transshipment deal, especially bearing in mind how unpopular the withdrawal decision must have been with the Iraqi Army.

"It's got to be more than just reducing the pressure on that border and getting some extra divisions, and not really first-rate divisions at that " said Mr. Aspin.

WASHINGTON, (AUG 17) - The U.S. Army is fighting an uphill battle in trying to convince South Pacific nations and U.S. environmentalists that its experimental chemical weapons incinerator on Johnston atoll in the Pacific poses no threat to the environment.

The atoll, a coral speck located 1,175 kilometers (730 miles) southwest of Hawaii, is the site of the 240-million-dollar Johnston Atoll Chemical Agent Disposal System (JACADS), where obsolete chemical munitions and agents are being burned.

Slated for incineration at the facility on the U.S. territory are aging chemical weapons, some which were moved there from the U.S. Pacific island of Okinawa in 1971 and others which are due to be shipped late this year from a U.S. army depot in West Germany.

The 16-month verification trial program at JACADS, which began several weeks ago, has triggered howls of protest from the 15 members of the South Pacific Forum. In a communique issued in Vanuatu early this month, they criticized the U.S. burning and transportation program.

"This is another example of the Pacific being used by the major weapons producing states as an experimental area," the communique said.

Friday, the governor of Hawaii, John Waihee, was quoted as saying that the burning of chemical weapons from the U.S. depot in West Germany would be a "disaster for the Pacific."

Next Tuesday, a public hearing will be held in Honolulu on a request by the environmental group Greenpeace to block shipments of chemical arms to the atoll.

MANAGUA (AUG 17) EFE - The bodies of 14 Nicaraguan peasants, who had been taken prisoner by leftist Sandinista troops in 1982, have been unearthed from a mass grave near the Honduran border, a government-linked human rights group has reported.

Nicaraguan Human Rights Association director Marta Baltodano Wednesday told Managua's Radio Catolica that the grave was discovered Tuesday in the northern town of Murra in the Nueva Segovia province.

Baltodano, who once presided over a human rights watchdog commission set up by the anti-Sandinista Contra rebels, said the grave contained the remains of 14 peasants who had gone missing in 1982 soon after they were taken prisoner by a battalion from the Sandinista Army.

During the 11 years of leftist Sandinista rule, which ended when conservative President Violeta Chamorro took ofice in April, the Army fought a war against U.S.-backed Contrass.

Around 30,000 Nicaraguans are believed to have been killed in the nine-year war.

In mid-June, Baltodano's group reported the finding of another mass grave containing the bodies 10 peasants killed in 1982 near the site of a military base once used by the Sandinista Army.

MOSCOW (AUG. 17) - Soviet labor leaders Friday told the government that nicotine-starved workers were fuming over a recent shortage of cigarettes and warned of nationwide strikes and reduced productivity levels if it did not take immediate action.

"People's patience is reaching its limit," the leaders said in an open letter to the government published Friday in the daily Trud, or Labor.

The union officials demanded to know why only half of the cigarettes and tobacco products had been distributed to shops during the first half of the year.

They also complained that the government had done nothing to stop the sale of black-market cigarettes, normally sold near state-run shops at prohibitive prices.

Soviet-made cigarettes are sold on the black market for six roubles, or 12 times their legal cost, while Western brands go for 20 roubles (dlrs 32), the union leaders said.

The average monthly salary in the Soviet Union is 220 roubles.

The officials added that workers were having to stand for hours in long lines to buy rationed cigarettes, "often to the detriment of worker productivity."

They said factory workers across the country were threatening to go on strike if the problem was not solved.

Authorities said they did not see a rapid solution to the problem as cigarette filters, paper, cellophane, glue and spare parts for machinery were in short supply.

BRUSSELS (AUG. 17) EFE - A flotilla of two Belgian minesweepers and a support ship left Zeebrugge Friday to join other NATO warships in the eastern Mediterranean, standing-in for U.S. ships switched to face Iraq in the Persian Gulf.

The three Belgian vessels are scheduled to arrive at Heraklion, on the Greek island of Crete, in early September but they may be sent on to the Gulf government officials said. The flotilla's final destination will be decided at the Western European Union meeting in Paris Tuesday.

Navy officers said the minesweepers were equipped to resist chemical attack, potentially one of Iraq's most dangerous weapons in the face-off with U.S.-led international forces.

On Thursday fellow NATO and EC partners West Germany and Italy both ordered warships to the eastern Mediterranean to cover for U.S. vessels.

LONDON, AUGUST 16 (XINHUA) -- BRITISH ADVENTUER TOM MCCLEAN MADE A RECORD FIFTH SINGLE-HANDED CROSSING OF THE ATLANTIC ON THURSDAY BUT THIS TIME IN A BOTTLE-SHAPED BOAT.

MCCLEAN, 47, ARRIVED AT FLAMOUTH IN THE SOUTHWEST OF ENGLAND IN HIS 37-FEET BOAT, 37 DAYS AFTER SETTING OUT FROM NEW YORK.

HE HOPES THAT HIS TRIP IN THE 11-TON "TYPHOO ATLANTIC CHALLENGER" WILL BE ABLE TO RAISE 500,000 POUNDS FOR THE NATIONAL CHILDREN'S HOME, A CHARITY ORGANIZATION.

MCCLEAN ALSO HOLDS ANOTHER TWO CROSS-ATLANTIC RECORDS, THE FASTEST ROWING CROSSING IN 54 DAYS AND CROSSING IN THE SMALLEST YACHT OF SEVEN FEET NINE INCHES.

HE SAID IT WAS QUITE DIFFICULT TO MAKE THE TRIP THIS TIME BECAUSE OF HEAD WINDS ALL THE WAY, BUT HE STILL ENJOYED IT VERY MUCH.

AFTER REACHING FLAMOUTH HIS "BOTTLE BOAT" WAS FLANKED BY OVER A DOZEN CONVENTIONAL BOATS TO A WELCOMING CEREMONY IN WHICH HE RECEIVED A REAL BOTTLE--A BOTTLE OF CHAMPAGNE.

SHANGHAI (AUG. 17) XINHUA - SHANGHAI, CHINA'S LEADING INDUSTRIAL CITY, HAD EXPORTS VALUED AT 3.025 BILLION U.S. DOLLARS IN THE FIRST SEVEN MONTHS OF THE YEAR.

A LOCAL OFFICIAL SAID THAT DESPITE A 14.14 PERCENT INCREASE IN EXPORTS COMPARED WITH THE SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR, THIS YEAR'S 5.25-BILLION-U.S.-DOLLAR EXPORT TARGET WILL BE DIFFICULT TO MEET. THE COST OF EXPORT GOODS IS INCREASING AND SOME HOT-SELLING ITEMS ARE IN SHORT SUPPLY.

IN ORDER TO REACH THE TARGET, THE MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT IS SETTING UP MORE OVERSEAS TRADE AGENCIES. THE EFFICIENCY OF EXPORT-ORIENTED ENTERPRISES IS BEING IMPROVED. AND FACTORY LOSSES ARE BEING CONTROLLED AND REDUCED.

CANBERRA (AUG. 17) XINHUA - TWO SENIOR MINISTERS ANNOUNCED IN A JOINT STATEMENT TODAY THAT THE AUSTRALIAN GOVERNMENT WOULD INTRODUCE LEGISLATION IN THE BUDGET SESSION TO BAN ALL MINING IN ANTARCTICA TO THE EXTENT OF AUSTRALIA'S LEGAL CAPACITY TO APPLY SUCH A BAN.

THE NEW LEGISLATION WILL PROHIBIT MINING BY AUSTRALIANS AND NON-AUSTRALIANS ALIKE IN THE AUSTRALIAN ANTARCTIC TERRITORY, AND ON ITS ADJACENT CONTINENTAL SHELF, FOREIGN MINISTER GARETH EVANS AND MINISTER FOR ENVIRONMENT ROS KELLY SAID.

THE LEGISLATION WILL ALSO BAN MINING BY AUSTRALIANS ANYWHERE ELSE IN THE ANTARCTIC REGION. "MINING" FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE LEGISLATION WILL INCLUDE OIL DRILLING, AND THE RELATED STEPS OF PROSPECTING AND EXPLORATION.

"THIS LEGISLATION IS AN IMPORTANT STEP IN AUSTRALIA'S CAMPAIGN TO MAINTAIN THE ANTARCTIC FOREVER AS THE WORLD'S LAST GREAT UNTOUCHED AND UNEXPLOITED WILDERNESS AREA," THE MINISTERS SAID.

THE AUSTRALIAN CAMPAGIN ON THE ANTARCTIC HAS BEEN JOINED BY FRANCE SINCE AUGUST 1989 AND IS CONTINUALLY GAINING MOMENTUM. "WE ARE DETERMINED TO SECURE THROUGH THE ANTARCTIC TREATY SYSTEM A COMPREHENSIVE SYSTEM OF ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION."

"THIS LEGISLATION IS THE MOST PUBLIC EVIDENCE OF OUR COMMITMENT TO A BETTER SYSTEM THAN THE CURRENT VOLUNTARY MORATORIUM ON MINING AND EXPLORATION," THE MINISTERS SAID.

THE MINISTERS NOTED THAT WHILE THERE IS STILL A LONG WAY TO GO, THEY HOPED THAT SIGNIFICANT PROGRESS WILL BE BE MADE AT THE SPECIAL CONSULTATIVE MEETING OF THE ANTARCTIC TREATY PARTIES IN SANTIAGO, CHILE IN NOVEMBER THIS YEAR.

LAGOS (AUG. 17) XINHUA - DOZENS OF NIGERIAN AND GUINEAN NATIONALS HAVE BEEN TAKEN HOSTAGE BY THE ANTI-GOVERNMENT FORCES LED BY CHARLES TAYLOR AS A REPRISAL AGAINST THE PEACE-KEEPING FORCE OF THE ECONOMIC COMMUNITY OF WEST AFRICAN STATES (ECOWAS).

REPORTS FROM MONROVIA SAID TODAY THAT TAYLOR'S TROOPS HAD ESCORTED A CONVOY OF 40 FOREIGNERS TO THE COTE D'IVOIRE BORDER, FROM WHERE THEY PROCEEDED TO THEIR RESPECTIVE COUNTRIES.

THE FOREIGNERS, MAINLY DIPLOMATS FROM WEST GERMANY AND NATIONALS OF EGYPT, MOROCCO AND INDIA, SAID THAT THERE ARE STILL NEARLY 2,000 NIGERIANS AND SEVERAL THOUSAND PEOPLE FROM OTHER WEST AFRICAN NATIONS TRAPPED AT THE NIGERIAN EMBASSY IN MONROVIA.

TROOPS FROM NIGERIA, GUINEA, GHANA, GAMBIA AND SIERRA LEONE ARE FORMING THE PEACE-KEEPING FORCE IN FREETOWN. THE ECOWAS FORCE IS EXPECTED TO MOVE INTO LIBERIA VERY SOON.

TAYLOR CLAIMED THAT HE WOULD NOT ALLOW AN INTERVENTION FORCE TO ENTER LIBERIA UNLESS HE HAD HIMSELF REQUESTED IT. HE STATES HIS TROOPS WOULD FIGHT AGAINST THE ECOWAS FORCES SHOULD THEY SET FOOT ON LIBERIA'S SOIL.

IT IS BELIEVED THAT TAYLOR'S TROOPS NOW HAVE CONTROLLED MOST OF LIBERIA. MR. TAYLOR DID NOT TURN UP FOR THE SCHEDULED MEETING YESTERDAY WITH THE GAMBIAN PRESIDENT ON HOW THE 2,500-STRONG PEACE-KEEPING FORCE MIGHT BE DEPLOYED TO IMPOSE A CEASEFIRE IN LIBERIA.

PRESIDENT SAMUEL DOE AND PRINCE JOHNSON, LEADER OF A BREAKAWAY GROUP OF THE ANTI-GOVERNMENT FORCE, HAVE AGREED TO THE ECOWAS MILITARY INTERVENTION.

BUENOS AIRES (AUG. 17) XINHUA - JOINT MILITARY MANEUVERS BY ARGENTINA'S ARMY AND U.S. GREEN BERET FORCES SCHEDULED FOR SEPTEMBER HAVE BEEN POSTPONED DUE TO RECENT DEVELOPMENTS IN THE PERSIAN GULF, MILITARY SOURCES HERE SAID THURSDAY.

A U.S. ARMY COMMUNIQUE RECEIVED AT THE ARGENTINE MILITARY'S "LIBERTADOR" BUILDING SAID U.S. FORCES WOULD NOT BE ABLE TO MOVE MEMBERS OF THE SPECIAL TASK FORCE ONTO ARGENTINE TERRITORY AS ALL AVAILABLE FORMS OF AERIAL TRANSPORT WERE USED TO MOVE TROOPS AND FIREARMS INTO SAUDI ARABIA.

ABOUT 40 GREEN BERETS WERE SCHEDULED TO HOLD JOINT MANEUVERS WITH ARGENTINE COMMANDOS ON THE MESOPOTAMIAN COASTAL REGION IN EXERCISES SIMILAR TO THOSE HELD LAST APRIL BETWEEN A DOZEN MEMBERS OF THE SPECIAL TASK FORCE AND THE ARGENTINE ARMY'S 601 COMPANY OF COMMANDOS.

A FEW DAYS AGO THE U.S. GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED THAT PRESIDENT GEORGE BUSH WAS ALSO POSTPONING A VISIT TO SEVERAL LATIN AMERICAN COUNTRIES IN SEPTEMBER DUE TO THE GULF CRISIS.

TOKYO (AUG. 17) KYODO - THE MINISTRY OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND INDUSTRY PLANS TO OVERHAUL THE COUNTRY'S MEASUREMENTS LAW FOR THE FIRST TIME IN 24 YEARS TO BRING JAPAN'S MEASUREMENT UNITS CLOSER TO INTERNATIONAL STANDARDS SOURCES AT THE MINISTRY SAID FRIDAY.

THE PLANNED REVAMPING OF THE LAW IS EXPECTED TO DEFUSE FOREIGN CRITICISM STEMMING FROM INCOMPATIBILITIES IN MEASURING UNITS.

FOREIGN COUNTRIES HAVE OFTEN COMPLAINED THAT JAPANESE MEASUREMENT UNITS SERVE TO BAR THEIR ACCESS TO JAPANESE MARKETS, THE SOURCES SAID.

JAPAN HAS LONG LAGGED BEHIND IN THE WORLDWIDE MOVEMENT TO INTRODUCE THE INTERNATIONAL SYSTEM OF UNITS AIMED AT GLOBAL UNIFICATION OF MEASUREMENT UNITS.

BY WAY OF EXAMPLE, IF THE REVISIONS IN THE LAW ARE FORMALLY AUTHORIZED THROUGH DIET DELIBERATIONS SCHEDULED TO BEGIN IN DECEMBER NEXT YEAR, THE ''BAR,'' A UNIT OF PRESSURE EQUAL TO ONE MILLION DYNES PER SQUARE CENTIMETER, WOULD LIKELY BE REPLACED BY THE ''PASCAL,'' AN INTERNATIONAL STANDARD UNIT.

THE CALORIE ALSO IS LIKELY TO BE REPLACED BY THE ''JOULE.'' THE SOURCES SAID THE REVISION PROCESS WILL INCLUDE A SWEEPING REVIEW OF OTHER MEASUREMENT REGULATIONS CURRENTLY GOVERNING PRODUCT CERTIFICATION AND SALES.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (AUG. 17) MCS -- A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

IN THE NEWS:

The COMMERCE DEPARTMENT reports this morning the the U.S. merchandise trade deficit in June was $5.7 billion, significantly better than the $7.1 billion projected. Exports were up 4.6% and imports down 2.9%, including a 9.2% decline in oil imports.

HEWLETT-PACKARD is moving its personal computer headquarters to France and putting it under the control of a Frenchman, JACQUES CLAY. 1,500 jobs by 1992. That's about 4% of the unit's workforce. ... JAMES RIVER CORP. says it will sell or shut down $1.3 billion in unprofitable operations. ... The chief executive of CETUS CORP. has resigned in the wake of a FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION advisory committee finding that it could not recommend the company's flagship drug. ... A report filed with the SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION says the performance of DONALD TRUMP's Atlantic City casinos deteriorated further in the second-quarter.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

The CHICAGO MERCANTILE EXCHANGE will start trading futures and options based on Japan's 225-stock NIKKEI average on Sept. 25.

FROM THE BULLS:

"Although the market dropped and the mood of investors is extremely negative, I think the major risk in the market has already occurred," says DAVID MARVIN, chairman of MARVIN & PALMER ASSOCIATES INC., in Wilmington, Del. "What the market is waiting for now is the first hint of a resolution of the Iraqi problem, whether it be a negotiated settlement or military confrontation. If that happens, I think we could see a buying panic and the Dow could run back to its old highs." The other side of the coin, he says, would be a protracted stalemate with oil prices rising to $30 or $40 a barrel. But he sees only a 10% chance of that happening. ("Investor's Daily", 8/17)

FROM THE BEARS:

PAUL ERDMAN, author of "The Crash of '79" and "The Panic of '89," says there is a 30% to 40% chance the stock market could crash next year -- perhaps to 2000 on the Dow. "Saddam [Hussein] pulled the trigger and the economic repercussions could be much worse than any of us realize," he says. ("USA Today", 8/17)

STOCK MARKET:

"There is good support [on the Dow] around 2680 to 2700," says EUGENE PERONI JR. of JANNEY MONTGOMERY SCOTT. "The market is acting very emotionally. Obviously there is a lot of nervousness in the markets, certainly in the stock market. It's very prone to these erratic and wide swings we have seen here in the last couple of sessions. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 8/17)

A.C. MOORE of ARGUS RESEARCH says Wall Street "woke up with a hangover [yesterday] and his name is [Iraqi President] SADDAM HUSSEIN." ("USA Today", 8/17)

"The Street just can't get its arms around the festering Mideast problem," says LARRY WACHTEL of PRUDENTIAL-BACHE. ("Investor's Daily", 8/17)

"Over a period of time we are going to have a lower stock market," says ROBERT DOLL, portfolio manager at OPPENHEIMER FUND MANAGEMENT. "All I am looking for ... is a rally within this downtrend. I think we can be in a trading range for the Dow, call it 2450 to 2750, and I would be looking to buy rallies and sell dips. The next thing I'm looking for is a rally. ... I don't think we're going to have a disaster on our hands, nor do I think we are going to see new highs. [It is an] opportunity for the stock picker." (CNBC "Market Wrap- Up", 8/17)

"Basically, the market was disappointed over the CPI in the morning, which crept into the market all day, and that did not include data collected before the Iraqi invasion," says RON SCHROEDER of J&W SELIGMAN & CO. (NYT 8/17)

"You don't find many heroes in the market right now," says DAN WILLIAMS of DILLON, READ. ("USA Today", 8/17)

"I think the market was disappointed that there was not a personal message from Hussein and that his television broadcast was negative," says JIM AWAD of BMI CAPITAL. "But really every time the world has had a financial crisis like this, when you look back six months later, it has passed. I think for investors, they are getting an opportunity to buy some terrific U.S. companies with no debt, excess cash, cash generators [and] high returns on equities due to an extraordinary outside event that will pass." Believing that stocks are very cheap, Awad continues, "I think what you buy are growth stocks, especially medium-size growth stocks that have lower P/Es than the better known growth stocks. Buy them gradually. Dollar cost average into the eye of the storm which will last several more days or weeks and then, when you look back in six months, we'll remember the Mideast crisis of 1990 like we remembered the crash of '87 and we'll say: 'Why wasn't I there?' The world prevailed. The system didn't end and high quality stocks were very cheap. So, I think you buy them gradually over the next several days." (FNN "Marketwrap", 8/16)

"There are institutions that say 'I've held on so far waiting to see what happens and now I don't like what I'm seeing," says WILLIAM ROTHE, head of over-the-counter trading at ALEX. BROWN & SONS. (WSJ, 8/17)

JOSEPH BATTIPAGLIA of GRUNTAL & CO. says the tendency for the market to react wildly to the slightest hint of trouble suggests stocks are "probably fully valued in the broad sense of terms. ... We would think the equity markets might look a lot better in the second half of next year than they will for the next 12 months from this point." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 8/17)

STOCK TIPS:

Several so-called "Texas recovery" stocks are listed in the "Heard on the Street" column in "The Wall Street Journal" this morning as potentially profitable investments -- based on the idea that rising oil prices will lift the Texas economy. However, the article cautions that "these aren't plays for the faint of heart." The listed stocks are NCNB CORP., BANC ONE CORP., CHEMICAL BANKING, FIRST INTERSTATE,. A.H. BELO, DILLARD DEPARTMENT STORES and NEIMAN MARCUS. (WSJ, 8/17)

HARLEY-DAVIDSON is in the "USA Today" company spotlight this morning. The article says some analysts believe the motorcycle maker should have "a relatively easy ride through the hard times" even though its stock is down 29% in just a few weeks. "We think this is a wonderful growth stock," says ARTHUR DAVIS of PRESCOTT BALL & TURBEN. ("USA Today", 8/17)

NOVACARE INC. is the stock of the week in "Investor's Daily" this morning. The company specializes in providing rehabilitation services to nursing homes and has seen its stock double in the past year. It has increased fivefold since a November 1988 low. DOROTHY RYAN of ROBERTSON STEPHENS & CO. projects an earnings gain of about 50% in fiscal 1991 and an additional 30% increase the following year. ("Investor's Daily", 8/17)

RON SCHROEDER of J&W SELIGMAN & CO. says yesterday's sell-off created buying opportunities in certain stocks. Among the ones he places in that category are DILLARD DEPARTMENT STORES, NEWELL and TYCO LABORATORIES. (NYT, 8/17

Analysts RICK MARTIN and LAURA CONIGLIARO of PRUDENTIAL-BACHE say computer stocks have settled into a seasonal pattern so predictable that investors can profit by basing their trades on the calender. "There are three times a year when you should be buying computer stocks: late April, mid-August and mid-December," says Martin. "Anything other than that is too far from the trough." ("USA Today", 8/17)

"The one thing that the investor has going for him in this situation is that, in the past, if you have sat through situations like this you generally have been better off than using any other kind of strategy," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist at "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." "You just sit there, you grit your teeth and you sit." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 8/17)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (AUG. 17) MCS -- A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

ROBERT WHITE of FIRST INTERSTATE BANK OF CALIFORNIA, says the dollar is caught in a "constant tug of war. ... There is little question where the dollar should go: It should go down. But when you intersperse with that comments from SADDAM [HUSSEIN of Iraq] about body bags, it gets support." He referred to a statement by the Iraqi strongman in which he told PRESIDENT BUSH: "You will receive American bodies back in bags." (WSJ, 8/17)

"As long as the U.S. is involved in this [Mideast] crisis, I think we're going to find that the dollar is not the safe haven it once was during international crises," says SCOTT HORWITZ of BANK OF BOSTON. ("Investor's Daily", 8/17)

"Theoretically dollar/mark should run to either around 1.54 [marks] or even possibly 1.5250 before you see any big bounce, but you must remember that technically the dollar's getting more and more oversold against everything," says DAVID COCKER, currency strategist at CHEMICAL BANK in London. "I would say probably within three to four days you will see a significant bounce, but that doesn't mean to say it can't go down lower first." (Reuters, 8/17)

"Even though the tension may have escalated in the Gulf, the [currency] market is focusing on two trajectories in the U.S. economy -- weaker growth and higher inflation," says MARC CHANDLER, a currency analyst with MMS INTERNATIONAL in Chicago. (NYT, 8/17)

GARY SCHLOSSBERG, an economist with WELLS FARGO, says a "higher-than-acceptable inflation rate ... puts off any easing by the Federal Reserve for several weeks at the very least." ("Investor's Daily", 8/17)

"My guess is [the Fed] will come away from the [FOMC] meeting with a strong bias toward easing, but wait to implement that ease until they get more data such as [August's] purchasing managers' and employment" reports, says, DARWIN BECK, money market economist at FIRST BOSTON CORP. (Reuters, 8/16)

"It will be very hard for the Fed to ease interest rates at this time," says NORMAN ROBERTSON, chief economist at MELLON BANK CORP. "In fact, the Fed may not ease unless or until there is clear evidence that we are in a recession." (WSJ, 8/17)

Fed "policy will remain unchanged," says JOHN WILLIAMS, managing director at BANKERS TRUST CO. "You can't credibly ease policy in the context of an increase of the core rate of inflation, especially with the prospects of higher inflation from higher oil prices." (Reuters, 8/16)

"You have a fragile stock market and bond yields that are close to 9%," says WARD McCARTHY of STONE & McCARTHY RESEARCH ASSOCIATES. "That's a combination that has always attracted small investors to the bond market." But buying by small investors alone is not enough to offset a bearish sentiment in the market, he says. (WSJ, 8/17)

THE ECONOMY:

"We are in a recession, oh yeah, absolutely," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist for "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 8/17)

"With the prospects for higher energy prices coming down the poke, the inflation outlook is pretty bleak," says JOHN WILLIAMS, economist for BANKERS TRUST. ("The Washington Post", 8/17)

"The base inflation rate is disturbing, even forgetting the oil," says ROBERT DEDERICK, economist with NORTHERN TRUST CO. of Chicago. "The core rate doesn't show any signs of attrition. At the producer goods level, clear-cut progress has been made against inflation. At the consumer level it's all been washed away." ALLEN SINAI of BOSTON CO. ECONOMIC ADVISORS says inflation "was very much concentrated in services' in yesterday's CPI report. "The shortage of labor in the service sector and the continuing demand for services showed up." ("Investor's Daily", 8/17)

The CPI report "was a very disappointing report." says LYNN REASER of FIRST INTERSTATE BANCORP. "It indicates that inflation is still at a high troublesome level, especially looking at the core rate of inflation" which rose 0.6%. She continues, "Monetary policy has been very tight for the last couple of years. The economy is slowing down." (FNN's "Marketwrap", 8/16)

DONALD STRASZHEIM of MERRILL LYNCH says the combination of a spurt in consumer prices and a decline in housing starts reported yesterday raises the specter of "stagflation" -- rising prices and a shrinking economy. "The reaction in the financial community was understandably terrible," he notes. "People are getting a whiff of stagflation and see the Federal Reserve in an even tighter box. It will take a good garden-variety recession or worse to get inflation down." (WSJ, 8/17)

"Inflation looks worse and so does the economy," says ROBERT BARBERA, chief economist at SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS. "The likelihood that the economy can handle the upcoming energy shock and still have a downward glide and avoid a recession is pretty dim." (NYT, 8/17)

"The [oil] market obviously believes the only way out of this is a military solution," says SHAHROKH NIKKHAH, an oil specialist at PRUDENTIAL-BACHE. "The market is anticipating, if not an all-out military conflict, certainly the potential for some skirmishes, which could lead to acts of terrorism against Saudi facilities, Kuwaiti facilities or even Iraqi facilities." He sees the probability of oil going to $32 to $35 a barrel and a chance for it to spike substantially higher if there is military action. (NYT, 8/17)

Word that Saudi Arabia has called for an OPEC meeting "knocked [oil] prices down a little bit [yesterday] but then people's attention drifted back to the swords and the scabbards they come out of so frequently," says PETER BEUTEL, an oil trader at MERRILL LYNCH. 2 LAWRENCE GOLDSTEIN, president of the PETROLEUM INDUSTRY RESEARCH FOUNDATION, notes that "there's a lot of confusion about what they [Saudi Arabia and Venezuela] are or are not doing about production." ("The Washington Post", 8/17)

"Over time, I think the oil price shock will be deflationary because it is having an adverse effect on purchasing power," says JOSEPH CARSON, a senior economist at CHEMICAL BANK. "But in the next few months there is some bad news ahead for consumer prices. An increase of seven-tenths of a percentage point in the index for August is something that could be easily attained." (NYT, 8/17)

IN WASHINGTON:

The impact of the Middle East crisis will make the budget process "more intense," says ALEXIS CAIN, director of research at the DEFENSE BUDGET PROJECT. "It may also increase everyone's desire to get a deal, some kind of deal, no matter how much deficit reduction it actually achieves in order to insure that we don't have Gramm-Rudman- Hollings cuts which would have a very bad effect on the military at this time when they are going into a major operation." (FNN "Marketwrap", 8/16)

A COMMERCE DEPARTMENT report says U.S. companies are seeing their share of the global telecommunications market decline, an erosion that would prove dangerous to the health of the American economy. "This report represents a very strong statement ... telecommunications is one of our cutting-edge industries and has also historically been a stellar performer," says JANICE OBUCHOWSKI, an assistant Commerce secretary and co-author of the report. "But we need to tend to some macroeconomic factors." ("The Washington Post", 8/17)

The FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION has accused PROFESSIONAL COIN GRADING SERVICE INC., of making numerous false and misleading claims. The suit is seen as a big blow to the coin world's attempts to improve its image and could set back plans of MERRILL LYNCH and others to sell investors rare coins and limited partnerships that invest in coins. (WSJ, 8/17)

HOUSTON (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Plains Resources Inc. (AMEX: PLX) said today that it would no longer submit bids for the sale of natural gas to utility, industrial and pipeline customers. The company said that future sales of natural gas from its wells would be made on the basis of a monthly fixed price posting.

Plains said that it would post the price at which it would sell natural gas from the wellhead no later than the 20th day of the month immediately preceding the month in which the sales will occur. The company said that its wellhead posting for the month of September would be $1.65 per MMBtu for Mid-Continent natural gas and $1.75 per MMBtu for gas produced by it in the Gulf Coast region. The company said that its posting would not affect long-term contractual commitments but would apply only to spot sales.

Patrick Collins, Plains Resources' president, said that the company would no longer sell its natural gas at prices below replacement costs. "The price posted for September is a fair and reasonable price," Collins said. "We have pegged our September price to an Btu equivalency averaging about $10 per barrel of crude oil. If natural gas is to be an available fuel alternative for petroleum products, U.S. natural gas producers must be able to sell at prices that will enable them to continue to explore and produce."

Plains Resources Inc. is an independent oil and gas exploration and production company with operations in the Gulf Coast areas of Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi and the Mid-Continent areas of Oklahoma, the Texas Panhandle and southwestern Kansas.

WORCESTER, MASS. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Cambridge BioScience Corporation (NASDAQ: CBCX), announced today that it has requested its customers to discontinue use of Lot No. A6535 of its 5-minute HIV-1 latex screening test because certain kits in the lot no longer meet the manufacturer's quality control release specifications. The action does not affect the company's Recombigen(R) (env & gag) HIV-1 EIA test, used for high volume screening.

A company spokesman said that the company's quality control department has tested different lots of the product manufactured before and after Lot No. A6535 and found the kits to be functioning properly and believes that Lot No. A6535, consisting of approximately 140 kits, is the only lot affected.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Nycal Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: NYCL) today announced the signing of a letter of intent with Claremont Petroleum (USA) Pty. Ltd. ("Claremont") and Moage, Inc. ("Moage") to acquire stock, oil and gas properties and other assets from Claremont and Moage.

Under the agreement, Nycal will acquire a total of approximately 9.4 million shares (approximately 76 percent) of the common stock of Woodbine Petroleum, Inc. (NASDAQ: WDBN), an independent oil and gas exploration company headquartered in Dallas. In its annual report for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1989, Woodbine reported gross revenues from production of oil and gas of over $1.2 million, and estimated proved, developed petroleum reserves of approximately 250,000 barrels of oil and 3.6 million MCF of natural gas.

In addition to the Woodbine stock, the agreement provides for the acquisition of all the U.S.-based oil and gas properties owned by Claremont and Moage and certain other assets, for $3.5 million in cash and assumption of a $1.5 million bank loan. During their fiscal year ended June 30, 1989, Claremont and Moage, both subsidiaries of Australian public companies, reported combined gross revenues from oil and gas production of over $2.3 million.

Completion of the acquisition is subject to execution of a definitive agreement, with closing estimated to occur within 30 days thereafter. A more detailed announcement will follow upon completion of the definitive agreement.

GOLDEN, COLO. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Barringer Laboratories Inc. (NASDAQ: BALB) today reported that for the three months ended June 30, 1990, the company recorded sales of $2,313,000 compared to $1,896,000 for the comparable quarter in 1989, an increase of 22 percent. Sales for the six month period were $3,736,000 compared to $3,028,000 in 1989, a 23 percent increase.

Barringer's net income for the quarter was $52,000, or $.02 per share, compared to $75,000, or $.06 per share in the same quarter last year. For the six month period the 1990 loss was $178,000 or $.08 per share versus a loss of $258,000 or $.20 per share for the 1989 period.

Robert Walker, chief executive officer, commented, "Our operation generated profits before tax of $102,000 for the 1990 second quarter based upon the continued excellent performance of our Canadian subsidiary. Sales and earnings from our Canadian subsidiary, which was newly equipped in 1988, reached record levels and that performance appears to be continuing.

"Sales in our minerals laboratories were sluggish due to reduced overall mining activity. In the last few weeks activity has increased and the third quarter should show improved sales and profitability for that segment.

"Our Golden based radio-chemistry facility recorded a lower level of activity. This was caused by a slowdown of reclamation work by one of our major customers during the second quarter and the construction activity for the expansion of this lab. With the completion of construction of the Radio-chem lab coupled with the aggressive sales and marketing effort begun in April, results are expected to improve beginning in the third quarter.

Headquartered in Golden, Colo., Barringer Laboratories provides analytical testing services for the environmental and minerals industry.

PORTLAND, OR (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. Bancorp (NASDAQ: USBC) Board of Directors today declared a 20 percent common stock dividend payable Sept. 14 to shareholders of record Aug. 27. Shareholders will receive one new share of stock for every five shares held on the record date. Cash will be paid in lieu of fractional shares based on the per share closing sale price on the record date. The stock dividend will increase the outstanding common stock to approximately 60 million shares.

A quarterly cash dividend of 25 cents per share was also declared, payable Oct. 5 to shareholders of record Sept. 17 and will be paid on the shares issued in the stock dividend.

"Maintaining the cash dividend rate of $.25 cents paid on the increased number of shares represents a 20 percent increase in the cash dividend and continues our record of 33 consecutive years of increased cash pay-out to our shareholders," said Roger L. Breezley, chairman and chief executive officer. "Our economic forecast indicates the Northwest will continue to grow but at a slower pace. We remain confident in future earnings prospects for U.S. Bancorp," Breezley added.

MIAMI (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Claire's Stores, Inc. (NYSE: CLE) today reported net income during the second quarter ended Aug. 4, 1990, increased 43 percent to a record $3.4 million, or $.17 per share from $2.4 million, or $.12 per share a year ago. Net sales increased 45 percent to a record $55.2 million from $38 million in the previous year, with same-store sales increasing 11 percent.

Net income for the six months ended Aug. 4, 1990, increased 54 percent, to a record $6.6 million, or $.33 per share from $4.3 million, or $.22 per share in the comparable period a year ago. Net sales for the six months increased 50 percent to $108.7 million from $72.3 million.

"We are pleased to report our seventh consecutive quarter of record sales and earnings," stated Rowland Schaefer, Claire's chairman and president. "Our strong sales momentum has continued into the third quarter making us optimistic about our back-to-school selling season. We look forward to a continuation of our excellent sales and earnings results based on approximately 100 store openings between now and Christmas as well as continued same-store growth," he concluded.

SOUTH WINDSOR, CT (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Gerber Scientific, Inc. (NYSE: GRB), today reported lower first quarter operating results. Consolidated sales for the first quarter ended July 31, 1990, were $66,609,000, a decrease of 11 percent from $74,670,000 for the same period last year. Consolidated net earnings for the three months ended July 31, 1990, were $2,733,000 compared with $7,721,000 in the same period of last year, a decrease of 65 percent. Earnings per share were 12 cents in this year's first quarter compared with 32 cents last year based on average shares outstanding of 23,642,000 and 24,066,000, respectively.

The company received new orders totalling $58,200,000 in the three months ended July 31, 1990, compared with $66,400,000 for the same period last year, a decrease of 12 percent. Backlog was $62,400,000 at July 31, 1990, compared with $74,600,000 a year earlier.

As previously reported, the company is experiencing softness in order entry in all of its major product areas and expects that this year's second quarter operating results will also be lower than the prior year. A number of additive factors have contributed to this downturn, including increased worldwide competition, a sluggish U.S. economy, tighter credit availability to the company's customers, bankruptcies in the retail industry, lower military spending, and disruption in Eastern Bloc markets. The company is taking action to bring costs in line with the expected lower levels of business, including employee reductions, consolidation of facilities, and cost reductions in other operating areas. However, without an improvement in economic conditions, the company expects that it will be difficult to significantly improve upon the current level of operating results in the second half of the year. The company is in a period of transition to newer products which are not expected to have major impact on the short- term consolidated results but which the company believes have excellent long-term market potential. The company has a long-standing commitment to research and the development of new products and intends to continue its current level of R&D efforts during this period.

The company remains financially strong with high liquidity and a low ratio of debt-to-equity. Cash and short-term cash investments increased $9.4 million during the first quarter to $39.2 million at July 31, 1990, and total debt as a percentage of shareholders' equity was 9.7 percent.

Gerber Scientific, Inc., produces high technology factory automation capital equipment for a variety of industries.

ZANESVILLE, OHIO (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - William A. Phillips, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Mutual Federal Savings Bank, A Stock Corporation (NASDAQ: MFBZ), announced today that Mutual Federal earned net income of $519,000, or $.63 per share for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, which was virtually unchanged from a year ago when net income was $525,000, or $.65 per share for the quarter ended June 30, 1989.

Mutual Federal reported a net loss of $19.7 million or $24.06 per share for the nine months ended June 30, 1990 compared to net income of $1.4 million or $1.73 per share for the nine months ended June 30, 1989. Phillips explained that Mutual Federal wrote off $20.3 million of goodwill and increased the provision for loan losses by $1.2 million during the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1989. These moves were part of the restructuring plans in connection with the pending acquisition by Park National Corporation of Newark, Ohio ("Park").

As previously announced on Aug. 3, 1990, all regulatory approvals have been received for the merger of Mutual Federal and Park. The merger is expected to be completed by Aug. 31, 1990, assuming a favorable vote from shareholders of Park and Mutual Federal. Park's shareholders will vote on the merger and related matters at a special meeting to be held on Aug. 27, 1990. The merger and related matters will be voted upon at Mutual Federal's annual meeting, scheduled for Aug. 28, 1990.

In the merger, Mutual Federal shareholders will receive .2086 of a Park share for each share of Mutual Federal common stock. Although no assurances can be given, it is anticipated that Park's stock will be listed on the NASDAQ system upon completion of the merger. Presently there is no active market in Park's stock but Park's management is aware of a few recent sales at $61.125 per share.

Phillips said, "The board of directors and management of Mutual Federal are very pleased to be joining forces with such a fine institution as Park National." Phillips further stated that the two organizations have been working on this merger for over 10 months.

Additionally, Phillips commented that Mutual Federal's shareholders have not received a dividend payment the last three quarters. If the merger is approved by shareholders and closed by Aug. 31, 1990, as presently contemplated, the former shareholders of Mutual Federal will receive any dividends paid in the future to shareholders of Park. Phillips noted that Park has declared a $.60 per share dividend to be paid Sept. 10, 1990 to shareholders of record on Aug. 31, 1990 which, adjusted by .2086 Park shares, equates to approximately $.125 per share for Mutual Federal shareholders.

At June 30, 1990, Mutual Federal's total assets were $295.8 million and shareholders' equity was $1.4 million.

Mutual Federal operates 10 branch offices and two mortgage lending offices in central and southeastern Ohio.

NEW YORK (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - ASM International N.V. (NASDAQ: ASMIF) today reported losses on lower revenues for both the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990.

For the six months, the net loss was Dfls (5.0) million compared to net earnings of Dfls 7.8 million for the similar period in 1989. The second quarter net loss totaled Dfls (3.7) million versus net earnings of Dfls 3.0 million for the comparable three months last year. On a per share basis, the 1990 loss was Dfls (0.67) per share for the six months, and Dfls (0.50) per share for the quarter.

Total revenues declined 11 percent for the six months to Dfls 188.3 million, and 9 percent for the second quarter to Dfls 96.2 million. Worldwide sales were about evenly distributed between front and back end systems and between Eastern and Western hemisphere operations.

Backlog at June 30, which equaled Dfls 259.3 million including Dfls 84.8 million related to a previously announced contract with the USSR, was also balanced between wafer fabrication, and assembly and encapsulation systems. The backlog figure represented a 4 percent rise from the level of Dfls 248.8 million at March 31.

Del Prado commented that the Netherlands-based ASM Fico and Hong Kong headquartered ASM Pacific Technology Ltd., which are principally involved in the production of assembly and encapsulation equipment and materials, are prospering and overall will have excellent results for the year. The Hong Kong facilities which experienced production difficulties in the first quarter made up a significant portion of the deferred volume in the second quarter and expect to see the shortfall corrected in the second half.

As indicated earlier this year, the company expects the negative influences of the first half to continue through the summer quarter. Although the company foresees good improvement in the fourth quarter, it is not likely the turn will result in a positive bottom line for the whole of 1990.

ASM International N.V., headquartered in Bilthoven, the Netherlands, dedicates its resources to the research, development, manufacturing, marketing and servicing of equipment and materials used to produce semiconductor devices. The company provides production solutions for the main areas of semiconductor production: wafer processing, assembly and encapsulation. The company's principal facilities in the Netherlands, the United States, Hong Kong and Japan enable it to meet local specifications and to sell and service its products in the world's major semiconductor markets of Europe, the United States and Asia.

ATLANTA (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - With final approval from the Commerce Comission to begin building a cellular network in New Zealand, BellSouth (NYSE: BLS) announced today that it plans to design and build an advanced digital wireless system, based on the newly emerging Group Speciale Mobile (GSM) pan-European standard.

The company believes this will be the first such network in the Southern Hemisphere.

BellSouth said the GSM standard is an evolving and highly complex system, but early results have given encouraging indications of the tangible benefits it will provide customers. The GSM standard is being used as the platform for the introduction of personal communications services in the U.K., with services scheduled to begin mid-1992.

"A GSM network configuration will allow us to offer our customers various types of personal communications services by the turn of the century," said Terry Winters, managing director of BellSouth New Zealand. "By the mid-nineties, we will be assigning telephone numbers to people, not places. Our customers will be able to communicate with each other, no matter where they are, by using a lightweight, pocket-sized, go-anywhere handset."

BellSouth said it has already begun conducting in-depth market and technical feasibility studies. The company expects to begin offering services by mid-1992 -- soon after the U.K. GSM digital network becomes operational.

BellSouth plans to design its GSM network in such a way as to facilitate a natural evolution to more advanced personal telecommunications services, which is expected in the late nineties. One major objective of the GSM system is to be able to integrate it with ISDN (Integrated Services Digital Network) telephone systems, allowing customers to send faxes and access other data applications. The GSM network will allow BellSouth to provide service to a large percentage of portable users, while providing extensive domestic and international roaming capability.

"We chose New Zealand as the site for our first GSM network because of the country's buoyant economy and also because customers in New Zealand have embraced cellular services so rapidly," Winters said. "Strategically, this is a very important step for us. We plan to apply the experience we gain in New Zealand to other countries around the world that are looking at developing state-of-the-art wireless systems."

BellSouth, a $30 billion corporation, is the fourth largest telecommunications services company in the world. BellSouth provides mobile communications services in the United States, Australia, the United Kingdom, France, Argentina and Mexico.

LAGUNA NIGUEL, CA (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - OptimumCare Corp. (NASDAQ: OPMC), which operates psychiatric care and chemical dependency programs nationwide, announced today its results for the second quarter of fiscal 1990.

Revenues for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, were $288,989 compared with $383,088 for the previous year's second quarter. OptimumCare reported a net loss of $231,402 or $.05 per share for the three month period compared with a loss of $71,091 or $.01 per share for the same period last year.

Edward A. Johnson, OptimumCare's president, indicated that the losses were due to the severance agreement paid to a key employee who resigned during last quarter and the losses associated with operation of their Bellflower psychiatric unit. The Bellflower contract, which had incurred a net loss since its inception last January, was terminated June 15, 1990. "We expect this termination to enhance our short-term liquidity and earnings position while we continue our efforts to hopefully add new, and more profitable contracts," said Johnson.

Revenues for the six-month period ended June 30, 1990, were $646,501 compared with $873,948 for the same period last year. OptimumCare reported a net loss of $288,978 or $.06 per share at the half compared with a loss of $27,545 or $.01 per share for the same period last year.

Johnson said, "We have had to make some difficult decisions during the past several months, but they were necessary for our continued growth. We are now strengthening our operations with profitable contracts and additional services which should enhance revenues at existing facilities."
OptimumCare announced the opening of a 20-bed chemical dependency unit at Washington Medical Center in Culver City, Calif., earlier this week.

PASADENA, CA (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Jacobs Engineering Group Inc. (NYSE: JEC) announced today the signing of a contract to provide engineering services for a vacuum distilled titanium sponge manufacturing facility for Titanium Metals Corp., also known as TIMET, of Henderson, Nev.

The announcement was made by Gerald L. Stevenson, group vice president, Western Region, who said that the facility will employ proven state-of-the-art vacuum distillation technology to produce high quality titanium sponge.

Titanium and its end products are widely used in aerospace and industrial applications.

The 22-million-pound annual capacity sponge plant will be operated by TIMET at, and in conjunction with, its existing titanium sponge, ingot, and research facilities in Henderson. The advanced technology and financing for the project will be provided by a group of Japanese companies consisting of Toho Titanium Co. Ltd. and its primary shareholders: Nippon Mining Co. Ltd. and Mitsui and Co. Ltd., and Mitsui and Co. (U.S.A.) Inc. TIMET is owned by Barold Corp. of Houston, Tex.

"This new project follows work completed by Jacobs in 1983 at the same facility," said Stevenson. "That project, to design and build a major electrolytic cell facility to produce magnesium metal, and its successful completion, led to the awarding of the current work," he added.

Jacobs Engineering Group Inc. provides single-source environmental and hazardous waste management, consulting, engineering, design, architectural construction, construction management, contract maintenance, and operations services to government and industry worldwide.

BOCA RATON, FL (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Humagen, Inc. (NASDAQ: HUGE), has signed a letter of intent to purchase Cardio Scan, Inc. of Boca Raton, for approximately $625,000 in cash and securities. The announcement was made by Roberto Riva, president of Humagen, Inc., a company with widespread interests in the medical field.

Cardio Scan is a four-year-old, privately held company specializing in EKG and EEG Holter Monitor system tests in conjunction with physicians. The Medicare-approved company's services include detailed EKG and EEG magnetic recording and hard copy conversion, as well as analysis for abnormal phenomena.

"The Cardio Scan acquisition is an exciting entry into the rapidly growing ambulatory (portable) cardiac testing industry," said Roberto Riva, president of Humagen.

"With the implementation of an aggressive growth plan in conjunction with retained management, Cardio Scan is projecting earnings of approximately $500,000 for 1991, equal to about $0.16 per share based upon Humagen's current number of shares outstanding," Riva said.

Cardio Scan tests center around the Holter Monitor, a patient-worn apparatus, which provides 24-hour special magnetic tape recordings of up to 144,000 cardiac cycles vs. 50 to 100 for a standard EKG test.

Humagen develops and markets practical, high-tech medical diagnostic testing products. The company also has the exclusive right to franchise, own and operate Medical Depot Superstores in the U.S.S.R., Mexico and Panama and a non-exclusive right to franchise, own and operate Medical Depot Superstores anywhere else outside the United States.

HAIFA, ISRAEL (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - I.I.S. Intelligent Information Systems Limited (NASDAQ: IISLF) today announced 1990 second quarter financial results.

Revenues increased 139 percent in the 1990 second quarter to $8.6 million from $3.6 million in the same period a year ago, reflecting the recent acquisition of the Lee Data Commercial and International Business. Net income for the quarter increased 44 percent to $1.4 million, or $.35 per share, compared to last year's $999,000, or $.25 per share.

For the six months, revenues grew 66 percent to $13.4 million, up from $8.1 million in the year-ago period. Net income increased 25 percent to $2.5 million vs. $2.0 million last year.

"Six-month results reflect the continued strong demand for I.I.S.'s products together with second quarter activity of the Lee Data Division," said Jacob Herbst, chairman of I.I.S. Intelligent Information Systems. "While the revenue potential of the Lee Data Division was only partially realized, a great part of the reorganization, plant moving and restructuring costs were absorbed in the second quarter."

The company's U.S. subsidiary, IIS Inc., acquired Lee Data Corporation's commercial and international IBM 3270 plug-compatible computer peripheral equipment and service business on April 2, 1990.

I.I.S. Intelligent Information Systems Limited designs, markets and services computer peripheral and communications equipment for use with medium and large IBM and IBM-compatible mainframe computer systems. The Company's U.S. subsidiary is based in Eden Prairie, Minn., and has offices in Phoenix and Los Angeles. From its U.S. office and its manufacturing base and corporate headquarters in Haifa, Israel, the company sells its equipment throughout the world.

NEW YORK (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Witco Corporation (NYSE: WIT) will reorganize its petroleum group responsibilities, effective Sept. 1, 1990, it was announced by president and chief operating officer Denis Andreuzzi. Lawrence B. Nelson, 59, will become group vice president-corporate technology, a newly created position.

Nelson joined Witco in 1960 in a technical capacity, became corporate director of research and development, and later served the company's Sonneborn division in a number of technical and operating posts, including general manager. Most recently, he was a group vice president-petroleum.

Robert J. Seward, 58, appointed group vice president-petroleum in July 1989, will head Witco's Sonneborn group, comprised of its largest domestic operation, the Sonneborn division; Witco B.V., a Holland subsidiary; and Surpass Chemicals Limited, a subsidiary in Canada. He will remain responsible for the Concarb division. Seward joined Witco in 1976 and has strong industrial management and marketing experience.

Harvey L. Golubock, age 48, will be appointed group vice president-petroleum, responsible for Witco's Kendall/Amalie, Southwest and Golden Bear divisions. Golubock joined Witco in 1969 as a business analyst and rose through a series of corporate staff and divisional operating positions. Most recently, he was corporate vice president of supply and distribution for Witco's petroleum group.

Witco manufactures specialty chemical and petroleum products and engineered materials with annual sales of approximately $1.6 billion.

AKRON, OH (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - The BFGoodrich Company's (NYSE: GR) Geon

Vinyl Division today announced a two cent per pound across-the-board increase of its resin and compound prices, effective Sept. 1, 1990.

BFG previously announced the removal of a one cent temporary voluntary allowance effective Sept. 1 which BFG applied only to its PVC resin customers.

The additional two cent per pound increase in both resin and compound is a direct result of increased crude oil prices caused by the current Middle East crisis.

"We are now paying significantly higher costs for raw materials, transportation and plant energy, and we simply cannot absorb these costs," said W.F. Patient, Geon Vinyl Division president. "Accordingly, we must pass those costs along to our customers."

Patient noted that Goodrich had held the line as long as possible on energy-related price increases. He also would not rule out future price increases. "If our energy-related costs continue to increase, we will have to pass along those increases to our customers," he added.

FOUNTAIN VALLEY, CALIF. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - FHP (R) Health Care, a federally qualified health maintenance organization (HMO), has expanded its Xerox Healthlink Network to include 38 HMOs in 25 states.

The expanded network, expected to be fully operational by Jan. 1, 1991, will be offered to approximately 35,000 Xerox employees during the company's upcoming open enrollment period. Representatives from the 38 network HMOs met with FHP officials in Southern California Aug. 16, and are expected to sign appropriate contracts with Xerox and FHP within the upcoming months.

As one of six HMOs chosen as network managers last year, FHP will closely oversee network HMOs by recommending utilization and quality assurance standards, and compliance with such standards, in accordance with Xerox customer service requirements. In addition, Xerox employees in Southern California, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico, and Guam will continue to receive care in FHP medical centers or individual practice associations. Xerox pays FHP a fee for administering the network.

The selection process began in January, when FHP identified 75 HMOs throughout the country as possible Healthlink affiliates. All plans had to be federally qualified and in business for more than five years. Those passing a preliminary review were evaluated by a task force of FHP management and medical professionals.

The Healthlink system is a new concept for Xerox, which was previously dealing with 126 HMOs in 40 states and territories. According to Sharon Diehl, Manager of Benefits operations for Xerox, the Healthlink system is designed to streamline the benefits process and establish good working relationships with a few providers.

FHP, founded in 1961, provides comprehensive pre-paid health care to 550,000 members. It is a wholly owned subsidiary of FHP International Corp. (NASDAQ: FHPC), headquartered in Fountain Valley, Calif. Xerox Corp., a Fortune 100 company based in Stamford, Conn., is one of the world's leading manufacturers of business equipment.

RICHMOND, BRITISH COLUMBIA (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - HQ Office International Inc. (NASDAQ: HQOIU) announced today that Great Canadian Office Supplies Warehouse achieved sales of $2,125,891, for the second quarter ended July 1, 1990. George J. Handgis, president and chief executive officer stated, "We are pleased with the results of the second quarter. Our sales exceeded our original expectations by 20 percent." The company, which opened its first office products superstore on March 29 1990, reported a loss of approximately $1,930,000 for the six-month period ended July 1, 1990. Of this total, approximately $978,000 was incurred as part of the company's start-up and development. Handgis added, "This six-month loss was 5 percent greater than anticipated. The increased loss was a direct result of litigation costs associated with the HQ Network Systems litigation."

Robert J. McNulty, chairman, stated, "Great Canadian's success has been above our expectations. Annualized sales for the first location in Vancouver are 30 percent greater than anticipated and sales at the second location in Edmonton are 20 percent over original expectations. The third superstore, also located in Edmonton, opened for business on Aug. 9, 1990, and appears to have similar growth potential. Great Canadian Office Supplies Warehouse is well on its way to capturing a major share of the Canadian office products marketplace."

Handgis added, "The anticipated proceeds from the exercise of the company's Class A common stock purchase warrants will allow Great Canadian Office Supplies Warehouse to continue its expansion plans. Two additional stores will be opened in Calgary and Victoria in September and October."

Founded on a unique merchandising strategy based on direct shipment from manufacturers, rapid inventory turnover, and centralized control of purchasing, replenishment and pricing, Great Canadian Office Supplies Warehouse maintains deeply discounted prices and excellent service. The company plans to have eight superstores open in Canada by the end of 1990.

LONG BEACH, CALIF. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - A.G. Automotive Warehouses Inc. (NASDAQ: AGAWA) announced today that during the second quarter ending July 1, 1990, the company's first Auto Giant warehouse, located in San Bernardino, Calif., achieved net sales of $4,279,000. The second quarter weekly sales average of $329,000 was 24 percent higher than the comparable weekly sales average of $265,000 during the first quarter of 1990. In addition, the company reported that during the five-week period beginning July 2, 1990, Auto Giant achieved a comparable weekly sales increase of 10 percent over its second quarter results.

The company reported a loss during the second quarter of approximately $2 million. The bulk of this loss was contributable primarily to development and pre-opening costs.

Robert J. McNulty, chairman, stated, "We are very pleased with the sales levels being generated at the first Auto Giant warehouse and we continue to be very optimistic about our new locations to be opened in Sacramento and Fountain Valley, Calif.; Las Vegas, Nev., and Phoenix, Ariz."

Frank Roberts, president and chief executive officer, added, "Over the last 13 weeks, we have been preparing for our expansion by hiring and training management personnel for the new locations. We have also refined our merchandise mix and advertising program, changes we believe will greatly benefit our existing and future warehouses."

Auto Giant offers a wide selection of quality, brand-name automotive products at discount prices to retail and wholesale customers. Auto Giant warehouses will average approximately 50,000 to 75,000 square feet, and will carry inventory of approximately 17,000 stock keeping units (items), including automotive accessories, batteries, maintenance and repair parts, sound systems, tires, and custom wheels. Each Auto Giant warehouse also contains a full automotive service department with certified technicians.

Net income for fiscal 1990 rose to $3,690,000 or 78 cents per share compared with $3,482,000 or 75 cents per share announced in 1989. In addition in 1989, the cumulative effect of a change in accounting principle added $443,000 or ten cents per share, bringing net income in 1989 to $3,925,000 or 85 cents per share. Sales for fiscal 1990 declined slightly to $90,589,000 compared with $90,962,000 in 1989.

Net income for the fourth quarter ended June 30, 1990, reached $1,115,000 or 23 cents per share on net sales of $23,811,000. This compares with net income for the same period last year of $1,242,000 or 27 cents per share on net sales of $24,104,000.

The company's board of directors, at its meeting on Aug. 16, 1990, declared a quarterly cash dividend of eight cents per share payable Sept. 17, 1990, to shareholders of record on Aug. 29, 1990.

Acme's president, G. Wayne Hawk, attributed the earnings increase to "improved efficiencies and cost reductions in the wake of difficult market conditions for Acme products.

"Those conditions appear to be improving," Hawk noted, "evidenced by Acme Transformer division's successful new product introductions and entry into the Canadian market.

"Recent favorable sales activity in the custom-designed power supplies and aerospace power products should also continue," Hawk said. "And we are working hard to make our standby power products more competitive than they have been."

Hawk said the fact that sales over the past six months have exceeded revenues in the same period in 1989 is indication of "stronger market conditions for Acme."

Founded in 1917, Acme Electric Corporation designs and manufactures power conversion equipment for electronic and electrical systems for industrial, commercial, residential, and aerospace applications. Corporate headquarters are in East Aurora, N.Y., with operations in Cuba, N.Y.; Lumberton, N.C.; Salt Lake City and West Jordan, Utah; and Tempe, Ariz.

RESTON, VA. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - How do you buy a tan with no cash? If you're one of more than 14 million MOST(R) cardholders, you can pay for your tan with the same card you use at MOST automated teller machines (ATMs).

Internet, Inc., together with Continental Federal Savings Bank, have established a new payment system at The Suntan Shop that allows MOST cardholders to take advantage of MOST POS (point-of-sale), an electronic purchase system, at The Suntan Shop's Reston and Annandale, Va., locations. MOST POS provides consumers with a faster, more convenient way to pay for products and services by electronically transferring payments directly from their bank account to the merchant as an option to carrying cash or writing a check. The MOST POS electronic purchase feature serves as an add-on benefit to all existing MOST cards issued by more than 400 financial institutions that participate in MOST.

"The MOST card frees customers of carrying wallets, checkbooks and purses that are cumbersome at a tanning salon," said Karen Brutsche, owner of the The Suntan Shop. She added that MOST POS is convenient for customers because they do not have to stop for cash before coming to the shop.

The Suntan shop is the latest retail merchant to begin using MOST POS, which was introduced in 1984 at Mobil service stations and is available at more than 100 Mobile locations throughout the Washington D.C. and Baltimore metropolitan areas.

Continental Federal Savings Bank, headquartered in Fairfax, Va., operates 25 branches throughout Northern Virginia with over $1 billion in total assets.

Reston-based Internet(R) owns and operates the MOST electronic banking network, the fourth largest regional network in the U.S. Internet has 427 financial institution members representing more than 14 million cardholders and over 4,100 MOST ATM and POS devices throughout the Mid-Atlantic and Mid-South regions.

ROCKVILLE, MD. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Biotech Research Laboratories, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: BTRL) today reported second quarter 1990 revenue of $3,911,662 compared to revenue for the first quarter of 1990 of $2,738,107.

For the second quarter, revenue decreased 17 percent to $3,911,662 from $4,719,199 in the same period last year; earnings fell to a net loss of $265,958, or 4 cents per common share (after deducting $745,000 in paid and accrued merger costs), compared to a gain of $655,892, or 10 cents per common share, in last year's second quarter.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, revenue decreased 27 percent to $6,649,769 from $9,120,849 for the same period last year; however, earnings fell to a net loss of $705,779, or 11 cents per common share, compared to a gain of $1,260,257, or 20 cents per common share, in last year's same period.

According to J. Bryan Dowling, vice president, finance: "The drop in product sales during the first quarter of 1990 (which was the result, as previously reported, of a shortage in a key raw material and the transitional period caused by DuPont's sale of its virology blood screening business to Ortho Diagnostic Systems Inc.) was responsible for both the overall drop in revenue and resultant net loss for the six months ended June 30, 1990. As a result of the significantly revised product orders received from Ortho, the second quarter is again back on track."

Dowling stated, "We consider the results of the second quarter at least comparable to our average over the prior two years":

	1988 Qtrly Average	1989 Qtrly Average	1990 First Quarter	1990 Second Quarter
Revenue	$4,100,000	$4,275,000	$2,750,000	$3,900,000
Operating Income (Loss)	$ 350,000	$ 400,000	$(540,000)	$ 450,000
Net Income (Loss)	$ 375,000	$ 370,000	$(450,000)	$(250,000)(A)

(A) Includes $745,000 in paid and accrued merger costs. Dowling concluded, "With the improved second quarter operating income, we anticipate 1990's results will be as solid as any in the company's history."

MONTCLAIR, NJ (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Gryphon Group, a custom spot builder with a history of constructing quality homes at development home prices, has returned to its roots by establishing a remodeling subsidiary.

"We started out doing remodeling and historic restoration work five years ago," explained Gryphon Group President Jeanne F. Holloran, "so this is a natural expansion of our business."

Holloran said her approach to remodeling is much the same as it is to new home building -- "Give as much value as possible, and be sensitive to the design of the original house and the neighborhood in which it is located."

"No expansion should look like an expansion," she added. "You can't just tack on a box and expect it to serve the same purpose for which the project was initiated."

That doesn't mean the addition to an existing home would or should be an exact match to the original, but it must, Holloran noted, be complimentary.

Homeowners considering remodeling should be prepared to spend time with the builder who is doing the work. "They're not going to be satisfied in the end if they're not going to put in their own time with the builder to identify a clear concept of what they need and want in their new home," Holloran said.

Usually several drawings of the project must be made before the ultimate design is finalized, and then decisions need to be made about materials.

Holloran said she is available at any time of the day to consult with her clients during this process and throughout construction.

"It's important for me to understand the psychology behind the requests and decisions being made by my clients so that I can be sure they will be happy with the finished product," the builder stressed.

"The best part is when a client walks in at the end of the job and says, 'This is exactly what I wanted'." said Holloran.

CALGARY, ALBERTA (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Total Petroleum Canada Ltd. (a wholly owned subsidiary of Total Petroleum (North America) Ltd. (AMEX, Toronto, Montreal: TPN)) has purchased substantially all the assets of Amoco Canada Petroleum Company Ltd. and Amoco Canada Resources Ltd. in the Josephine area of Alberta. The $11 million (CDN) acquisition includes Amoco's 77 percent interest in the Josephine Gas Plant, along with associated reserves and gas gathering system. Three Amoco employees located at the plant have accepted employment with Total.

The purchase complements Total's activities wherein Total and various partners have drilled 13 wells in the area over the past year. Of greatest significance is a Kiskatinaw discovery, drilled by Total and its partners Murphy Oil Company Ltd. and Suncor Inc., which tested 620 thousand cubic meters per day (22 million cubic feet per day) of natural gas. It is anticipated that an additional eight wells will be drilled and construction of a new gas gathering system will be completed by year-end.

LINDEN, NJ (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - While he watches the oil dependent nations face the challenges of the Iraq Crisis and the steady climb in oil prices developing from it, Charles P. Covino is reminded daily of another natural resource crisis in the making - a potential shortage of scarce strategic metals.

For Covino, chairman and CEO of General Magnaplate Corporation (NASDAQ: GMCC) in Linden, N.J., the potential shortage of strategic metals could conceivably be more acute than the world petroleum situation - and equally as painful in the long run to consumers in the western economies.

"There's no question that we've been spoiled," says Covino. "We're used to going to the store and the gas station and purchasing endless quantities of anything we want." He's been speaking out on what he calls the "Supermarket Syndrome" for more than two decades.

"Many people, including policymakers, do not identify this as a problem. Because they don't, people just can't imagine the impact that will be felt in this country when the growing shortage of natural resources such as strategic metals becomes a reality."

One metal he is concerned about is chromium. "The earth has only so much chromium. And it is a vital ingredient for hardening iron and steel. Our major sources are South Africa and the Soviet Union."

Another important strategic metal is cobalt, also used in hardening steels. Major cobalt resources are in Africa, Canada and the Soviet Union. Manganese, vanadium, and many other rare earths are not found anywhere on the globe in large deposits. The U.S. itself has, for all practical purposes, none at all. A shut-off of supply of strategic metals at any one location would be potentially devastating.

Covino explains that every piece of steel with which we come into contact is made up of iron combined with rarer strategic metals such as nickel, cobalt, vanadium, and manganese. These enhance the steel's hardness and its capability of being machined and heat treated.

"Once we have a shortfall," he states, "we'll really feel the pinch. Most consumers think only of chromeplated auto bumpers or household appliances, but these largely decorative uses are really not the issue. It's absolutely vital in producing military equipment.

"And we'll feel it industrially when it comes to manufacturing operations such as aerospace, chemicals, food, pharmaceuticals, rubber and plastics, electronics, and packaging. We'll see high prices rung up on cash registers when we purchase television sets, cameras, appliances, refrigerators, cars, bicycles, fast foods, paper and plastic products, packaged goods and dozens of other key consumer goods."

NEW ORLEANS (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Vincent J. Liuzza Jr., chairman and president of Cucos Inc. (NASDAQ: CUCO), announced that operating earnings advanced for the fourth quarter and fiscal year ended July 1.

Net income for fiscal 1990 increased to $180,383, or $.09 per share, from $142,076, or $.07 per share, achieved in the comparable prior year period. Total revenues for the year increased to $13,582,689, up 8.4 percent, compared to $12,533,084 achieved in the prior year.

Revenues for the fourth quarter increased to $3,555,694, up 19.1 percent, from $2,985,051 achieved in the comparable prior year period. Net income for the quarter advanced to $15,551, or $.01 per share, compared to net income of $13,390, or $.01 per share, for the comparable prior year quarter.

"We are pleased with the continued improvement in revenues and net income. During the year company-owned restaurants opened in Pascagoula, Mississippi, and Columbus, Georgia. In addition, the Hammond, Louisiana, franchised restaurant was purchased on July 1, 1990. Five franchised restaurants also opened during fiscal 1990, while one closed and one was purchased by the company. At the end of the fiscal year, there were 11 restaurants operated by the company and 19 restaurants operated by independent franchisees," noted Liuzza.

In addition to the 20.0 percent growth in the number of restaurants achieved in fiscal 1990, the company recorded its sixth consecutive year of increased comparable sales per restaurant. Average sales per comparable restaurant increased by 3.6 percent in 1990, compared to a 3.2 percent increase achieved in 1989. "Our continuing emphasis on delivering the highest quality and freshest products to our guests resulted in Cucos' being named the 'Number One' choice in Mexican dining in the state of Louisiana by the readers of 'Louisiana Life' magazine," concluded Liuzza.

LONG BEACH, CALIF. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - HQ Office Supplies Warehouse Inc. (NASDAQ: HQOSA), one of the leading office products and equipment superstore retailing chains in the Western United States, reported today that sales for the second quarter ending July 1, 1990 were $17,530,661. These sales results represent a 198 percent increase over sales during the same period in fiscal year 1989.

The company also reported that sales for the six month period ended July 1 1990 were $40,518,580, a 430 percent increase over sales during the same period in fiscal 1989. This increase in sales was less than anticipated due to an decrease in store inventories. Store inventories declined due to the delay of anticipated funds from the company's offering of convertible debentures. Since the completion of such offering on June 14, 1990, inventories have been replenished and the company anticipates that sales will begin to return to previous levels during the three-month period ending Sept. 30, 1990. In fact, during the past month HQ Office Supplies warehouse reported comparable store sales increases of over 20 percent.

The company reported a loss during the second quarter of approximately $3.9 million. This loss was primarily due to higher than anticipated general and administrative costs, including an aggregate $1.6 million in non-recurring costs associated with litigation proceedings and the amortization of goodwill in connection with the WORKplace acquisition. The company believes that general and administrative costs as a percentage of sales will decrease during the quarter ending Sept. 30, 1990.

Brad R. Tukey, president and chief executive officer, stated "We are pleased with the progress that HQ Office Supplies Warehouse has made in the past 18 months. In this short time, the company has evolved from a start-up concept to a 14-store specialty warehouse chain which has had significant market impact in Southern California and other western markets. We remain confident that the company will continue to grow and that we will continue to compete successfully in all of our targeted markets."

HQ Office Supplies Warehouse utilizes a merchandising strategy featuring a wide selection of quality, brand-name office products, including general office supplies, business machines, office furniture and other business-related products at discount prices primarily to small and medium-sized businesses. The stores average at least 25,000 square feet of selling space with an inventory of approximately 8,000 stock keeping units.

PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Many international students in the Delaware Valley will be a little less homesick this fall, thanks to a special offer from AT&T (NYSE: T).

On Friday, Sept. 28, international students from nine area college and university campuses will be given an opportunity to make a free call to friends or family in their home country. For many, it will be their first call home.

Called "Hello from America," the offer is part of a variety of welcoming events designed to introduce students from other countries to their new campuses and to each other. At the same time, AT&T gives them a chance to hear a voice from home, and to learn about AT&T services, such as the AT&T Reach Out(R) World plan.

International students will be invited to make their calls and enjoy a Welcome Party at International House, 3701 Chestnut St., Philadelphia. This is the fifth consecutive year that AT&T is sponsoring the "Hello from America" program.

During the activities, students will be invited to place a three-minute international demonstration call, and to register for the Campus Grand Prize drawing for an AT&T telephone and answering machine. In addition, American Airlines will award a National Grand Prize of two round-trip coach tickets to anywhere it flies (except Tokyo).

Invitations are being sent to students at the following colleges and universities: Bryn Mawr College, Drexel University, Haverford College, LaSalle University, Philadelphia College of Textile Science, St. Joseph's University, Temple University, University of Pennsylvania and Villanova University.

BROOKLYN, MI (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Pennzoil Co. (NYSE: PZL) announces its major entry into NASCAR racing today with a multi-year agreement for exclusive sponsorship with Bahari Racing and driver Michael Waltrip. The Pennzoil-yellow car will first appear on the track at the 1991 Daytona 500.

This sponsorship - Pennzoil's initial entry as a major underwriter in the highly popular NASCAR racing circuit - covers a complete Winston Cup series and a minimum ten-race schedule on the Busch Grand National series. The car owners are Charlotte, N.C., businessmen Chuck Rider and Lowrance Harry of Bahari Racing.

"Pennzoil has been known for its winning tradition in almost every type of auto racing over its 100 years as a company," said James L. Pate, the company's president and chief executive officer.

"Now we're expanding from CART and NHRA drag racing to NASCAR Winston Cup. We're excited about this program with Bahari racing, and I'm sure this will help us emphasize the quality performance of Pennzoil motor oil to a wider racing audience. I know our fans, distributors and customers will enjoy seeing the bright yellow Pennzoil car on the NASCAR tracks next year," he added.

Pennzoil currently sponsors three other major programs: Indy-car racing, featuring driver Rick Mears, professional drag racing with pro-stock driver Jerry Eckman, and top fuel dragster Eddie Hill.

"We're really pleased to be the first team to announce a new sponsor joining NASCAR," said Rider. "We're happy the negotiations are over already by mid-August. Now, we're free to concentrate on winning before the end of the season, so we can build momentum for next year."

The Bahari Winston Cup team will stay intact, explained Rider. Waltrip will have the support of engine builder Ken Wilson, crew chief Bill Ingle and the rest of the 23-member crew.

"With our crew and the backing from such a major sponsor as Pennzoil, we look forward to an exciting and winning season next year," Waltrip said. "We just finished fourth at Watkins Glen last weekend, so we're getting closer and closer to Victory Lane."

Waltrip added that he is also excited about running the Pennzoil yellow on the Busch Grand National circuit. The ten-race schedule will be run in conjunction with Winston Cup races. "With this tremendous multi-year commitment from Pennzoil, we hope to continue the company's winning tradition on both circuits," Rider said.

SPRING VALLEY, NY (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Par Pharmaceutical, Inc. (NYSE: PRX) today reported a net loss for its third fiscal quarter, ended June 30 1990.

Sales for the quarter were $9,693,000, a decrease of 65 percent from the sales of $27,588,000 for the quarter ended July 1, 1989. The company incurred a net loss for the quarter of $5,208,000 ($.46 per share), as compared with a net loss of $1,773,000 ($.16 per share) a year earlier.

The net loss for the current quarter is after charges to operations of $4,711,000 in connection with recalls and related matters. For the nine months ended June 30, 1990, sales were $41,948,000, down 51 percent from the sales of $85,650,000 for the six months ended July 1, 1989 and the net loss was $10,840,000 ($.97 per share), as compared with net income of $3,743,000 ($.34 per share) for the nine months ended July 1, 1989.

Results for the quarter were again severely impacted by continuing losses at Par's subsidiary, Quad Pharmaceuticals. In March and April, 1990, Quad recalled 29 of its injectable products after discovering that minor manufacturing changes were made to the products without properly adhering to FDA's regulatory requirements for making such changes. In addition, Quad placed a voluntary moratorium on shipments of all products subject to FDA-approved Abbreviated New Drug Applications ("ANDAs") (about 85 percent of Quad's product line), which will continue with respect to each product until Quad's ongoing investigation determines that the product can be manufactured in conformity with its ANDA approval. Par said that the early results of the investigation have resulted in Quad's beginning to reintroduce a small number of products, but that manufacturing difficulties at Quad would continue to adversely affect results of operations for at least the next two quarters. Also, operations for the quarter continued to be adversely affected by the after-effects of Par's August 1989 moratorium on shipments of its entire oral solid product line. At June 30, 1990, oral solid products that historically had accounted for approximately 70 percent of Par's oral solid sales had been reintroduced to market.

Par said that sales of its oral solid products increased during the current quarter by 63 percent over the previous quarter, as Par continued to reintroduce its products to market and recapture its customer base, and that it expects oral solid sales to continue to increase during the coming months. Also, Par said that it has begun to rebuild the management team at Quad and has recently retained a director of manufacturing and is in the process of retaining a vice president of operations for Quad. However, Par said that, because of the effects of both the moratorium on shipments of its injectable products and the anticipated rate of reintroduction of those products, as well as expected levels of sales for oral solid products, it expects to continue to sustain losses for at least the next two quarter, and will reports a loss for its 1990 fiscal year as a whole.

SAN DIEGO (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Mail Boxes Etc. (MBE) (NASDAQ: MAIL)

announced that its fourth Annual Stockholders Meeting will be held Friday, Aug. 24 at 10:30 a.m. at the La Jolla Marriott.

For the 1990 fiscal year, Mail Boxes Etc. experienced a 36 percent increase in center openings and a 44 percent increase in sales. Earnings per share based on net operating income was $.84, a 33 percent increase over the prior year.

The company fulfilled its long-term goal of 1,000 MBE centers open by the end of fiscal year 1990. MBE opened 307 new centers for a total of 1,131 in operation at April 30, 1990. MBE is the world's largest national network of private postal, business and communication centers.

MBE also continued its international expansion with the opening of MBE-Japan's first center in Osaka and MBE-Mexico's first center in Mexicali.

In July, MBE signed a letter of intent to enter into an agreement to sell to United Parcel Service (UPS) 400,000 shares of its common stock for an all-cash price of $10.1 million and for UPS to purchase 400,000 warrants over the following three years.

These warrants are priced at $1.168 million due at the close of the purchase of common stock. In the next 12 months, 133,000 warrants may be exercised at $27 per warrant; during the following 12 months, another 133,000 warrants at $32 per warrant. The final 133,000 warrants may be exercised at $38.88 in the third year.

If warrants are exercised, UPS would acquire approximately 17.4 percent equity interest in MBE. The agreement would allow UPS to increase its equity interest in MBE to 35 percent after one year.

Founded in 1980, MBE's initial public offering of stock was June 10, 1986. For the second year in a row, MBE has been rated by OTC Review among the 100 most profitable of NASDAQ's 5,000 companies. Forbes rated MBE number 42 of the "Top 200 Best Small Companies in America." Entrepreneur named MBE the tenth fastest-growing franchise in the nation.

SEATTLE (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Because of growth related to the booming Washington economy, U S WEST announced today it estimates the available 206 area code prefixes will be exhausted within two years.

"If growth and demand for service continues like it has for the past several years, Western Washington will run out of prefixes by 1992," said Lisa Bowersock, media relations manager for U S WEST in Washington.

According to the national numbering plan developed by the North American Numbering Plan Administration Center (NPAC) at Bell Communications Research (BellCore), approximately 640 prefixes are available for assignment in any given area code. Currently, 540 prefixes have been assigned in the 206 area code. If the projected 6-percent growth continues, and no steps are taken to address this problem, prefixes available for assignment would be exhausted by the second half of 1992.

Area codes were developed in the late 1940s to enable customers to use direct long distance dialing and to eliminate the need for every call to be placed through an operator. Three-digit area codes, with either a "0" or a "1" as the middle digit were reserved for that specific use and were not permitted for use as the first three digits of the local telephone number. With the numbers 2 through 9 available in the first position, either 0 or 1 in the second, and numbers 0 through 9 in the third, there are about 160 possible combinations reserved exclusively for area codes. Since their introduction, BellCore has assigned approximately 150 area codes nationwide.

Since the availability of unassigned area codes is also approaching exhaust, BellCore now requires the first method of providing relief to exhausted area codes to be the implementation of "interchangeable dialing."

"Rather than split Western Washington to accommodate a new area code, dialing patterns will be restructured so additional prefixes will become available for assignment in heavy growth areas," Bowersock said.

Interchangeable dialing means the 160 or so three-digit combinations previously reserved for area codes are freed up for reuse as local prefixes.

There are different options for implementing interchangeable dialing in Washington state. These include seven-digit dialing and 10-digit dialing.

- Seven-Digit dialing -- All calls made throughout Western Washington, whether they are local or long distance, would be dialed using the seven digit number only. Therefore a call from Seattle to Bellingham, which currently requires an eight digit dialing pattern (1+number), would be placed by simply dialing the seven digit number. Although only seven digits are dialed, the network still recognizes the call is long distance and bills accordingly.

- 10-Digit Dialing -- This dialing pattern maintains the dialing of a "1" for long distance, but since some current area codes will be assigned as local prefixes, all long distance calls in Western Washington would require 1 + the area code, to avoid misrouting of calls to another state. Therefore, that same call from Seattle to Bellingham would require 1+206+seven digit number.

Western Washington will be the second area in U S WEST's 14-state territory to announce the implementation of some form of interchangeable dialing. The first was the state of Arizona on July 1. Other states and major cities, such as Georgia, Washington, D.C., Maryland and Virginia have also experienced rapid growth and have adopted similar plans.

WARSAW, IND. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - R. Douglas Grant, president of Lake City Bank, Warsaw, and Thomas R. Ricketts, chairman and chief executive officer of Standard Federal Bank (NYSE: SFB), Troy, Mich., announced today that Lake City and Standard Federal have executed a definitive agreement under the terms of which Standard Federal will sell its branch offices and related deposit accounts in Goshen and Nappanee, Ind., to Lake City.

The acquisition of these branch offices and deposit accounts by Lake City Bank is subject to approval by the Office of Thrift Supervision, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the Department of Financial Institutions for the State of Indiana. Application for regulatory approval is expected to be made within the next two weeks by Standard and Lake City and acted upon within 90 to 120 days thereafter.

Standard Federal Bank, headquartered in Troy, is a $9.75 billion FDIC-insured savings institution with 114 branch offices serving Michigan and Indiana. Standard Federal's concentration of branch offices is in southeastern Michigan where it has 68 offices.

Lake City Bank is a $251 million independent locally owned banking organization operating continuously since 1872 with 15 offices currently in Kosciusko and Wabash counties. The bank also recently announced plans to open offices in Akron and Columbia City, Ind.

Commenting on the agreement, Ricketts stated, "This sale is part of Standard Federal's ongoing effort to maximize profitability in its branch office network by concentrating efforts in those markets we are most familiar with. Both the Goshen and Nappanee branches were acquired as part of Standard's acquisition of Tower Federal Savings of South Bend, Ind., and are geographically distant from Standard's primary market areas. We feel our customers in Goshen and Nappanee will be well served by Lake City Bank following this sale."

Grant added, "We are extremely pleased to make this announcement and to offer our full range of financial services to these attractive and growing communities in our market area. The $1,275,000 purchase price includes the branch facilities and approximately $30 million in deposits. Lake City will not be purchasing any loans as part of this transaction except those loans related to the deposit accounts. Banking job opportunities for present Standard Federal personnel will be made available by Lake City."

CALGARY, ALBERTA (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Coho Resources Inc. (NASDAQ: COHO) announced today its financial and operating results for the six months ended June, 1990.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the company has reported net earnings of $3.7 million compared to net earnings of $4.9 million for the same period in 1989. The earnings figures include extraordinary items of $1,453,000 in 1990 and $2,987,000 in 1989.

Cash flow from operations, before working capital adjustments, decreased from $6.1 million for the six month period in 1989 to $5.9 million for the same period in 1990. This decrease reflects the significant decrease in crude oil prices experienced during the second quarter of 1990. Net production revenue increased 14 percent to $9.1 million from $8.0 million reported for the six months ended June 30, 1989.

For the six month period ending June 30, 1990 oil production averaged 3,025 barrels per day representing a 17 percent increase over the 2,587 barrels per day average for the first six months of 1989.

Coho Resources Inc. also announced that it successfully closed its initial public offering of 3,500,000 common shares on Aug. 1, 1990. Net proceeds received from the issue in the approximate amount of $41.5 million have been used to repay bank debt.

Coho is a Dallas-based company with shares listed for trading on the NASDAQ National Market System of the over the counter market - Stock symbol COHO

CINCINNATI (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Atek Metals Center, Inc. (NASDAQ: ATKM) reported today its results for the third quarter of fiscal 1990. For the three months ended June 30, 1990, the company registered net earnings of $298,000 ($0.07 per share) compared to a loss of $680,000 (($0.19) per share) in the third quarter of fiscal 1989. Revenues increased 10.7 percent to $13,533,000 from $12,226,000 in the previous year. Average shares outstanding numbered 3,730,231 in fiscal 1990 and 3,732,231 in fiscal 1989.

For the nine months ending June 30, 1990, the company achieved an improvement of net earnings to $725,000 ($0.17 per share) from $39,000 (($0.01) per share). Revenues totaled $40,387,000 in 1990 versus $38,506,000 in 1989. The company's borrowings on its lines of credit decreased $5,000,000 since Sept. 30, 1989 due to reductions in inventory levels and improved cash flow.

In a highly competitive environment, Atek attained growth in revenues from domestic and international customers because of the maintenance needs and plant expansions in the chemical processing industry and the increasing delivery of jet engines to commercial aircraft manufacturers. The company showed higher shipments and earnings with sheet and bar products from Distribution, with hardfacing wire and welding wire from Polymet Corporation, and with specialty coating services of CTS, Inc. XYTORR Corporation had a loss from operations.

As previously announced, the company reopened an embezzlement investigation conducted in 1989 because of claims from the Internal Revenue Service. A provision of up to $200,000 may be necessary in future periods with respect to these claims that the company may need to pay the IRS.

DEARBORN, MI (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - CMS Energy Corporation (NYSE: CMS) announced today that the Michigan Supreme Court has delayed the ability of CMS Energy Corporation to utilize fully its interests in the Midland Cogeneration Venture (MCV). These interests include $1.2 billion of MCV notes and approximately $315 million of MCV equity interests.

On Aug. 15, 1990, the Michigan Court of Appeals reaffirmed its earlier denial of efforts by the State Attorney General, the Michigan Public Service Commission and others which sought to restrict use of these interests. The Court of Appeals also reaffirmed the adequacy of a $450 million corporate bond pending resolution of outstanding litigation related to the transfers of MCV assets and to whether Consumers Power Company, CMS Energy's utility subsidiary, complied with the 1985 Financial Stabilization Order of the Michigan Public Service Commission. The merits of this litigation remains pending before both the Ingham County Circuit Court and the Court of Appeals.

In today's action, the Michigan Supreme Court agreed to consider the need to review the actions of the Court of Appeals. Until further order of the Supreme Court, it has instructed CMS Energy to take no further steps to expend, assign, encumber or dispose of the proceeds of the MCV related assets.

CMS Energy Corporation is a $3 billion sales diversified energy company with businesses engaged in the distribution of electricity and natural gas interstate storage and transmission of natural gas, oil and gas exploration and production, independent power generation and utility services. CMS Energy Corporation's principal subsidiary is Consumers Power Company, Michigan's largest utility and the nation's fourth- largest combination utility.

NEW YORK (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - T&N plc and J.P. Industries, Inc. (NYSE: JPI) announced that it is their understanding that the Federal Trade Commission has accepted a consent order agreed to by T&N plc that represents a negotiated resolution of the antitrust objections raised by the FTC staff in connection with T&N Automotive Components Inc.'s ongoing $17.30 per share tender offer for all outstanding shares of common stock of J.P. Industries, and that T&N Automotive Components has extended the expiration date for the tender offer to 6 p.m., New York City time, on Monday, Aug. 20, 1990.

The tender offer is the first step in the companies' previously announced agreement to effect a merger of T&N Automotive Components, a wholly-owned subsidiary of T&N plc, into J.P. Industries.

As a consequence of the extension of the expiration date, holders of J.P. Industries common stock are entitled to tender or withdraw their shares pursuant to the tender offer until 6 p.m., New York City time, on Monday, Aug. 20, 1990. Prior to the extension announced today, the tender offer had been scheduled to expire at 11:59 p.m., New York City time, on Aug. 17, 1990.

Subject to the remaining conditions of the tender offer, T&N Automotive Components intends to accept tendered shares for payment following the currently scheduled expiration date if more than 90 percent of the outstanding shares are then tendered and not withdrawn.

If fewer shares are then tendered and not withdrawn, T&N Automotive Components expects to extend the expiration date to attempt to attain the 90 percent level in order to permit a "short-form" merger of T&N Automotive Components and J.P. Industries.

Based on the latest count of tendered shares, including shares tendered pursuant to guarantees of delivery, 7,554,561 shares of J.P. Industries common stock have been validly tendered and not withdrawn pursuant to the tender offer, representing approximately 70 percent of the currently outstanding shares.

Under the terms of the consent order, T&N will divest certain tooling and/or specifications for thinwall engine bearings for U.S. gasoline and diesel engines, together with certain related sales and distribution functions. T&N also will divest certain tooling and specifications for tri-metal heavywall engine bearings, used primarily in locomotive and stationary engines.

The consent order also provides that T&N will supply the purchaser of each set of assets with strip, slab or rough castings necessary to fabricate the relevant engine bearings for a limited period, plus technical assistance to enable such purchaser to make commercially saleable engine bearings using the assets it acquires.

NEW YORK (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - BFS Bankorp, Inc. (NASDAQ: BFSI), the parent holding company for Bankers Federal Savings FSB, today announced that it has received regulatory approval to repurchase up to 5 percent of its common stock outstanding at July 31, 1990, or up to 69,423 shares, over a six month period commencing Aug. 31, 1990, and ending Feb. 28, 1991. The repurchases may be made from time to time, subject to approval by the board of directors, in open market transactions using funds already at the holding company. As of July 31, 1990, the company had repurchased 59,940 shares of its common stock pursuant to a previously approved and announced repurchase program.

The company also announced that Fredric H. Gould, Gould Investors and BRT Realty Trust have received regulatory approval to acquire up to 24.9 percent of the company's common stock. As previously announced, the company had agreed to support the application made by the Gould Group to acquire such shares and to appoint Fredric Gould to the board of directors.

The Gould Group had agreed to support the company's nominees to the board and to refrain from taking certain other action in connection with the common stock, for a period of three years. The regulatory approval received by the Gould Group is also subject to certain conditions, including that the Gould Group will not seek or accept more than one seat on the company's board of directors and will not exercise or attempt to exercise a controlling influence over the operations of the company or Bankers Federal.

Subsequent to receiving regulatory approval, the Gould Group has purchased 160,973 additional shares of the company's common stock, including 71,973 shares purchased from the First Capital Group pursuant to a previously disclosed arrangement. As of Aug. 16, 1990, the Gould Group owns a total of 302,473 shares of the company's common stock, or 21.8 percent of the shares outstanding.

ROCKVILLE, MD (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - William B. Dockser, the chairman of CRI Insured Mortgage Association, Inc. (CRIIMI MAE) (NYSE: CMM), said today that CRIIMI MAE continues to move forward with its plan to acquire control of four insured mortgage funds sponsored by Integrated Resources.

The statement came today after Integrated Resources said that it terminated a previously announced sale to the Krupp Cos. LP of its subsidiaries which serve as general partners of four American Insured Mortgage Investors Series of Limited Partnerships (AIM funds).

"We continue to work with the Securities and Exchange Commission to finalize the acquisition plan we filed in June," said Dockser. "After the SEC declares our registration statement effective, we intend to take our exchange offer directly to the people who invested their money in the AIM funds.

"From the start, our intent has been to give the AIM investors a voice in who manages their investment."

Earlier this week, CRIMMI MAE filed suits in California and Delaware courts to compel the AIM general partners to provide to CRIIMI MAE the AIM investor lists. A trial date of Sept. 5, 1990, has been set in the Delaware Chancery Court, however, no trial date has yet been set in the California Superior Court.

"After we have SEC clearance and the investor lists, we will be ready to mail the details of our exchange offer to the investors," Dockser said.

NEW YORK (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - LJ Hooker Corp. announced today that it has received Bankruptcy Court approval to close its three retail stores in its Forest Fair Mall located near Cincinnati. To be closed are the B. Altman & Co. department store and the Bonwit Teller and Sakowitz specialty stores.

The stores will close later today, remain closed Saturday for inventory, sale preparations and employee sales, and will reopen Sunday, Aug. 19 for the start of going-out-of-business sales.

All merchandise will initially be discounted by at least 20 percent. The stores will be open during regular mall hours which are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Hooker sought approval to close the stores at a hearing today before Judge

Tina L. Brozman of the Southern District U.S. Bankruptcy Court here. In August 1989, the company filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the federal Bankruptcy Code. LJ Hooker is owned by Hooker Corp. of Australia which is currently being liquidated.

The three stores had each been part of retail chains owned by Hooker. Earlier this year the company sold or closed all other stores in those chains. Six of the seven B. Altman stores were closed in January and five of the six Sakowitz stores were closed in July.

In April Hooker sold the Bonwit Teller name and two of the chain's stores to The Pyramid Companies of Syracuse, New York. It retained the two Bonwit Teller stores that were located in Hooker malls. Earlier this month it closed the Bonwit Teller in its Richland Fashion Mall in Columbia S.C. The remaining 12 Bonwit Teller stores were liquidated and closed in June.

Also granted at today's hearing was Hooker's request to employ New York-based BCS Inc. to conduct the going-out-of-business sales at the three stores. BCS is comprised of Alco Capital Corp., Sam Nassi Co. Inc., and Schottenstein Stores Corp.

WEST ORANGE, N.J. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Micro Healthsystems, Inc. (NASDAQ: MCHS), a manufacturer of bedside nursing patients care systems and healthcare financial management systems, "is benefiting from several trends and should achieve fiscal year operating results that are high than the previous year," S.M. Caravetta, chairman, told shareholders attending the annual meeting held here today. For the year ended March 31, 1990 earnings rose 147 percent to $911,000, or $.49 per share, from $369,000 or $.21 per share, and sales increased 40 percent to $7,449,000 from $5,321,000.

"The trend witnessed in the first quarter ended June 30, in which Micro Healthsystems reported a 106 percent rise in income to $452,000 or $.22 per share from $219,000 or $.12 per share, is encouraging," Caravetta said. "For the first time, a substantial number of America's hospitals last year made a budget commitment to equipment which can enhance the productivity of nurses. Our bedside patient care system saves each nurse an average of 1/2 to 1-1/2 hours per day in preparing and maintaining patients charts, time generally spent on overtime pay. As a result, these systems pay for themselves in less than three years. Priced only at $2,300 to $2,800 per bed, these units are affordable budget items in most hospitals.

"With MedTake(R) present at over 4,000 beds in 30 healthcare sites, MedTake(R) has an estimated 70 percent of the installed base of this new patient beside technology, and expects to maintain its dominant position. Our recent agreement as a "Business Partner" with IBM permits our software to be used on the IBM Clinical Workstation thus allowing the migration of our software into higher priced hardware, and should further solidify our leadership in this important marketplace," Caravetta said.

"New software products are now under development which should find acceptance in other hospital functions," Caravetta added. With virtually no debt, some $2,500,000 in cash, substantial bank credit lines and strong cash flow, we have the financial and marketing resources to contribute to and benefit from the unique opportunities we see in the hospital environment," Caravetta concluded.

Shareholders attending the annual meeting, or voting by proxy, elected four directors for the term of one year. They are: S.M. Caravetta, chairman of the board and chief executive officer; James A. Pesce, president; Douglas Hass, senior vice president; Stephen J. Feinberg, a partner of Feinberg Felzen & Nigro, counsel to Micro Healthsystems.

BEAVERTON, OR. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - NIKE (NASDAQ: NIKE) Chairman Philip H. Knight and NIKE President Richard K. Donahue today released a letter to employees that reviews NIKE's affirmative action plans for the next 24 months.

"Since January of this year, 21 percent of the new employees hired at NIKE have been minorities," said Knight. "That should show you how serious our commitment is to affirmative action. Watch us. We can get even better."

The statement Knight released was a letter sent to every NIKE employee reporting on the progress of the last four years and setting goals for the next two. Included in those goals are the naming of a minority to the board of directors within 12 months and to the vice-presidential ranks within 24 months. NIKE is also forming an outside minority advisory board to monitor their progress. Only the outside board is new, Knight said. "If any of you were interested in our policies or plans a month ago, we would have given you the same list of goals. Now all of a sudden you are interested."

Donahue reviewed the company's philanthropic programs. "Seventy-five percent of our $10 million philanthropic budget is directed to minority programs and many of those would be excellent models for other corporations," said Donahue. Among NIKE's biggest commitments is $1 million in JUST DO IT GRANTS to teachers who develop programs to combat the drop-out rate in inner city schools.

Donahue also reminded the audience that NIKE has a $5 million ad campaign running that features Bo Jackson, David Robinson and John Thompson urging kids to stay in school and stay off drugs. By Thanksgiving, a fourth ad featuring Michael Jordan and Spike Lee will be added to the Stay In School series.

"No other company in America is using their own money to buy network airtime to deliver messages of this kind to kids," Donahue said. "If people want to see how seriously we take our corporate responsibility, they should simply take a good look at what we do. Our actions speak for themselves."

Donahue also listed the evidence of a Reebock connection. "PUSH denies any connection to our largest competitor, yet we have now seen several press reports linking the two organizations," said Donahue. "Sporting Goods Intelligence" said there had been a series of breakfast meetings and "USA Today" confirmed those meetings with Jesse Jackson and the latest issue of "Jet" lists the companies that PUSH supposedly sent the questionnaire to and Reebock is conspicuously absent from the list."

EAST BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Specialty Retail Services, Inc. (NASDAQ: SRSI), announced its second quarter results today reporting second quarter 1990 sales of $8,477,000 compared with second quarter 1989 sales of $7,841,000, an increase of 8.1 percent. First half 1990 sales totaled $17,400,000 compared with $16,095,000 in the first half of 1989, also an increase of 8.1 percent.

Net income in the second quarter of 1990 totaled $19,000, compared with a net loss of $119,000 in the second quarter of 1989. The second quarter of 1989 includes a $189,000 charge to settle an ex-officer's contract. Net income for the first half of 1990 totaled $101,000 or $.02 a share, compared with a net loss of $18,000, or $.01 a share, in the first half of 1989.

Murray Steinfink, CEO, stated, "The company's second quarter 1990 net income from the core business was $125,000 compared to $70,000 for the second quarter of 1989, after exclusion of the one-time charge for the settlement of the ex-officer's contract. However, the 1990 second quarter income was offset by $106,000 in new business start-up costs. We expect the new ventures, Salon Technology, Inc., a professional beauty salon manufacturer, and Salon Mart, Inc., an upscale professional distribution store, to be profitable by year's end."

Specialty Retail Services, Inc., is a marketer of a broad range of professional beauty products, including hair care, nail care, cosmetics, skin care and other beauty accessories to salons, independent and chain drug stores, supermarkets, mass merchandisers, warehouse clubs and other retail distributors. The company believes it is one of the largest independent distributors of professional hair care products to retail in the 13 mid-Atlantic or Northeastern states.

LONG BEACH, CA (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - As any pilot will tell you, the best landing is the uneventful landing. And so it was on a warm August morning when a twin-jet airliner sailed smoothly out of the skies and touched down routinely on runway 30 at Long Beach Municipal Airport.

But this was more than an uneventful landing. This ended the final flight of one of the busiest test aircraft in aviation history. The airplane was the first MD-80 - commonly known as Ship 909 - the prototype for McDonnell Douglas' popular family of short-to-medium-range jetliners still in production ten years after their introduction in 1980.

The final flight of Ship 909 was less than 250 miles and lasted just 50 minutes. It flew from the airport at Mojave, Calif., near Edwards Air Force Base, to Long Beach, closing out a flight test career that covered 2,094 flights and 3,064 hours and included virtually everything from high sink rate landings and stalls to trials of advanced engines, cruise performance, avionics development, and customer demonstrations.

When it taxied to a position on the flight ramp at the Douglas Aircraft Co. plant in Long Beach, the aircraft was back where its flight test career began nearly 11 years ago.

Pilot Bill Jones, first officer Gary "Bear" Smith and flight test engineer Bob Tecau flew the plane from Mojave to Long Beach on its last flight on Aug. 8. When the storied plane rolled to a stop on the company's busy flight ramp, the crew was joined by H.H. "Knick" Knickerbocker, John Lane, and Virginia Clare, the crew on Ship 909's first flight on Oct. 18, 1979.

Naturally, talk got around to the final flight and the last landing of the aircraft. Bill Jones, who was at the controls for the landing at Long Beach Airport, said, as if the plane knew that it was to be permanently grounded, "It was a floater, it didn't want to come down."

First officer Smith said that on takeoff the plane "accelerated like a rifle shot, and when we were airborne it had the same feel as in the early days. Nothing had changed."

Ship 909 has spent its entire life as a test aircraft, a workhorse that supported aircraft production, development of product improvements, and evaluation of customer-unique configurations for the MD-80 family.

The prototype MD-80 was the 909th aircraft to come off the McDonnell Douglas (NYSE: MD) DC-9/MD-80 twin-jet assembly line. Shortly after its first flight in October 1979, it became a permanent flight test aircraft.

BROOMALL, PA. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Scangraphics Inc. (NASDAQ: SCNG) today reported, as anticipated, lower operating results for the second quarter and first half of 1990.

For the quarter ended June 30, the company had a net loss of $194,577 or $.08 per share on net sales of $461,799 compared with net income of $117,971 or $.10 per share on net sales of $857,677 for the same period a year earlier.

The net loss for the first six months of the current year amounted to $552,233 or $.23 per share on net sales of $959,575 vs. net income of $32,709 or $.03 per share on net sales of $1,578,623 for the comparable period of the prior year.

"These results are in line with our expectations during the transitional year as we pursue a new corporate strategy," said Andrew E. Trolio, chairman and chief executive officer of Scangraphics.

"The temporary sales decline reflects our redirected marketing approach away from limited custom sales toward potentially higher volume sales via alliances with major corporations and value added resellers, such as our recent agreements with IBM and Auto-trol," he added.

"We are convinced the new strategy is working, and believe the company will show substantial growth in the fourth quarter, as indicated by our current $1.25 million backlog achieved over the past two months and expected to increase further next year."

Scangraphics Inc. is a major supplier of document and aperture card scanners and software to value added resellers and systems integrators in the image management industry.

EXTON, PA. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Chemical Leaman Corp. (NASDAQ: CLEA), whose subsidiaries include Chemical Leaman Tank Lines Inc. and NuBulk Services Inc., today reported second quarter earnings of $67,418 or 8 cents per share, down from $889,711 or 93 cents per share in the 1989 period.

Revenues also declined for the period from $60,899,865 in 1989 to $58,210,474 in 1990.

For the six-month period, net earnings were $250,814 or 28 cents per share compared with $1,065,102 or $1.11 in 1989. Revenues recorded in 1990 were $118,618,225 compared with $117,740,885 in 1989.

President David R. Hamilton stated that the results reflect a softness in demand for transportation services in the chemical process industries, and also some unusual personnel expenses related to continued corporate restructuring. Without these unusual expenses earnings would have been at levels comparable to 1989.

Chemical Leaman Corp. is the nation's largest bulk commodity distribution company that provides transportation of liquid, dry and gaseous bulk commodities; tank container hauling and maintenance; cleaning services for industrial transportation equipment and technical assistance in handling commodities in bulk. Its services are available in 49 states, Canada and Mexico.

HIGHLAND PARK, MICH. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Chrysler Chairman Lee A. Iacocca recognized 107 employees today for helping Chrysler establish a leadership position in automotive safety.

The "air bag team" consisted of representatives from Engineering, Manufacturing and Assembly, Procurement and Supply, and Service. They played an important role in making air bags standard on all U.S.- produced Chrysler cars.

"We've gotten a lot of mail on air bags," Iacocca said, as he held up a file folder containing more than 70 letters. "They're writing to thank Chrysler for saving their lives. They should be thanking you.

"We pumped $200 million into the air bag program and it's been well worth it."

Chrysler cars equipped with air bags have been driven 6.5 billion miles since April 1988, when Chrysler first offered supplemental, driver-side air bags as standard equipment. They've been deployed approximately 6,000 times since, Iacocca said.

"I can remember when being the industry leader in safety didn't mean much " Iacocca said. "Safety was a tough sell. It's not that customers were against it; they just didn't think about it or ... want to pay for it."

According to Iacocca, Chrysler showed some guts and it's paying off. People are becoming believers in safety and it's not just limited to air bags.

"Seven out of 10 people say they want an air bag," Iacocca said, "but would you believe, eight out of 10 say they've got to have anti- lock brakes."

For 1991, anti-lock brakes are offered as standard or an option on 75 percent of Chrysler's lineup, Iacocca said.

"People don't buy air bags, of course," Iacocca added. "They buy cars. So first they look at value and quality and reliability -- and then they consider safety."

Despite lingering apprehension about the technology, Iacocca said in three years most people will insist on air bags.

PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - A Delaware Valley firm, Kane Unitrade, announced today that it has just been granted official recognition as an agricultural Joint Venture No. 2034 by the Ministry of Finance of the USSR.

This kind of registration, which allows Kane Unitrade to deal in both dollars and rubles, both in the USSR and internationally, is often claimed by Western firms but rarely achieved. It took Kane Unitrade more than two years to establish bona fides in the city of Odessa to reach this goal.

Kane Unitrade's joint venture, InterFarm, is itself unusual. It is the first of its kind in the Ukraine in which Western technology and dollars are involved in improvement in agriculture in the neediest section of the eastern European economy.

Also unusual is the fact that the Soviet partner in the joint venture is the Ukrainian Young Communist League (Komsomol), until recently one of the most rigid and doctrinaire powers in the USSR. Komsomol's involvement with Western capitalists is another measure of the depth of change in the Soviet social and economic order.

InterFarm owns 10,000 acres just north of Odessa which has been free of chemicals of any kind for eight years. It is one of the few completely organic farms in the Soviet Union. Kane Unitrade partners Reese Palley and Ed Kane said they were originally attracted to this property because of the opportunity to make an ecological statement in the USSR.

InterFarm has a hidden asset. It lies over hundreds of kilometers of manmade, limestone catacombs, which are ideal for the growth of high-quality mushrooms but which have never been used for this purpose. Mushroom's will be InterFarm's first dollar crop. The second will be organically grown tomatoes.

Israeli mushroom experts were brought to the USSR to make the original estimations. The involvement of Israelis, a delicate political matter, represents another first for the region.

When canning facilities are installed, the production of mushrooms alone will create a net profit to InterFarm of $1 million a year. Kane Unitrade is also building steel schooners in Nikolaev and is operating a yacht marina, the first in the Black Sea, in Constanta, Romania.

MONTCLAIR, N.J. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Montclair Bancorp, Inc. (OTC: MSBI), parent company of Montclair Savings Bank, today reported net income of $621,000, or $0.26 a share, for the quarter ended July 31, 1990, compared with $961,000, or $0.39 a share for the same period a year ago. Net income for the nine months ended July 31, 1990, was $2,122,000, or $0.86 a share, compared with $3,304,000, or $1.34 a share for the comparable 1989 period.

Net interest income was $4,308,000 for the three-month period and $12,716,000 for the nine-month period ended July 31, 1990, compared with $3,877,000 and $12,014,000, respectively, for the comparable 1989 periods. The provision for loan losses for the quarter was $600,000, up from $150,000 a year ago. The provision for the nine months ended July 31, 1990, was $1,500,000, up from $396,000 for the same 1989 period. Future provisions will continue to be based upon review of the bank's loan portfolio and conditions in the real estate market at the time.

At July 31, 1990, non-accruing loans and accruing loans 90 days or more delinquent were $8,974,000 and $3,338,000, respectively, compared with $7,106,000 and $3,870,000, respectively, at April 30, 1990, the end of the company's last fiscal quarter. Other real estate owned amounted to $263,000 at July 31, 1990. There was no other real estate owned at prior-period dates.

Total assets, total deposits and total loans at July 31, 1990, were $578,452,000, $509,643,000 and $477,528,000, respectively, compared with $556,490,000, $481,669,000 and $452,527,000 at Oct. 31, 1989, the company's last fiscal year-end. At July 31, 1990, the allowance for loan losses, after loan charge-offs of $296,000 during the year, was $2,336,000 compared with $1,132,000 at Oct. 31, 1989. Book value per share was $26.41 at July 31, 1990, compared with $25.88 per share at Oct. 31, 1989. The company's ratio of stockholders equity-to-assets was 11.4 percent at July 31, 1990, and 11.7 percent at Oct. 31, 1989.

Pursuant to the stock repurchase program approved by the board of directors in March 1990, to repurchase up to 123,600 shares of company stock, or 5 percent of the shares outstanding at the time, the company purchased 44,264 shares during the quarter and 60,064 shares since the beginning of the program.

On Aug. 14, 1990, the board of directors declared a regular quarterly dividend of $0.15 a share payable Oct. 1, 1990, to stockholders of record Sept. 1, 1990.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Coradian Corporation (NASDAQ: CDIN) Chairman of the Board Joseph L. Bruno today announced the results of the second quarter of 1990.

Gross revenues for the three months ended June 30, 1990, decreased approximately $1,526,000 or 19.3 percent as compared with the corresponding 1989 period. The decrease was due to the decreases in installation and service revenues of $1,473,000 or 24.3 percent and $53,000 or 2.8 percent respectively, as compared with the corresponding 1989 period. Gross revenues for the six months ended June 30, 1990, decreased $1,641,000 or 11.4 percent as compared with the corresponding 1989 period. The decrease was due to a decrease in installation revenue of $1,701,000 or 15.6 percent, offset by an increase in service revenue of $60,000 or 1.7 percent.

Net loss for the three months ended June 30, 1990, was $576,000 compared to net income of $35,000 for the corresponding 1989 period. The $611,000 decrease was primarily attributable to a decrease in income from operations of $594,000, the decrease in net other income of $31,000, offset by the decrease in interest expense of $14,000. The decrease in income from operations was primarily attributable to a decrease in gross revenues of $1,526,000, the increase in general and administrative expenses of $231,000, offset by the decrease in cost of revenues of $894,000, and the decrease in selling expenses of $269,000.

Net loss for the six months ended June 30, 1990, was $822,000 compared to a net loss of $946,000 for the corresponding 1989 period. The decrease in net loss of $124,000 was primarily attributable to the decrease in the loss from operations of $125,000, the decrease in interest expense of $28,000, offset by the decrease in net other income of $29,000. The decrease in the loss from operations was primarily attributable to decreases in costs of revenues, selling expenses and general administrative expenses of $1,073,000, $681,000 and $12,000 respectively, offset by the decrease in gross revenue of $1,641,000.

Primary loss per share for the three and six months ended June 30, 1990, were $.04 and $.05, respectively.

Primary loss per common share for the three months ended June 30, 1990, and for the six months ended June 30, 1990 and 1989, is computed by dividing net loss by the weighted average number of common stock outstanding. Common stock equivalents were not used in the calculation as the effects on per-share data would be anti-dilutive. Fully diluted loss per share for these periods is not presented as the effects on per-share data of other potentially dilutive securities would be anti-dilutive.

Primary earnings per common share for the three months ended June 30, 1989 are computed by dividing net earnings by the weighted average number of common and convertible preferred stock outstanding, plus common share equivalents resulting from dilutive stock options and warrants. Fully diluted earnings per share for the three months ended June 30, 1989, are not presented as the effects on per-share data of other potentially dilutive securities would be anti-dilutive.

AKRON, OHIO (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Roadway Express, Inc. announced today that the sharp and sustained rise in fuel prices has made it necessary for the motor carrier to enact a fuel surcharge. The surcharge will be one-and-two-tenths (1.2) percent and, subject to Interstate Commerce Commission approval, will become effective on Aug. 22, 1990.

Michael W. Wickham, president of Roadway Express, emphasized, "This surcharge is related solely to the recovery of our increased fuel costs. We attempted to wait-out the events in the Persian Gulf in hopes of avoiding this action. The rise in fuel costs has negatively affected our operating margins and makes it necessary for us to seek this relief."

Wickham further stated that Roadway Express "will monitor the fuel price situation continuously and adjust this surcharge appropriately."

Roadway Express, based in Akron, Ohio, is one of the nation's largest motor carriers serving more than 58,000 communities in all fifty states, Canada, Mexico, Puerto Rico and Guam.

ALLENTOWN, PA. (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Mack Trucks Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: MACK) announced today that its management has revised the forecast for 1990 and is now projecting sales of approximately $1.5 billion in contrast to its previous projection of approximately $1.675 billion.

Correspondingly, net losses are projected to approximate $180 million compared to the prior projection of approximately $130 million for the year ending Dec. 31, 1990. Mack attributed the lower sales and net income to a deteriorating overall truck market and continued uncertainty regarding the U.S. economy for the remainder of this year. The prior forecast anticipated a stronger second half marketplace based on pre-buying related to increased 1991 vehicle prices associated with more stringent 1991 emission standards. There is no evidence pre-buying is taking place.

Recent world events have cast further uncertainty over the truck marketplace. Should these market conditions persist into 1991 they will combine with the higher priced 1991 vehicles to have a negative impact on the sales and income of the company in 1991.

In its quarterly report to the Securities and Exchange Commission filed on Aug. 14, 1990, Mack reported losses of approximately $97 million for the six months ending June 30, 1990.

LOUISVILLE, KY (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Effective today, common stock shares of Louisville Gas and Electric Company (NYSE: LOU) were exchanged for an equal number of common shares of the new holding company, LG&E Energy Corp.

The exchange follows the approvals by required state and federal regulatory agencies, as well as overwhelming approval by the company's shareholders in June. Shareholders of common stock are not required to present their certificates for exchange.

"This new business structure will enable the company to continue to pursue its primary objective of serving its gas and electric customers with the highest quality of energy services, while providing the flexibility needed to respond to emerging competition and changes in industry regulation," said Roger W. Hale, chairman of LG&E Energy Corp.

However, Hale said, any ventures that LG&E Energy Corp. undertakes will be closely related, and take advantage of, the expertise developed in the core businesses of providing gas and electric services.

Hale also said, "The company will continue its priorities of maintaining its financial strength and its commitment to the environment. Our environmental efforts, including our pioneering efforts in the use of scrubbers, have been recognized many times."

As of today, Lousiville Gas and Electric Company is a wholly owned subsidiary of LG&E Energy Corp. The Board of Directors of Louisville Gas and Electric Company will serve as the Board of Directors of LG&E Energy Corp.

Shareholders of LG&E Energy Corp. will bear the start-up and operational costs of any subsidiaries. In return for assuming the financial risks of such ventures, shareholders will benefit from any profits the subsidiaries make.

At the same time, the holding-company structure insulates the utility's ratepayers from any risks associated with unregulated businesses. The gas and electric rates of Louisville Gas and Electric company will still be regulated by the Public Service Commission of Kentucky.

Louisville Gas and Electric Company preferred stock and debt instruments will not be assumed by LG&E Energy Corp., but will remain the obligations of Louisville Gas and Electric Company.

On August 20, LG&E Energy Corp.'s ticker symbol on the New York Stock Exchange and the Midwest Stock Exchange will be LGE. After August 20, the newspaper stock exchange listings will list the Company as LGE Energy or LGE En.

DALLAS, (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Comstock Resources Inc. (NASDAQ: CMRE) today reported a net loss of $914,019 for the second quarter ended June 30 1990, as compared to net income of $411,891 for the second quarter ended June 30, 1989. The net loss included an extraordinary loss of $734,969, which resulted from the company paying off all of its bank debt three years prior to the maturity date.

Net loss for the second quarter was 5 cents per share before the extraordinary loss and 24 cents per share after the extraordinary loss, compared to net income for the second quarter ended June 30, 1989, of 18 cents per share. Net income for the six months ended June 30, 1990, was $98,069 (3 cents per share), before the extraordinary loss.

After the extraordinary loss, the net loss for the six months ended June 30, 1990, was $636,960 (20 cents per share), compared to net income of $730,715 (32 cents per share), for the six months ended June 30, 1989. Revenues for the second quarter of 1990 were $1,062,588 as compared to $2,210,521 for the second quarter of 1989.

M. Jay Allison, president and chief executive officer stated, "The reported loss for the second quarter and the decline in revenues was anticipated due to the significant charge to earnings resulting from early repayment of all the company's bank debt, as well as the projected decline in production from the company's Bryan Woodbine property."

Comstock also reported that total shareholders' equity had increased from $17.7 million at Dec. 31, 1989, to $35.6 million at June 30, 1990, primarily as a result of the closing of a public offering. The proceeds from the offering were used to retire all of the company's bank debt, with the remaining funds utilized to fund the company's drilling and completion program on the Bivins Ranch Lease.

Comstock Resources Inc. owns and manages income producing assets in oil, casinghead and natural gas, precious metals and real estate, with subsidiary operations since 1865.

RALEIGH, NC (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - A hearing in the deceptive trade practice lawsuit against Exxon Corp. (NYSE: XON), originally scheduled for August 20, has been continued until September 10.

N.C. Attorney General Lacy H. Thornburg, who brought the lawsuit against the oil giant last week, said Exxon had agreed to remain under the injunction ordering it to honor posted prices and to stop imposing retroactive price increases on its distributors in North Carolina.

Thornburg said Exxon's claims that the retroactive pricing was the result of computer error and limited to North and South Carolina appear to be false. "We are preparing to show that what Exxon called computer error was in fact intentional," Thornburg said. "And while Exxon said the error was limited to North and South Carolina, we are preparing to prove that the retroactive price increases were in fact broader, perhaps even nationwide."

Thornburg said he had had calls from numerous other states which were interested in North Carolina's pending lawsuit against Exxon. Thornburg will meet Monday (August 20) in Washington D.C. with attorneys general from some 35 other states and with anti-trust attorneys from the U.S. Department of Justice.

"We will be sharing strategies for addressing oil and gasoline price hikes " Thornburg said, "and the Exxon case will certainly be on the agenda."

AUSTIN, TX (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Communications Transmission Inc. (CTI) (NASDAQ: CTIA) announced today that the net loss for its second quarter of 1990 (ended June 30, 1990) was $16.4 million or $1.65 per common share on revenues of $95.2 million. On May 24, 1990, CTI elected to change its fiscal year to a calendar year in order to coincide with that of its majority owned subsidiary, ALC Communications Corp. (ALC). The net loss compares to a prior year net loss of $7.8 million ($0.81 per common share) on revenues of $101.3 million.

The total net loss for the first six months of 1990 was $25.1 million or $2.56 per common share on revenues of $193.2 million compared to a net loss of $9.1 million or $1.01 per common share on revenues of $206.4 million for the first six months of 1989. The loss was magnified by certain one-time expenses associated with the CTI and ALC financial restructuring which was successfully completed in June of this year.

As part of a successful financial restructuring, CTI received additional preferred stock of ALC which raises CTI's ownership of ALC to approximately 64 percent on an as-converted and fully diluted basis of ALC in exchange for certain transmission contract concessions and modifications of the $20 million bridge loan. However, for financial reporting purposes, CTI's consolidated net loss for both periods includes

In conjunction with its financial restructuring, CTI has completed an operational reorganization which has lowered its operating costs. The company expects that its restructuring will position it to effectively compete in the highly competitive telecommunications market. CTI's two unconsolidated 50 percent owned fiber optic networks are each experiencing a positive trend in both revenues and operating cash flow.

CTI is a leading supplier of communications transmission capacity over its dual route coast-to-coast digital network. Capacity is leased to corporate customers, independent telephone companies and common carriers in the long distance voice and data transmission marketplace.

SAN DIEGO (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Applied Data Technology Inc. (ADTI), a small business, has been awarded a $1.8 million contract by the United States Air Force to design and fabricate a Display and Debriefing Subsystem (DDS) for Langley Air Force Base, Hampton, Va. In addition, this contract will require ADTI to deliver and install this equipment in existing Air Combat Maneuvering Instrumentation (ACMI) facilities located on the base.

The Langley AFB DDS will be used to monitor and control ACMI activities on the Navy's Tactical Air Combat Training System (TACTS) located at Naval Air Station, Oceana, Va. This system will allow the Air Force to provide aircrew debriefing of its air combat training missions. Work on this project will begin immediately with initial operational capability (IOC) scheduled for mid-fiscal year 1991.

TACTS/ACMI ranges, made famous by the movie "Top Gun," are designed to provide realistic training for tactical aircrews using actual air-to- air and air-to-ground combat tactics through electronically simulated weapons firings. Training missions can be monitored on the ground in real-time through computer-generated graphics and replayed for aircrew debrief and mission analysis.

The Langley DDS contract, awarded by the U.S. Air Force, was the result of a competitive procurement. "It is significant in that this contract further establishes ADTI as a principal TACTS/ACMI systems equipment supplier," according to Jim Flora, ADTI president.

ADTI is currently teamed with Kollsman for the production of two ACMI ranges located near Elmendorf AFB, Alaska, and at Volk Field Air National Guard Base near Madison, Wis.

The team of ADTI and Kollsman has also recently been awarded a multi-million dollar contract to deliver a Bomber Airborne Instrumentation System (BAIS) to the Strategic Air Command (SAC). The BAIS will be carried internally on B-1B and B-52 bomber aircraft permitting these aircrews to conduct training for the first time on existing ACMI ranges.

Established in 1988, ADTI has captured an impressive group of senior systems and design engineers dedicated to range systems programs. In addition, the company is involved in the research and development of advanced electronic, training and avionics systems for commercial, aerospace and defense applications.

TORONTO, (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Denison Mines Limited (Toronto, Montreal: DEN) said today that an $80,000,000 write-down of its oil interests in Italy, lower oil and gas production and prices, weak potash prices and a $4,200,000 pre-tax provision for the cost of downsizing the company's Elliot Lake uranium operations resulted in a net loss of $97,084,000 for the second quarter of 1990.

This compares with net earnings of $7,967,000 for the three months ended June 30, 1989, and brought the loss for the first six months of 1990 to $101,855,000, compared with earnings of $9,344.000 for the corresponding 1989 period.

After provision for preferred share dividends, the results per participating share were losses of $1.58 for the second quarter of 1990 and $1.73 for the first half of the year, compared wIth earnings of $0.01 and a loss of $0.10, respectively, for 1989.

Helen Roman-Barber, Denison's chairman and chief executive officer said that ''since the write-down oil prices have risen dramatically and the value of the company's oil and gas interests as a whole have increased significantly.''

She said that ''the write-down of the Italian oil operation resulted from a ceiling test that determined cost recovery on the basis of the price of oil on June 30, 1990.''

''This test, which is mandated by the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants, does not provide an estimate of the fair economic value of the Italian properties. Since June 30, the price we are receiving from oil produced in Italy has more than doubled.''

Roman-Barber said that most of the second quarter's oil and gas production decline occured in Greece, because of a backlog of workovers.

''With the completion of workovers and with the growing output from our Egyptian oil operations, a portion of the reduced production volume will be recovered during the second half of 1990,'' she said.

''These improvements, combined with substantially higher oil prices, are expected to have a positive effect on third-quarter earnings.''

Meanwhile, Denison also announced that it will not declare the Sept. 15, 1990 dividends on the company's preferred shares Series A and B.

''This extremely difficult decision was made necessary by the decline in operating profit in the second quarter and the resulting decrease in cash generated from operations. The board of directors will review the situation on a quarterly basis,'' Roman-Barber said.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (AUG. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Today at 8:42 p.m. (EDT) McDonnell Douglas Space Systems Co. launched its fifth commercial Delta expendable launch vehicle.

The payload, a BSB-R2 communications satellite for British Satellite Broadcasting Ltd., joins BSB-R1 which was launched in 1989 to provide the United Kingdom with more than twice its previous television broadcast capability.

"We're delighted with another successful launch," said Ellis Griffiths, director of engineering operations for British Satellite Broadcasting Ltd. "Of course with the Delta and Hughes record it's what we expected."

The rocket launched is one of McDonnell Douglas' Delta II series and is capable of lifting 4,000 pounds to geosynchronous transfer orbit. Delta IIs are built by McDonnell Douglas in Huntington Beach, Calif., with final assembly at its Pueblo, Colo., facility.

The launch of BSB-R2 marks the 198th launch of a McDonnell Douglas Delta rocket.

McDonnell Douglas Commercial Delta Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of McDonnell Douglas Space Systems, has contracts to launch six more commercial satellites over the next three years, including INMARSAT for the International Maritime Satellite Organization in October 1990. That launch will mark the 200th launch of a Delta rocket.

Hughes Aircraft Co. in El Segundo, Calif., designed and built the satellite.

(AUG. 17) UPI - The Pentagon says the massive U-S military build-up in the Middle East will cost about one-BILLION, 200-Million dollars through the end of September. Those figures DON'T include the cost of calling up reserve forces... a move still under consideration. The Defense Department says the length of the U-S military commitment ''is unknown'' and that the ''size and composition'' of the forces ''are still evolving.''

On Thursday, there were thought to be about 30-thousand U-S soldiers in Saudi Arabia. One official says ''Operation Desert Shield'' eventually could swell to more than 100-thousand ground troops.

About five-thousand people marched in San Salvador Thursday to call for peace. They demanded that the Salvadoran government and the rebels resolve their differences and end the decade-old civil war that watchdog groups estimate has taken some 72-thousand lives. Rebel leaders and a government commission are scheduled to begin a fourth round of peace talks Friday in Costa Rica.

Officials at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, California, say they've begun getting back data from the Magellan space probe now orbiting the planet Venus. Earlier Thursday, the probe began bouncing radar beams off the planet in critical tests to check out the craft's ability to photograph its surface. If all goes well, Magellan will begin a 243-day mapping mission about August 30th that's expected to revolutionize humanity's knowledge about Earth's sister planet.

The National Wildlife Federation accused U-S industry Thursday of reporting ''phantom'' reductions in toxic emissions... prompting an angry denial by an industry president. The wildlife federation says many reported reductions result from different measurements- NOT from reduced waste. Aluminum Company of America President Paul O'Neill was at the Washington news conference and accused the federation of ''deliberate misrepresentation.''

NEW YORK (AUG. 17) UPI - George Steinbrenner claims the Commissioner's office was aware of his dealings with admitted gambler Howard Spira in a televison interview with Barbara Walters to be aired Friday night.

''I kept the Commissioner's office appraised,'' Steinbrenner tells Walters on ABC's 20-20 when asked why he did not contact the commissioner before he made the payments.

''We delivered in September of 1987 a multitude of information there, when Mr. Ueberroth was commissioner. Their people were aware of it. They had files on it.''

The New York Yankee owner contended that since the matter arose during a transition of power, he assumed Ueberroth informed his successor, Bart Giamatti.

''All I know, all I can say is that I went there, and I made them aware, and they were aware of this whole situation. And that's all I can say.''

Under the agreement with Commissioner Fay Vincent, Steinbrenner has to relinguish day-to-day control of the team by August 20.

Wednesday, the team's limited partners named Robert Nederlander as interim general partner.

Vincent offered Steinbrenner two choices: a two-year suspension or resignation of his post. Steinbrenner opted for the latter.

''What was arrived at, and unfortunately has been misinterpreted by some people, whether it was inadvertently or on purpose, whatever, certain things were said about bans. There is no ban. There is no probation. And there is no suspension in the agreement that was made.''

Steinbrenner said he could not comment on whether he thought the hearing was fair and objective.

''In the agreement they have, they stuck in there a clause that said I would not comment on the hearing, and I just can't. Other people may, but I just can't.''

Steinbrenner said he made the payments because threats were made against his family and against people within the Yankee organization by Spira.

''Nobody, you can say you take threats easy, well, don't pay attention. Well, you can't. They couldn't protect the president, and they couldn't protect the Pope. So I was afraid of those things. I wanted to get him away from me, away from the Yankees, away from my people.''

Steinbrenner defended his actions during his tenure, despite the revolving door that existed in the managerial slot: 19 managers in 17 years. He said his players supported him this season.

''Let him tell you this, the Daily News went to the players this year, unbeknownst to anybody. They did a poll of the players. The players came out publicly behind their owner. Publicly. Stood up. (Don) Mattingly, (Steve) Sax, (Dave) Righetti, representing the players, said that the players are behind him, he treats us great. And that, to me, meant more than anything in the 17 years that I've had the Yankees.''

News of Vincent's ruling was greeted by cheers from fans at Yankee Stadium on July 30. Steinbrenner said the reaction didn't hurt him. ''No, that's their right.''

However he added that he felt, ''they didn't appreciate anything that had been done.''

''Nobody's perfect. Everybody's got dents in their armor, and I'm certainly a guy with a lot of dents.''

Steinbrenner said he will walk away ''proud of the Yankees, and proud of what we did.''

''I will still be involved in areas to do with the Yankees, and while it's perceived that, you know, I won't be the managing general partner, maybe 17 years is enough for me to be general partner. But some day, I look forward to my sons coming in there, and my son-in-law, and doing just what I did. I'm getting old. And I'm getting tired.''

(AUG. 17) UPI - U-S warships in the Persian Gulf, Gulf of Oman and Red Sea have gotten their orders. The Pentagon says naval forces were told Thursday night to begin intercepting commercial shipping to and from Iraq and Iraq-occupied Kuwait. The formal order went out just hours after President Bush announced that Jordan's King Hussein had agreed to adhere to the U-N-ordered economic sanctions against Baghdad and close the key port of Aqaba to products bound for Iraq.

In a bid to end four days of bloody factional fighting, African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela and South Africa's law and order minister have agreed to establish a ''peace forum'' on Friday representing all parties in the conflict. A police spokesman says ''This forum must work. There is NO alternative.'' The violence between rival black movements, which spread to Soweto Thursday, has left at least 163 people dead.

Reservations agents and other service workers at Pan American held a work stoppage Thursday. The action... in Miami, Orlando, Tampa, at New York's Kennedy International Airport and in Los Angeles... was called to protest the company's latest contract offer, which one union official termed ''a piece of garbage.'' The airline says the stoppage caused NO problems. But a union spokesman says things at the Miami airport were ''a mess.''

Visitors to California's Yosemite National Park will find that much of the 750-thousand-acre park was UNtouched by the wildfires that closed it one week ago. Officials estimate that the lightning-sparked blazes only charred about one-and-one-half percent of the park. On Friday, the first of Yosemite's gates will re-open... although it will be sometime before the public is allowed to view the worst of the destruction because of danger posed by fire-weakened trees toppling.

(AUG. 17) UPI - The defense in the assault re-trial of actor Todd Bridges rested its case Thursday without calling the 24-year-old former child t-v sitcom star to testify. Bridges' lawyer said he decided NOT to have his client take the stand because-in his words- ''the prosecution's case is very, very weak.'' The Los Angeles deputy district attorney rested his case Wednesday without calling to the stand Bridges' victim or an alleged accomplice.

North Carolina Republican Senator Jesse Helms Thursday squared off against his Democratic challenger by portraying him as an out-of-touch liberal. In radio and television commercials that aired Thursday, Helms hinted that his foe... Harvey Gantt... was soft on crime and was backed by, among others- what he called- ''the gay and lesbian political groups, the civil liberties union.'' Gantt called the ads UNfair.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 17) UPI - If reserve forces are activated to back up U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia, it will mark the first full-scale test of the post-Vietnam War restructuring of the American military.

When the United States shifted to a volunteer force at the end of the war in Southeast Asia - dropping the draft - much of the chore of supporting combat units was deliberately shifted to National Guard and reserve forces.

While sending a significant number of front-line combat units abroad for an extended stay might suggest reserve units associated with the combat troops must be called up to help with logistics, Maj. Doug Hart, a Pentagon spokesman on reserve issues, said that is not necessarily the case.

Pentagon officials have not publicly addressed how reserve units would be employed, it was expected there would be no widespread shipment of reserves to Saudi Arabia because the bulk of the work to be done was in the United States, filling in for the soldiers who shipped out.

After the draft ended in 1973, the military went to what is known as the ''Total Force Policy,'' the decision to concentrate on active combat forces with the reserves and guard, which cost less to maintain, taking up the support chores. Presidential authority for call-ups without the permission of Congress at first was 50,000, but that was boosted to 100,000 in the early 1980s and to 200,000 a few years ago.

Although Hart said a call up was not a guaranteed necessity, retired Army Maj. Gen. Evan Hultman, executive director of the Reserve Officers Association of the United States, said a large, distant long-term build up could require reserves.

But retired Adm. Eugene Carroll, head of the Center for Defense Information, suggested the Pentagon was ''demonizing Saddam Hussein'' to build support for calling up reserves.

''We have 2.1 million people in uniform. If we can't meet our commitments to be wholly defensive in Saudi Arabia and deter an attack we'd best get some new military commanders and a secretary of defense. I think calling up the reserve or flying a trial balloon on it is to create public awareness and concern that this is a really dangerous situation ... and a hell of a good budget tool'' to get money from Congress, said Carroll.

In at least one service, the Air Force, reservists are an integral part of day-to-day operations. Reserve crews on days off from civilian jobs routinely fly cargo jets and tankers to haul gear about and provide inflight refueling to fighters, bombers, reconnaissance planes and the like. They already are heavily involved on a volunteer basis in the air bridge that has been set up to ferry men, weapons and warplanes to the region.

It was considered unlikely the full 200,000 would be called up, in part because by going on active duty reservists automatically draw full-time military pay which would further strain an already hard-pressed Pentagon budget.

More than two-thirds of the Army's combat support and combat service support is in Guard and Reserve Units. A full 93 percent of the Navy's cargo-handling capacity is in Reserve units. Almost two-thirds of the Marine Corps bulk fueling crews come from reservists.

The military reserves were last mobilized in 1970, when President Richard Nixon called on 26,000 of them to help during a postal strike.

The last time the reserves were called up during a conflict was in January 1968, during the Tet offensive in the Vietnam War. A total of 35,280 were mobilized through December 1969.

The Army reserves consist of 593,832 men and women; the Navy reserves, 238,061; the Marine reserves, 80,128; and the Air Force reserves, 136,331.

(AUG. 17) UPI - The Environmental Protection Agency says 96 areas of the country- mostly cities- have smog levels above federal health standards. The figure is down slightly from the 101 places cited for violations last year. 41 areas exceeded federal limits for carbon monoxide.

An environmental group says corporations have reported ''phantom'' reductions in their release of toxic pollutants into America's air, water and land. The National Wildlife Federation accuses the corporations of using creative accounting tricks. ALCOA's chief executive officer calls the report ''malicious.''

There's still three months to go before Election Day, and political action committees already have contributed more than 90-Million dollars to 1990 congressional races. Campaign documents show that five individual PAC's have each topped the one-Million-dollar mark. Business-related PAC's contributed nearly two-thirds of the money.

A federal jury in Minneapolis resumes deliberations this morning on the fate of three former Northwest Airlines pilots accused of flying under the influence of alcohol. The jury got the case yesterday after hearing final arguments from the prosecution and defense.

In New York City, a jury is inching its way closer to a verdict in the Central Park jogger rape case. In its eighth day of deliberations yesterday, the panel focused on what happened in a police precinct where defense lawyers say their clients were tricked into confessing. Three youths are on trial in the April 1989 attack.

(AUG. 17) UPI - The United States, following a day of developments that moved the Persian Gulf crisis no closer to a breakthrough, has given its naval forces in the region orders to prevent ships from reaching or leaving the ports of Iraq and Iraqi-conquered Kuwait.

A Pentagon statement Thursday said enforcement of the U.N-mandated sanctions against Baghdad ''will be conducted by ships of the participating nations in specified zones in the Persian Gulf, the Gulf of Oman and the Red Sea.'' The orders allow the Navy to board and search ships.

No commercial ships have been stopped by the growing U.S. naval presence in the region since the U.N. Security Council last week adopted an embargo against Iraq to punish Baghdad for invading oil-rich Kuwait.

Iraq now has thousands of troops massed on the border of Saudi Arabia, home to tens of thousands of U.S. forces that were called in to defend the kingdom.

Warships from Britain, France, the Soviet Union, Australia, Canada and the Netherlands were either in the gulf or heading there, but the U.S. interdiction order apparently was separate from any multinational effort.

U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Bush's proposed blockade of Iraq goes beyond the economic sanctions authorized by the Security Council.

The United States has nearly 30 warships in the region and could easily keep commercial vessels from leaving or approaching Iraqi ports.

Along with the United States' naval presence, Washington's buildup of troops in Saudi Arabia is continuing. A defense official said ''in excess of 100,000'' U.S. ground troops will go to Saudi Arabia under Operation Desert Shield. More than 30,000 troops were believed to already be in the kingdom, one of the United States' chief suppliers of oil.

In a frustrating day of diplomacy surrounding the gulf crisis, Jordan's King Hussein emerged after a two-hour meeting with President Bush in Kennebunkport, Maine, and said there was no breakthrough in sight. Asked if there was any hope for resolving the crisis, he said, ''Without hope you can't get anywhere.''

Hussein, who has broken ranks with most other Arab states by maintaining ties with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, had reportedly brought a message from the besieged Iraqi president to Bush. But the king said, ''I did not bring any message.''

Diplomats had hoped that Jordan's Hussein had brought an Iraqi peace initiative to Bush's vacation home in Kennebunkport.

Bush said Hussein agreed to adhere to the multinational economic sanctions and close the key port of Aqaba to products bound for Iraq. Jordan has been permitting Iraq to use its port in the Gulf of Aqaba to bring in limited shipments of food and other goods, which are carried by trucks to Iraq.

Hussein would only say he had a ''frank'' discussion with Bush, but did not suggest he would accede to Bush's wishes and close the Iraqi lifeline.

In what British Foreign Officer Minister of State William Waldegrave called a ''grave and sinister development,'' British and U.S. officials said Iraq ordered 4,000 Britons and 2,500 Americans in Kuwait to assemble in hotels for possible internment in Iraq.

Iraqi military authorities said the order issued in Kuwait was to ensure the safety of the foreigners, but the State Department reported there have been no signs U.S. citizens have been singled out for harassment.

Britain urged its citizens to comply with the order. The United States left the decision to each individual. Iraqi authorities had threatened to ''round up'' Americans if they failed to assemble at the hotel, U.S. officials said.

Asked in Kennebunkport about the Americans being held, Bush said, ''I am concerned with the coercion of any foreign nationals of some other country is a violation of international norm.''

Earlier Thursday, Iraq allowed some 4,700 foreigners - a group that was mostly Egyptian but included two Americans, three Britons and a French citizen - to cross into Jordan. The Americans, who were not identified, were the first U.S. citizens to enter Jordan from Iraq since a group of 11 Americans arrived in the Jordanian capital of Amman Saturday.

(AUG. 17) UPI - Minutes after smacking a seventh-inning single Thursday, Houston Astros pitcher Danny Darwin found himself slapped in the face.

In the sixth inning of Houston's 4-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals, Darwin threw inside to first baseman Pedro Guerrero, who exchanged words with the right-hander before striking out.

In the next inning, Darwin singled and confronted Guerrero at first, where the two began arguing. With first base umpire Bob Davidson standing in between the two players, Guerrero slapped Darwin in the face, igniting a wild brawl.

Both benches emptied. Darwin, Guerrero and Houston Manager Art Howe were ejected.

''He's a cheap-shot artist,'' Darwin said of Guerrero. ''He was trying to be the macho man, I guess. Anybody can hit someone else when they're not looking.''

Guerrero declined to comment, but both clubhouses were buzzing after the game.

''I don't think it's fair for my starting pitcher to get thrown out for getting hit in the face,'' Howe said.

Guerrero became upset after Darwin worked a high pitch on the inside part of the plate. Darwin said it was inside but not dangerous.

''If I wanted to hit him I would have hit him,'' Darwin said. ''I've got four pitches to hit him with. It's not that difficult.

The pitch was a foot and a half away. I told him I was not trying to hit him. I think he's gutless.''

Darwin, 8-1, won his seventh straight decision. Since joining the starting rotation in July, Darwin is 6-0 with three no-decisions.

Thursday he allowed one run and four hits, walking none and striking out three.

''He's been outstanding,'' Howe said. ''Tonight was a typical performance.''

Joe Magrane, 8-13, had a personal four-game winning streak snapped. He yeilded three runs and six hits in six innings.

Mark Davidson belted his first home run of the season for Houston.

Elsewhere in the National League, New York downed Los Angeles 4-1, Philadelphia beat San Francisco 6-4, Pittsburgh downed Atlanta 4-3 and San Diego outscored Montreal 3-2 in 11 innings.

In the American League, Cleveland beat Minnesota 7-5 and Milwaukee bested Detroit 8-4.

-- AROUND THE NL --

Mets 4, Dodgers 1

At New York, Dave Magadan and Howard Johnson drove in two runs apiece powering Ron Darling and the Mets. Magadan doubled home one run and scored another in the fourth, then singled a run across in the fifth. Darling, 5-7, went six innings. John Franco notched his 27th save. Tim Belcher, 9-9 took the loss.

Phillies 6, Giants 4

At Philadelphia, Von Hayes hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning to send the Phillies to victory. Hayes hit his 15th home run of the season off Mark Thurmond, 2-3, with Darren Daulton on base with a walk. Roger McDowell, 4-6, retired the side in the ninth.

Pirates 4, Braves 3

At Pittsburgh, Andy Van Slyke slammed his 13th home run with one out in the ninth inning, lifting the Pirates. Kent Mercker fell to 4-2.

Padres 3, Expos 2, 11 innings

At San Diego, Joe Carter hit a two-out RBI single off Tim Burke, 1-3, that scored Bip Roberts and capped a two-run 11th inning. Rich Rodriquez, 1-0, pitched two innings of two-hit relief for the victory.

-- AROUND THE AL --

Indians 7, Twins 5

At Cleveland, Felix Fermin drove in two runs and Greg Swindell survived seven shaky innings. Swindell, 9-7, allowed 11 of the Twins' 16 hits but got relief help from Doug Jones, who earned his 33rd save. Kevin Tapani fell to 11-6.

Brewers 8, Tigers 4

At Detroit, Paul Molitor followed an RBI groundout by Bill Spiers with a run-scoring single, capping a three-run sixth inning that gave Milwaukee the victory. Ron Robinson, 7-3, was the winner despite allowing 10 hits in five innings. Dan Plesac recorded his 19th save. Dan Petry fell to 9-9.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AUG. 17) UPI - A pro-timber industry group has filed an appeal with the government to block a conservation group from holding a retreat in the Cascade Mountains that includes nature lectures and an owl-hooting contest.

The Yellow Ribbon Coalition charged Thursday that the gathering this weekend by members of the Oregon Natural Resources Council at Waldo Lake, southeast of Eugene, poses a fire hazard in an area closed to commercial logging.

The industry group filed an appeal with the U.S. Forest Service, saying a proposed owl-hooting contest, to be judged by a federal biologist, ''may constitute harassment of area owls.''

The coalition also objected to the participation of Forest Service personnel in the campout, saying it amounted to federal endorsement of a fund-raising activity by the conservation group.

''Using Forest Service personnel to raise money for a political group whose mission is to destroy rural communities and file suits against the government is a blatant misuse of public funds,'' said Charlie Janz of Eugene, a member of the coalition.

The ONRC is one of the conservation groups that filed suit to block logging of ancient forests of the Northwest and protect the habitat of the northern spotted owl. The suits and other petitions resulted in the owl being declared a threatened species by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Services - a move that will restrict logging and costs thousands of jobs in the timber industry.

ONRC Executive Director James Monteith called the challenge ''ridiculous.'' He said ONRC has been staging the Waldo Lake campout for seven years in a developed campground. He said the organization had all of the proper permits.

''This is something we have done before and done carefully,'' he said.

The Yellow Ribbon Coalition said between 700 and 1,000 people would attend the event, but Monteith said he would believed fewer than 300 would attend.

ONRC member Peter Jensen of Eugene confirmed that Forest Service recreation specialists and biologists will attend the event. A biologist for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will judge the hooting contest, he said.

Jensen, coordinator of the reteat, added that he thought just as proper for the Forest Service personnel to attend the campout as it is for Forest Service engineers and timber experts to help timber companies cut logs.

''The public pays for a lot of things for the timber industry,'' he said. ''The Forest Service plans timber sales. It builds the roads for the timber companies. It sells them timber at blow cost.''

As for the owl hooting contest, Jensen said Waldo Lake is located above the elevation where the owls live.

''If an owl answers us, we will all fall over and be silent,'' he said. ''I plan to enter and I will hoot to win.''

MOSCOW (AUG. 17) UPI - West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher and his Soviet counterpart, Eduard Shevardnadze, met Friday to discuss the rapid pace of German unification and the Persian Gulf crisis.

Genscher arrived in Moscow Thursday night for the one-day visit that will focus on practical aspects of unification.

The Soviet Union removed the last major foreign obstacle to quick unification of the two Germanys last month when President Mikhail Gorbachev agreed a unified Germany could be a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the Western military alliance.

''German reunification has proceeded more rapidly than expected,'' Shevardnadze told the Soviet news agency Tass before Friday morning's meeting. ''We shall have to put in some hard work as there is little time left. We need to work to expedite agreement on the external aspects of German reunification.''

Another meeting in the so-called ''two plus four'' talks grouping the two Germanys and the four World War II victors is scheduled for Sept. 12 in Moscow, and there has been speculation a final agreement on unification may be reached then.

Genscher told Tass that West Germany was doing everything it could to ensure ''foreign policy aspects do not present an obstacle to German unification.''

The two foreign ministers also planned to discuss the upheaval in the Middle East that grew out of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2 and Baghdad's massing of troops on the Saudi border. The Soviet Union and West Germany both condemned the Iraqi action.

(AUG. 17) UPI - Thunderstorms rumbled through the Plains and the South Friday, flooding portions of Texas and triggering downpours in Georgia, while fog rolled over the Northeast and temperatures cooled on the West Coast.

Flash flood watches were posted in southeast New Mexico and southwest Texas as scattered showers and thunderstorms drifted through the Southern Plains, the National Weather Service said.

Heavy rain caused street flooding overnight in the Texas Panhandle town of Hart, and strong winds overturned trees and damaged roofs in Midland.

Thunderstorms also rolled across southwest Minnesota, part of a storm system that extended into east-central Iowa. Related storms dropped heavy rain over parts of northwestern Iowa and northeastern Nebraska, the NWS said.

A slow-moving low-pressure trough stretching from North Carolina to central Alabama dotted parts of the South with thundershowers and dumped heavy rain overnight across parts of southeast Georgia.

An Army convoy truck hauling Stinger missiles apparently for shipment to the Middle East overturned in a heavy thunderstorm late Thursday near Savannah, Ga., dumping the weapons on Interstate 95 and slightly injuring the driver. The missiles did not explode and the wreckage was cleared in two hours, authorities said.

A blanket of fog covered much of the Northeast from Vermont to southern Maryland early Friday, cutting visibility to one-eighth of a mile in Montpelier, Vt., and Elmira, N.Y. Morning lows ranged in the 50s and 60s across most of New England and the Middle Atlantic region.

In the West, a cooling trend that began Monday in much of California continued as the weekend approached, with most inland highs reaching the 80s instead of the 90s or higher. A weak Pacific cold front brought a chance of showers to the northwest part of California and the northern mountains.

Western firefighters neared victory over lightning-sparked wildfires that have blackened nearly 800 square miles in seven states during the past two weeks. Only one major blaze in California - the state hardest hit by the wildfires - was expected to remain out of control beyond this weekend.

The California Division of Forestry said the three fires in the Mattole Complex blaze have burned 15,100 acres of heavy timber and slash. The fire was not expected to be contained until Aug. 27.

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN (AUG. 17) UPI - Thousands of people waving banners and pictures of Mohammad Zia ul-Haq jammed the capital area Friday to mark the second anniversary of the mysterious death of the former president.

About 3,000 police, many armed with batons, were on alert throughout the capital to prevent violence between supporters of ousted Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party and pro-Zia demonstrators.

Police hoped to avoid a repetition of last year's anniversary when groups of government and opposition supporters pelted each other with stones, resulting in injuries to one PPP official.

Police estimated 50,000 people had arrived in the area, many from distant parts of the country.

The main procession, led by the late president's son, Ijaz ul-Haq, was scheduled to march from Zia's former residence at Army House in the neighboring city of Rawalpindi to his grave outside the massive Faisal Mosque in Islamabad.

The entire route was decorated with huge portraits of Zia and observers predicted a highly politicized occasion.

''We will have much heated debate,'' a Pakistani journalist said. ''There will be great excitement.''

Zia, who ruled Pakistan for 11 years, died Aug. 17, 1988, when his C-130 military transport plane crashed minutes after takeoff from the eastern city of Bahawalpur. Also killed were U.S. Ambassador Arnold Raphel and many of Pakistan's senior military officers.

An official report on the crash released two months later concluded it was ''probably'' caused by sabotage. But the report did not place blame.

His death cleared the way for the November 1988 elections - the first open election in 11 years in Pakistan - when Bhutto won a narrow majority to become the first female prime minister of an Islamic nation.

The anniversary of Zia's death comes only days after President Ghulam Ishaq Khan dismissed the Bhutto government and dissolved the National Assembly.

He charged her government with ''corruption and nepotism'' and with failing to control the law and order situation in southern Sind province, where more than 600 people have died in ethnic unrest in recent months.

BANGKOK, THAILAND (AUG. 17) UPI - Rising inflation and a severe budget deficit in Vietnam have small industries ''in the doldrums'' and many development projects could be reduced or canceled altogether, official Hanoi radio reported.

''In the first half of this year, the socioeconomic situation continued to evolve positively though many new difficulties have cropped up,'' the radio said in a report Thursday night.

It said the biggest problems were with the financial system.

''The budget deficit and inflation, though narrowed, have not been curbed '' it said.

The report did not give any figures for inflation, but business sources in Ho Chi Minh City said it has edged up from about 30 percent at the end of last year to more than 40 percent.

The value of the Vietnamese dong has dropped from 4,200 to the U.S. dollar at the beginning of the year to nearly 6,000 dong to the dollar in August.

The economy has also been affected by the U.S. economic embargo and by large-scale fraud in the state-run banking system that has dried up sources of capital for legitimate producers.

''Due to the shortage of capital and poor performances, local industries and small industries are in the doldrums, causing many hardships to millions of laborers,'' the radio report said.

The report said urgent measures were required to reduce the budget and trade deficits.

''All economic branches are reconsidering the projects under their charge with a view to concentrating capital and technical means on the key projects and reducing the scale of or shelving those projects deemed not of vital importance for the immediate future,'' it said.

A nationwide campaign against tax evasion, smuggling and corruption must take place at the same time to prevent the loss of government income, it said.

The report, however, said the prospects for agriculture continued to be good, particularly in the south, which last year exported a surplus of more than 1.4 million tons of rice. The report said economic reforms allowing secure land tenure and market prices for agricultural produce had helped raise productivity by 14 percent.

Other bright spots were increases in crude oil (92.6 percent), textiles (10 percent) and paper (7 percent).

The report said Vietnam's liberal foreign investment laws had attracted a total of $1.07 billion in 151 approved foreign projects since 1987.

The report said electricity production had increased by 8.9 percent. Vietnamese electricity officials, however, said most of the increases came in northern Vietnam while most of the increase in demand was in the south.

The increase in demand, coupled with a shortage of rainfall that cut production from hydroelectric power plants, left much of the south with only three days of electricity per week earlier this year.

The officials said there were prospects for even greater shortages next year.

JERUSALEM (AUG. 17) UPI - Israeli soldiers shot and killed two guerrillas Friday in Israel's self-declared ''security zone'' in southern Lebanon, the army said.

The soldiers were on a routine patrol when they encountered the guerrillas about 2 miles west of the village of Taibe. They opened fire, killing two guerrillas, an army spokesman said.

No Israeli soldiers were wounded in the incident, the spokesman said. It was not immediately known to which organization the guerrillas belonged.

Jerusalem created the security zone as protection from guerrilla groups hoping to launch attacks in northern Israel.

LONDON (AUG. 17) UPI - Iraq has not enforced its order for British and U.S. citizens in Kuwait to assemble at hotels, possibly to be moved to Baghdad, and Britons were told by their embassy to stay at home, the Foreign Office said Friday.

''The (British) ambassador has been in touch with the Iraqis,'' a Foreign Office spokesman said. ''It is obvious from the events of yesterday (Thursday) that there is a certain amount of confusion.''

The handful of the 4,000 Britons who complied with the Iraqi order Thursday on the advice of the British Embassy found they were not expected at the luxury Regency Palace Hotel. No Iraqis were there to oversee their arrival and the hotel was not told they had been ordered to assemble there.

some of the 2,500 Americans in Kuwait, who were under a similar order, had a similar experience, the spokesman said.

Britain, which initially advised its citizens to obey the order, now is advising them to remain in their homes. The United States left the decision up to each individual.

Iraqi military authorities said Thursday the orders were issued ''to better protect'' the British and American communities, and warned if the Westerners did not go voluntarily, they would face ''unspecified difficulties,'' the Foreign Office said.

Foreign Minister of State William Waldegrave called the order ''a grave and sinister development.''

Iraqi's ambassador to London, Azmi Shariq al-Salihi, said Thursday the foreigners would be transported to Baghdad.

Iraq's ambassador to the United Nations, Abdul Amir al-Ambari, said, ''We are very anxious to secure the safety and integrity of all foreigners. They will not be put in a camp or something but will be put in hotels.''

While British officials were incensed by the Iraqis' order and statement, they, like their U.S. counterparts, have avoided applying the word ''hostages'' to their citizens who are trapped inside Iraq and Kuwait out of fears for their safety and of making them an issue in a peace settlement.

(AUG. 17) UPI - The Persian Gulf crisis is NO closer to resolution, despite talks yesterday between President Bush and Jordan's King Hussein. Diplomats hoped Hussein brought with him a peace proposal from Iraq, but he said he did NOT. Hussein also said there is NO breakthrough in sight in the standoff. The United States last night ordered its naval forces in the Gulf region to block ships from reaching or leaving Iraq and Kuwait.

Japan's economy has been affected by the Persian Gulf conflict, and today the foreign minister left Tokyo on a Middle East tour to determine what Japan can do to help restore peace in the region. The Japanese foreign minister is said to be carrying personal messages from Prime Minister Kaifu to the leaders of Saudi Arabia, Oman , Jordan, Egypt and Turkey.

The Tokyo stock market took another drubbing today... primarily because of instability in the Middle East. The key Nikkei average of 225 shares lost more than 762 yen, or nearly three percent of its value, to close at 26-thousand-786 yen.

The latest round of Salvadoran peace talks begins today in Costa Rica, with the two sides hoping to reach agreement on a cease-fire by September. The major issue in the U-N-mediated talks is reform and reduction of the Salvadoran military. The government says it's ready to talk about possible civilian control of some militarized police forces.

(AUG. 17) UPI - ALCOA's president clashed with environmentalists yesterday at a Washington news conference on toxic pollutants. The National Wildlife Federation told the conference that corporations have used creative accounting tricks to report ''phantom'' reductions in the release of pollutants. Companies cited in the report included the Aluminum Company of America.

ALCOA President Paul O'Neill was present at the news conference, and he jumped up and accused the environmental group of a ''malicious'' and ''scurrilous attack.'' He said the report UNfairly misrepresented his company's performance and stalked out of the room.

(AUG. 17) UPI - Stock prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange plunged Friday due in part to investor disappointment about unfruitful talks between U.S. Predident George Bush and Jordon's King Hussein aimed at finding a peaceful solution to the Middle East crisis.

Trading remained thin as major market players avoided locking themselves into stock positions ahead of the weekend in view of continuing Middle East instability, analysts said.

The blue-chip Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues lost 762.72 points, or 2.8 percent of its value, to close at 26,786.72. The Nikkei, widely seen as the market's main barometer, lost 562.68 points Thursday.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Price Index, a measure of all major shares, shed 34.06 points to close at 2,033.30. TOPIX lost 32.13 points Thursday. Declines hammered advances 861 to 115, while 105 issues remained unchanged.

Volume continued to be light as an estimated 300 million shares changed hands, compared with 306 million shares Thursday.

In addition to Middle East worries, the prospect of higher interest rates in Japan and a recession in the United States added to investor gloom, analysts said.

Small-lot selling by investors and arbitrageurs found almost no buyers in the morning session, driving the Nikkei down by 870.59 points.

But in the afternoon, the Nikkei recovered nearly 300 points as bargain hunting set in. Thereafter, it seesawed between arbitrage selling and bargain buying, analysts said.

Richman said that although bargain-hunters purchased stocks from arbitrageurs in the spot market, the gap between the asked and real value of futures increased to nearly 400 points by the close.

That points the way to heavy selling when the market reopens Monday, Richman said.

Trading was dampened by disappointment over the outcome of President Bush's meeting with King Hussein of Jordan, market watchers said.

The market shot up 1,440 points Wednesday on expectations that King Hussein would deliver a letter containing a peace overture from Saddam Hussein of Iraq.

Elsewhere in Asia, stock prices took a nosedive in light trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange in reaction to global stock market declines.

Activity was concentrated in the leading blue-chip issues as sixteen of the top 20 most active issues were blue chips.

The Hang Seng Index plummeted 60.65 points to end the day at 3,122.64. The drop followed a rise of 5.02 points Thursday and gave the market a 43.67-point gain for the week.

Among the narrower indexes, financials lost 29.26 points, utilities fell 81.45, Industrials lost 55.02 and properties plunged 108.81 points.

Volume remained light as an estimated 1.12 billion shares changed hands, up slightly from the 1.06 billion shares Thursday.

Stocks opened broadly lower, at the sound of the opening bell, heavy selling wiped more than 80 points off the market in the first 15 minutes of action.

Midmorning bargain-hunting lacked the conviction to erase the substantial early gains, analysts said. The morning session closed off 65.06 points.

Mild buying spilled over into the afternoon session, allowing the market to recover an additional five points.

In Singapore, stock prices closed lower in light trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange with most institutional investors remaining on the sidelines.

The Straits Times Industrial Index, which eased 1.04 points Thursday, dipped 15.23 points to 1,314.13. The narrower All Singapore Index dipped 4.64 points to 377.52.

An estimated 57.5 million shares changed hands, compared with 71.1 million shares Thursday.

Analysts said small investors dominated trading.

On the trading floor, Jurong Shipyard paced the declining issues followed by Sungei Way and Shangri-la Hotel.

Polytek paced the advancing issues followed by Pan Malayan Rubber and Haw Par.

Elsewhere around the region, in Taipei, stock prices on the Taiwan Stock Exchange plunged on renewed concern over higher oil prices.

The market's leading barometer, the Weighted Index, which climbed 54.79 points Thursday, plunged 292.72 points or 6.8 percent to 4,010.56.

Declines widely outpaced advances 207 to only five.

The market opened sharply lower amid selling that snowballed, local analysts said.

Prices fell as local investors worried that Taiwan, which currently imports 33 percent of its oil from Saudi Arabia, may have a shortage of oil in the near term.

In Bangkok, stocks closed lower on the Thailand Stock Exchange in line with falls around the region.

The Stock Exchange of Thailand, or SET, Index, which gained 24.55 points Thursday, fell 13.38 points to 920.75.

Declines overpowered advances 130 to 29.

An estimated 2.5 billion shares changed hands, compared with 4.1 billion shares Thursday.

''Investors and profit-takers were very nervous when Iraq tried to negotiate with Iran against the United States,'' said Somchai Phapaphasvivat, a stock analyst and government economic advisor.

''When the Dow Jones plunged 68 points Thursday it caused our share prices to fall when the market opened,'' Somchai added.

In Manila, stock prices on the Manila Stock Exchange closed lower in light trading amid renewed concerns over the Middle East.

The closely-watched Manila Composite Index slipped 9.26 points to end the week at 835.07.

Meanwhile in Seoul, stocks fell slightly for the fifth consecutive trading session on the Korean Stock Exchange.

The key Korean Composite Stock Price Index, which fell 7.27 points Thursday, slipped another 1.13 points to 623.90.

Traders said the market's current bearish mood is expected to continue in the wake of increasing tensions in the Middle East.

In Australia, stock prices closed sharply lower on the Sydney Sharemarket.

The key All Ordinaries Index, which slipped 4.1 points Thursday, fell 15.0 points to 1543.4.

Industrial issues, particularly the banks, bore the brunt of the selling.

The All Industrials Index fell 38.6 points to 2,299.5, while the All Resources Index added 1.0 point to 954.1.

Declines edged out advances, 151 to 144, while 197 stocks remained unchanged.

An estimated 100 million shares changed hands.

Brokers said Wall Street's fall, backgrounded by rising U.S. interest rates, spooked the industrial end of the market.

On the trading floor, in the banking sector, Westpac Bank fell 6 cents to $4.78, NAB Bank lost 8 cents to $6.62 and ANZ Bank fell 10 cents to $4.54.

Elsewhere around the floor, Adsteam fell 2 cents to $4.22, Elders-IXL eased 8 cents to $1.65 and Pacific Dunlop lost 7 cents to $4.90.

TOKYO (AUG. 17) UPI - Private-sector orders for machinery received by Japanese manufacturers in June totaled $5.66 billion, down 12.7 percent from May and down 5.4 percent from a year ago, the Economic Planning Agency reported Friday.

The agency said the figures excluded orders for vessels and those from the electric power industry, both of which it indicated tend to fluctuate widely.

Private-sector machinery orders serve as a leading indicator of corporate capital investment, the agency said.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL (AUG. 17) UPI - A mother allegedly used her 7-year-old daughter and 8-year-old son to help burglarize homes so she could trade the stolen items for crack cocaine, police say.

Bernice German, 29, reportedly designated her daughter as the lookout while her son crawled through windows to help German cart away the loot, according to police investigators.

The children were rewarded with ice cream and other goodies taken from the homes, which they ate while their mother bartered her booty to obtain more crack, family members say.

''We just tried to get help for us to get food,'' a girl who identified herself as German's daughter told the Fort Lauderdale Sun-Sentinel Thursday. The girl, who will start first grade in the next few weeks, said she did not like to steal ''because it was bad.''

''I just want my mama to get out (of jail),'' the child said.

German was arrested Wednesday on charges of burglary and larceny. The children were turned over to their grandmother.

The mother could be charged with using her children to commit crimes.

Investigators are still trying to link German, who was on probation at the time of her arrest for grand theft and two counts of burglary, to other burglaries in the Fort Lauderdale area. She remained in jail Friday with bond set at $6,000.

The state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services has been asked to investigate the care the children have been receiving.

German's niece, Sarah, 19, who lives with the family, described the children as typical despite the stealing sprees with their mother.

The family would go to the beach and movies when Bernice German was not using drugs but about twice a week the trio would take a walk and break into nearby homes, said Sarah German.

''She came back with things she didn't leave here with. She came back with the kids, dropped them off and took the things somewhere else to sell,'' she said.

Bernice German and her children were caught at about 11:30 a.m. Tuesday after a neighbor called police to report that a little girl was standing outside the kitchen window of a neighborhood home taking filled bags as they were handed out to her, the police report said.

The plastic bags had been stuffed with children's clothing, chicken parts and other food, the report said.

''I stood outside and my brother and mother went inside,'' the girl said. ''The man came over and then we had to run. We left (the bags) there because we were going to get caught.''

The family scrambled over a fence, only to be caught by police.

SAVANNAH, GA (AUG. 17) UPI - A truck hauling missiles to an Army airfield overturned on Interstate 95 in a thunderstorm Thursday night but an Army spokesman said the weapons were not armed and there was no danger of explosion.

Capt. Steve Hart refused comment Friday on reports the truck was hauling surface-to-air Stinger missiles for shipment to U.S. forces in the Middle East. He said the cargo was munitions but would not say what type or in what amount.

''A small amount of munitions carried on the vehicle were safely removed and never posed any threat of detonation,'' Hart said.

The driver, not yet identified, was treated at a hospital for minor injuries, including a fractured hand, Hart said.

Chatham County police said Army personnel told them the truck was carrying Stinger missiles. Martin Farmer, a dispatcher for the Georgia State Patrol said she did not know how many missiles were on the truck but said they lodged under the vehicle when it overturned.

Maj. Don Keeling said there was never any danger.

''We have done everything that is possible to transport these munitions in the safest manner we can. We are not going to transport live rounds anywhere at anytime,'' Keeling said.

Hart said the state patrol is investigating the accident, which occurred around 9 p.m. in a thunderstorm. He said the truck, a ''highly mobile multiple wheeled vehicle,'' or HUM-V, veered into the median and overturned in the southbound lane about 10 miles south of Savannah. No other vehicle was involved.

''We don't know what caused the accident,'' Farmer said.

The truck was in a convoy of about 20 trucks from nearby Fort Stewart, where some of the 24th (Mechanized) Infantry Division had left earlier for the Middle East. Hart said the convoy was enroute to Hunter Army Airfield in Savannah.

Traffic was closed one mile north and south of the accident for about two hours until the missiles were transferred to another vehicle and the truck righted and towed away.

Spectators were kept about 300 yards away from the overturned truck.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 17) UPI - America's trade deficit, making its best showing in seven years, plummeted a surprising 34.7 percent in June to $5.07 billion on record exports, the Commerce Department said Friday.

Private economists had expected a trade shortfall of about $7 billion for the month, following the revised May deficit of $7.77 billion and the April shortfall of $7.30 billion.

Total exports climbed to $34.30 billion in June from $32.77 billion in May and imports dipped to $39.37 billion in June from $40.54 billion in May, according to the department's Census Bureau.

Analysts said the lower imports reflected sluggish consumer demand in a generally weak domestic economy.

A Commerce Department spokesman said the June deficit was the lowest since $4 billion in June 1983, and that exports of aircraft added nearly $500 million to the total export figure for the month.

The increase in exports also reflected gains in consumer goods and foods feeds and beverages, while the drop in imports reflected declines in industrial supplies, consumer goods and cars, trucks and vans.

The data, adjusted for seasonal factors, were compiled before the start of the latest hostilities in the Middle East and do not reflect the worldwide trade embargo against Iraq and Iraqi occuiped Kuwait.

On the oil front, where America depends heavily on foreign crude, imports fell 14.6 percent in June to an unadjusted $3.69 billion - or an estimated 252 million barrels, the Commerce Department said.

Trade with the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries fell to $1.18 billion in June from $1.71 billion in May, but the deficit with Japan increased to $3.07 billion in June from $2.97 billion in May.

The United States, meanwhile, ran a $806.2 million trade surplus with Western Europe in June, off from $811.2 million in May, and a $317.8 billion June surplus with the rebuilding nations of Eastern Europe vs. a $291.3 billion surplus in May, the department said.

(AUG. 17) UPI - Nearly three dozen Americans in Iraq have been moved to an undisclosed location, U.S. government sources said Friday, and President Bush said he had been informed that Japanese citizens in the occupied nation of Kuwait have been told they will be unable to leave.

In Washington, a State Department source said, ''We understand 35 Americans have been moved. We think we know where they are but we have not seen them. We have met with the Foreign Ministry in Baghdad and have insisted on access.''

Earlier Bush said he has received ''vague'' reports that a group of about 30 Americans would be moved.

''I talked to the situation room this morning and the Japanese were told that they cannot leave (Kuwait),'' Bush told reporters during an early morning round of golf at his seaside home at Kennebunkport, Maine.

Bush said he had no new information about the estimated 2,500 Americans who have been unable to leave Kuwait but said he received reports that the ''Iraqis were talking about moving 30 Americans someplace. ... It was a little vague.''

Asked if the reports were raising his concern about the safety of Americans stranded in Kuwait, Bush said, ''I don't think anyone should be moved against their will. It is a contravention of international law.''

In what British Foreign Officer Minister of State William Waldegrave called a ''grave and sinister development,'' British and U.S. officials said Thursday Iraq ordered 4,000 Britons and 2,500 Americans in Kuwait to assemble in hotels for possible internment in Iraq.

Also on Thursday, Japanese authorities reported Japanese businessmen were being refused permission to leave Iraq and Kuwait and Norway said Iraq has refused a request to permit Norwegian nationals to leave as well.

Iraqi military authorities said the order issued in Kuwait was to ensure the safety of the foreigners but the State Department reported there had been no signs U.S. citizens had been singled out for harassment.

Britain urged its citizens to comply with the order. The United States left the decision to each individual. Iraqi authorities had threatened to ''round up'' Americans if they failed to assemble at the hotel, U.S. officials said.

Earlier Thursday, Iraq allowed some 4,700 foreigners - a group that was mostly Egyptian but included two Americans, three Britons and a French citizen - to cross into Jordan. The Americans, who were not identified, were the first U.S. citizens to enter Jordan from Iraq since a group of 11 Americans arrived in the Jordanian capital of Amman Saturday.

In Washington, State Department officials said the Iraqi decision to collect all Americans in Kuwait and Iraq is an ominous sign that Iraq intends to escalate the confrontation in gulf.

The development appeared to diminish any possibility of a diplomatic settlement of the crisis, said the officials, who declined to be identified.

Asked if detention under such conditions would make the Americans hostages State Department Spokesman Richard Boucher said, ''I'm not prepared to go into that debate'' over definition.

SAUDI ARABIA (AUG. 17) UPI - The commander of U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia said Thursday he had some measure of Iraq's ability to launch a chemical weapons attack and was ready to deal with it.

''We're prepared to handle the threat that we face in that regard,'' Lt. Gen. Charles Horner told a pool of reporters and photographers organized by the Defense Department.

''What we do is look at the numbers, what we know of their capability and then we prepare to respond to it,'' he said. ''As far as I'm concerned, we're prepared.''

Earlier, ground crew chiefs said Iraqi planes had flew in the past week when weapons radar on U.S. F-15 fighter planes locked onto them near the Saudi-Iraq border.

Horner said he would not talk about such encounters.

But the ground crew chiefs have said that pilots told them Iraqi planes on their own side of the border had turned and fled when weapons radar on U.S. F-15s on the Saudi side of the border locked onto them.

Warning systms tell pilots when another plane's weapon radar has locked onto them, ready to shoot if there is a confrontation between the two planes.

''There has been a little cat and mouse, but when the weapons lock on, they're gone,'' one crew chief had said.

Col. John McBroom, commander of the first tactical fighter wing, would not confirm the encounters but told reporters ''our radars can lock on at pretty good range. McBoom said later that none of the Iraqi planes have strayed across the border into Saudi Arabia.

''They have not come across the border,'' he said. ''They're being careful. Very careful.''

The hospital commander at the F-15 base said he was ready if Iraq launched a massive chemical weapons attack.

''Yeah, we could treat large numbers of chemical casualties and do so quite successfully,'' the commander said.

He said pilots or soldiers injured by nerve or mustard gas, despite the protection suits they would wear in a chemical attack, would go first to a decontamination unit for the chemicals to be washed off their bodies and then would be admitted to the hospital.

When Gen. Horner was asked to confirm the fighter plane weapons radar incidents or any other encounters between U.S. and Iraq forces, he said he would not talk about such matters.

But he did confirm that U.S., Saudi and other forces had not yet reached agreement on a command structyure for coordinating the joint military build up to deter Iraq from invading Saudi Arabia.

However, he said a plan has been in place from the time U.S. forces began arriving last week on how they would cooperate with Saudi forces if Iraq attacked.

''Obviously we don't have the finished product (the command structure) yet '' he said ''but I can tell you from the first day we were here we said 'What are we going to do if they attack now?' and that's the way we have been structuring it every day.''

When asked if he or a Saudi general was in overall command, he said, ''We work together.''

(AUG. 17) UPI - Engineers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, California, are to start processing data today from the Magellan probe orbiting Venus. The probe began bouncing radar beams off the planet's cloud-shrouded surface yesterday in critical tests to check out the craft's ability to photograph the hidden surface of Venus.

Health Secretary Louis Sullivan says the government's first community-based test of AIDS drugs will involve about 750 people nation-wide. He says the study will focus on 14 cities, and will try to find the best way to prevent a life-threatening brain infection that strikes AIDS patients.

In Oshkosh, Wisconsin, a woman who was diagnosed as having 18 personalities testified yesterday against the man accused of raping her. The woman and two of her personalities were sworn in. She claims one of her alternative selves was raped while another, a six-year-old, watched. The defendant... 29-year-old Mark Peterson... claims that the woman consented to have sex with him.

INDIANAPOLIS (AUG. 17) UPI - The American Legion has ordered an investigation into allegations that a South Carolina post refused to admit a black veteran, triggering the resignations of six white members.

The Legion's national headquarters in Indianapolis said it assigned the investigation to South Carolina State Commander J. Norris Kinion, who said Thursday a committee he appointed will meet on Monday.

Legion officials said the South Carolina investigation was triggered by a heated debate over the application of a black Vietnam War veteran last month.

According to a transcript of the July 3 meeting, printed Thursday in The Florence (S.C.) Morning News, past post Commander William Leftridge demanded to know the applicant's race before voting whether to admit him.

''Who recruited this person? What color is he? This address is in a black neighborhood?'' Leftridge said.

''I don't want one (a black) in here. For 70 years, since the post has been chartered, there hasn't been one in there and I don't want to see it now,'' he said.

Post Commander Allen Stein reminded Leftridge it is against federal law to identify the race of the applicant. When Leftridge pursued the matter, First Vice Commander Ray Kinney challenged him.

''I signed him up. I still think this out of order. If you want to see if he is white, go out (in the outer hall) and look. Be a man and be a bigot and go out there and look.

''That man fought for his country - he didn't sit behind a bar,'' Kinney said.

''I don't care where he sat. I want to know what he is before I vote on him,'' Leftridge said. ''We're a private club. We can vote someone either in or out and we don't have to tell you any reason why.''

The group rejected the applicant. The Morning News reported that Kinney and as many as five other post members subsequently resigned.

''There was one color in the military and that is (Army) green,'' said Ken LeFevor, one of the members who resigned. ''I know we all shed the same color blood.''

A spokesman at Legion national headquarters said Thursday there have been instances of discrimination at Legion posts in years past.

''All were resolved when the post admitted it was wrong and corrected the practice,'' said Lew Wood, director of public relations.

Wood said no post charters have been lifted for discrimination but a member was expelled because he wouldn't cooperate with national policy barring it.

NEW YORK (AUG. 17) UPI - The U.S. dollar was sharply lower on major foreign currency markets Friday, hitting a record historic low against the German mark. Gold was sharply higher.

Analysts said the sharp falls were due to the poor outlook for the U.S. economy and uncertainty over the Middle East crisis.

The confusion over Iraq ordering all Britons and Americans in Kuwait to gather in hotels, raised fears of their internment and increased the risk of war, one analyst said.

''A worsening of the political situation would go against the dollar,'' said Rolf Sexauer of Deutsche Bank in Frankfurt.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt falling to a record low of 1.5495 German marks, down from 1.5618 marks on Thursday.

Optimism in the German government over the role and strength of the mark also helped pushed the dollar to the new low, analysts said.

In Zurich the dollar edged closer to the all time low of 1.2750. It opened at 1.2880 Swiss francs, down from 1.3015 on Thursday.

''So far it does not seem that the central banks are willing to intervene although there had been some expectations of action to try and stop the collapse,'' one Zurich trader said.

In London, the British pound climbed 1 1/2 cent to $1.9130 compared with $1.8980 Thursday.

The dollar also opened lower in Paris, Brussels and Milan.

In Paris, the dollar began the day at 5.2020 French francs, down from 5.2510, in Brussels the dollar opened at 31.92 Belgian francs, down from 32.15, and in Milan at 1139.50 Italian lire, down from 1150.90.

In earlier trading in Asia, the dollar dropped against the Japanese yen as concerns over the slowing U.S. economy occupied the market's attention in the absence of major developments in the Middle East crisis.

The Bank of Japan reported the dollar closed at 147.35 yen, down 0.55 from 147.90 yen on Thursday.

Foreign currency traders sold the dollar for the yen and major European currencies as they interpreted recent economic figures, including a higher consumer price index and lower housing starts, as signs of a slowing U.S. economy.

''Market players increasingly shifted their attention to the prospects for the U.S. economy and away from the Middle East situation,'' said Tsuyoshi Kojima, a Daiwa Bank currency dealer, ''The two incentives pulled the dollar in different directions.''

Elsewhere in Asia, the dollar fell in Hong Kong to 7.7708 Hong Kong dollars, down from 7.7715, and closed lower in Singapore at 1.7915 Singapore dollars, down from 1.7955 Thursday.

In early New York trading, the dollar was higher against key foreign currencies in active trading following a Commerce Department report showing the U.S. merchandise trade deficit in June narrowed to $5.07 billion from a revised $7.77 billion in May.

Traders quoted the dollar at 1.5548 German marks, up from 1.5525 Thursday, and at 147.85 Japanese yen, up from 147.25.

On the bullion markets, the price of gold leaped $12.50 an ounce as the Middle East crisis came no closer to a resolution and dealers invested in the precious metal as a safe haven, analysts said.

Gold, which opened at $414 an ounce in London, up from $401.50 at the close on Thursday, has risen $35.25 an ounce since the Iraqis invaded Kuwait Aug. 2.

Analysts said they expected the price to rise even higher the longer the crisis remains unresolved.

''Fears of a worsening tension in the Gulf, dollar weakness and higher oil prices combine to cause heavy demand for the precious metals sector,'' said a bullion trader for Shearson, Lehman and Hutton.

Gold opened $9.50 an ounce higher in Zurich at $412.50 and opened $12.50 higher in London at $414.

The London morning gold fixing was $410.50, up $9 from Thursday's close.

In earlier trading in Asia, gold closed at $412.75 on the Hong Kong Bullion Exchange, up $10.30 from Thursday's close.

Silver opened 15 cents higher in Zurich at $5.25 an ounce and opened 12 cents higher in London at $5.24 an ounce.

In early trading on New York's Comex, a 100-troy-ounce gold futures contract for August delivery opened at $412.40, up $3.20 from Thursday's close. A 5,000-troy-ounce silver futures contract opened at $5.268, up 10 cents an ounce.

(AUG. 17) UPI - The situation in Kuwait has taken a turn for the worst as nearly three dozen Americans stranded in the country during the Iraqi invasion have been forced to move to an undisclosed location. A State Department source says American diplomats in Kuwait think they know where the group is, but so far have failed to gain access to it. Earlier, President Bush received ''vague'' reports that about 30 Japanese were told they could NOT leave either.

The forced move follows an Iraqi order yesterday that some four-thousand Britons and 25-hundred Americans in Kuwait assemble at hotels for possible internment in Iraq. Iraqi military authorities said the order was to ensure the safety of foreigners. While Britain urged its citizens to comply with the order, U-S officials left the decision to each individual. Iraqi authorities had threatened to ''round up'' Americans if they failed to assemble at the hotel, but NO such action has been taken.

A truck hauling Army missiles lost its cargo on a Georgia highway in a storm last night. Army officials say the weapons were NOT armed and there never an explosion. Army officials refused comment on reports that the truck carried surface-to-air ''Stinger'' missiles to be shipped to U-S forces in the Mideast. But Chatman County police say Army personnel told them the truck carried the missiles. Police say the truck veered into the median and overturned on Interstate 95, about 10 miles south of Savannah.

The Commerce Department reports that the trade deficit shrunk a surprising 34-point-seven percent, to about five-BILLION dollars in June... its best showing since December 1983. Private economists had expected a trade shortfall of about seven-BILLION dollars for the month, but total exports climbed to about 34-BILLION dollars and imports dipped to about 39-BILLION. Analysts say the lower imports reflect sluggish consumer demand in a generally weak domestic economy.

(AUG. 17) UPI - Police say a Fort Lauderdale mother allegedly used her seven-year-old daughter and eight-year-old son to burglarize homes so she could trade stolen goods for drugs. Florida authorities say Bernice German allegedly made her daughter the lookout as her son crawled through windows and helped German cart away the loot. Police say the children received ice cream and other foods taken from the homes while German reportedly traded stolen goods for crack cocaine.

A Washington Times report says D-C Mayor Marion Barry may face drug charges in the Virgin Islands, where jurors may be less influenced by his history as mayor. The paper says federal officials are considering the Virgin Islands option instead of re-trying Barry in the nation's capital. Barry was convicted of one count of cocaine possession last week after a 10-week trial, but he was acquitted of 12 other drug and perjury charges.

Failed savings-and-loan executive Charles Keating has NOT complied with a federal order to turn over a list of his remaining assets. Officials say federal regulators may file a suit as early as today to force compliance. Keating's Lincoln Savings and Loan in California was seized by the government in April 1989.

The Federal Trade Commission is suing one of the nation's biggest coin dealers, accusing it of fraud in an alleged scheme to induce the purchase of coins ''at highly inflated prices.'' The suit filed in federal court in Los Angeles says the Hannes Tulving company of Newport Beach operated a scheme to defraud customers out of more than 40-Million dollars.

TOKYO (AUG. 17) UPI - Japan's Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama left for the Middle East Friday to inquire about a role for Japan in resolving the crisis gripping the region.

But he left behind him a furious debate within the Japanese government on what Japan can and should contribute to the forces confronting Iraq.

Nakayama's hastily scheduled nine-day trip to Egypt, Jordan, Oman, Saudi Arabia and Turkey replaces a long-planned tour of those nations by Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu.

Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait has especially high stakes for Japan, which imports more of its oil from the Middle East than any other industrialized nation. In addition, like Western countries, Japan is worried about the fate of some 500 of its citizens who are trapped in Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

But Japan has few diplomatic cards to play in the Middle East, analysts say, so little is expected to result from Nakayama's trip.

''They will just exchange information,'' predicted political scientist Yuzo Itagaki, a Middle East specialist at the University of Tokyo. ''I don't expect the Arabs to propose anything concrete.''

Having moved with uncharacteristic swiftness to join in U.S.-led sanctions against Iraq, Japan has little maneuvering room.

Checkbook diplomacy, which has made Japan the world's largest aid donor, will not defuse a crisis that has pitted Iraq's million-man army against a multinational force led by Americans.

The Japanese government is clearly aware of expectations it will pitch in, but is hampered by constitutional limitations.

''This is an unprecedented operation on our part. ... Please don't misunderstand that we are only thinking of money. We are trying to come up with something else,'' Taizo Watanabe, the Foreign Ministry's chief spokesman, said at a press conference following Nakayama's departure.

But beyond offering financial aid to the nations confronting Iraq, there is little Japan can do.

Its American-drafted constitution renounces war. In practice, this means Japan's formidable self-defense forces may not be deployed beyond her shores.

''Japan is really limited by that condition,'' Itagaki said.

But the government is debating whether to send non-combatant personnel to the international forces stationed in Saudi Arabia.

Sending minesweepers into the Persian Gulf is another possibility, Watanabe indicated, although Iraq is not believed to have sown mines there so far.

Offering financial aid to countries such as Egypt that are confronting Iraq, poses problems for the government.

With Japan's parliament out of session and funds entirely allocated for the year, any quick measures will have to come out of existing budgets, Watanabe indicated.

But under Japan's decentralized government system, there is no one to decide who should sacrifice. Fighting among ministries over their budgets threatens to hamper any aid plan.

The Foreign Ministry spokesman would only say that the goverment is working as fast as it can to come up with concrete measures.

If Japan does concoct a financial aid plan for the struggle against Iraq, America could be one of the beneficiaries.

On Thursday, a powerful Japanese politician suggested that in view of the Middle East crisis, the government should increase its share of costs for American troops stationed in Japan.

MIAMI (AUG. 17) UPI - Pan Am reservations agents and other service workers held a work stoppage that one union representative said occurred because the company's latest contract offer was a ''piece of garbage.''

Thursday's work stoppage was conducted by reservation agents, cargo handlers and all clerical support employees represented by the Teamsters union. The stoppages occurred in the Florida cities of Miami, Orlando, Tampa, at Kennedy International Airport in New York and in Los Angeles, and was scheduled to continue until the employees' next shift.

The company presented the members with an offer on Sunday night and the membership voted on it on Monday, said Joyce Hardy, a representative of teamsters Local 769, which represents about 3,000 airline employees in Florida and Georgia.

''I presented it to the membership Monday and they said they did not want the piece of garbage,'' he said. ''We are all very loyal to Pan American, but Pan American has got to realize that we have had enough.''

A Pan Am spokeswoman said airline operations had not been significantly affected because supervisors had been called in to replace workers who had walked out.

''Basically, there has been a minimal disruption of service with flights departing on schedule or in some cases just after schedule,'' said airline spokeswoman Susan Timper. ''Management was readily available to fill in the positions and that's why there were no major disruptions.''

Hardy said that was not the case.

''Of course, they'll tell you it's business as usual over at the airport, but I was over there all afternoon and it's a mess,'' he said.

Neither Hardy or Timper could say how many employees had left their jobs on Thursday.

Pan Am workers first held a work stoppage last month and Hardy said they would continue until there is a ratified contract.

The Teamsters, which represents about 6,000 Pan Am reservations, passenger service and cargo agents and clerical workers, have been working under a company-imposed contract since Feb. 21, 1988.

Terms of that contract included an 8 percent pay cut and a lower wage scale for newly hired employees.

Although the union could strike under federal labor law, it so far has not done so.

Pan Am lost $336.6 million last year, and company executives say they expect additional losses for 1990. The airline increased its daily departures from Miami to 60 from 45 last winter, making it the largest carrier at Miami International Airport.

HOUSTON (AUG. 17) UPI - City National Bank of Houston, one of the last banks spawned in the '80s era of free-flowing bank charters in Houston, has been closed by federal regulators and its deposits sold to Charter National Bank-Colonial.

The Thursday closure was the 72nd bank insolvency in Texas this year, and the 120th in the United States.

Charter will operate City National's two locations as branches, Charter Chairman Jerry Finger said. City National depositors can continue to conduct business during normal hours at the locations without interruption he said.

But officials said borrowers should check the status of their accounts because Charter will purchase only part of City National's loans. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. said it expects to keep about $37.1 million of the failed bank's $46.6 million in assets. The agency will try to sell those assets, which include loans, to investors.

Charter will pay FDIC a purchase premium of $238,000 for City National's $46.3 million in deposit accounts. City National had about 5,800 such accounts, the FDIC said.

LONDON (AUG. 17) UPI - An RAF fighter plunged into the North Sea, killing two British airmen two days after two others collided in the same area, killing three of four men aboard the planes, the Royal Air Force said Friday.

The Tornado crashed Thursday night in the Humber estuary, about 200 miles northeast of London, a spokesman said.

The bodies of Group Captain William Green, 43, of northern England, and Squadron Leader Neil Anderson, 36, of Scotland, were not immediately recovered but the RAF said they were presumed dead.

The crash, which occurred during routine night training exercises, brought to 20 the number of Tornados - arrow-shaped, two-seater jet fighters - lost in British airspace since 1983.

Leaders of the opposition Labor Party called for a moratorium on night training flights in the Humber estuary area.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AUG. 17) UPI - A group of Twin Cities investors has reached a tentative agreement to acquire the Schmidt brewery in St. Paul.

Terms of the yet-to-be-completed deal with the plant's owner, G. Heileman Co. of La Crosse, Wis., were not revealed Thursday by representatives of the investors, Red Oak Investment Corp. and executives of locally-based Old Home Foods.

The Schmidt brewery closed July 3, putting about 200 employees out of work. The prospective new owners said they will have the right to brew and distribute the Grain Belt label, but not Schmidt beer. The plant also is expected to make a nonalcoholic beer and mineral water.

Financing for the sale, reportedly in the $4 million to $5 million range, had not yet been completed.

The plant is expected to start up with 50 to 75 employees. No date has been projected for reopening the brewery.

ST. PAUL, MINN. (AUG. 17) UPI - Northwest Airlines is suing the maker of a cockpit simulator in connection with the crash of an MD-80 jetliner in Detroit three years ago that killed 156 people.

In its suit filed in U.S. District Court in St. Paul recently, Northwest is seeking unspecified damages of more than $50,000 from CAE Electronics Ltd. of Quebec.

Northwest contends that the simulator's response to an emergency situation differed from the actual emergency that led to the fatal crash.

The suit alleges that the crew of Flight 255 from Detroit to Phoenix was misled during training into believing that an alarm light would show in an overhead cockpit panel if the ''central aural warning system'' was not functioning properly. Northwest alleges that an alarm light did not appear and so the crew was not aware that the warning system was not functioning.

Northwest contends the warning system's computerized voice would have alerted the crew that the lift-enhancing flaps and slats were improperly configured for takeoff. Unable to gain altitude, the plane struck an airport light pole and crashed immediately after takeoff.

Investigators determined the probable cause of the crash was the crew's failure to extend the flaps and slats.

Federal investigators are questioning the dependability of Boeing-built cruise missiles. They have uncovered records that indicate the missile's guidance system failed during tests in 1987. The air-launched missile is a key element in the U-S nuclear arsenal and the guidance system allows the missile, when fired, to drop near the ground as it zeroes in on its target.

The government had good news about the nation's trade picture, announcing a nearly 35 percent drop in June red ink. The trade deficit fell to five-BILLION dollars on record exports of 34-point-three-BILLION dollars. Imports dipped to 39-point-three-BILLION, reflecting sluggish consumer demand in a generally weak domestic economy.

CHICAGO (AUG. 17) UPI - Grain and soybean futures were mostly lower at midmorning Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade, pressured by the weakness in the stock market and the weekend weather outlook.

Sharply lower stock prices contributed to the declines in corn and soybeans, along with predictions for warm and humid weather in the Corn Belt during the weekend. Forecasters called for the possibility of rain each day.

Commission houses and professionals dominated the selling across the floor although the market had recovered from the lows by midmorning. Some positioning was occurring ahead of the weekend.

Steady basis levels and light country movement limited the losses in both corn and soybeans.

Moderate losses in wheat were attributed to commercial selling and the lack of export business.

South Korea and the Philippines bought a small quantity of wheat, otherwise the export markets were quiet.

The midmorning prices:

Corn Sep 2.49 1/4 up 1/4;Dec 2.43 1/2 off 1; Mar 2.51 3/4 off 3/4.

Soybeans Aug 6.08 off 4 1/2; Sep 6.10 off 5 1/4; Nov 6.20 1/2 off 6 1/2; Jan 6.32 1/2 off 5 3/4.

Wheat Sep 2.82 1/2 off 2; Dec 2.96 3/4 off 2 1/2; Mar 3.06 1/2 off 2 1/2.

(AUG. 17) UPI - Government scientists say a new study confirms that carbon dioxide gases are accumulating twice as fast as during the 1950's and '60's. The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration says the resulting ''greenhouse effect'' could increase temperatures by nearly four degrees Fahrenheit during the next 40 years, raise sea levels and alter climate patterns.

DETROIT (AUG. 17) UPI - The United Auto Workers union has accused General Motors Corp. of stalling in negotiations for a new national labor pact to replace the one that expires Sept. 14, a bargaining bulletin issued to UAW members said.

The charge was made even as several thousand GM workers were heading back to the assembly lines Friday in the wake of a settlement of a week-long UAW walkout at a Michigan parts plant - which had in turn forced the shutdowns of a number of other GM plants.

''The union came to the subcommittees ready to reach some agreements, and with a few exceptions all we have received from the corporation is that 'We will get back to you,''' said the Aug. 10 issue of the UAW's FORWARD publication.

The publication also expressed optimism, however, saying there have been some ''bright spots'' in the talks, like on the issue of quality.

But it also said the giant carmaker has not presented any detailed proposals, and has yet to respond to the UAW on issues like outsourcing, or the practice of transferring work outside the company, usually to non-union concerns.

Outsourcing is a key issue in this summer talks between GM and the union, which is also negotiating new agreements with Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. covering nearly half-a-million U.S. auto workers.

This issue was at the heart of the week-long strike at GM's AC Rochester West parts plant in Flint, Mich., that shuttered numerous GM assembly plants and partially idled other components operations, affecting more than 20,000 workers.

GM spokesman Tom Pyden said several thousand more GM workers were expected to return to work Friday after Flint workers overwhelmingly approved a local agreement earlier this week, although on Thursday the carmaker was forced to close its Van Nuys, Calif., car plant because of the walkout, idling 3,500 workers.

Workers at GM's truck plants in Pontiac, Mich., Shreveport, La., and Fort Wayne, Ind., were expected to return to work Friday, Pyden said. Workers at Van Nuys and GM's light truck plant in Moraine, Ohio, were slated to return Monday.

GM was expected to resume normal operations by early next week, Pyden said.

DETROIT (AUG. 17) UPI - Ford Motor Co. said Friday it will idle its Mustang plant in Dearborn, Mich., for an additional week starting Monday, this time because of a shortage of engine parts.

The plant, which employs 2,100 hourly workers who build about 3,700 Mustangs a week, is already idled this week because of a shortage of dealer orders. It will be closed next week because of a lack of four-cylinder engine parts, a company spokeswoman said.

Earlier this week, Ford said it would idle car plants in Atlanta and Kansas City, Mo., the week of Aug. 20 because of a shortage of dealer orders, affecting 4,800 workers combined.

Ford's car plant in Lorain, Ohio, is also idled this week and next because of a shortage of interior parts for models with luxury trim. That plant employs about 2,700 workers.

Ford's Atlanta plant makes about 5,000 Taurus and Sable cars a week, while its Kansas City plant makes about 4,000 Tempo and Topaz cars a week. Its Lorain plant makes about 5,600 Thunderbird and Cougar cars each week.

HOUSTON (AUG. 17) UPI - Most people visiting a doctor would not relish being greeted by three large vultures. But that's just what is happening to patients at a west Houston medical building.

Two adult vultures took up residence at the West Houston Doctors' Center in early March, building a nest in a sheltered second-floor alcove. The adults - affectionately dubbed Becky and Bucky by building workers - were joined by a baby buzzard April 15.

Doctors and workers flocked to windows to watch the young buzzard hatch and grow later named it Benjy.

''I love 'em,'' said Dr. Scott Hume. ''I think they're great.''

The birds often rest in shade near the outpatient entrance but periodically peer into the dark glass building, flap their wings and make a commotion.

''I swear they like to show off,'' said office manager Pat Cromer. ''They know they're famous.''

Not everyone likes the buzzards. Some workers say the birds just don't project the correct image for a medical building or for the hospital next door.

But buzzards are protected by state and federal law and are not supposed to be hunted or harmed.

''They've been kind of intriguing,'' said Dr. Sol Hamburg. ''I actually wondered at first whether they were dangerous but, obviously, they're not. Now they're part of the scenery.''

Some workers feed the black birds with 5-foot wingspans but no one is sure why they decided to make the office building their home.

Despite their unpleasant habits - hissing, eating dead animals and regurgitating when upset - the birds have won over most observers.

''Just their presence, I think, is neat,'' said office coordinator Louise Hughens. ''I hope they stay a long time.''

NEW YORK (AUG. 17) UPI - The jury in its ninth day of deliberations in the Central Park jogger trial Friday reheard the testimony of a mother who claimed her son lied when he confessed to the rape and beating last year so he could go home with his parents.

As the video camera began recording at the police precinct, Linda McCray testified, her teenage son, Antron, gave a graphic account of the beating and gang-rape of the woman jogger in Central Park on April 19, 1989.

McCray, 16, Yusef Salaam, 16, and Raymond Santana, 15, are on trial on 13 criminal counts of being part of a gang of up to 30 youths who went 'wilding' - randomly robbing and beating people.

On the video, McCray admitted kicking the 30-year-old investment banker, hitting her with a metal pipe, holding her down while others raped her and then climbing on top of her and feigning intercourse.

''Were you shocked?'' asked Assistant District Attorney Elizabeth Lederer during her cross-examination at the trial in state Supreme Court in Manhattan.

''I know, I know myself he wouldn't do anything ... I know it was a lie,'' the mother replied in a choked voice.

''My husband said that the police told him if Antron tell them what they want to know and put himself in it, he go home. If he don't, he go to jail '' she added.

''Did you honestly believe that if Antron said, 'I held her down while four others raped her, I raped her, I beat her with a pipe,' did you honestly believe he would go home?'' Lederer asked incredulously.

''I believed what my husband said, that the police said he could go home '' the mother replied.

The one-hour readback of testimony came on the ninth day of deliberation in the trial which opened June 25.

As the jury deliberations stretched toward the weekend, the defendants and their families and supporters milled about with nearly 100 reporters in the dusty hallway outside the courtroom.

Many swarmed around Salaam's mother, Sharonne Salaam, who has been barred from the courtroom for an outburst in the presence of the jury, screaming that her son had passed a lie detector test, which is not admissible as evidence in New York courts.

ATHENS, Greece (AUG. 17) UPI - Iraqi troops began withdrawing from Iranian territory early Friday and the first 1,000 Iranian prisoners of war arrived home hours later in events which may move the Persian Gulf war toward a formal close.

Iran also said it brought 1,000 Iraqi POWs to the border for release.

The Iraqi withdrawal and POW release were part of a surprise peace offer from Baghdad to longtime foe Iran this week. The moves appeared intended to nullify Iran if fighting breaks out between Iraq and U.S.-dominated foreign forces deployed in Saudi Arabia after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Tehran radio, in a dispatch monitored in Athens, said Iraqi forces began pulling out of Iranian territory in the central sector of the 750-mile Persian Gulf warfront.

The pullback began at 5 a.m. from the Meimak and Kalleh Qandi Heights near Mehran, some 350 miles southwest of Tehran, an Iranian radio reporter in the area said in a voice dispatch.

Hours later, ''the first batch of freed Iranian POWs arrived in the Iranian territory through the Khosrawi border point,'' Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said. Khowrawi, on the Iran-Iraq border, lies about 360 miles southwest of Tehran.

Simultaneously with the Iraqi move, Tehran transferred the first batch of 1,000 Iraqi POWs to the border, Iranian Foreign Ministry spokesman Morteza Sarmadi said.

The state-owned Iraqi News Agency said 1,000 Iranian POWs arrived at the border at 10 a.m. Baghdad time and were ''handed over immediately'' under Red Cross supervision.

At the headquarters of the International Committee of the Red Cross in Geneva, Switzerland, officials confirmed Iraq released 1,000 Iranians by land routes Friday morning and assembled 1,000 more for release Saturday.

The ICRC said Iran also transported an undetermined number of Iraqi POWs to the border for release Friday, but failed to respect Red Cross rules calling for all prisoners to be seen by ICRC delegates in advance to prevent anyone being sent home against their will.

ICRC spokesmen said Tehran promised to futurely respect the requireement for all Iraqi prisoners to first be seen by ICRC delegates.

The POWs released by Iraq were seen beforehand by ICRC delegates.

Iraq had offered to hand over 2,000 a day, but the Red Cross said Thursday it could only process 1,000 a day because it lacked facilities to handle more.

The troop pullback and POW exchange were seen as first steps in fulfilling a pledge by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to meet all Iranian demands in order to formally end the nearly eight-year war suspended in August 1988 by a U.N.-brokered cease-fire.

Iran's state radio played martial music to coincide with the arrival home of the POWs. Sarmadi said there were 55,000 Iranian POWs in Iraq, of whom 35,000 were registered with the International Committee of the Red Cross.

The Red Cross, however, indicated there are an estimated 30,000 Iranian prisoners in Iraq and more than 70,000 Iraqis held in Iran.

Iranian President Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani described the returning POWs as heroes of the gulf war who would go down in Islamic history for keeping the faith during their long imprisonment.

The prisoner exchange took place under the supervision of officers of the U.N. military observers group, deployed in the area since the two sides agreed to the cease-fire.

''As a sign of jubilance, many streets in Tehran are decorated with national flags,'' to welcome the prisoners home, IRNA said. Some of the POWs were held in Iraq since the beginning of the Persian Gulf War in September 1980.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 17) UPI - President Bush is studying a Pentagon recommendation that he call up the military reserve and may activate a limited number in response to escalating tensions in the Persian Gulf, his spokesman said Friday.

If reserve forces are activated to back up U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia, it will mark the first full-scale test of the post-Vietnam War restructuring of the American military.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater, in Kennebunkport, Maine, with the vacationing president, indicated that support personnel - such as medical personnel and cargo handlers - may be needed to help fill the ranks of the tens of thousands of Americans sent to the Persian Gulf in the past two weeks.

Fitzwater said he does not anticipate a ''massive call-up'' of reserves, contrary to earlier reports. ''We'll try to keep this as small as possible '' he said.

Bush discussed the possible activation of reserves during a briefing Wednesday at the Pentagon and received a formal recommendation from Defense Secretary Dick Cheney within the past two days, Fitzwater said. He said Bush is expected to make a decision soon, but offered no timetable.

When the United States shifted to a volunteer force at the end of the war in Southeast Asia - dropping the draft - much of the chore of supporting combat units was deliberately shifted to National Guard and reserve forces.

While sending a significant number of front-line combat units abroad for an extended stay might suggest reserve units associated with the combat troops must be called up to help with logistics, Maj. Doug Hart, a Pentagon spokesman on reserve issues, said that is not necessarily the case.

Pentagon officials have not publicly addressed how reserve units would be employed, it was expected there would be no widespread shipment of reserves to Saudi Arabia because the bulk of the work to be done was in the United States, filling in for the soldiers who shipped out.

After the draft ended in 1973, the military went to what is known as the ''Total Force Policy,'' the decision to concentrate on active combat forces with the reserves and guard, which cost less to maintain, taking up the support chores. Presidential authority for call-ups without the permission of Congress at first was 50,000, but that was boosted to 100,000 in the early 1980s and to 200,000 a few years ago.

Although Hart said a call up was not a guaranteed necessity, retired Army Maj. Gen. Evan Hultman, executive director of the Reserve Officers Association of the United States, said a large, distant long-term build up could require reserves.

But retired Adm. Eugene Carroll, head of the Center for Defense Information, suggested the Pentagon was ''demonizing Saddam Hussein'' to build support for calling up reserves.

''We have 2.1 million people in uniform. If we can't meet our commitments to be wholly defensive in Saudi Arabia and deter an attack we'd best get some new military commanders and a secretary of defense. I think calling up the reserve or flying a trial balloon on it is to create public awareness and concern that this is a really dangerous situation ... and a hell of a good budget tool'' to get money from Congress, said Carroll.

In at least one service, the Air Force, reservists are an integral part of day-to-day operations. Reserve crews on days off from civilian jobs routinely fly cargo jets and tankers to haul gear about and provide inflight refueling to fighters, bombers, reconnaissance planes and the like. They already are heavily involved on a volunteer basis in the air bridge that has been set up to ferry men, weapons and warplanes to the region.

It was considered unlikely the full 200,000 would be called up, in part because by going on active duty reservists automatically draw full-time military pay which would further strain an already hard-pressed Pentagon budget.

TORONTO (AUG. 17) UPI - Cross-Canadian rail traffic remained blocked for a second day Friday by two Indian blockades in northwestern Ontario, while Quebec Mohawks continued negotiations to end their own lengthy standoffs with police.

Spokesmen for the Long Lake Ojibwa band and the Pic Mobert Ojibwa band said they will not remove their blockades until Indian Affairs Minister Tom Siddon or his deputy minister meet them for face-to-face talks.

''We want them to come here and see the situation and talk to us like human beings,'' said Bernard Abraham of the Long Lake group. ''We don't want the federal government to ignore the situation like they did in Quebec.''

Federal government representatives sent to the scene Thursday were not senior enough to satisfy the band's demands, Abraham said.

Government spokesmen couldn't be reached for comment.

Abraham said the 500-member band wants its 1-square-mile reserve expanded, ''deplorable'' housing conditions improved and services upgraded.

Chief James Kwissiwa, head of the 300-person Pic Mobert band, echoed Abraham's demands and said homes are in such bad shape people would not be able to live in them another cold winter.

''We want the government to start treating us like Canadian citizens and not like we're in the Third World,'' Kwissiwa said.

Kwissiwa said the blockades had been planned ''for a long time'' but were put in effect because the bands saw the Quebec Mohawks forced the federal government into action with their own blockades.

Spokesmen for VIA Rail, Canada's passenger train service, and CP Rail and CN Rail, which handle freight, said east-west traffic has been suspended because of blockades by the two Ojibwa bands.

Monday, the Long Lake band blockaded a CN Rail line that passes through its reserve. CN Rail and VIA Rail rerouted their trains to a CP Rail line which was blockaded Thursday afternoon by the Pic Mobert band.

Ontario Provincial Police officers have visited the blockades but have not attempted to remove them.

Spokesmen for CN Rail and CP Rail said businesses and consumers would feel the effects of the blockades immediately. Both railways are considering trucking goods and using east-west rail routes in the United States.

VIA Rail spokesman Dianne Graham said the company has had to suspend its popular cross-country train called The Canadian.

''People come from around the world to ride The Canadian,'' Graham said.

Graham said during the summer months the train, which carries about 300 passengers, is fully booked for its three-times-a-week journey.

In Quebec meanwhile, Mohawks and their advisers resumed talks Friday with the Canadian and Quebec governments in an effort to find a solution to two standoffs in Oka and Chateauguay. Both sides have agreed to a news blackout.

In Oka, Indians erected barricades five months ago to block the expansion of a municipal golf course they claim is on tribal land. In Chateauguay, Indians blocked a bridge to show their support of the Oka group.

Police attempted to raid the Oka blockade July 11 but the action failed and left one officer dead. The Chateauguay blockade, meanwhile, has been the scene of several violent nightly clashes between residents and police.

Twenty-four international observers from Switzerland, France, Great Britain, Belgium and West Germany started monitoring the Mohawk blockades Wednesday.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AUG. 17) UPI - Environmentalists and government officials from throughout Central America gathered in Managua this week to formulate what is being called the region's largest-ever coordinated conservation plan.

The problems are the same, officials told United Press International Friday, but for the first time, coming up with solutions might be a little simpler.

''One of the main objectives is to combine preservation of the environment with all the new economic development,'' said Jorge Cabrera, a Guatemalan who is secretary-general of the Central American Commission on the Environment and Development.

The commission is faced with mounting pressure from the U.S. government to clean up the region's environmental policies, but is strapped by a lack of money, a general lack of concern by the people and industries of Central America as well as rapid industrialization.

The plan the officials are working out will be tied in to President Bush's ''debt for nature'' proposal to swap foreign debt for concrete measures to clean up the environment, said Leopoldo Herrera, director for environmental programs at the Salvadoran Foreign ministry.

In a debt-for-nature exchange, a conservation organization acquires commercial bank debt of a developing country, either by purchasing it at a substantial discount from the debt's face value or receiving it as a donation.

The organization then agrees to cancel the debt in return for the borrower country's commitment of additional resources to local conservation.

The first such exchange was initiated by Conservation International and the government of Bolivia in July 1987. Since then, debt-for-nature deals have followed in Ecuador, Costa Rica, the Philippines and Madagascar.

''In El Salvador, we are very interested in doing this,'' Herrera said, adding that economic incentives were the best way to motivate the people into backing environmental reforms.

He said deforestation, the main environmental problem facing the region, ''is especially bad in El Salvador. We have too many people in too small a country.''

''There has never been a scientifically planned forest in Central America '' he said. ''Trees are just chopped down at whatever age. Deforestation is massive.''

Environmentalists believe deforestation of tropical rain forests contributes to global heating in the so-called greenhouse effect.

Central America is among the poorest regions of the world, and has been historically underdeveloped in relation to its northern neighbors. In late June, however, the presidents of the region heralded a new cooperation agreement signed in Antigua, Guatemala, as opening the door to rapid economic development on a regional basis and an inflow of international assistance.

Cabrera said he is hoping to tie in that new development with a regional environmental plan that will target new industry and promote self-policing policies.

Wednesday, members of the group signed an agreement that will coordinate legislative commissions on the environment in each of the respective countries. The aim of the pact is to work together on passing pollution control laws and other environmental regulations.

''Now we have the format to attack these problems,'' Cabrera said, adding that bringing the private sector into the cooperative agreements will now be a main focus.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 17) UPI - Republican Party chief Lee Atwater will undergo new radiation treatments for an undetermined length of time in an effort to attack additional problems with his brain tumor, aides said Friday.

A spokeswoman for the Republican National Committee said Atwater, who was at George Washington University Hospital, was "alert" and not in intensive care. She said the new radiation treatments would likely be "taking place every day until they (the doctors) see fit to stop it" and added that Atwater was "fighting with everything he's got."

Atwater underwent aggressive radiation treatment for the tumor in April and in recent weeks doctors had said he was improving. The tumor was described as dying.

However, the RNC announced Thursday night that Atwater had begun new radiation treatments after it was discovered that the tumor had worsened. The new radiation treatments are not as aggressive as the April treatment, party aides said.

The statement Thursday from RNC Chief of Staff Mary Matalin did not describe the severity of the new problem for Atwater, noting only that a new biopsy "indicated tumor progression requiring additional treatment."

It quoted Atwater's doctors as saying the development was "concerning." "They are uncertain but hopeful of a positive response to the treatment," the statement said.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 17) UPI - U.S. prosecutors said Friday they will appeal a judge's ruling ordering the release of a Mexican doctor the judge said was illegally kidnapped from his homeland after his indictment in the Enrique Camarena murder.

In court documents, U.S. Attorney Lourdes Baird asked U.S. District Court Judge Edward Rafeedie to delay the implementation of his Aug. 10 decision ordering Dr. Humberto Alvarez Machain repatriated to Mexico.

Rafeedie agreed, ordering that the Guadalajara gynecologist remain in custody and set a bail hearing for Aug. 24.

The judge said the appeal would automatically supercede his order that Alvarez Machain be returned to his homeland because his arrest violated the extradition treaty between the United States and Mexico, which vigorously protested his abduction.

The order ''is not final if it's on appeal,'' Rafeedie said.

But the judge questioned prosecutors about whether a potentially lengthy appeals process could violate the doctor's civil rights if he remains incarcerated.

''Suppose this appeal takes three or four years, which it could if it runs its full course?'' Rafeedie told Assistant U.S. Attorney William Fahey.

But Fahey said the government would pursue an expedited appeal.

Defense attorney Robert K. Steinberg said an appeal would take two years, ''and that certainly is cruel and unusual punishment for this man, which you have made a ruling on, to languish in a prison.''

Alvarez Machain, 43, was abducted from his Guadalajara office April 2 and turned over to U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agents at an El Paso, Texas, airport.

According to the testimony of a DEA agent and an operative for the agency, senior DEA officials approved the abduction and more than $60,000 was paid to the Mexican nationals who carried it out.

The doctor is accused of administering drugs to Camarena while he was being tortured by his captors. The DEA agent was beaten and interrogated for more than 30 hours before being killed by drug traffickers, apparently in retribution for DEA raids on marijuana plantations.

The Mexican government, which has maintained that all those responsible for Camarena's murder have been prosecuted and imprisoned in Mexico, had applauded Rafeedie's order that Alvarez Machain be repatriated.

Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari had complained the abduction violated Mexico's sovereignty and a spokesman for Salinas last week welcomed the judge's order and said it would repair U.S.-Mexico relations.

In his precedent-setting decision, Rafeedie ruled that ''the United States violated its extradition treaty with Mexico when it unilaterally abducted'' Alvarez Machain.

Following an eight-week trial, four other men were convicted in late June and early this month of crimes stemmed from the Camarena murder. One of the defendants was prominent Mexican businessman Ruben Zuno Arce, the brother-in-law of former Mexican President Luis Echeverria.

Three other men were convicted after a 1988 trial in Los Angeles and dozens of others have been convicted in Mexico.

Alvarez Machain was indicted by a federal grand jury in Los Angeles on Jan. 31. The indictment said he went to a house owned by Mexican drug lord Rafael Caro Quintero where Camarena was being tortured and administered drugs to the agent so he could be revived for further interrogation. He was charged with five felonies, including conspiracy and murder.

(AUG. 17) UPI - A West German prosecutor reports that seven people were arrested for allegedly helping Iraq build poison gas installations. A senior prosecutor in Darmstadt reports that the suspects may have violated West German export laws by providing Iraq with sensitive technology. The prosecutors say one of the men arrested is a West German of Iraqi descent who once worked for a West German spy agency.

Iran reported today that Iraq began withdrawing its troops from Iranian territory, even as the first one-thousand Iranian prisoners were repatriated to their homeland. The action could mark the beginning of the formal close of the eight-year Persian Gulf War. Iraq proposed peace moves that Iran quickly accepted earlier this week.

NASA engineers are concerned because the Magellan spacecraft has stopped beaming signals to Earth. Magellan is on a mission to map the surface of the planet Venus. Engineers in Pasadena, California, hope the craft is in a computer-induced state of hibernation due to possible technical problems that emerged yesterday when Magellan's antenna was pointed away from Earth. NASA says Magellan is programmed to start searching for Earth if it receives NO signal for 18 hours, or later tonight.

KATMAI NATIONAL PARK, AK (AUG. 17) UPI - A tour bus slid off a gravel road and overturned in a remote national park, injuring 22 sightseers, the National Park Service said Friday.

Six seriously injured passengers were flown 300 miles to an Anchorage hospital for treatment of broken bones and internal injuries following Thursday's accident, park spokesman John Quinley said in Anchorage.

Six other passengers were treated for minor injuries in Naknek, a town near the wilderness park. Ten others were examined at the Naknek clinic.

Katmai National Park is so remote and undeveloped that the only access is by amphibious plane and getting stretcher cases out on floatplanes posed problems, Quinley said.

Katmai is known for its wild bears and a vast volcanic landscape left over from a huge 1912 eruption. Inside the park, there is a single gravel road from the Brooks Camp cabins and campground, where floatplanes drop off visitors, stretching 23 miles to the Valley of 10,000 Smokes.

A single bus, operated for the park service by a concessionaire, was half way to the volcanic valley Thursday when the driver stopped to let passengers look at scenery.

''The driver was pulling over to the side to stop to look at the view, and the bus went off the side of the road,'' Quinley said. ''It's not clear whether the road gave way or the driver got too close. The bus rolled on its side, did at least one complete revolution and landed on its tires.''

The accident occurred at 10:30 a.m. but because the bus radio was not working it took about 2 1/2 hours before park officials learned there had been an accident, Quinley said. He said the park service ''spent the rest of the day shuttling people to Brooks Camp and getting them on floatplanes. It took quite a while. ... A person on a stretcher fills up a floatplane pretty fast. It was quite an operation getting everyone out.''

(AUG. 17) UPI - World relief groups in Seattle are preparing to send 92 tons of medical supplies to help Soviet children affected by the devastating 1986 Chernobyl nuclear disaster. They will be distributed to children's hospitals and cancer centers in the region.

(AUG. 17) UPI - Stock prices plunged on major global stock exchanges Friday in nervous trading as tensions in the Middle East continued to dampen professional investor confidence.

The sell-off began in Japan, where stocks on the Tokyo Stock Exchange plummeted as investors showed disappointment about unfruitful talks between President Bush and Jordon's King Hussein aimed at finding a peaceful solution to the Middle East crisis, analysts said.

Investor tensions were also heightened when Saddam Hussein, through an intermediary, made a saber-rattling speech in which he spoke about Americans coming home from the Mideast in body bags.

Trading around the globe remained cautious as professional traders avoided locking themselves into stock positions ahead of the weekend in view of continuing Middle East instability.

In New York, stocks on the New York Stock Exchange fell in early afternoon trading, continuing to reel under pressure from the Middle East crisis.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which plunged 66.83 Thursday, was down 57.18 points to 2624.25 at 1 p.m. EDT.

Prices were moving lower in a slow and steady decline, said Trude Latimer, market analyst with Josephthal & Co.

In Tokyo, on the world's largest stock exchange, the blue-chip Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues lost 762.72 points, or 2.8 percent of its value, to close at 26,786.72. The Nikkei, widely seen as the market's main barometer, lost 562.68 points Thursday.

In addition to Middle East worries, the prospect of higher interest rates in Japan and a recession in the United States added to investor gloom, analysts in Japan said.

In Europe, stocks plunged on the London International Stock Exchange as the Gulf crisis continued to totally demoralize investor confidence. Trading remained cautious.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which fell 17.2 points Thursday, tumbled 45.2 points to 2,176.9. The narrower top 30 industrial average dropped 46.0 points to 1,678.9.

Analysts said the heightening of tensions in the Gulf sent stocks reeling.

Elsewhere in Europe, stock prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange finished broadly lower. The closely watched German Stock Index tumbled 61.57 points to 1,665.88 - its lowest closing level since Dec. 21.

Stocks also ended broadly lower on the Paris Bourse in a continuation of the steep decline that chopped about 12 percent of the market's book value in the past two weeks.

The French CAC 40 Index fell 3.39 percent to 1,665.00 - its lowest closing level this year.

In Amsterdam, stocks tumbled across the board on the Amsterdam Stock Exchange as plunges on other markets reverberated through all major sectors of the Dutch market.

Earlier, stocks also took a nosedive in light trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange as local investors concentrated in the leading blue-chip issues.

The Hong Kong's main market barometer, Hang Seng Index plummeted 60.65 points to 3,122.64.

''Following in the steps of the overseas markets, the Hong Kong market was down,'' said David Harman, senior manager with Morgan Grenfell, in Hong Kong. ''Despite this fall, there was certainly not an air of panic selling.

''We are seeing definite bargain hunting at the lower levels. Investors are willing to nibble a little bit to take advantage of the good value,'' Harman said.

''The volumes are still substantially lower than two or three weeks ago. There is a general reluctance to take part, apart from minimal bargain hunting when the market overextends itself on the downside,'' he added.

The selling wave also continued in Singapore, where stock prices fell on the Singapore Stock Exchange as most institutional investors remained sidelined. The Straits Times Industrial Index dipped 15.23 points to 1,314.13.

Analysts in Singapore said small investors dominated trading.

Elsewhere around the region, stocks on the Taiwan Stock Exchange plunged on renewed concern over higher oil prices.

The market's leading barometer, the Weighted Index plunged 292.72 points or 6.8 percent to 4,010.56 as declining issues widely outpaced advances 207 to only five.

Analysts in Taipei said the market opened sharply lower amid selling that snowballed, as local investors worried that Taiwan, which currently imports 33 percent of its oil from Saudi Arabia, may have a shortage of oil in the near term.

In Bangkok, stocks fell on the Thailand Stock Exchange in line with falls around the region. The Stock Exchange of Thailand Index fell slipped points to 920.75 as declines overpowered advances 130 to 29.

''Investors and profit-takers were very nervous when Iraq tried to negotiate with Iran against the United States,'' said Somchai Phapaphasvivat, a stock analyst and government economic advisor in Bangkok.

Stocks on the Manila Stock Exchange fell in light trading as the closely-watched Manila Composite Index slipped 9.26 points to 835.07.

Meanwhile in Seoul, stocks fell slightly for the fifth consecutive trading session on the Korean Stock Exchange. The key Korean Composite Stock Price Index eased 1.13 points to 623.90.

In Australia, stock prices fell sharply on the Sydney Sharemarket. The All Ordinaries Index dropped 15.0 points to 1543.4 as banking stocks bore the brunt of the selling in Australia.

ATLANTIC CITY, NJ (AUG. 17) UPI - High-stakes developer Donald Trump was told Friday to wait a little longer to learn whether a plan to keep his debt-ridden casinos gets state approval or collapses like a house of cards.

The state Casino Control Commission said it will rule Tuesday on Trump's plan to meet interest payments on more than $1 billion of debt with a $65 million emergency loan.

If the commission rejects the plan, Trump will have to surrender his interest in his three casinos and could, his lawyers argue, be forced into bankruptcy.

A lawyer for Trump made a desperate appeal to the commission to approve the plan immediately, noting that any further delay could cause the deal Trump arranged with 70 banks to fall through.

But Acting Commission Chairwoman Valerie Armstrong said the issue was too important for a snap decision, especially in light of the fact that Trump paid about 1,000 people nearly $11 million to prepare the deal. She said the commissioners needed more time to pore over the more than 1,000 pages of documents detailing the refinancing plan.

Trump, who sat glumly through most of the second day of hearings, appeared encouraged by the turn of events. He smiled and shook hands with casino executives as he left the hearing room trailed by more than a score of reporters and cameras. But he did not respond to questions from the media.

Earlier Friday, the state Division of Gaming Enforcement approved the bailout plan despite grave doubts that Trump will be able to pay his bills.

In its report to the commission on Thursday, the DGE expressed concern about whether Trump had the necessary cash flow to pay off his $3.2 billion debt, and noted that it was unlikely he could make a $47.3 million payment due Nov. 15 to the bondholders of his newly-opened Trump Taj Mahal Casino Resort.

If the commssion rejects the plan, it must seize Trump's casinos, appoint a conservator to operate them temporarily, then put them up for sale.

''There are no viable alternatives,'' said Thomas Auriemma, a deputy attorney general with the DGE. ''The commission reluctantly recommends approval.''

The DGE recommendation also included 13 conditions, all of which Trump's lawyers agreed to accept. Two key requirements are that Trump appear before the commission next month to explain how he plans to meet his November payment to bondholders, and how he will settle nearly $70 million in unpaid bills to contractors who worked on the Taj Mahal.

In pleading his case before the commission, Trump attorney Nicholas Ribis noted that Trump remains deeply committed to New Jersey and to turning around the fortunes of his casinos, which employ more than 15,000 people.

''Mr. Trump intends to stay in New Jersey and operate his three casino hotels,'' Ribis said. ''But he can not operate without the aid of this commission.''

Trump used his casinos, his luxury yacht, his personal airplane and real estate holdings in Manhattan as collateral in order to borrow the $65 million he needs to make interest payments.

But while Trump estimates his assets are worth a total of $4.6 billion, a report prepared by a New York accounting firm for Trump and his creditors estimated the assets could fetch no more than $3.6 billion if they had to be sold quickly.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 17) UPI - Florida State University beat prestigious Massachusetts Institute of Technology in a bid to house what is envisioned as the world's leading magnetic research laboratory, officials announced Friday.

The National Science Foundation picked the Tallahassee, Fla., location over the Cambridge, Mass., site for the National Magnetic Field Laboratory contrary to the recommendation of a scientific panel that studied the proposals.

Both proposals were strong, but the Florida site was chosen in part because of the state's pledge of long-term support, including money for 34 full-time faculty, 20 visiting faculty and other personnel, officials said.

''We are asking a lot of things in a proposal - the excellence of the science, the capability of the institution, the participation of the institution, the people that are involved in it and so forth,'' said National Science Foundation director Erich Bloch at a news conference.

The foundation hopes to spend at least $60 million over five years to establish the world's most advanced facility to pioneer the use of strong magnetic fields for a wide range of scientific research.

The lab is expected to lead to major new discoveries by using strong magnetic fields to conduct research in such diverse fields as biology, chemistry and materials research. Strong magnetic fields can be used to create images of very small objects, which scientists can use for research.

Florida officials hailed Friday's decision, while their Massachusetts counterparts condemned the move and called on the science foundation to reconsider its action.

''This puts us in the major leagues to stay. This demonstrates that the scientists and engineers in our universities can compete with the best in the world,'' said Charles Reed, chancellor of the Florida state university system.

''This is fantastic news for all of Florida,'' added Florida Gov. Bob Martinez.

The government-funded foundation will spend $6 million in the current fiscal year to begin construction of the facility, plans to spend another $12 million the next year and a total of about $60 million over five years.

The state of Florida has pledged another $58 million over five years for the facility, which will be run by the Florida State University, the University of Florida and the Los Alamos National Laboratory in New Mexico.

But Paul Gray, president of MIT, expressed dismay that the science foundation ignored the advice of its scientific advisors, who he said concluded that MIT had facilities, staff and experience that were superior to Florida State. MIT currently houses the Francis Bitter Magnet Laboratory.

The MIT proposal was made with Boston, Harvard, Tufts, Brandeis and Northeastern universities in Massachusetts.

CINCINNATI (AUG. 17) UPI - Homosexual activists say they will protest on the steps of the Hamilton County Courthouse next month when the Contemporary Arts Center goes on trial for showing allegedly obscene photographs by Robert Mapplethorpe.

''We're angry at the current attacks on freedom of expression,'' protest spokesman Mike Chanak said Friday. ''It's not just gays and lesbians that are under attack.''

The arts center displayed an exhibit by the late Mapplethorpe that opened April 7. A Hamilton County grand jury indicted the center and its director Dennis Barrie, on misdemeanor obscenity charges based on five photos of homoerotic acts and two of nude children.

The trial is scheduled to begin Sept. 24.

Chanak said the demonstration is sponsored by the Gay-Lesbian March Activists and the local chapter of ACT UP, the AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power.

The organizations have notified ACT UP chapters and artists across the country about the event, said Chanak, spokesman for the Greater Cincinnati Gay and Lesbian Coalition. He expects a good turnout, ''maybe even a couple thousand.''

In Boston last month, homosexual activists chanting ''We're here, we're queer, we'll never be silent again,'' forced the closing of a private showing of Mapplethorpe photos at the Institute of Contemporary Arts. The group said it was protesting recent incidents of gay-bashing in Boston and other forms of discrimination against homosexual men and women.

Although the Cincinnati protesters are billing the event as a critique of arts censorship, Chanak said the Mapplethorpe case is also about ''homophobic intimidation.''

The uproar ''reflects both homophobia and racism,'' he said, noting that many Mapplethorpe photos show black and white men together.

A majority of Cincinnatians polled on their views about the Mapplethorpe exhibit said they supported it, which casts doubt on Cincinnati's reputation as a conservative town on moral issues, Chanak said.

The show closed May 26, after attracting 79,893 visitors, the highest number ever to view a CAC exhibit.

''There's the prim and proper Hamilton County that (Sheriff) Simon Leis purports to represent,'' he said. ''But then as you get to know the community you find this town is as open as any other town.''

Chanak said arts groups risk losing money from the National Endowment for the Arts because of the Mapplethorpe controversy and other NEA-funded exhibits that North Carolina Sen. Jesse Helms and others in Congress decry as obscene.

Helms and others want to ''sanitize'' art and ''think for others,'' Chanak said.

A hearing on motions in the trial is set for 10:30 a.m. Monday before Hamilton County Municipal Judge F. David Albanese.

Prosecutors want to limit the scope of the trial to the seven photos named in the indictment. The defendants say the controversial photos should be viewed in the context of the entire 175-photo show as representing a single work of art.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 17) UPI - An extended trade embargo against Iraq could leave some nations hard up for dates, agricultural trade experts said Friday.

Iraq is the world's largest exporter of dates and in recent years has supplied about one-third of the European Community's imports of the fruit and about 10 percent of U.S. imports, the Agriculture Department said.

''It's not really significant for the United States,'' said Michael Kurtzing of the department's statistical and economic office, noting the United States imported about 478 metric tons of dates from Iraq in fiscal 1989.

Kurtzing said the United States could probably easily make up that loss from other sources such as Tunisia, which has recently expanded its date export market, or even from domestic crops in California.

But nations in the European Community, particularly Italy, could be left scrambling for the fruit, possibly at higher prices, said John Parker, the department's economic analyst for Middle East countries.

''The Economic Community would be a place it could affect,'' said Parker, adding since 1987 Iraq has exported 15,000 to 18,000 tons of dates annually to the EC, with Italy the biggest buyer.

Parker said that's about one-third the EC's total date imports, with another third coming from Tunisia and the remainder from various countries.

Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Singapore, Malaysia and Canada also import significant amounts of Iraqi dates, he said.

Parker said it is early to predict whether an extended trade embargo would affect the price of dates, but the market during the Iraq-Iran war could provide a basis for comparison.

Iraq ''fizzled very much as an exporter of dates'' during the war, Parker said, dropping from a high of 175,000 tons in 1980 as the war began and to a low of 75,000 tons in 1985. ''This did cause the world date price to rise.''

China had been Iraq's best date customer, Parker said, but found other suppliers and in 1987 Iraq ''rebounded'' its date exports by entering the EC market.

In 1987, Iraq exported a total of 157,000 tons of dates, valued at $52.4 million. In 1989 exports fell somewhat to 130,000 tons for $49 million.

The recent export market strength of Tunisia, which Parker says has ''better quality'' dates, and the availablity of supplies in countries that have not fully exploited the export market could avert a significant price increase, he said.

The cutoff of Iraqi supplies, Parker said, could create a windfall for Iran, which also dropped exports during the war, and the Saudis.

''Saudi Arabia has loads of dates that they could export,'' said Parker, ''but they feed them to animals.''

CLEVELAND (AUG. 17) UPI - A lawyer representing New York Yankees owners says baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent threatened to take ''retaliatory action'' against anyone who aids the minority owners in their suit against Major League Baseball.

Cleveland attorney Mark B. Cohn would not go into detail on who Vincent had threatened or what type of measures the commissioner allegedly had proposed to take but said he was upset by Vincent's actions.

''I'm going to raise the issue of the commissioner threatening people that if they participate in this lawsuit he's going to take retaliatory action against them,'' Cohn said before going into the chambers of U.S. District Judge Alice Batchelder Friday afternoon.

There was no immediate response to the charges from the commissioner's office.

Cohn is representing the Yankees minority owners in their efforts to void an agreement between Major League Baseball and George Steinbrenner that forces the team's general partner to relinquish control of the team by Monday, Aug. 20.

Batchelder and attorneys from both sides met privately twice Friday to discuss what was termed ''preliminary matters'' by one of Batchelder's law clerks. A hearing on the suit will begin at 9 a.m. EDT Monday.

The suit, filed Thursday, seeks to prohibit Vincent from enforcing an agreement signed July 30 by Steinbrenner after an 11-hour meeting with the commissioner, in which Steinbrenner agreed to give up control of the team.

The Yankees' limited partners met Wednesday in Cleveland and voted to have Robert Nederlander succeed Steinbrenner as general partner on an interim basis. Nederlander must be approved by baseball owners.

Minority owners Daniel McCarthy and Harold Bowman filed the suit.

McCarthy, a Cleveland tax attorney, is one of Steinbrenner's lawyers but a spokesman for Steinbrenner said the principal owner had nothing to do with the suit.

In a letter sent to his limited partners last week, Steinbrenner reportedly cautioned them against taking any legal action against the commissioner. Steinbrenner stressed that he was opposed to such action, reiterating that any involvement on his part would be a direct violation of the agreement he signed with Vincent.

The suit claims baseball, Vincent and special investigator John Dowd find Steinbrenner ''fiercely unpopular'' and believe he is a ''blight on baseball.'' It also alleges that Vincent ''has been waiting for the opportunity and excuse to rid himself and the game of this blight.''

Vincent ordered Steinbrenner to step down and to cease all activity dealing with the day-to-day running of the ballclub because of his dealing with admitted gambler Howard Spira. The commissioner said Steinbrenner's conduct had not been in the best interests of baseball.

Steinbrenner paid Spira $40,000 last year but the suit claims baseball knew of Steinbrenner's relationship with Spira and that ''Steinbrenner (had) no reason to believe that the contacts with Spira were in any way improper or prohibited, but also that the commissioner's office condoned and approved of those contacts.''

''(McCarthy and Bowman) claim they are entitled to have Steinbrenner be the managing general manager of the New York Yankees and the commissioner is interfering with that relationship,'' Cohn said.

Cohn said McCarthy and Bowman think Vincent's ruling was ''wrongfully based'' and they ''object to the way the investigation and hearing were conducted.''

The minority owners are seeking a temporary restraining order and preliminary and permanent injunctions barring Vincent and Dowd from caand he intends to honor the agreement between himself and Steinbrenner.

The suit charges Vincent with carrying out a plan to drive Steinbrenner from baseball. The suit said Vincent used ''vague and ill-defined powers vested in the commissioner'' to force Steinbrenner to step down.

The suit also claims that ''no commissioner has ever imposed a penalty for the violation of a previously unannounced standard. All prior commissioners have taken action pursuant to their authority to protect the best interests of baseball only when the questioned conduct clearly violated some known standard.''

PASADENA, Calif. (AUG. 17) UPI - NASA suddenly regained contact with the Magellan Venus radar mapping probe Friday, more than 14 hours after losing touch with the costly spacecraft because of an unknown problem, officials said.

Project manager Tony Spear was in the midst of a news conference at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory to outline the loss of contact when excited engineers ran in to announce a signal had been received from Magellan, the centerpiece of a $551 million mission to map the hidden surface of Venus.

''It is Magellan's signal,'' said project engineer Steve Wall. ''It is in lock. It has been verified to be Magellan's signal. This is slow telemetry (but) the spacecraft looks healthy.''

However, both of Magellan's high-data-rate radio transmitters were off, indicating the spacecraft was or had been operating in a computer-induced state of hibernation called a ''safe mode.''

Such computer-ordered ''safing'' was built into Magellan's software to protect the spacecraft in the event of problems beyond the electronic brain's ability to handle.

''Safe mode'' programming calls for Magellan to point its two solar panels broadside to the sun and to rotate about its vertical axis to sweep the sky with a medium-data-rate antenna. By doing so, the spacecraft's signal eventually will sweep across Earth, allowing contact to be re-established.

Spear told reporters the most likely form of safing would have led engineers to expect a signal around 6:45 p.m. PDT. But a signal was received about 11:15 a.m. and it was not immediately clear what caused the original problem.

The spacecraft may have had problems locking onto the proper ''guide star'' Thursday during a procedure to update the computer's knowledge about its orientation in space, putting the probe into an automatic safe mode.

Spear said engineers were optimistic they can correct whatever caused the initial loss of contact.

Magellan was built to map at least 90 percent of the surface of Venus during a 243-day mission using cloud-piercing radar beams. Engineers had just started testing the radar system Thursday when contact was lost.

With NASA already reeling from criticism over the flawed Hubble Space Telescope and problems with the shuttle program, resuming operations with Magellan is crucial to the space agency.

JPL spokesman Alan Wood said the 2 1/2-ton spacecraft, which dropped into orbit around Venus last Friday, had successfully completed its second radar mapping orbit when contact was lost.

During each radar mapping orbit, Magellan points its main antenna at Venus to collect radar data about its surface. After each such mapping ''pass,'' the spacecraft is supposed to reorient itself and point the antenna at Earth so radar data, recorded on tape, can be transmitted to JPL for analysis.

The spacecraft then turns the antenna away from Earth so optical sensors can look for programmed ''guide stars'' to update information about the probe's orientation in space.

Engineers at JPL expected Magellan to resume contact with Earth at 8:52 p.m. PDT Thursday at the completion of the guide star update, but no signal was received.

Prior to the loss of signal, Wood said, Magellan had been operating flawlessly and ''there were no problems at all.''

Equipped with a sophisticated imaging radar system, Magellan was built to map more than 90 percent of Venus's hidden surface, revealing features as small as a football field, 10 times better than any previous effort.

With such relatively sharp maps in hand, scientists may be able to learn why Venus, similar to Earth in many respects, ended up the 900-degree inferno it is today, the victim of a runaway ''greenhouse'' effect. The results could provide valuable insights into how Earth's environment operates.

MINNEAPOLIS (AUG. 17) UPI - Jurors deliberating in the trial of three former Northwest pilots charged with flying a jetliner while intoxicated asked Friday to review court transcripts and a copy of the men's bar tab from a tavern they drank at the night before their early morning flight.

The U.S. District Court panel met for three hours Friday before adjourning for the weekend.

The jurors began shifting through the evidence compiled in the nearly three-week trial late Thursday morning. Friday's session was shortened becausethe presiding judge had to go to Chicago for a relative's wedding.

The defendants - flight captain Norman Prouse, 51, Conyers, Ga., co-pilot Robert Kirchner, 36, Highland Ranch, Colo., and flight engineer Joseph Balzer, 35, Antioch, Tenn. - guided a Boeing 727 with 91 passengers aboard on a March 8 flight from Fargo, N.D., to Minneapolis after drinking for several hours the previous night in a Moorhead, Minn., bar.

Unlike most state driving-while-intoxicated laws, the charges levied against the crew members contain no mention of blood-alcohol content to presume intoxication.

Jurors instead are deciding on whether the pilots consumed enough alcohol at bar that their ''clearness of intellect'' and self-control were impaired during the 40-minute flight the following day, according to jury instructions issued Thursday.

During Friday's deliberations, the jury asked for copies of the court transcripts and an enlarged replica of the pilots' drink receipts from the bar, which show Balzer and Kirchner split six pitchers of beer and Prouse consumed at least 15 mixed drinks.

The jury also have access to flight recordings between the pilots and air traffic controllers.

Attorneys for the pilots maintain the crew proved they were not impaired by flying the aircraft ''flawlessly'' through a freezing drizzle and heavy cloudcover.

Prouse's attorney has also said his client is an alcoholic and therefore has a higher tolerance to large quantities of liquor than do most social drinkers.

(AUG. 17) UPI - 35 Americans have been moved from one hotel in Baghdad to another one. American Embassy officials have NOT been allowed to communicate with them... despite repeated American protests. But only a handful of Americans ordered by Iraq to report to hotels in Kuwait yesterday did so... and NO Iraqis rounded them up.

Israeli soldiers shot and killed two guerrillas today in Israel's self-declared ''security zone'' in southern Lebanon. An Army spokesman says the soldiers were on routine patrol when they encountered the guerrillas. Jerusalem created the security zone as a protection from guerrilla groups hoping to launch attacks in northern Israel.

NASA has run across another problem. Officials say the Magellan space probe orbiting Venus stopped transmitting signals to Earth last night. The space craft must repeatedly orient itself in space while trying to map the surface of Venus... and may be lost. The probe is programmed to begin looking for Earth tonight.

Analysts say the sluggish growth is helping at least one part of the U-S economy- the trade deficit. The Commerce Department reported today that the deficit dropped a surprising 35 percent in June, to five-BILLION dollars. That's the best performance in seven years.

Diabetes researchers have promising news. Researchers report that an experimental transplant to free diabetics from insulin injections has produced the best results since the technique was developed. The procedure was reported in the medical journal The Lancet. It allowed five of nine patients to reduce insulin injections.

SOUTH BEND, IN (AUG. 17) UPI - Former Notre Dame football player Braxston Banks, who lost his college eligibility after declaring for the National Football League draft, Friday lost his federal court bid for reinstatement.

Banks sought to overturn NCAA rules that require a player to forfeit remaining years of play if they opt for the professional draft or sign with an agent to further their career.

This spring Banks entered the NFL draft and also signed with an agent. However, he was not drafted.

The suit asked for a restraining order that would have allowed Banks to report to Notre Dame Friday by a team deadline and to begin practice on Monday.

U.S. District Judge Robert Miller, in a 29-page ruling, rejected Banks's challenges to the NCAA rules on the grounds they did not vilolate federal antitrust law.

Banks was a running back from Hayward, Calif. He graduated earlier this year, although he was a junior in terms of football eligibility when he declared for the draft.

''While the court symphathizes with Mr. Banks, the NCAA regulations at issue here - whatever their wisdom or soundness as intercollegiate athletic policy - do not offend the federal antitrust laws,'' Miller wrote. ''The court cannot rescue Mr. Banks's career hopes by holding otherwise. He has shown no likelihood of success on the merits of his federal antitrust claims so his motion for preliminary injunction must be and hereby is denied.''

The suit said that entering the draft did not make him a professional and should not affect his return to college sports.

Banks was represented by Alan Morrison of Public Citizens Litigation Group.

Morrison requested the suit be considered as a class action. Thirty-eight players, including Banks, had entered the 1990 draft and 20 were not picked by any team.

This was the first year that underclassmen could declare under NFL rules.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 17) UPI - The Navy disclosed new details about its A-12 Avenger Friday, declassifying data on its new carrier-based stealth bomber that in an artists conception looks much like a manta ray.

The plane, like other stealth planes designed to be almost invisible to enemy radar, is intended as a replacement for the Navy's aging inventory of A-6 Intruder bombers.

In releasing a painting of the A-12 and a handful of technical details, the Pentagon did not, however, indicate if it has vertical control surfaces. The F-117A stealth fighter has tail fins while the B-2 stealth bomber does not.

The A-12 has a wing shaped like a right triangle with the 90-degree angle evenly splitting the nose. Just below the nose of the twin-engine jet - on the underside of the broad wing, are two engine air intake ports that give it a distinctive ray-like appearance from below.

The plane, with a crew of two seated in tandem, is named Avenger after a carrier-based torpedo bomber built in World War II. It is being built by General Dynamics and McDonnell Douglas.

The plane was to have had its first flight this summer, but officials said they are having trouble with the composite materials that contribute to its stealth characteristics and the flight has been delayed.

A fixed-price contract of up to $4.78 bilion was awarded for the plane's full-scale development, and another $800 milion in research work has been approved so far for the plane.

But the congressional defense committees, in writing the 1991 Pentagon budget, cut out $1.15 billion in production money because of the program's troubles. Although no figure has been released, published accounts put the overall cost at $52 billion.

One congressional source said the plane will ''sail through up here because the A-6 is finished,'' noting the fatigue cracks and other problems that have been troubling the Intruder for years.

The aircraft is designed to provide all-weather attack capability both in daylight and at night and, according to the Pentagon, can ''penetrate the most sophisticated defenses and deliver greater quantities of ordnance with precision and at less risk to the flight crew than any previous naval aircraft.''

Although the A-12's precise capabilities were not revealed, the plane it is replacing can carry 18,000 tons of conventional or nuclear bombs. The Pentagon said the A-12 will have a greater range than the A-6 and will be able to fly faster than its predecessor. The A-6 can travel at up to 594 knots. It has a ferry range of 2,400 miles and a combat radius of 320 miles.

The Pentagon said the A-12 will be able to penetrate sophisticated missile defense systems. And, mindful of the situation evolving in Iraq, it noted that such defense systems are ''no longer (the) sole property of the superpowers.''

The agency also said the plane's sophisticated guidance system should allow it to deliver weapons precisely, ''minimizing damage to non-military sites.'' Iraq's air defenses are not too sophisticated but Libya has modern air defenses.

The Pentagon said naval operations will be enhanced ''by the A-12's ability to penetrate covertly deeper into enemy territory, unrefueled, to strike targets beyond the reach of current sea-based aircraft, and bring the crews safely home.''

Among the systems being incorporated into the plane are an automated electronic cockpit with systems to aid in finding and avoiding threats. Battle damage and fires, said the Pentagon, will be minimized by charging the self-sealing fuel tanks with inert nitrogen. It also will have backup electrical and hydraulic systems, will incorporate fiber optics and very high speed integrated circuitry.

(AUG. 17) UPI - South African police say nine more people are dead in fighting between rival black groups in Soweto. Five days of fighting have claimed at least 175 lives and wounded another 850 people. The government and black activist Nelson Mandela are trying to organize peace talks, but the feuding parties can't agree on when to hold the meeting.

Police in the Philippines say about 40 communist rebels ambushed a police jeep outside a provincial capital 350 miles southeast of Manila today, killing the 13-year-old son of a station commander. The boy had hitched a ride to meet his father. Authorities say the police fought back, killing six of the rebels.

A Moslem rebel group in India is claiming responsibility for rocket attacks on two hotels in Srinagar. One hotel housed civilians, the other was used as a barracks for government soldiers. NO one was hurt by the shelling. Rebels say they will attack defense installations and government buildings.

U-S prosecutors say they will appeal a federal judge's order to release a Mexican doctor suspected in the 1985 slaying of federal drug agent Enrique Camarena. A U-S District Court last week ordered the suspect repatriated to Mexico on grounds his arrest violated international law. But U-S attorneys today asked the court to hold off on sending the suspect back pending an appeal.

TOKYO (AUG. 17) UPI - The government has begun enforcing emergency measures to stabilize domestic oil supplies and ease the impact of sweeping sanctions Japan imposed against Iraq and Kuwait, officials said Friday.

The Petroleum Industry Association welcomed the action and said oil companies would make an all-out effort to maintain a stable supply of crude oil and refined petroleum products.

Japan, the world's third-largest oil-consuming nation, is almost totally dependent on foreign oil for domestic petroleum needs.

Japan's sanctions, implemented following Iraqi invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2, embargoed trade with the two countries - including oil imports - and froze its $2.7 billion aid commitment to Iraq.

The two Persian Gulf nations each supplied about 6 percent of Japan's annual oil imports.

Natural Resources and Energy Agency officials said the emergency measures fashioned Thursday will allow the government to release about 2.4 million barrels of oil to be set aside for use in August and September.

Oil refiners also will be permitted to increase production of petroleum products, such as gasoline, to meet domestic needs, officials said.

Japan consumed about 5 million barrels of oil a day and imported 4.5

million barrels a day in 1989, according to the BP Statistical Review of World Energy. Imports from Kuwait amounted to about 126,000 barrels a day in 1989.

The government had planned to increase its stockpile by an additional 18.7 million barrels during the current fiscal year, which ends March 31, 1991. It currently holds 195.4 million barrels - equivalent to a 54-day supply in its stockpile.

In addition to the government stockpile, oil companies are required to keep at least an 82-day supply of crude oil in their reserves. They currently have about an 88-day supply, the officials said.

They said the new package allows oil companies to lower the stockpile level if the world oil market becomes tighter.

''Such a situation, however, is unlikely to occur until October at the earliest since Japanese oil companies have already secured supplies for August and September,'' said Naoki Kuroda, director general of the agency's Petroleum Department.

The agency officials said the new measures were aimed at preventing Japanese oil companies from purchasing crude oil on the spot - or open - market at unreasonably high prices.

In previous oil crises in 1973-1974 and 1979-1980, Japanese oil companies were accused of hunting for high-priced oil on the international spot market, where oil is sold to the highest bidder, and drew criticism from overseas.

Japanese refiners will be allowed to process an additional 22.4 million barrels of crude oil into petroleum products, the officials said. The volume is equivalent to 2 percent of the oil processed by Japanese oil companies annually.

The officials said Japan refined 1.15 billion barrels of oil products in 1989.

''The government's decision includes what we have been asking for and therefore is welcome,'' said a representative of the PIA. ''Each oil company will make its utmost (effort) to maintain a stable supply.''

The PIA said a decision by Saudi Arabia to cut its oil supplies to Japan by 16 percent in September will have little impact on the domestic supply situation.

Five oil companies have contracted to import 50,000 barrels of Saudi oil a day. The PIA noted Saudi's supply cut amounts to only about 1 percent of Japan's total oil imports.

OTTAWA (AUG. 17) UPI - Increased exports of cars, trucks and automotive parts pushed Canada's trade balance with the United States to $1.9 billion in June, up from $712 million in May, according to preliminary trade figures released Friday by Statistics Canada.

The increased trade with the United States boosted Canada's overall trade balance to $1.4 billion in June, up $935 million from the previous month. Deficits posted with Canada's other principal trading areas in June included a $111 million deficit with the European Economic Community.

The federal government's data gathering agency also reported that Canadian merchandise exports in June totaled $10.9 billion, up 5.3 percent from May. Exports for the first half of 1990 increased 2.1 percent over the same period of 1989 and 4.3 percent over the second half of last year.

At the same time, imports dropped sharply in June to $9.4 billion, the lowest level since July last year. Imports in the first half of 1990 totaled $57.9 billion, up 1.6 percent over the second half of 1989.

Jean-Pierre Simard, a trade analyst with Statistics Canada, said exports of cars, trucks and automotive parts in June increased $604 million over May. Ninety percent of those exports, according to Simard, went to the United States.

Other significant increases in exports were recorded for newsprint, industrial and agricultural machinery and natural gas.

NEW YORK (AUG. 17) UPI - Scores of homosexual activists rallied Friday outside the Manhattan headquarters of Philip Morris, protesting the company's financial support of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

The tobacco state lawmaker has been an outspoken foe of explicit AIDS prevention programs and homosexuality and recently sponsored legislation to ban grants to the National Endowment of the Arts for works including homoerotic art.

''We're demanding that Philip Morris publicly denounce its past support of Jesse Helms and his legislation of hate and death,'' said AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power, or ACT UP, organizer Dino Rossi, who was joined by about 50 protesters.

Rossi said the company is ''the largest corporate contributor to the Helms campaign.'' Helms has been an effective advocate for the tobacco industry, an important factor to his state's economy.

Tobacco products provide about $18 billion in annual revenue to Philip Morris, which also owns the Miller Brewing Co. and Kraft General Foods, said company spokesman George Knox.

After a 20-minute noon meeting with Philip Morris officials at the company's Park Avenue headquarters, the group promised to continue promoting a month-old national boycott of Marlboro cigarettes and Miller beer.

''I asked them to reconsider their boycott and consider the fact that since 1987, Philip Morris has contributed nearly $700,000 to AIDS-related causes,'' Knox said.

''I told them that despite their effort to boycott our products, we would continue to find ways to be supportive of efforts dealing with this national health issue,'' he said, referring to AIDS. ''That would not extend to denouncing Jesse Helms.

Knox said he was unaware of studies cited by ACT UP showing cigarette use hastens the progression from AIDS infection to full-blown AIDS.

Response to the boycott has largely come from homosexuals in 35 cities around the country, many of them refusing to stock or advertise Miller beer, Rossi said.

''They'll feel Jesse Helms. They'll feel our wrath,'' he said of Philip Morris.

On Aug. 9, the Conservative Campaign Fund's Re-Elect Jesse Helms committee filed a complaint with the Federal Election Commission, charging ACT UP and individual activists with trying to influence a federal election with a boycott action, something ACT UP says is legal, Rossi said.

SOWETO, South Africa (AUG. 17) UPI - Rival factions fought scattered battles in the streets of the nation's largest black city Friday in a fifth day of violence that brought the death toll to 188.

Friday's violence followed the apparent failure of a peace initiative late Thursday in which the government and African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela agreed to try to establish ''peace forums' of rivals in the strife. There were no peace talks Friday and hopes for an early truce appeared grim. Among 22 people killed in Soweto Friday was a 13-year-old boy, shot in the head by a white policeman in a narrow alley between houses while lawmen were chasing a group of youths, witnesses said.

Winnie Mandela, wife of black leader Nelson Mandela, rushed to the scene to console the child's hysterical mother and accused the police of ''running amok, killing the community.'' Winnie Mandela denied the youths had earlier attacked a rival faction.

Other people died in open lots or in barracks-like hostels - most clubbed or hacked to death by rival fighters wielding knives, machetes and tribal fighting sticks. Police fired tear gas, birdshot and rubber bullets throughout the day to disperse rival mobs, but were unable to prevent them from regrouping.

Thousands of Soweto residents stayed away from work, afraid to risk the wrath of gangs roaming through the sprawling city of 2 million or being caught in cross fire. Rumors spread of people being indiscriminately killed or beaten.

The conflict spilled over into Soweto Thursday from three townships east of Johannesburg. Police spokesman Col. Tienie Halgryn put the death toll in five days of bloodletting at 188 and said at least 850 were wounded.

''Police are responsible for very few casualties,'' he said.

The African National Congress, whose supporters are battling followers of the exclusively Zulu Inkatha Party, blamed the conflict on ''sinister forces'' who want to undermine the ANC as the leading anti-apartheid movement in South Africa.

The ANC said in a statement that the violence, the worst in four years of fighting between the movement and Inkatha, was part of a ''destabilization campaign,'' apparently hinting the police had a hand in directing the conflict in favor of Inkatha because of the Zulu group's firm ties to the white government in Pretoria.

Inkatha leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi denied his organization was responsible, saying, ''We have always opposed the use of violence.''

Pretoria has also rejected charges of partiality, and police branded the fighting a tribal battle between Zulus and Xhosas.

Other analysts blamed the latest conflict on a combination of tribal rivalries between Zulus and Xhosas and Buthelezi's attempts to stake out apower base in advance of formal negotiations with the government on a post-apartheid constitution.

Minister of Law and Order Adriaan Vlok and Mandela agreed at an emergency meeting in Soweto late Thursday to establish a ''peace forum'' of rivals, mediated by police, to end the strife. But no talks were held Friday.

President Frederik de Klerk was reportedly trying to draw Buthelezi into the talks after holding an emergency meeting with Mandela Thursday.

''No peace talks have begun yet,'' police talks liaison officer Capt. Joseph Ngobeni said. ''We are having trouble getting these people to make a time. ... This could take days to get under way.''

He said police could not stop mobs from clashing sporadically. ''We can't monitor everything, but we have patrols all over the area.''

The rival groups are made up mainly of migrant mine workers, Zulus of the Inkatha movement and Xhosa members of the ANC.

Hundreds of the antagonists have waged battle in Soweto and other townships across rocky fields and around hostels. They have erected barricades of rocks and burning tires and randomly attacked motorists.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 17) UPI - Food prices will go up 5 percent to 7 percent this year, the government said Friday, sharply raising its forecast because of double-digit price increases for eggs, fruit, pork and dairy products.

If correct, it would mean the second year in a row of sizable price increases. Food prices rose an average of 5.8 percent during 1989, the largest increase since 1981.

The Agriculture Department initially projected food price inflation of 3 percent to 5 percent for this year. It boosted its estimate by 2 points because of higher prices for some products in the first half of the year and the uncertain outlook for fuel costs.

''This assumes most of the evolving oil price shock will take until next year to spill over into food prices,'' the department said in a monthly Agricultural Outlook summary.

The Economic Research Service said fruit prices were up 14.3 percent for the first six months of the year. Egg prices were up 11.1 percent, pork up 11.2 percent and dairy products up 10.7 percent.

The figures did not take into account record-high retail pork prices during July.

''However, most of the year's increases probably took place in the first half,'' the summary said. ''Gains in the second half are expected to be more modest.''

Fresh fruit and vegetable prices skyrocketed early this year in the wake of the Christmastime freeze that chilled the South. Dairy prices have stayed at strong levels this year despite an upturn in production. An expected 2 percent decline in beef, pork, lamb and veal production is keeping prices firm.

The Agriculture Department forecasts are based on the average price change for the entire year.

Other government agencies, such as the Labor Department, issue inflation and food price figures based on month to month changes. On Thursday, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported a 0.4 percent rise in food prices in July, a rate equal to the overall inflation rate for the month.

''Because of the rapidly changing situation, it's unclear how much and how fast the increases will ripple through food prices,'' the summary said.

DETROIT (AUG. 17) UPI - Chrysler Corp. said Friday it is offering for the first time buyouts to union-represented hourly and salaried workers with a minimum of one year of experience in an effort to thin its workforce.

Chrysler spokesman Lee Sechler said that so far, 450 workers have opted for what the No. 3 automaker calls its Voluntary Termination Employment Program (VTEP).

The buyout offer was started late last month and runs until August 24. Both Chrysler and the United Auto Workers union officials said the program stems from their 1988 labor contract, and has nothing to do with labor negotiations now underway to replace that two-year pact with a new agreement by Sept. 14.

''This is something that is up to the individual, more or less a golden handshake,'' said UAW spokesman Bob Barbee, adding that the union has no objection ''if it is a fair and equitable agreement between both sides.''

There are no age limitations under the VTEP program. Workers will be off Chrysler's payrolls by Aug. 31, Sechler said.

Chrysler had been offering until July 31 a program under which workers at least 55 years old with a minimum 10 years' experience were granted special early retirement provisions. About 500 workers took advantage of that offer, Sechler said.

''This is not a special early retirement program and these are not layoffs '' Sechler said. ''It's a buyout offer.''

Chrysler said it expects about 600 workers company-wide will take advantage of the offer by the cutoff date. Some skilled jobs are exempt, depending on the needs of the carmaker.

''There is no real pattern to who has been signing up,'' Sechler said. ''It ranges from people who have a dual family income to someone who has a special skill and wants to start their own business.''

Like other companies, Chrysler is looking for ways to reduce costs. But the carmaker declined to say if such an offer would be repeated, or if it might be forced to lay off additional workers.

''It's a question of how do you become lowest-cost producer and still offer quality products?'' Sechler said.

(AUG. 17) UPI - Oil companies, battling charges of price gouging in the midst of the Mideast crisis, said Friday rising crude prices were testing the limits of their restraint on gasoline prices.

Phillips Petroleum Co. raised its average wholesale gasoline price by a penny a gallon Friday, on top of a rise of 20.2 cents a gallon since the invasion Aug. 2. Chevron Corp. raised prices by a penny a gallon for dealers in the San Francisco Bay Area, on top of increases of five cents to ten cents a gallon since the invasion.

Several major oil companies agreed to freeze gas prices last week after President Bush urged them not to take advantage of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait to increase profits.

But crude oil prices have continued to skyrocket since the president's call, rising more than $1 to $28.40 a barrel in early afternoon trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Oil buyers are concerned that prices could rise further if fighting breaks out between Iraq and the United States in the oil-rich Persian Gulf.

Gas prices, which have shot up as much as 20 cents a gallon in some parts of the country, have not kept pace with the price of crude, oil companies said. "We are under-recovering our costs. Our margins are less than they were in July," Phillips Petroleum spokesman Jere Smith said. "We were not gouging. We were reflecting the market price."

Atlantic Richfield Co. said it was evaluating its ten-day price freeze on a "day-to-day basis." Since the freeze went into effect, 270 Arco stations have run dry, the company's daily volume has risen 12 percent, and to meet demand it was forced to buy gasoline on the spot market for $1 a gallon, compared with 65 cents before the invasion, spokesman Douglas Elmets said.

"Obviously it's putting a strain on the system," Elmets said. "We want to hold the line as long as possible in compliance with the president's request."

On Thursday, Amoco Corp. and Unocal Corp., two of the nation's largest gasoline marketers, lifted their freeze on wholesale gasoline prices. Mobil, which never imposed a freeze, said it planned to take out newspaper ads in Los Angeles next week to tell consumers why its wholesale prices have risen 8 cents a gallon.

Since the invasion, the average retail price for a gallon of unleaded gasoline has risen 13.6 cents, according to the Automobile Association of America. Crude oil prices were up Friday about $7 a barrel from levels before the invasion.

There are 42 gallons in a barrel of crude, and each $1-a-barrel increase in world oil prices theoretically means a rise of 2.3 cents a gallon at the pump.

MOSCOW (AUG. 17) UPI - Soviet leaders called Friday for firm U.N. action to halt Iraq's ''blatant violation of international law,'' stopping just short of open support for a U.N. military force in the region.

President Mikhail Gorbachev and Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze made separate statements condemning Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and calling for collective international action.

Shevardnadze repeated the Soviet Union's proposal that the U.N. Security Council's Military Staff Committee, representatives of the armed forces chiefs of staff from the council's five permanent members, become actively involved in coordinating world response to Iraq.

''All countries ... should take all possible steps to see that U.N. Security Council resolutions are fulfilled,'' Shevardnadze said at a joint news conference with visiting West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher. ''This is not a simple task, and we are ready to cooperate on this issue.''

''If we manage to get the involvement of the Military Staff Committee, the resolutions of the Security Council would have more weight and other results would be obtained,'' Shevardnadze said.

''If tensions continue, I think the Security Council will act more decisively,'' Shevardnadze said.

Shevardnadze refused to say whether the Soviet Union would vote in the Security Council to set up a U.N. military force in the Middle East.

''It should be decided at expert levels which measures are required, which actions are required,'' he said. ''So far, this question (of a U.N. military force) is not on the agenda.''

The Soviet foreign minister refused to criticize the massive U.S. military buildup in the region, saying: ''At present we've got good mutual understanding with the United States on this matter.''

Gorbachev, speaking to participants in a military exercise in Odessa, warned of the danger of a full-scale war and issued his strongest condemnation so far of Iraq's invasion and annexation of Kuwait.

''We have witnessed an act of perfidy and a blatant violation of international law and the U.N. charter - in short, a violation of everything the world community now pins its hopes on as it seeks to put civilization on the tracks of peaceful development,'' Gorbachev said.

''The use of force to redraw borders, especially in order to annex a sovereign country, threatens a perilous chain reaction endangering the whole world community,'' he said.

Gorbachev added that the Soviet Union is especially concerned because the ''act of aggression was committed with the help of our weapons, which we agreed to sell to Iraq only to maintain its defense capability rather than to seize foreign territories and whole countries.''

The official Tass news agency said the first group of 230 Soviet citizens to be evacuated from Kuwait was due to arrive at the Iraqi-Jordanian border Friday night.

Soviet officials said earlier in the week that Iraq was allowing the overland evacuation of women, children and invalids among the estimated 8,000 Soviet citizens in Iraq. The fate of Soviet men who had been working in Iraq had not been determined.

Shevardnadze said the Soviet Union was also in negotiations with Iraq on its order that foreign embassies in Kuwait be shut down by Aug. 24.

''We would like to avoid such a step,'' he said. ''You know our assessment of the Iraqi agression. We are negotiating now with Iraqi representatives. We will see the outcome of our efforts in the coming few days.''

KATMAI NATIONAL PARK, Alaska (AUG. 17) UPI - A tour bus slid off a gravel road and overturned in a remote national park, injuring 22 sightseers, the National Park Service said Friday.

Six seriously injured passengers were flown 300 miles to an Anchorage hospital for treatment of broken bones and internal injuries following Thursday's accident, park spokesman John Quinley said in Anchorage.

Six other passengers were treated for minor injuries in Naknek, a town near the wilderness park. Ten others were examined at the Naknek clinic.

Katmai National Park is so remote and undeveloped that the only access is by amphibious plane and getting stretcher cases out on floatplanes posed problems, Quinley said.

Katmai is known for its wild bears and a vast volcanic landscape left over from a huge 1912 eruption. Inside the park, there is a single gravel road from the Brooks Camp cabins and campground, where floatplanes drop off visitors, stretching 23 miles to the Valley of 10,000 Smokes.

A single bus, operated for the park service by a concessionaire, was half way to the volcanic valley Thursday when the driver stopped to let passengers look at scenery.

''The driver was pulling over to the side to stop to look at the view, and the bus went off the side of the road,'' Quinley said. ''It's not clear whether the road gave way or the driver got too close. The bus rolled on its side, did at least one complete revolution and landed on its tires.''

The accident occurred at 10:30 a.m. but because the bus radio was not working it took about 2 1/2 hours before park officials learned there had been an accident, Quinley said. He said the park service ''spent the rest of the day shuttling people to Brooks Camp and getting them on floatplanes. It took quite a while. ... A person on a stretcher fills up a floatplane pretty fast. It was quite an operation getting everyone out.''

BEDFORD, MA (AUG. 17) UPI - Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc. has agreed to take a cut on the interest payments it gets on a $500 million loan to Prime Computer Inc. in return for an increasing stake in the computer maker's parent company, Prime said Friday.

The agreement thus recognizes the growing difficulty of issuing junk bonds and turns what was supposed to have been a short-term "bridge loan" by Shearson into a growing equity position in the computer maker.

Interest on the loan, which was used in bringing the company private last year, would have jumped to 20 percent a year on Aug. 19 from 17 percent per annum previously, said a Prime spokesman, Joseph Gavaghan.

Under the terms of the new agreement and based on a fluctuating international standard, Shearson will get 12 percent a year, Gavaghan said. Prime thus will save $40 million a year in interest in the next 12 months.

In return, Shearson will get a 7.5 percent stake in DR Holdings, the closely held parent of Prime, as soon as the deal is completed, probably in the next few days, Gavaghan said.

The big brokerage will get another one percent for each quarter the loan remains outstanding up to a maximum of 25 percent of the company, Gavaghan said. Shearson already owns 19 percent of DR Holdings.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AUG. 17) UPI - President Violeta Chamorro has asked the National Assembly to pardon the killers of her husband, Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, whose 1978 assassination helped fuel the Sandinista revolution, a Sandinista newspaper said Friday.

In a letter to Assembly President Miriam Arguello, dated Aug. 13, Chamorro said ''As an affected party, I have expressed to the National Assembly my feelings to forgive and forget those who were the material authors of the assassination and other connected crimes against my husband, Dr. Pedro Joaquin Chamorro Cardenal. Therefore, I solicit their pardon within the spirit of reconciliation that I have espoused.''

The letter was printed in part Friday in the Sandinista newspaper, Barricada. A spokesman for President Chamorro refused to comment.

Chamorro, who defeated former Sandinista President Daniel Ortega in February elections, vowed in her April 25 inauguration address to pardon all political prisoners held captive by the Sandinistas, including those who killed her husband.

The letter also called for the release of 82 other political prisoners. It specifically mentioned the five prisoners who were convicted of carrying out the actual assassination - Silvio Pena, Domingo Acevedo, Silvio Vega, Harold Cedeno and Juan Ramon Acevedo.

Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, former publisher of the newspaper La Prensa, is considered a martyr by virtually all Nicaraguans - both Sandinistas and supporters of Violeta Chamorro's National Opposition Union coalition. His face appears on the new Cordoba Oro money.

He was slain in his car in 1978 in a hail of bullets in front of the National Assembly, apparently in retaliation for his harsh criticism of U.S.-backed dictator Anastasio Somozo Debayle. The killing outraged Nicaraguans and propelled many to support or join the revolutionary movement, which had been sputtering along for years. Somoza was overthrown the next year.

After the revolution, the killers were rounded up and tried. Pena, Domingo Acevedo and Vega were each sentenced to 30 years in prison, while Cedeno and Juan Acevedo were sentenced to 21 years each.

Somoza's son, Anastasio Somoza Portocarrero, who now lives in Miami, was accused at the time along with another man, Fausto Zelaya, of helping to plot the killing. The two were given asylym by the United States, however, and never stood trial.

Meanwhile, the first Somoza to return to Nicaragua since the time of the revolution arrived in Managua this week. Luis Ramon Sevilla Somoza, 43, is the son of the former dictator's sister, Lilliam Somoza Debayle, and of the former Nicaraguan ambassador to the United States, Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa.

President Chamorro, who continues to publish La Prensa as a mouthpiece of her government, was a Somoza critic like her husband. She was a member of the ruling junta for a short period after the revolution, but she later became disenchanted with the Sandinistas Marxist ideologies.

BONN, West Germany (AUG. 17) UPI - Negotiations to merge the two Germanys hit a new snag Friday when East Germany's Social Democratic Party insisted it would not support a key unification treaty under its present form.

Senior government officials in Bonn warned that if the Social Democrats in East Berlin do not back the treaty, unification would be set down in a transitional law passed unilaterally by the West German Parliament.

Otto Graf Lambsdorff, chairman of the Free Democratic Party - the junior partner in the West German government coalition - said he would reluctantly support such an option, which he said would look like an ''anschluss,'' referring to the Nazi annexation of Austria in 1938.

East Germany's Social Democratic leaders will hold a special session Sunday at which they are expected to endorse a decision by the party leadership to quit the government coalition of Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said Friday the decision concerned only East Germany, but he urged the Social Democrats not to withold support for the Unification Treaty. The party's votes are essential to obtain the two-thirds parliamentary majority required to pass the document.

Social Democratic leader Wolfgang Thierse said, however, that ''if the unification treaty is not considerably improved, we can only vote with a no.''

The party says the treaty, which deals with the legal, financial and technical aspect of unification, does not give East Germans enough guarantees of social security.

Government officials in Bonn were considering the possibility of passing a ''transitional law'' if the Social Democrats do not support the treaty.

The option entails that East Germany declare its wish to accede and hands over power to the West German government. A number of East German deputies would join the West German Parliament but with little power.

Lambsdorff said this option would leave East Germans little influence over their own fate.

Chancellery Minister Rudolf Seiters warned that the East German Social Democrats and their West German sister-party would ''bear the responsibility for the grave consequences.''

TUCSON, AZ (AUG. 17) UPI - Foster Grant Corp., one of the leading manufacturers of sunglasses, has filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of federal bankruptcy laws, the company announced Friday.

Company officials said the bankruptcy petition was filed Thursday in Tucson to avoid an anticipated cash flow problem and that it was necessary to help Foster Grant achieve a sound business footing.

Chapter 11 gives a company protection from creditors while it develops a plan for reorganization.

Foster Grant employs about 125 people in its main distribution center in Tucson. It has about 250 employees at production, molding and assembly operations in Nogales, Mexico, and about 100 employees at its Technical Products Division in Leominster, Mass., a suburb of Boston.

Foster Grant had sales of more than $50 million in 1989, 75 percent of that in sunglasses. It also manufactures reading glasses and products for the computer, automotive, sporting goods and electro-mechanical industries.

Company officials said sales have dropped because of fierce competition from products manufactured in the Far East. Foster Grant is the only mass-market sunglass company in the United States that makes its own sunglasses and reading glasses.

CLEVELAND (AUG. 17) UPI - A lawyer representing New York Yankees owners says baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent threatened to take ''retaliatory action'' against anyone who takes part in a suit filed by two minority owners against Major League Baseball.

Cleveland attorney Mark B. Cohn would not go into detail on who Vincent had threatened or what type of measures the commissioner allegedly had proposed to take but said he was upset by Vincent's actions.

''I'm going to raise the issue of the commissioner threatening people that if they participate in this lawsuit he's going to take retaliatory action against them,'' Cohn said before going into the chambers of U.S. District Judge Alice Batchelder Friday afternoon.

A spokesman for Vincent said Cohn's statements were inaccurate.

''We haven't threatened anybody, but we have asked the limited partners where they stand on the issue,'' Richard Levin said.

There are 18 limited partners.

Cohn is representing two Yankees minority owners in their efforts to void an agreement between Major League Baseball and George Steinbrenner that forces the team's general partner to relinquish control of the team by Monday, Aug. 20.

Minority owners Daniel McCarthy and Harold Bowman filed the suit.

Meanwhile, both Steinbrenner and Robert Nederlander, nominated by the Yankees limited partners to take over as general partner on an interim basis, issued statements saying they were not a party to the lawsuit.

Attorneys for Steinbrenner, however, issued a statement late Friday that called on baseball owners to investigate Vincent's actions.

''In light of the serious allegations raised by the lawsuit, including tampering with the sworn testimony of Mr. Steinbrenner and others, we believe a complete and thorough investigation of the commissioner's actions must be conducted,'' said the statement. ''Accordingly, the owners should appoint an independent counsel to do this immediately.''

The statement also said ''If these charges are true, then clearly the best interests of baseball have been badly served.''

Batchelder and attorneys from both sides met privately twice Friday to discuss what was termed ''preliminary matters'' by one of Batchelder's law clerks. A hearing on the suit will begin at 9 a.m. EDT Monday.

The suit, filed Thursday, seeks to prohibit Vincent from enforcing an agreement signed July 30 by Steinbrenner after an 11-hour meeting with the commissioner, in which Steinbrenner agreed to give up control of the team. The partners voted Wednesday to have Nederlander take over, pending approval of baseball owners.

McCarthy, a Cleveland tax attorney, is one of Steinbrenner's lawyers.

In a letter sent to his limited partners last week, Steinbrenner reportedly cautioned them against taking any legal action against the commissioner. Steinbrenner stressed that he was opposed to such action, reiterating that any involvement on his part would be a direct violation of the agreement he signed with Vincent.

The statement issued Friday by his attorneys said Steinbrenner will comply with Vincent's order.

Levin also said Nederlander sent Vincent a letter stating that he was not part of the lawsuit.

''I wish to advise you that this action was brought without my consent or participation,'' Nederlander wrote to Vincent.

The suit claims baseball, Vincent and special investigator John Dowd find Steinbrenner ''fiercely unpopular'' and believe he is a ''blight on baseball.'' It also alleges that Vincent ''has been waiting for the opportunity and excuse to rid himself and the game of this blight.''

Vincent ordered Steinbrenner to step down and to cease all activity dealing with the day-to-day running of the ballclub because of his dealing with admitted gambler Howard Spira. The commissioner said Steinbrenner's conduct had not been in the best interests of baseball.

Steinbrenner paid Spira $40,000 last year but the suit claims baseball knew of Steinbrenner's relationship with Spira and that ''Steinbrenner (had) no reason to believe that the contacts with Spira were in any way improper or prohibited, but also that the commissioner's office condoned and approved of those contacts.''

''(McCarthy and Bowman) claim they are entitled to have Steinbrenner be the managing general manager of the New York Yankees and the commissioner is interfering with that relationship,'' Cohn said.

Cohn said McCarthy and Bowman think Vincent's ruling was ''wrongfully based'' and they ''object to the way the investigation and hearing were conducted.''

The minority owners are seeking a temporary restraining order and preliminary and permanent injunctions barring Vincent and Dowd from carrying out their penalty against Steinbrenner.

The suit charges Vincent with carrying out a plan to drive Steinbrenner from baseball. The suit said Vincent used ''vague and ill-defined powers vested in the commissioner'' to force Steinbrenner to step down.

The suit also claims that ''no commissioner has ever imposed a penalty for the violation of a previously unannounced standard.''

NEW YORK (AUG. 17) UPI - The text of a statement released Friday by attorneys Paul J. Curran and Stephen E. Kaufman on behalf of New York Yankees general partner George Steinbrenner regarding a suit filed in U.S. District Court in Cleveland by Yankees minority owners against Major League Baseball:

''Mr. Steinbrenner is not a party to the lawusit filed in Cleveland (Thursday) and is on record as opposing its filing. He has been complying, and will continue to comply with, the July 30 agreement with the commissioner, and he expects the commissioner to do the same.

''However, in light of the serious allegations raised by the lawsuit - including tampering with the sworn testimony of Mr. Steinbrenner and others - we believe a complete and thorough investigation of the commissioner's actions must be conducted. Accordingly, the owners should appoint an independent counsel to do this immediately.

''The critical issue is whether these allegations are true or false. The owners, the players, and above all the fans, deserve to know the truth. If these charges are true, then clearly the 'best interests of baseball' have been badly served.

''These charges are far too serious to be dismissed summarily, to be covered up, or to be avoided by hiding behind legal technicalities.''

ATLANTIC CITY, NJ (AUG. 17) UPI - State casino regulators on Friday approved a reorganization plan to bring Merv Griffin's Resorts International casino hotel out of bankruptcy.

The ruling by the state Casino Control Commission came one day after U.S. Bankruptcy Court Judge Rosemary Gambardella accepted the restructuring plan that will reduce Resorts' debt load to $434 million from the present $931 million.

Resorts has been under Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection since December.

''With the plan in place, Resorts will be able to generate sufficient cash flow to maintain its operations and service its debt even if it were to experience no growth,'' said Acting Commission Chairwoman Valerie Armstrong.

The plan received a less enthusiastic endorsement from the state Division of Gaming Enforcment, which advises the commission. DGE Director Anthony Parrillo has questioned the company's ability to meet its reduced debt in the face of declining gambling revenues.

The restructuring has already been approved by Resort's bondholders, who agreed to write off interest payments in exchange for 78 percent of the company's stock. Griffin has agreed to contribute $26 million of his own money.

Armstrong noted that the plan's chances for success hinge on the sale by Resorts of its casino hotel on Paradise Island in the Bahamas. Resorts hopes to sell the property for as much as $300 million.

Proceeds from the Bahamas property, combined with the money Resorts receives in rent from the Showboat casino hotel, which sits on land owned by Resorts, could conceivably pay off the company's entire debt, Parrillo said.

Under the restructuring plan, Resorts will not have to make payments on its principal for the next five years. The plan also reduces Resorts' interest payments over the next five years from $586 million to $274 million.

The commission also approved a part of the plan in which Resorts will provide $5 million to its bondholders to sue Donald Trump over his controversial purchase of the unfinished Taj Mahal Casino Resort from Griffin in November 1988.

Resorts, which in 1978 became the city's first casino hotel, has seen its gambling revenues and market share erode in recent years. Between 1983 and 1989, revenues slipped from $252 million to $227 while market share declinedfrom 14.3 percent to 8.1 percent. Through May of this year, market share had plunged to 6.8 percent.

The company plans to reverse that trend with an ambitious marketing strategy that caters to low-stakes gamblers and capitalizes on Griffin's name recognition. Griffin was a popular syndicated and network television personality for a number of years, after breaking into show business during the 1940s as a singer.

Gone are the high-priced entertainers and the private jets once used to fly in high rollers. Resorts will instead spend its money - some $35 million this year - on sprucing up the casino hotel. More than $4 million of that will be used to buy new slot machines.

Resorts also hopes to lure frugal gamblers away from the nearby Taj Mahal with a low-cost buffet.

KNIN, Yugoslavia (AUG. 17) UPI - Shotgun-toting citizens and rebellious police with machine guns Friday barricaded approaches to the largest Serbian town in Croatia to prevent security forces from stopping a referendum on Serbian autonomy.

''We are expecting them (security forces) to come from various directions '' said Laza Macura, the vice president of the municipal assembly of Knin. ''I think they hope to conquer towns around us and then come after us.''

He said the blockades were erected around Knin, 500 miles southwest of Belgrade, after government officials allegedly ordered police to raid two Serbian-majority villages before dawn to secure the police station armories.

State-run radio said that in one raid, villagers poured from their homes and ''expelled'' the police. There was no word on casualties.

Many observers fear the referendum on Serbian autonomy, set to begin Sunday, could lead to bloody confrontations between Yugoslavia's Orthodox Serbs and Roman Catholic Croats. Their historical hatred for each other has been revived and exploited by politicians of both ethnic groups while the country tries to shake 45 years of communist rule.

The Serbian-Croatian rivalry is regarded as the most serious of a number of ethnic disputes that have raised fears that the situation in Yugoslavia could lead to civil war.

The fervently nationalist Croatian government of President Franjo Tudjman has vowed to prevent 11 communities in the Knin region from holding the 3-week-long referendum that asks if the republic's 600,000 Serbs should have autonomy.

Serbs in other parts of Yugoslavia have threatened to join those in Knin if Tudjman employs force.

The raids were staged because the Croatian government apparently fears that Serbian police officers, who comprise 70 percent of its force, would help ensure the referendum goes ahead.

That concern was justified in Knin, where some 120 officers - the entire active and reserve force - refused to follow orders from the republic's capital of Zagreb to cooperate in halting the referendum.

About half a dozen rebel officers wearing ammunition pouches and carrying AK-47 assault rifles were posted outside the local radio station in the center of the town to defend its only source of public information.

Macura said an undisclosed number of officers were on patrol or were positioned at approaches to the town of 50,000 people, 88 percent of whom are Serbian.

''Our boys are with us,'' he said.

The largest Serbian community in Croatia was accessible only via a narrow backroad. The main highways were blocked by barricades of rocks, earth-filled dump trucks and uprooted metal median dividers.

''If Tudjman's army comes here, we will fight,'' said a youth at one barricade.

As evening fell, groups of men stood along the main street of Knin, the atmosphere pensive and tense.

The referendum is being sponsored by the Serbian Democratic Party, which three weeks ago declared autonomy for Serbs in Croatia and set up a 14-member council to guide their affairs.

Serbs in Croatia claim they will loose their rights and culture under Tudjman, a cashiered army general who in April led his extreme nationalist Croatian Democratic Society to victory in assembly elections that ended 45 years of communist rule.

Tudjman has been aggresively playing to Croatian sentiments, passing constitutional amendments downgrading the status of Croatia's Serbs from a nationality to a minority. He has also provoked Serbs with his call for Yugoslavia's conversion from a federation of six republics into a confederation of six independent states.

NEWARK, NJ (AUG. 17) UPI - A shareholder's suit charges that Frank Lorenzo illegally sold his position as chairman of Continental Airlines when SAS paid four times the going price for stock in the airline, a lawyer said Friday.

Continental stockholder M. Barnett Gillman of Lauderdale Lakes, Fla., asked a federal judge to declare the deal void. He also seeks damages and payment of his legal expenses.

The suit, filed last week in federal court in Newark, names Lorenzo, Continental Airlines Holdings Inc., Scandinavian Airline System, Jet Capital Corp. and members of the Continental board as defendants.

Gillman's lawyer, Andrew Davidovits of New York, said the case turns on ''an esoteric point of corporation law'' that bars corporate directors from selling their offices.

SAS paid $14 per share for 2.25 million shares of Continental stock Aug. 9 increasing the Scandinavian line's share of the Houston company to 16.8 percent. SAS also paid $21 million for Jet Capital which owns a large share of Continential and had been 80 percent owned by Lorenzo and its other directors.

SAS President Jan Carlzon replaced Lorenzo as Continental chairman and chief executive officer, although he remains a director.

''When Scandinavian Airlines, which already has a stake in the company, pays such an enormous premium, they're indirectly trying to do what they can't do directly, which is own an American airline,'' Davidovits said.

Continental spokesman Ned Walker said the agreement ''was thoroughly examined and approved by the independent directors.''

''It was clearly negotiated to be in the best interests of the shareholders,'' he added.

SAS acquired a 9.9 percent stake in Continental in October 1988. The two airlines also have a joint operating agreement to provide service from the United States to Scandinavia through Continental's Newark hub.

In his complaint, Gillman charged that Continental was mismanaged and loaded with junk-bond debt so that the company lost millions of dollars and its stock dropped from a high of $23 per share in 1989 to $4.50 per share Aug. 8.

A judge signed an order Tuesday speeding up discovery in the case and setting a hearing in September, Davidovits said.

(AUG. 17) UPI - The Pentagon says two U-S Navy ships intercepted two Iraqi vessels in the Persian Gulf today. But the Iraqi ships were allowed to proceed after the Americans determined they were empty. The two American ships involved were the U-S-S England, a guided missile cruiser... and the U-S-S Bradley, a guided missile frigate. The interception occurred off the Kuwaiti coast.

A fifth straight day of factional violence in the South African black city of Soweto today claimed the lives of 22 people... bringing the death toll to 188. The clashes between Zulu tribesmen and African National Congress supporters follow an emotional appeal for calm by Nelson Mandela. Most of the victims were clubbed or hacked to death with machetes by rival fighters.

The National Park Service says 22 people were hurt when a tour bus overturned in Katmai National Park in Alaska. Six seriously injured passengers were flown 300 miles to an Anchorage hospital following yesterday's accident. The accident occurred when the driver pulled over to the side of a gravel road to let the tourists look at the scenery. Katmai National Park is so remote that the only access is by amphibious plane.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 17) UPI - Two U.S. Navy warships made the first intercepts of Iraqi shipping in the Persian Gulf Friday when two Iraqi ships were intercepted off the coast of Bahrain.

The vessels were determined to be empty and the ships, which were headed to Iraq, were allowed to proceed, a Pentagon spokesman said.

The ships were not boarded because they appeared to be riding high in the water and on-scene commanders decided there was no need to check further for cargo after challenging the vessels.

The ships were about 15 miles south of the 27 North Latitude line below which U.S. forces in the Gulf are under orders to stop shipping to and from Iraq.

The two U.S. vessels involved, both attached to the Joint Task Force-Middle East that is patrolling the Gulf, were the guided missile cruiser USS England and the USS Bradley, a guided missile cruiser.

HAUPPAUGE, NY (AUG. 17) UPI - A Long Island man awaiting arraignment on a petty larceny charge wandered out of the courtroom and allegedly burglarized a judge's chambers, officials said Friday.

Administrative Judge Ira Block said Robert Elliby, 32, was waiting to be arraigned Thursday night when he wandered from a first-floor courtroom to the fourth-floor chambers of Judge John Mullen and allegedly stole a videocassette recorder.

The man also wandered into an adjacent room and allegedly snatched a desk-top clock.

But Block said Elliby's venture went awry when a janitor saw him walking down a hallway allegedly carrying the stolen items and notified building security.

Elliby was arrested at about 7 p.m. Thursday by a state district court officer, Suffolk County police said.

Block explained that the area where the burglary occurred is normally locked, but an entry door was under repair and the temporary door had no lock on it.

Block said he did not have any details of Elliby's arrest on the petty larceny charge.

In court Friday, Elliby was arraigned on both the petty larceny and burglary charges.

When Elliby was unable to post $5,000 bail, Judge Lawrence Newmark ordered him locked up in the county jail in Riverhead.

Elliby returns to court on Wednesday for a hearing on the charges.

BARTOW, FL. (AUG. 17) UPI - A man convicted of drowning his stepson in a toilet was sentenced Friday to life in prison, ending a precedent-setting case that led to reform in the state's child welfare system.

Polk County Circuit Judge Randall McDonald also sentenced Thomas Coe, 23, to 15 years in prison for aggravated child abuse in the July, 28, 1989, death of Bradley McGee, 2, of Lakeland. Coe dunked the boy headfirst into the toilet after the child soiled his pants.

Coe admitted during the trial that he dunked the toddler in the toilet, but said he did not intend to kill the boy during what he called toilet-training punishment.

Coe, who was shackled, showed no emotion during the 10-minute sentencing hearing in a packed courtroom.

The 15-year prison term was to run consecutively with the life term for first-degree murder, McDonald said. Coe will be eligible for parole in 25 years.

McDonald said he did not sentence Coe to death in the electric chair because a Fort Myers jury on July 30 split 6-to-6 at a death penalty hearing. A majority is needed for a jury to recommend death.

McDonald received dozens of letters and petitions from residents urging him to sentence Coe to death in the electric chair. McDonald, however, said earlier that he did not read the letters because he did not want them to sway his decision. The judge said it was the most letters he had ever received in a case.

The toddler's death resulted in unprecedented criminal charges against four child welfare workers and reform of the state's child welfare program with the passage of the Bradley McGee Act by state lawmakers.

Pam Kirkland, the foster mother who took care of Bradley McGee for a year and a half after he was abandoned by Thomas Coe and the toddler's mother, Sheryl McGee Coe, was upset with the sentence, but said, ''We will go on with our lives.''

''We will cherish our fond memories of Bradley,'' she said.

Kirkland had wanted to adopt the child, but state welfare workers decided to return the toddler to the Coes two months before his death.

Sheryl Coe pleaded no contest in March to second-degree murder and aggravated child abuse in Bradley's death as part of a plea bargain agreement and was sentenced to 30 years in prison.

Four child welfare workers were charged with failing to report child abuse following the toddler's death, and one also was charged with felony child abuse.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 17) UPI - The Justice Department filed a lawsuit Friday against Charles Keating to compel him to reveal his assets to federal regulators who look for restitution from the former Lincoln Savings and Loan chairman.

The Justice Department said it acted on behalf of the Office of Thrift Supervision seeking enforcement of a temporary cease and desist order issued by the OTS Aug. 9 concerning transactions by Keating and others as officers and directors of the failed Lincoln Savings and Loan of Irvine, Calif.

The OTS is the federal agency in charge of supervising the thrift industry.

Filed in federal district court in Los Angeles, the suit requires Keating to provide an accounting of his assets to the OTS, to refrain from transferring any assets out of the United States and to give the OTS 48 hours notice of any transaction in excess of $5,000.

The Justice Department said that discussions between a counsel for Keating and the government failed to produce an agreement on Keating's compliance with the OTS order, prompting the lawsuit.

In addition to filing the lawsuit, the Justice Department applied for a temporary restraining order to enforce the OTS' order immediately.

Regulators are seeking restitution from Keating and his associates for $40.9 million in losses from the failure of Lincoln Savings and Loan, which was seized by the government in April 1989.

The collapse of the federally insured Lincoln Savings is expected to cost taxpayers $2.5 billion, making it the most expensive thrift failure to date. Regulators said Keating operated the thrift in a reckless and often illegal manner.

Keating, who made millions in Arizona real estate before he bought Lincoln in 1984, claims the thrift's collapse cost him everything.

NEW YORK (AUG. 17) UPI - Bond investors, recalling that discretion is the better part of valor, stepped aside Friday after days of heavy losses on war and inflation fears to leave the Treasury market mostly moving sideways.

Heavy bloodletting in the market Thursday, when bond prices crashed and yields took flight on the news that retail prices surged 0.4 percent in July, led many players to leave the field of battle.

With the outcome of the U.S.-Iraqi standoff in the Persian Gulf as uncertain as ever, analysts said, there seemed little reason for active trading when the only direction bonds were likely to take was down.

''Basically, the bond market did nothing today,'' said Scott Winningham, chief market analyst for Stone & McCarthy Research Associates Inc. ''With the weekend coming up, I don't think people wanted to adjust positions.

''It was a pretty quiet day for the first time in a while,'' said money market analyst Kevin Flanagan of Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. ''But the market continues to have a negative bias to it.''

At close of trading, the benchmark 30-year bond, the 8 3/4 of 2020, was quoted at 98 to yield 8.94 percent, against 99 23/32 and 8.78 percent a week before. The drop of 1 3/4 points meant a loss of $17.50 for every $1,000 face value. But the long bond was unchanged in Friday's session.

As with the dollar, the question was whether bond prices would stay on the downward path they took when Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 9. Costlier oil has set inflation bells ringing in the bond market and depressed prices.

Expectations of higher inflation push down bond prices because inflation eats away at the fixed return of Treasury securities.

This week's report that the inflation-measuring consumer price index rose 0.4 percent in July added to the damage wrought by Iraq. On Thursday, the 30-year bond lost more than 1 1/2 points and its yield accordingly soared.

Bond yields have risen dramatically - by nearly a half percentage point on the long end since late July, when Iraqi President Saddam Hussein began his saber-rattling - but this has happened without creating much interest.

''There may be at 9 percent or above,'' said Flanagan, ''but at this level there don't seem to be any buyers stepping up to the plate.''

''Investors have, I think, fully adjusted for inflation,'' Winningham said adding: ''I think it remains to be seen where we go forward.''

Recession predictions ought to be improving bond prices, but players shrugged off news Friday of a 2.9 percent decrease in imports included in the government's monthly trade report for July. Other markets took this as yet another strong indicator of U.S. economic slowing.

''It had very little effect,'' Winningham said. ''In light of everything else that's happening, it just didn't seem to be that important.''

The total unpredictability of Mideast events aside, economic fundamentals are leaving the bond market with no place to go.

''A soft economy together with relatively high inflation is the classic prescription for investor paralysis,'' wrote James Kochan, chief fixed-income strategist for Merrill Lynch Capital Markets, in a newsletter.

The Iraqi-launched oil shock has probably tied the Federal Reserve's hand on lowering short-term interest rates to jog the economy, he said, for fear of unleashing inflation. Long-term bond prices usually rise when short-term rates come down, making fixed yields more attractive.

Winningham agreed the market consensus is that Fed policymakers won't lower the key Fed funds rate any time soon. ''Any expectation that they are going to ease has been totally eliminated from market prices,'' he said.

SEATTLE (AUG. 17) UPI - Nordstrom Inc. said Friday it would sign an agreement with the National Labor Relations Board settling six unfair labor practice complaints against the retailer.

''This settlement wipes the slate clean in terms of the unfair labor practices charges that have been filed by the union,'' said Joe Demarte, Nordstrom vice president for personnel, referring to the United Food and Commercial Workers union.

The UFCW has filed dozens of individual complaints alleging labor law violations by Nordstrom, which the union has been battling since last summer when a contract for about 2,000 unionized Nordstrom workers in the Puget Sound area expired.

''We felt it was more important to reach a settlement of the issues pending before the NLRB rather than continuing to debate the merits of the union's allegations,'' Demarte said.

The settlement would eliminate the need for a trial before an administrative law judge.

However, the agreement needs approval from the NLRB's regional director and the union. The union could appeal portions of the settlement it doesn't like, said Jim Sands, an NLRB attorney assigned to the case.

The six complaints encompass a wide range of allegations filed against Nordstrom by the union. They include refusal to provide information requested by the union in collective bargaining sessions; bargaining directly with unionized employees; refusal to provide information on the racial makeup of the company's supervisory staff; and discriminating against employees involved in union activities.

Sands said the terms of the settlement agreement require Nordstrom to agree to provide requested information, cease any activities that may violate labor laws, and post the agreement for 60 days.

Nordstrom also was accused of attempting to assist an employee drive to decertify the union, an action that led the NLRB to throw out the decertification petitions.

Herman Wacker, an attorney representing Nordstrom Employees for Accurate Representation, the employee group trying to oust the union, said NEAR would try again as soon as the settlement process is completed. He said that could take several months.

Joe Peterson, president of UFCW Local 1001, said the union was filing new complaints against Nordstrom and appealing the dismissal of other complaints by the NLRB.

''Our basic feeling is that Nordstrom's problems are far from over,'' Peterson said. ''Maybe they would like to get investors thinking that their problems are over, but that's not the case.''

NEW YORK (AUG. 17) UPI - The stock market, beaten down by worries about mounting tensions in the Middle East that kept wary investors on the sidelines, this week marked its fifth consecutive weekly drop.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 36.64 Friday to close at 2644.80, losing 71.78 points - 2.6 percent - on the week.

Broader market indexes followed suit, with Standard & Poor's 500-stock index losing 7.69 to end the week at 327.83 and the New York Stock Exchange composite index falling 3.96 to close the week at 180.19.

Declines pounded advances 1,348-531 among the 2,155 NYSE issues traded this week. Weekly Big Board volume totaled 739,842,760 shares, compared with 963,579,960 a week earlier and 744,546,730 shares a year ago.

The Mideast crisis pushed prices down and investors to the sidelines, said Michael Metz, market strategist with Oppenheimer & Co.

The market decline also was fueled by gloomy economic news, he said.

''The market really is plagued by a multitude of horrors here, ranging from the Persian Gulf, fear of recession, fear of higher interest rates and fear of inflation,'' Metz said.

''On this background, traders and investors are risk-averse. They choose to sell a bit and stay on the sidelines,'' he said. ''People see no inclination to get aggressive as buyers in the market.''

Prices closed mixed Monday in very light trading as cautious investors adopted a ''wait-and-see'' attitude toward the Middle East conflict.

Volume amounted to just 122,820,000 shares - the lowest since the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Unlike the American Stock Exchange and the Commodity Exchange Center, the New York exchange was unaffected by a power outage Monday that affected much of lower Manhattan. The outage was triggered by a fire at a Con Edison substation.

Stocks closed slightly higher in continued thin trading Tuesday as investors stayed on the sidelines. Given the concern over the Middle East, the stock market took little notice of a government retail sales report that generally was in line with economic forecasts, analysts said.

Stocks also closed up slightly Wednesday, buoyed by a sense of relief that tensions in the Middle East had not escalated dramatically. Also supporting the rally was optimism about a meeting Thursday between President Bush and Jordan's King Hussein, analysts said.

But stocks closed sharply lower Thursday, when the Dow industrials plummeted 66.83 points.

Prices dropped after a Labor Department report showing inflation at the consumer level rose 0.4 percent in July - higher than the 0.3 percent predicted by private economists.

Also pushing prices lower was news of the contents of an open letter from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, who accused Bush of lying to the American people and threatened that ''you are going to receive some American bodies in bags.''

Adding to the grim outlook was news that Jordan's monarch, contrary to earlier reports, brought no message to Bush from the Iraqi president.

''The market is basically a slave to the news in the Middle East,'' Edward Shopkorn, partner in charge of institutional equities at Mabon, Nugent & Co., said Thursday.

Prices fell again Friday but braked somewhat by the close, thanks to the expiration of August stock-index futures and options, analysts said.

''Although in the beginning of the week the Middle East was pushed to the sidelines, it's back to center stage and that's a problem,'' Trude Latimer market analyst with Josephthal & Co., said Friday.

''There's a feeling this could drag on interminably,'' she said.

Adding to the decline Friday was a Commerce Department report showing America's trade deficit dropped a surprising 34.7 percent in June to $5.07 billion, reflecting record exports. But the report also showed a weakening of imports. Private economists had expected a trade shortfall of about $7 billion for the month.

Analysts said that lower imports reflected sluggish consumer demand in a generally weak domestic economy - an economy bound to be hit harder in coming months by rising oil prices.

The NYSE's ''uptick'' rule kicked in both Thursday and Friday, during periods when the Dow was down 50 points. Under the rule, traders cannot execute sell orders on a stock in an arbitrage trade until the stock's price rises first.

The Dow Jones transportation average, sensitive to rising fuel prices, hit new lows for the year Thursday and Friday, when it dropped 15.87 to 923.91.

On the trading floor this week, Boeing was the most active issue, off 4 1/2 to 48 1/2.

Wal-Mart Stores followed, off 1 7/8 to 28.

IBM was third, off 5/8 to 101 3/8.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T lost 1 5/8 to 33 3/8, Philip Morris fell 5/8 to 45 1/4, General Electric tumbled 2 5/8 to 64 and General Motors sank 2 to 37 1/2. But Exxon rose 1/2 to 52 1/8.

On the American Stock Exchange, the Amex Market Value index fell 5.71 to close Friday at 333.61. Declines led advances 612-226 among the 995 issues traded.

Amex volume totaled 69,436,080 shares, compared with 85,757,990 traded a week earlier and 67,991,685 traded in the same week a year ago.

ENSCO led the Amex actives, up 1/4 to 4 5/8.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index fell 14.55 to end the week at 393.49.

(AUG. 17) UPI - Thunderstorms rumbled through the Plains, the Midwest and the South Friday, flooding parts of Texas and triggering downpours in Georgia, while temperatures fell on the West Coast and rose to 100 in Mississippi.

Although the Southern thunderstorms bought some relief from the heat, residents of four states helped the Southern Co. set a record for electricity consumption.

The company said customers in Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Mississippi used 28.3 million kilowatts of electricity Thursday to fight 90 degree-plus weather, beating the all-time mark of 27.4 million kilowatts.

Flash flood watches were posted in southeast New Mexico and southwest Texas as scattered showers and thunderstorms drifted through the southern Plains, the National Weather Service said.

Heavy rain caused street flooding overnight in the Texas Panhandle town of Hart, and strong winds overturned trees and damaged roofs in Midland.

Thunderstorms also rolled across southwest Minnesota. Related storms dropped heavy rain over parts of northwestern Iowa and northeastern Nebraska, the NWS said.

Streams rose to the top of their banks in eastern Iowa and northwest Illinois. Lowden, Iowa, recorded nearly 5 inches of rain Thursday night and Friday morning.

A slow-moving low-pressure trough stretching from North Carolina to central Alabama dotted parts of the South with thundershowers and dumped heavy rain overnight across parts of southeast Georgia.

An Army convoy truck hauling Stinger missiles apparently for shipment to the Middle East overturned in a heavy thunderstorm late Thursday near Savannah, Ga., dumping the weapons on Interstate 95 and slightly injuring the driver. The missiles did not explode and the wreckage was cleared in two hours, authorities said.

Morning lows ranged in the 50s and 60s across most of New England and the Middle Atlantic region.

In the West, a cooling trend that began Monday in much of California continued as the weekend approached, with most inland highs reaching the 80s instead of the 90s or higher. A weak Pacific cold front brought a chance of showers to the northwest part of California and the northern mountains.

Afternoon temperatures reached into only the 60s over Oregon and the Northern California coast.

Hot and humid weather stretched from the Southeast across the middle and lower Mississippi Valley to much of the Plains. Meridian, Miss., and Montgomery, Ala., reached 100 degrees.

Western firefighters neared victory over lightning-sparked wildfires that have blackened more than 1,000 square miles in seven states during the past two weeks. Only one major blaze in California - the state hardest hit by the wildfires - was expected to remain out of control beyond this weekend.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 17) UPI - With reservists waiting to hear whether President Bush will call them up to active duty, the Pentagon told commercial airlines Friday they must provide extra aircraft to haul personnel and cargo to Saudi Arabia.

The Civil Reserve Air Fleet was put on a first stage alert, Pentagon officials said, meaning 16 airlines were alerted to provide aircraft for military airlift needs. The Pentagon has relied heavily on charter flights to haul troops for Operation Desert Shield.

The Transportation Command said the airlines would provide up to 38 airplanes ''for several weeks.'' Planes included Boeing 747s, the McDonnell Douglas DC-10s and the Lockheed L-1011s.

The Civil Reserve Air Fleet is a program in which the Pentagon pays to beef up the strength of a variety of privately owned aircraft and equip them to handle military payload pallets.

It was the first time the program has been invoked in its 38-year history, officials said.

Transport Command officials did not release specifics on the number of troops or the type of cargo to be carried by the Civil Reserve Air Fleet.

Under the program, the Pentagon pays for the extra fuel the planes consume because of the extra weight in return for the right to commandeer the planes in national emergencies. There are 29 airlines in the fleet.

The program has three stages to allow the Military Airlift Command to tailor its request for planes to meet various circumstances. In the first stage, civilian airlines are asked to provide planes within 24 hours of a request. They would be used to augment routine MAC missions overseas as well as operations in the Middle East.

President Bush, meanwhile, considered calling up the military reserves and may activate a limited number of special personnel in response to rising tensions in the Persiana Gulf, his spokesman said Frdiay.

If reserve forces are activated to back up U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia, it will mark the first full-scale test of the post-Vietnam War restructuring of the American military.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater, in Kennebunkport, Maine, where the president is on vacation, indicated that support personnel - such as medical personnel and cargo handlers - may be needed to help fill the ranks of the tens of thousands of Americans sent to the Persian Gulf in the past two weeks.

Fitzwater said he does not anticipate a ''massive call-up'' of reserves, contrary to earlier reports. ''We'll try to keep this as small as possible '' he said.

The White House denied reports late Friday that Bush had decided to call the reserves into action, but it appeared a decision would be announced soon, based on a Pentagon reccommendation sent to Bush.

''The president has not made a decision on a call-up, but the Pentagon and the White House are having discussions,'' White House spokesman Doug Davidson said.

If reserves are activated, most would likely be assigned to duties in the United States. But Fitzwater said some might be sent Saudi Arabia.

''You need cargo handlers at all ends,'' the press secretary said. ''Doctors you probably need there. You can draw your own conclusions.''

Bush discussed the possible activation of reserves during a briefing Wednesday at the Pentagon and received a formal recommendation from Defense Secretary Dick Cheney within the past two days, Fitzwater said. He said Bush is expected to make a decision soon, but offered no timetable.

When the United States shifted to a volunteer force at the end of the war in Southeast Asia - dropping the draft - much of the chore of supporting combat units was deliberately shifted to National Guard and reserve forces.

While sending a significant number of front-line combat units abroad for an extended stay might suggest reserve units associated with the combat troops must be called up to help with logistics, Maj. Doug Hart, a Pentagon spokesman on reserve issues, said that is not necessarily the case.

Pentagon officials have not publicly addressed how reserve units would be employed, it was expected there would be no widespread shipment of reserves to Saudi Arabia because the bulk of the work to be done was in the United States, filling in for the soldiers who shipped out.

After the draft ended in 1973, the military went to what is known as the ''Total Force Policy,'' the decision to concentrate on active combat forces with the reserves and guard, which cost less to maintain, taking up the support chores. Presidential authority for call-ups without the permission of Congress at first was 50,000, but that was boosted to 100,000 in the early 1980s and to 200,000 a few years ago.

In at least one service, the Air Force, reservists are an integral part of day-to-day operations. Reserve crews on days off from civilian jobs routinely fly cargo jets and tankers to haul gear about and provide inflight refueling to fighters, bombers, reconnaissance planes and the like. They already are heavily involved on a volunteer basis in the air bridge that has been set up to ferry men, weapons and warplanes to the region.

More than two-thirds of the Army's combat support and combat service support is in Guard and Reserve Units. A full 93 percent of the Navy's cargo-handling capacity is in Reserve units. Almost two-thirds of the Marine Corps bulk fueling crews come from reservists.

The Army reserves consist of 593,832 men and women; the Navy reserves, 238,061; the Marine reserves, 80,128; and the Air Force reserves, 136,331.

(AUG. 17) UPI - U.S. warships intercepted two Iraqi vessels in the Persian Gulf Friday but let them proceed when it was found they were empty and the Pentagon alerted airlines their extra aircraft would be needed to haul cargo to Saudi Arabia.

Another Iraqi ship loaded with food sailed through the Suez Canal Friday toward a possible showdown with U.S. Navy ships patrolling the Red Sea to enforce an economic embargo imposed against Iraq for its Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

But as the U.S. stepped up its pressure on Iraq, President Saddam Hussein displayed a few manuevers of his own.

Iraq moved about 35 Americans it was holding in the Rashid Hotel in Baghdad to another downtown hotel, State Department officials in Washington said. U.S. officials in Baghdad were not permitted to visit the Americans and protested the move to the Iraqis.

The State Department declined to characterize the detained Americans as hostages, but both the White House and the State Department expressed concern about the new development.

The U.N. Security Council asked Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar to look into the plight of thousands of U.S., European and Japanese nationals held by Iraq in Baghdad and Kuwait city, presumably to ensure the multinational force in the gulf will not attack the two cities. The Soviet news agency Tass reported, however, that an undisclosed number of Soviet citizens were set free.

Diplomatic sources in Cairo also said Iraq had been monitored moving its troops from its border with Iran to the Saudi border in Kuwait, as Saddam's surprise peace initiative with long-time foe Iran eased pressure on Iraq's eastern frontier.

Tehran Radio reported that Iraq sent home 1,000 Iranians taken prisoner during the 1980-88 Iran-Iraq war in the first step of the peace program Saddam offered Iran earlier in the week.

White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater said President Bush may activate a limited number of reserve support personnel, such as medical workers and cargo handlers, to help fill the gap created by the gulf deployment.

The White House denied reports late Friday that Bush had decided to call the reserves into action, but it appeared a decision would be announced soon, based on a Pentagon recommendation sent to Bush.

The Pentagon, meanwhile, put the Civil Reserve Air Fleet on a first stage alert, meaning 16 airlines were alerted to provide aircraft for military airlift needs. The Pentagon has been relying heavily already on charter flights to haul troops for Operation Desert Shield.

The Civil Reserve Air Fleet is a program in which the Pentagon pays to beef up the strength of a variety of privately owned aircraft and equip them to handle military payload pallets. It was the first time the program has been invoked.

Under the program, the Pentagon pays for the extra fuel the planes consume because of the extra weight in return for the right to commandeer the planes in national emergencies. There are 29 airlines in the fleet.

In other major developments Friday:

- Thousands of Marines continued to pour into Saudi Arabia to bolster Operation Desert Shield and deter a possible attack by Iraqi troops in Kuwait. The morale of the U.S. troops remained high despite the blistering desert heat, an uncertain future and cultural differences with their Saudi hosts.

- The exodus of non-Iraqi Arabs and other foreigners from Iraq and Kuwait escalated as an estimated 16,300 people crossed the border at Ruweished, Jordan. It was not clear whether any Americans, British or other Western nationals were among the evacuees.

- Oil prices rocketed by more than a dollar a barrel in early trading Friday with markets concerned about possible hostilities in the gulf.

The White House brushed aside criticism of its unilateral decision to board and search suspect ships, saying it was acting within the bounds of U.N. economic sanctions imposed against Iraq.

The Pentagon announced Thursday it would enforce the U.N.-ordered trade embargo against Iraq by boarding and searching suspect ships and lobbing shots across the bows of vessels that fail to turn back.

In a statement issued Friday, the Pentagon said the guided missile cruiser USS England and the guided missile frigate USS Bradley challenged the two Iraqi ships at 1:17 p.m. EDT as the ships headed toward Iraq.

U.S. troops did not board either of the Iraqi ships, but determined they were empty and allowed them to proceed, according to the Pentagon statement, which did not say how it was determined the ships were empty.

A Pentagon source said Friday warships may also stop the Iraqi vessel Zein el Koas, which is reportedly carying food, because only shipments of medicine were exempt from the order.

''If (the cargo) is on the list and it's headed for the zone we're patrolling'' it is subject to interception, the source said.

Egypt's Middle East News Agency said the Iraqi vessel had passed through the Suez Canal Friday morning and was headed to the Red Sea. It's destination was not known, but the ship was north of the Jordanian Red Sea port of Aqaba which had accepted food shipments for Iraq up until Thursday.

The U.N.'s Perez de Cuellar has said he believes the interdiction of ships in the gulf goes beyond the intent of the resolution, which allows shipments of medicine, and food in the case of humanitarian need.

But Fitzwater said near Bush's vacation home in Kennebunkport, Maine, that the U.N. charter gave the United States the authority.

''We obviously believe that Article 51 authorizes our intercept activities '' Fitzwater said. ''We believe that the U.N. understands that.''

Fitzwater said if U.N. members disagree with the unilateral decision then the Bush administration was ''willing to discuss it, and we have discussed it in many ways.''

Diplomats in Cairo Egypt said Saudi Arabia has refused to allow five Iraqi tankers to dock at the Red Sea port of Yenbo, the terminus of an Iraqi oil pipeline that runs from Iraq across Saudi Arabia.

Meanwhile, diplomatic officials in London and Washington said Iraq did not move to round up 4,000 British nationals and 2,500 Americans in Kuwait who had been ordered to check into several hotels. They said few of the foreigners in the occupied city had turned up at the designated hotels by Friday and those who did found no Iraqi officials waiting to greet them.

''The aim of the Iraqis, I suspect, is to weaken the determination not just of ourselves, but of the Americans and of others, and to use our citizens to this end,'' said British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd. ''That is, of course, the tactic of the outlaw down the ages.''

U.N. diplomats said many nations have asked Perez de Cuellar to launch a humanitarian mission to get foreigners out of the two Mideast countries, and that the U.N. chief might begin an inquiry next week.

Japan's role in the developments broadened Friday with reports that Japanese nationals were being held against their will in Kuwait, and that Japan's foreign minister was traveling to the region in yet another effort to find a diplomatic solution to the crisis.

And Tehran Radio said the first batch of 1,000 Iranian prisoners of war were returned to Iran Friday, crossing the border at Khowrawi, 350 miles southwest of Tehran.

Iran has cautiously welcomed the overture and condemned U.S. intervention in the region, although it has also stood firm in its contention that Iraq should withdraw completely from the oil-rich Kuwait.

Middle East experts said Friday Saddam is backed by the military and key members of the Revolutionary Command Council in his confrontation with the West, but their long-term loyalty may be in doubt.

''As far as we can tell, the army is backing Saddam over Kuwait and over a possible confrontation with U.S. forces,'' one senior West European diplomat told United Press International in an interview. ''It would be a different story however once a conflict broke out in the gulf, Western forces inflicted heavy casualties on Iraq, and sanctions began to bite.''

Saudi students told Pentagon pool reporters they want U.S. soldiers to go home now that Arab forces have moved in to protect the kingdom from possible aggression.

''Iraq surprised us, and the American Navy got here fast,'' said Sultan al-Dhaher, 20, at King Fahd University. ''But now the forces of Egypt and other Arab countries are coming, and the Americans will be able to go ... The Holy Koran says that Christians don't always want to help you; they want to trick you.''

In another development, West German authorities arrested seven people accused of helping Iraq build poison gas installations and selling sensitive technology to Iraq.

And the Philippine government said it plans to file a protest to Iraq over reports Iraqi soldiers have raped an undetermined number of Filipino women hundreds of whom work as maids for wealthy Kuwaiti families.

Middle Eastern news reports said more than 1,000 people in Jordan and 100 in Lebanon staged pro-Iraqi demonstrations Friday.

U.S. defense officials in Belgium said the United States would withdraw from two NATO exercises scheduled for next month in Norway and West Germany because its forces were busy in gulf.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 17) UPI - An alleged drug kingpin and 16 of his top lieutenants, including his mother, were arrested Friday and accused of distributing more than $100 million in cocaine annually across the nation, authorities said.

Drug Enforcement Administration spokesman Mike Holm said the alleged ringleader, Thomas Clifford Whitmore, 26, is a ''major'' kingpin who had been operating for ''several years'' and distributed 2,200 pounds of cocaine a month, collecting $100 million a year in drug sales.

Whitmore was arrested at his home in Inglewood and faces a maximum life prison sentence if convicted, Holm said.

Whitmore's mother, Wilma Lee Whitmore, 44, was among the other 16 suspects who were arrested in a series of raids that began early Friday.

Arrest warrants also were issued for others more suspects who were expected to be apprehended, Holm said.

The network recruited members of two of Los Angeles' most notorious street gangs, the Bloods and the Crips, Holm said.

The investigation of the ring by the DEA Gang Drug Force was established two years ago to combat the spread of street gangs after Whitmore's car was stopped in Inglewood for speeding.

Inglewood Police Chief Ray Johnson said police found 2.2 pounds of cocaine in the car along with records detailing Whitmore's drug operation.

Whitmore served an unspecified prison term for the arrest.

The task force then began its work, coordinating its efforts between the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, the U.S. Attorney's Office, Los Angeles Sheriff's Department and several police departments.

Holm said the cocaine was brought in from Colombia, shipped mostly through Mexico and into Los Angeles, where it was distributed to 43 states, including such places as Detroit, Memphis, Philadelphia, Seattle, Newark, N.J., and Oklahoma City.

Authorities, who served 31 search warrants, also seized 8.8 pounds of cocaine, $2 million in cash, $4.5 million worth of assets and 27 weapons, including several automatic rifles.

Among the assets confiscated were four homes owned by Whitmore and his top lieutenants, along with a fleet of 20 cars, including Porsches and Jaguars and a couple of boats, Holm said.

Whitmore and several other suspects were scheduled to be arraigned before a federal magistrate Monday afternoon. The U.S. Attorney's Office requested they be held without bail.

GRAPEVINE, TX (AUG. 17) UPI - A Texas woman who dressed in Bedouin clothing to flee the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait arrived safely at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport Friday afternoon.

Relieved relatives hugged Shirley Coffman, 41, who arrived on a Lufthansa flight from Germany. Coffman, a bank officer and mother of two grown sons, had lived in Kuwait City for 13 years. She said she was driving to work the morning of Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion when she saw Iraqi soldiers attacking police headquarters.

''The gunfire was terrible. The glass was falling (from the building),'' she said. ''People were being shot if they were in their cars.''

Americans trapped in the country scrambled to avoid the troops, she said.

''This is like Germany when Hitler was after the Jews because all the Westerners are trying to find places to hide,'' she said.

She said she hid in the ceiling of a building until Kuwaiti friends could sneak her across the Saudi Arabian border and through the desert to the island nation of Bahrain.

Her friends provided her with traditional Bedouin garb - flowing robes and a face mask that obscured her long blond hair and pale skin.

''And when we crossed over from Kuwait, there were hundreds and hundreds of Iraqi tanks; many, many soldiers,'' she said.

When they reached the border, an Iraqi soldier stopped the car and asked the driver for the occupants' family name. The driver gave his name and Coffman and the others waited apprehensively as the soldier paused.

The soldier then said the family name was the same as that of his uncle and ''since we're kind of related, I'll let you go. But they didn't let any of the other cars go,'' she said.

Coffman said she had heard that stewardesses from Germany, Kuwait and Britain were being abused by Iraqi soldiers.

''They've taken them to The Plaza Hotel and they're having their way with them, '' Coffman said, adding she was told that by a friend, described as a flight attendant who managed to escape.

She says she hopes someday to return to the country where she has many friends and a job she enjoyed.

''I hope I get to go back. I'm a manager in a bank. I have a very good job and it's very difficult, I'm sure, to find a job here,'' she said.

El Salvador says it is ready to negotiate a swift end to its decade-long civil war. A fourth round of U-N-mediated peace talks with leftist rebels opened today outside San Jose, Costa Rica. The chief government negotiator says he is confident an agreement can be reached to reform and reduce the armed forces. The rebels demand that officers they accuse of human rights abuse be removed... and the military be put under civilian control.

Florida State University has beaten the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in a bid to house the world's top magnetic research laboratory. The National Science Foundation today picked the Tallahassee school against the recommendation of a scientific panel. Officials noted Florida's pledge of long-term financial support. The lab is expected to lead to major discoveries in biology, chemistry and materials research.

BAGHDAD, (AUG 18) - Iraq said Saturday that foreigners "being hosted" in Iraq will get the same treatment as Iraqis if food and medical supplies run short because of international sanctions.

A statement issued by the ministry of justice and social affairs that was read over Radio Baghdad said the armed forces would be given priority in the distribution of food.

The statement called on international hummanitarian organisations to apply pressure on the United States and other nations to lift the economic embargo, imposed ot Iraq for its invasion of Kuwait.

NEW YORK, (AUG 18) - United Nations Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar is sending two senior officials to Baghdad to seek a solution to the plight of foreigners being held in Iraq and Kuwait against their will, a U.N. spokesman said saturday.

The spokesman said Perez de Cuellar, who made the announcement in the Peruvian capital Lima, told reporters that the U.N. officials would arrive in the Iraqi capital on Monday.

On Friday, the United Nations Security Council called on the secretary general to take action on the situation of foreigners stranded in Iraq.

TEHERAN, (AUG 18) - Another 1,000 Iranian prisoners of war arrived in Iran Saturday after being freed by Iraq as an Iraqi troop withdrawal from Iranian territory, held despite a truce in the Gulf War, gathered pace.

An initial 1,000 POWs returned home Friday.

Iran announced no new prisoner releases, but handed over 1,000 Iraqis freed Friday from camps in the capital to Red Cross officials supervising their return at the border between the two countries.

Reliable sources in Baghdad said a total of 2,000 were expected but that they failed to reach Iraq Friday because of "technical problems having to do with the ICRC's (International Committee of the Red Cross) limited means".

Meanwhile, Iraqi Red Crescent director Seifollah Vahid Dastdjerdi asked the ICRC to start sending POWs across at a rate of 10,000 a day -- 5,000 from each country. Iran and Iraq are holding 70,000 and 30,000 prisoners, respectively.

"The dangerous nature of the current situation in the region" called for a quicker exchange, he said in a letter to the ICRC.

A Red Cross spokeswoman in Geneva, Martine Haemmerli, told Agence France-Presse the organization had agreed but would need to boost staff levels in the region "massively".

Meanwhile Iraqi troops were withdrawing from Iranian territory and crossing the border day and night, the official Iranian media said.

The pull-out is expected to free 30 divisions to be sent into what Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has termed the "field of the great battle against the Moslems' common enemy", meaning borders with Saudi Arabia and Iraq-occupied Kuwait.

A huge U.S.-led multinational force has dug in on the Saudi side to prevent an Iraqi invasion of Saudi Arabia, the Western world's main oil supplier.

As the Gulf crisis worsened Saturday after Iraq effectively announced that tens of thousands of foreigners were now held hostage, Teheran still had not responded to the staggering peace offer Mr. Hussein made Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Turkish Foreign Minister Ali Bozer arrived here for two days of talks on the crisis.

Turkey, which shares borders with both Iran and Iraq and stands to suffer badly from the international embargo of Iraq, has expressed concern over the two countries' rapprochement.

MANAMA, (AUG 18) - Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz warned the United States on Saturday about intercepting Iraqi ships, noting that it could set a precedent leading to retaliatory measures.

U.S. measures "set a precedent enabling whoever can to inspect the vessels of any nation backed by this American precedent if the world does not first reject this abnormal American behavior and defeat it to protect international law," he said.

His comments came a day after U.S. warships halted two Iraqi vessels in the Gulf in the first "interdiction" action ordered by President George Bush, the U.S. Defense Department said, adding that the ships were not boarded.

"The Arabs won't be less capable than others to do the same towards their enemies in the Red Sea, the Bab el-Mandeb strait, the Sea of Oman, the Suez Canal and the Gulf," the Iraqi foreign minister said.

"We don't want or wish for this to happen, but that is the meaning of the American precedent, so will the world defend its future or remian silent?" Mr. Aziz asked.

Last Sunday, Mr. Aziz said that Washington's interception of Iraqi tankers constituted an "act of aggression."

A U.S. Defense Department spokesman said Thursday that "interdiction" operations were authorized from 0000 GMT Friday and were "consistent with U.N. Resolution 661 which imposed mandatory sanctions against Iraq and occupied Kuwait."

Most members of the 15-nation Security Council have disputed the claim.

The U.N. Security Council passed Resolution 661 on August 6, four days after Iraq invaded Kuwait. Iraq annexed the oil-rich state on August 8.

SAN JOSE (AUG. 18) EFE - Peace talks between leftist Salvadoran rebels and the rightist government continued Saturday, with the two sides still far apart on proposals for reform of the Armed Forces, according to sources close to the talks.

Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (FMLN) rebels Friday called for the "abolition" of the Army and the creation of a new civilian security force, to be simultaneous with the guerrillas' demobilization.

President Alfredo Cristiani's rightist government offered to dissolve the Civil Defense militia, but not the Army, in exchange for an FMLN demobilization.

While the FMLN called for the creation of a special tribunal to prosecute human rights crimes, the government proposed a general amnesty for all individuals suspected of such crimes.

In addition, the rebels proposed the "purge of all military personnel linked to human rights violations", including 200 officers.

The FMLN has said reform of the Armed Forces is its most important objective in the peace talks, while the government has stressed the importance of dismantling the FMLN to end the decade-old war.

Some 75,000 people have been killed during the war, about half of them civilians murdered by Army-backed death squads, according to human rights groups.

The Permanent Committee of National Debate, an organization of some 80 church, labor and social groups, Saturday backed the FMLNproposal for replacement of the Army by a new civilian police force.

Government and rebel representatives are trying to hammer out a cease-fire agreement in closed-door talks mediated by United Nations envoy Alvaro de Soto in the Costa Rican capital.

In its 18-point proposal, the FMLN also called for the disbandment of the Salvadoran secret police and National Guard.

The rebels demanded the destruction of "the clandestine jails and all the Armed Forces' instruments of torture", as well as the punishment of military personnel and civilians responsible for "genocide".

The FMLN called for the dissolution of the death squads, "especially those led by (retired Army) major Roberto D'Aubuisson and the businessman Orlando de Sola".

D'Aubuisson is the founder of the right-wing ARENA party currently in power.

The government's 33-point proposal includes plans to establish an Armed Force human rights office, and to include +humanistic subjects+ in military training.

In the last round of peace talks, held in San Jose last month, the two sides agreed to authorize the United Nations to monitor human rights in El Salvador after an eventual cease-fire is signed.

Earlier this year, the two sides agreed to try to negotiate a cease-fire by September.

This round of talks, which began Friday, is expected to last until Wednesday.

ARLINGTON, TX (AUG. 18) UPI - Carlton Fisk of the Chicago White Sox set a record Friday night for the most home runs hit by a catcher in the major leagues.

Fisk slammed a 2-1 pitch from Texas Rangers pitcher Charlie Hough into the leftfield seats in the second inning for his 328th career homer, breaking a tie with former Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench.

The solo home run gave the White Sox a 2-0 lead in the second game of a doubleheader. The Rangers won the first game, 1-0, in 13 innings.

(AUG. 18) UPI - Drazen Petrovic had a fever that spread to his shooting hand Friday and made the United States sick.

Petrovic, who spent most of the past two days in bed battling a high temperature, burned the U.S. team with 31 points, including 6 three-pointers, to lead Yugoslavia to a 99-91 victory and a berth in the gold medal game of the World Basketball Championships in Buenos Aires.

Yugoslavia, a solid favorite when the tournament began, will go for the title Sunday night against the Soviet Union. The U.S. team will play Puerto Rico for the bronze medal Saturday night.

''I thought they were the best team coming in and they played like it today,'' U.S. Coach Mike Krzyzewski said. ''Whatever the highest level was Petrovic was at that level today. I went up to him afterwards to congratulate him. Even in defeat you have to admire an outstanding effort.''

Petrovic, the NBA's second-best three-point shooter last year in his rookie season with the Portland Trail Blazers, made 13 of 19 shots, including 6 of 10 from three-point range. He played only 31 minutes and didn't start the second half after sitting out the previous game and a half because of his fever.

''I'm sick right now,'' Petrovic said as he quickly escaped to the team bus and back to his hotel bed.

He didn't look sick on the court. He scored 12 points in the first 12 minutes as Yugoslavia opened a 33-22 lead. The U.S. twice rallied within four points, but trailed 51-43 at halftime.

With Petrovic on the bench, the U.S. cut Yugoslavia's lead to 60-57 with 15:30 to play. Petrovic then returned and the game quickly turned. He hit 3 three-pointers in the next four minutes as Yugoslavia stretched its lead back to double figures.

Petrovic's sixth three-pointer with 6:30 remaining gave Yugoslavia its biggest lead at 90-71. The U.S. team scored 11 of the game's last 14 points to make the final more respectable.

Soviet Union 98, Puerto Rico 82

Viktor Berezhnoi scored two baskets in an eight-point run that snapped a tie midway through the second half, leading the Soviet Union to a victory over Puerto Rico and into the gold medal round.

Brerezhnoi, who finished with 10 points, broke a 65-65 tie with his basket with 10:30 remaining, coming right after star forward Alexander Volkov fouled out. The Soviets pushed their lead to 73-65 with the run, and Puerto Rico got no closer than five points the rest of the game.

Valeri Tikhonenko scored 26 points to lead the Soviets. Volkov and Sergei Bazarevich each had 16.

Edgar Leon scored 22 points and Jose Ortiz had 16 for Puerto Rico, which was hampered at the end as five players fouled out. Puerto Rico was called for 32 fouls, and the Soviets capitalized by making 30 of 37 free throws.

Brazil 100, Australia 93

Oscar Schmidt scored 48 points, 21 in the second half, leading Brazil to a victory over Australia in the consolation round.

Brazil will play for fifth place against Greece. Australia will play the loser Saturday for seventh place.

Schmidt hit two free throws late in the game to give Brazil a 90-89 lead, then he made his fifth three-point shot of the second half moments later. Brazil scored the game's last five points.

Andrew Gaze scored 37 points to lead Australia, and Luc Longley added 14.

Greece 81, Argentina 78

Pano Giannakis scored 36 points and Greece maintained possesion for the final 45 seconds to hold off Argentina 81-78 in a consolation game.

Argentina pulled within 79-78 when Carlos Romano hit a three-point shot with 45 seconds to play. But Argentina was called for a foul before the 30-second shot clock expired, enabling Greece to get 30 more seconds and take the ball out of bounds rather than shoot free throws, as is allowed under international rules. Greece then added a basket as time expired.

Sebastian Uranga scored 20 points to lead Argentina.

SPRINGFIELD, IL. (AUG. 18) UPI - The next time you swing your partner or do-si-do you'll be performing the official state dance of Illinois, thanks to legislation signed by Gov. James R. Thompson.

The governor promenaded to the Twilight Ballroom at the state fairgrounds Friday where he signed a bill making square-dancing the official American folk dance for the state.

Thompson said square dancing has been present in America in various forms since 1651 and it's fitting that the state recognize the tradition.

''Square dancing is as endemic to Illinois as the prairie plants that border our agricultural landscape,'' he said. ''Thousands of people enjoy square dancing, many on regular basis.''

The governor, however, said he would not be one of them.

''No, no, no,'' Thompson exclaimed when about a dozen dancers at the signing ceremony invited him to take a trip around the dance floor.

The designation was the most recent victory for the string tie and fluffy-skirt lobby, which has now successfully persuaded officials in 11 states to make square dancing their state dance.

It's also the latest in a long series of official Illinois mascots that seems to get larger every year. Lawmakers in 1989 designated a wormlike prehistoric beast called the ''Tully Monster'' as the official state fossil.

Drummer silty clay loam would also have joined such symbols as the state bird, fish, animal, flower, song, mineral and insect if downstate lawmakers had successfully passed a bill creating a state soil this spring.

The measure ground to a halt despite repeated efforts to revive it.

PASADENA, CA. (AUG. 18) UPI - Engineers carefully maintained contact with NASA's Magellan probe Saturday, scrambling to figure out what temporarily threw the Venus radar mapper out of contact with Earth and into a protective, computer-induced state of hibernation.

Contact with Magellan was lost late Thursday after an unidentified problem prompted the craft's electronic brain to put the probe into a ''safe mode'' that left it slowly rotating in space in a passive search for instructions from distant Earth, 145 million miles away.

Engineers re-established intermittent contact Friday afternoon and after studying diagnostic data from Magellan, commands were radioed to the probe to stop its rotation.

''They radioed commands up to the spacecraft to tell it to stop its search for Earth and it radioed back that it will stay in contact,'' said Mary Beth Murrill, a spokeswoman for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

''The project is now commencing to read out the memory of all the subsystems to reconstruct what triggered Magellan to go into a safe position to begin with.''

Once the problem is understood, ''they can presumably fix the problem or avoid whatever happened in the future,'' Murrill said. ''They're very confident they're going to be able to fix the spacecraft and conduct the mission.''

But the work likely will take several days or more, delaying the start of Magellan's long-awaited $551 million mission to map the surface of Venus with a high-tech radar system capable of ''seeing'' through the thick clouds that perpetually block the surface from view.

The ''safe mode'' presumably went into effect because of trouble finding and locking onto the correct guide star, part of a routine procedure to update the on-board computer about the spacecraft's orientation in space.

Such computer-ordered ''safing'' was built into Magellan's software to protect the spacecraft in the event of problems beyond the electronic brain's ability to handle.

''Safe mode'' programming calls for Magellan to point its two solar panels broadside to the sun and to rotate about its vertical axis to sweep the sky with a medium-data-rate antenna. In so doing, the spacecraft's signal eventually swept across Earth Friday, allowing contact to be re-established.

Magellan was built to map at least 90 percent of the surface of Venus during a 243-day mission. Engineers had just started testing the radar mapping system Thursday when contact was lost.

With NASA already reeling from criticism over the flawed Hubble Space Telescope and problems with the shuttle program, resuming operations with Magellan is crucial to the space agency.

JPL spokesman Alan Wood said the 2.5-ton spacecraft, which dropped into orbit around Venus last Friday, had successfully completed its second radar mapping orbit when contact was lost.

During each radar mapping orbit, Magellan points its main antenna at Venus to collect radar data about its surface. After each such mapping ''pass,'' the spacecraft is supposed to reorient itself and point the antenna at Earth so radar data, recorded on tape, can be transmitted to JPL for analysis.

The spacecraft then turns the antenna away from Earth so optical sensors can look for programmed ''guide stars'' to update information about the probe's orientation in space.

Engineers at JPL expected Magellan to resume contact with Earth Thursday at the completion of the guide star update, but no signal was received.

Once it is checked out and in operation, Magellan will map the surface of Venus revealing features as small as a football field, 10 times better than any previous effort.

With such relatively sharp maps in hand, scientists may be able to learn why Venus, similar to Earth in many respects, ended up the 900-degree inferno it is today, the victim of a runaway ''greenhouse'' effect. The results could provide valuable insights into how Earth's environment operates.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (AUG. 18) UPI - A commercial Delta 2 rocket hurled a $100 million British satellite into orbit in a spectacular night flight to complete a powerful two-satellite network of direct-broadcast TV relay stations.

The 1,125-pound solar-powered satellite was fired into its planned, preliminary orbit about 28 minutes after the Delta 2's sky-lighting liftoff Friday from the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station.

An on-board rocket will fire later to boost the satellite into a circular orbit 22,300 miles above the equator.

''It was really a super launch,'' said Apollo 12 moonwalker Pete Conrad, an official with rocket builder McDonnell Douglas. ''You get a real appreciation for what kind of ride that is when you can see it from the ground.''

Once in operation, the BSB-R2 satellite - called Marcopolo 2 - will join another such spacecraft already in orbit to allow British Satellite Broadcasting Ltd. to transmit five television channels direct to cable stations and to small, 1-foot-square home antennas across the United Kingdom.

The mission began at 8:42 p.m. EDT Friday when the satellite's 126-foot, blue-and-white Delta 2 rocket blasted off from launch pad 17A, one hour late because of stormy weather and trouble with a ground computer.

Pending confirmation of the spacecraft separation from its third stage rocket, it was the 20th successful Delta launch in a row for McDonnell Douglas Space Systems Co. of Huntington Beach, Calif., and the 12th straight success for the company's upgraded Delta 2.

The first BSB satellite was successfully launched Aug. 27, 1989, and stationed in ''geostationary'' orbit 22,300 miles up by the first commercially launched Delta 2 booster.

At that altitude, satellites take 24 hours to complete one orbit and thus appear to hang stationary in the sky, eliminating the need for costly, steerable antennas on the ground.

The two drum-shaped BSB satellites were built by Hughes Aircraft Co. of El Segundo, Calif., under a unique $300 million contract that covers the cost of both relay stations, two $50 million Delta 2 rockets, launch insurance and other services.

''Hughes agreed to purchase the launch and insurance for the satellites and to thoroughly test (them) in orbit before handing them over to BSB, an agreement new to the commercial satellite industry,'' Hughes said in a company brochure.

''Hughes is assuming the launch risks conventionally undertaken by the satellite buyer.''

Direct broadcast television satellites have not been marketed in the United States, but BSB is making a major effort to turn a profit in the United Kingdom.

Some 50,000 ''kits,'' made up of 1-foot-square antennas and receivers, currently are installed in homes across Britain and the company hopes to boost that figure to 1 million by the end of the year. Each kit costs about $700. In addition, some 400,000 cable subscribers currently take the BSB service.

Once the new satellite is checked out by Hughes and turned over the BSB for operational use, customers will receive five television channels, including The Movie Channel, an all-sports channel and others featuring comedy, drama, music and other offerings.

The Hughes model 376 satellites are the most successful communications stations ever built with some 26 in active service or awaiting launch.

The cylindrical satellites, which spin like tops at 50 rpm for stability, are covered with solar cells and crowned by a dish-shaped antenna reflector. BSB-2R and its counterpart feature additional solar cells to generate the 110-watt-per-channel power necessary for direct broadcast television.

NEW YORK (AUG. 18) UPI - A jury focused on the defense cases of two of the three youths accused of raping and attempting to kill a female jogger in Central Park as it headed into its 10th day of deliberations.

The panel, which was scheduled to resume its deliberations Saturday, listened Friday to a readback of testimony from two police officers that supported a defense theory offered by Raymond Santana's lawyer, Peter Rivera.

In his summation, Rivera noted that several police officers responded to calls about a ring of fire burning just 100 feet from where the 30-year-old investment banker was attacked.

Prosecutors say the jogger was bashed in the head, gang-raped, beaten again and left for dead about 9:30 p.m. on April 19, 1989.

Police officer Mark Carlson testified he arrived at the fire at about 9:40 p.m. and found two other officers there, while officer Ivelisse Flores estimated she arrived at the fire about 9:25 p.m. or 9:30 p.m.

Rivera argued that with police officers in the area, it was unlikely the youths would have risked attacking the woman. He also argued the police officers would have heard her screams.

Instead, Rivera argued, the rape must have occurred later in the evening - after the youths left the park and were under arrest - and therefore was committed by someone else.

On Friday, the ninth day of deliberations, the jury also watched defendant Antron McCray's videotaped confession for the fifth time.

Earlier in the day, they re-heard the testimony of his mother, Linda McCray, who claimed her son lied when he confessed last year to the rape and beating so he could go home with his parents.

As the video camera began recording at the police precinct, Linda McCray testified, her teenage son gave a graphic account of the beating and gang-rape of the woman jogger in Central Park.

McCray, 16, Santana, 15, and Yusef Salaam, 16, are on trial on 13 criminal counts of being part of a gang of up to 30 youths who went on a ''wilding'' rampage, randomly beating and robbing people. The trial began June 25.

On the video, McCray admitted kicking the 30-year-old jogger, hitting her with a metal pipe, holding her down while others raped her and then climbing on top of her and feigning intercourse.

''Were you shocked?'' asked Assistant District Attorney Elizabeth Lederer during her cross-examination at the trial in state Supreme Court in Manhattan.

''I know, I know myself he wouldn't do anything ... . I know it was a lie '' the mother replied in a choked voice.

''My husband said that the police told him if Antron tell them what they want to know and put himself in it, he go home. If he don't, he go to jail '' she added.

''Did you honestly believe that if Antron said, 'I held her down while four others raped her, I raped her, I beat her with a pipe,' did you honestly believe he would go home?'' Lederer asked incredulously.

''I believed what my husband said, that the police said he could go home '' the mother replied.

(AUG. 18) UPI - With a little help from his teammates, Oakland pitcher Bob Welch accomplished a feat not done in 17 years.

The Athletics scored seven runs in the fifth inning Friday, helping Welch record his 20th victory of the season with an 8-3 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles.

Welch, a 20-game winner for the first time in his 13-year career, reached the 20-victory plateau on the earliest date of any pitcher since Chicago White Sox pitcher Wilbur Wood. He won his 20th game July 29, 1973.

Welch, 20-4, won his fourth straight game, giving up nine hits over eight innings. Welch improved to 7-1 since the All-Star break.

John Mitchell, 5-5, gave up Mark McGwire's three-run home run and Carney Lansford's two-run single in the fifth inning to take the loss.

''He made some bad pitches with his curveball,'' Baltimore Manager Frank Robinson said. ''We've had Welch on the ropes a couple times this year, but he always seems to get away. Give him credit. He knows how to pitch.''

''The best part about winning 20 games is that we are in first place,'' Welch said. ''I felt good throughout, from the beginning to the end.''

''My job is to hold them and let the offense take care of itself,'' Welch said. ''Any time I started thinking about 20 wins and not the game, I got in trouble.''

Welch recorded 138 of his 169 career victories during the 1980s and is 54-21 with Oakland over the last three seasons.

''(I'm) proud of him,'' Oakland Manager Tony La Russa said. ''That's outstanding getting 20 wins, but that's not the stated goal, as he said. It's to win the Western Division.''

Elsewhere in the AL, New York edged Seattle 3-2, Detroit beat Cleveland 3-0, California blanked Boston 1-0, Toronto downed Minnesota 5-1, Milwaukee shaded Kansas City 2-1, Texas split a double-header with Chicago taking the first game 1-0 in 13 innings and dropping the nightcap, 4-2.

In the NL, it was, Chicago 7, Atlanta 0; Pittsburgh 7, Cincinnati 1, 1st game; Pittsburgh 4, Cincinnati 3, 2nd game; St. Louis 5, Houston 0; Philadelphia 2, San Diego 1; Los Angeles 7, Montreal 6 and San Francisco 3 New York 2.

Yankees 3, Mariners 2

At New York, Oscar Azocar scored from second base on third baseman Edgar Martinez' throwing error in the eighth inning. Lee Guetterman, 8-4, was the winner. Dave Righetti pitched the ninth for his 25th save. Bill Swift, 5-3, took the loss.

Tigers 3, Indians 0

At Detroit, Cecil Fielder backed Jack Morris' six-hit shutout with a run-scoring double and his league-leading 38th home run of the season. Morris, 1-6 in his previous seven starts, raised his record to 10-15. Tom Candiotti, 12-8, absorbed the loss.

Angels 1, Red Sox 0

At Boston, Johnny Ray singled home Devon White with an unearned run in the ninth inning to guide California. Chuck Finley, 16-5, pitched a four-hitter for his fifth complete game. Mike Boddicker, 11-8, also pitched a complete game, his third of the season.

Blue Jays 5, Twins 1

At Minneapolis, Dave Stieb and Duane Ward combined on a five-hitter and Fred McGriff hit a two-run homer to enable Toronto to pull within one game of first place in the AL East. Steib, raised his record to 16-4. Ward notched his ninth save. Scott Erickson, 3-3, took the loss.

Brewers 2, Royals 1

At Milwaukee, B.J. Surhoff drove in the go-ahead run in the third inning and Teddy Higuera notched his first victory since July 5. Higuera, improved to 7-5. Tom Gordon, 8-9, took the loss. Dan Plesac got the final out for his 20th save.

White Sox 4, Rangers 2, 2nd
Rangers 1, White Sox 0, 13 innings, 1st

At Arlington, Texas, Carlton Fisk hit a record home run and Bobby Thigpen collected his 38th save to help Chicago gain a 4-2 victory in the nightcap. Fisk's blast was his 328th career homer, moving him past Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench on the all-time list for home runs by a catcher. Melido Perez, 11-10, earned the victory. Charlie Hough, 10-8, took the loss. In the first game, Ruben Sierra hit a bases-loaded single in the 13th inning that scored Garry Pettis and made a winner of reliever Kenny Rogers 5-5. Donn Pall, 2-5, took the loss.

PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 18) UPI - Entertainers, fans and friends remembered Pearl Bailey as a tireless performer who transcended racial barriers while singing and dancing her way to stardom in a career that spanned seven decades

Bailey, best known for the sassy jazz and blues vocals she belted out on stage, screen and television, died Friday of undetermined causes after losing consciousness in her hotel room. She was 72.

Bailey, who had a long history of heart trouble, was rushed to Thomas Jefferson University Hospital, where she was pronounced dead at 6:12 p.m. A hospital spokeswoman said autopsy results would not be known for several days.

''I lost the best friend I ever had after 38, almost 39 years,'' said Bailey's husband, drummer Louis Bellson Jr. ''She was the most honest and caring person I ever met in my life.''

Musician Wynton Marsalis said he would remember Bailey as ''a very warm woman who represents the best that the world has to offer. She loved everybody.''

''She came as advertised,'' songwriter Sammy Cahn said. ''When you said Pearl Bailey, it was a spirit; it was a talent. There was a personality.

''She came along in a troublesome time for performers, but she always took the stage and she did herself and her race proud. She was just as special as they come,'' Cahn said.

Veteran comedian Milton Berle said Bailey had ''her own original style.''

''She was a real pro ... a terrific perfectionist,'' he said. ''We're losing a heavyweight.''

Bellson said Bailey was sitting in a chair in her room at the Holiday Inn Friday evening as they prepared to leave for New York and then go home to Lake Havasu City, Ariz.

''She started rubbing her hands first. And then it was almost like she was hyperventilating,'' Bellson said. ''She said, 'I'm rubbing my hands, I don't know what it is.'

''By the time I got the cloths and put some ice in it, she said, 'I don't know what's happening to me.''' Bellson said she asked him to call her doctor and then immediately told him to call the paramedics.

''And after I did and I look at her and it's just that fast, you know, so I'm inclined to feel that she didn't have any pain.''

He said her head dipped forward, ''And that was it.''

Bailey entered Pennsylvania Hospital July 9 for surgery to replace an arthritic knee. The hospital handles a large number of orthopedic cases each year. Her road manager, E.B. Smith, said she had been having therapy on the knee but had completed that and was packing to leave the city.

The entertainer was revered by blues and jazz fans as ''Pearly Mae.'' She was perhaps best remembered for her film role in ''Porgy and Bess'' and her Tony award-winning Broadway performance as Dolly in an all-black production of ''Hello, Dolly!''

Bailey, born March 29, 1918, in the small Chesapeake Bay village of Newport News, Va., was drawn to an entertainment career in her teens and won an amateur stage contest at age 15 during the Depression.

She left her family soon after to tour in a variety of small dramatic productions through Pennsylvania's poverty-stricken coal mining towns. It was a short hop to vaudeville, where she danced and sang with Noble Sissle's band.

But it was the soulful blues style and lighthearted stage banter that usually began, ''Listen, Honey,'' which endeared her to audiences in small smoky jazz joints to the unseen millions through her television shows.

Bailey scored a remarkable stage debut in Broadway's ''St. Louis Woman,'' for which she won the Donaldson Award as the best newcomer in 1946. Other stage productions, including ''Arms and the Girl,'' ''Bless You All'' and ''House of Flowers,'' were preludes to a film career that aroused attention in 1958 when she performed in the all-black production of ''Porgy and Bess.'' Other films included ''That Certain Feeling'' and ''All the Fine Young Cannibals.''

It was on the movie set of ''Porgy and Bess'' that Bailey won an early skirmish for black civil rights by demanding the elimination of ''undignified and unnatural'' Negro dialect from the George Gershwin folk drama.

''There's a lot of people out there waiting for a dialect, so let's talk the way we really talk, without the 'dems, doeses and deses,''' she told reporters. ''We don't talk like that. Maybe we did 50 years ago, but not now.''

Bailey had been married three times before she wed Bellson, a white drummer with Duke Ellington's band, in 1952.

Heart ailments dogged her frenetic stage, screen and television career after World War II and in 1965 exhaustion from overwork forced her hospitalization five times - two were relapses from previous heart seizures. In 1972 she was hospitalized twice.

She collapsed in the wings of a Manhattan supper club in 1965 and against the advice of her physician, belted out a second hourlong performance after being given oxygen. ''Pearl can't do the things she did 35 years ago '' she kidded during the performance.

Bailey collapsed again on Dec. 29, 1974, in her hotel room in Denver, Colo., only hours before she was to open a nightclub show. She was rushed to Denver General Hospital where she quickly recovered. Doctors explained that she had suffered from exhaustion and the effects of altitude.

But she was back on her feet, lively as ever, within a few days. Two weeks later, after having watched President Gerald Ford's State of the Union address on TV, she commented: ''I kept hoping he would throw those papers up into the air and say, 'Another thing, we're going to clean up these buildings, clean the streets and start progress.''' Then she added: ''What this country needs is a goddarned enema - not just a cleansing.''

(AUG. 18) UPI - Firefighters are gaining the upper hand against most of the wildfires that burned through seven Western states the past two weeks. California's Yosemite National Park re-opened yesterday for the first time in more than a week. The park was closed because of wildfires that charred 25-thousand acres.

A New York City jury is headed into its 10th day of deliberations in the Central Park jogger rape trial. Yesterday, the panel listened to a readback of testimony from police officers that supports a defense theory. The theory says the April 1989 rape of a female jogger occurred after the defendants left the park.

The fourth round of Salvadoran peace talks began yesterday in Costa Rica with rebels calling for the disarming and complete purge of the armed forces. Rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front also demanded establishment of a panel to set ground rules for a new civilian police.

Authorities in Los Angeles say an alleged drug kingpin and 16 of his top lieutenants were arrested yesterday. The defendants, including alleged drug baron Thomas Whitmore's mother, were accused of distributing more than 100-Million dollars in cocaine annually across the nation.

The Justice Department filed a lawsuit yesterday in Washington against failed savings-and-loan executive Charles Keating. The suit aims to force Keating to reveal his assets to federal regulators. They're seeking restitution from the former chairman of Lincoln Savings and Loan, a California thrift seized by the government in April 1989.

SOWETO, SOUTH AFRICA (AUG. 18) UPI - Police battling to contain factional fighting in the nation's most densely populated black city called for army support Saturday after six days of butchering left 207 dead and more than 200 wounded.

Gen. Johan van der Merwe said police reinforcements backed by army units would be deployed in Soweto and all efforts made to halt the ''senseless violence'' between supporters of the Zulu movement Inkatha of Chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi and the African National Congress led by Nelson Mandela.

Both movements condemned the violence but efforts Thursday by President Frederik de Klerk, Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok and Mandela to halt the bloodshed through a ''peace forum'' failed to take hold.

Police Col. Tienie Halgryn said the city was reasonably calm Saturday but that polilce continued to disperse mobs of ANC supporters gathering near hostels where Zulu migrant workers live.

Friday night and early Saturday, rioters set fire at least one bus, a police vehicle and several houses.

The fighting spread to various districts of Soweto on Thursday after clashes in three townships east in Johannesburg erupted Monday. Police put the death toll in Soweto fighting Thursday and Friday at about 50.

Before dawn Saturday, police said, a mob killed a Soweto town councillor outside his home in Pimville, grabbing the man's firearm and slashing his neck.

As police used tear gas and rubber bullets Friday to disperse the rival mobs, Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu announced he was cutting short his visit to Canada and returning to join efforts to halt the bloodshed.

''I can't be away from our people at a time such as this,'' the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize winner said in a statement issued from Halifax, Canada. ''My concern is that I should just be at home.''

Among at least 24 people killed Friday was a 13-year-old boy shot in the head by a white policeman in a narrow alley between houses while officers were chasing a group of youths, witnesses said.

Winnie Mandela, wife of African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, rushed to the scene to console the child's hysterical mother and accused the police of ''running amok, killing the community.''

Most other victims were men, dying in street fighting, in open lots or in barrack-like hostels - clubbed or hacked to death by rival fighters wielding knives, machetes and tribal fighting sticks.

Thousands of Soweto residents stayed away from work, terrified to risk gangs roving through the sprawling city of 2 million or being caught in crossfire. As darkness fell, the situation appeared to worsen, with crowds massing in previously unaffected areas.

TYRE, LEBANON (AUG. 18) UPI - Sixteen Shiite prisoners whose fate has been linked to that of Western hostages held in Lebanon were reported Saturday to be freed from prison in Kuwait City and trying to flee the emirate with forged passports.

A Lebanese Shiite group believed to be holding American hostages had offered in the past to set the Americans free in exchange for the freedom of the 16 Shiites, who were imprisoned in Kuwait City for their involvement in bombing Western embassies.

The 16 men were reportedly let out of jail when Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2.

Security sources in south Lebanon said Saturday that a Lebanese man, Abdel Aziz Krayem, who arrived in south Lebanon Friday from Kuwait, reported that he was held at Kuwait's State Security Prison along with the 16 Shiite prisoners.

Krayem, 40, who was serving a 15-year prison term for masterminding the bombing of Kuwaiti utilities, said the 16 were free and hiding in Kuwait City.

He said they were seeking forged passports from Lebanese Shiites living in Kuwait in order to leave the occupied emirate.

Krayem said he and the 16 escaped from their cells when families of Kuwaiti prisoners stormed the jail shortly after Iraqi forces invaded the city.

He said he succeeded in forging travel documents and arrived in Lebanon via Jordan and Syria late Friday.

The 16 prisoners, all members of the pro-Iranian Islamic Jihad, include two Lebanese, six Iraqis and eight Kuwaitis of Iranian origin. They were imprisoned for life in Kuwait for attempting to bomb the U.S. and French embassies and the emirate's oil refineries.

The Islamic Jihad, a group that claimed responsibility for kidnapping Americans Terry Anderson and Thomas Sutherland, had demanded the release of the 16 Shiites in exchange for freeing the two U.S. captives.

Kuwait had refused, and the United States backed its decision.

Previous reports have said the Iraqi army seized the 16 convicted activists and took them to Baghdad.

SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 18) UPI - A boy with AIDS who was embraced by the pope during a visit three years ago died of complications at the age of 7.

Brendan O'Rourke, who got the deadly disease from a blood transfusion when he was a premature infant, had tugged at John Paul II's ear and was given a hug as the pope visited 52 AIDS patients at Mission Delores in 1987.

The boy died early Friday at University of California-San Francisco Medical Center from complications of the disease, a church spokesman said.

The O'Rourke family, including his father John and his mother Elaine, made a pilgrimage to the Vatican in 1988 for the beatification ceremony of Father Junipero Serra, founder of 18th century missions in California.

(AUG. 18) UPI - Iraq, upping the stakes in the Persian Gulf crisis, declared Saturday it would keep citizens of ''aggressive nations'' at military and other key installations in Iraq and Kuwait as long as the country is threatened with war.

Britain quickly denounced the detentions as illegal, unacceptable and contrary to all norms of international behavior. The U.S. State Department declined comment and the Bush administration has refused to classify Americans prohibited from leaving Iraq and Kuwait as ''hostages.''

At his vacation home in Kennebunkport, Maine, a visibly upset President Bush waived off questions from reporters early Saturday when asked about the fate of Americans.

Asked if he had talked with the White House situation room, Bush, preparing to play golf, snapped, ''I talk to them every morning about 5:30. I'm not going to take any more comments up here though.''

A White House spokesman promised a comment on the detention of Americans later in the day.

While Iraq did not specify which foreigners would remain, it clearly meant citizens of Western nations that sent military forces or financial aid to sustain those troops in the gulf following Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. Nationals from the United States, Britain and Japan appear to have been singled out.

Troops from Arab countries, principally Egypt, also have been deployed in Saudi Arabia to defend against a possible Iraqi attack but more than 23,000 Arab and other foreigners have been allowed to flood across the border into Jordan from Iraq since Thursday. The Egyptian charge d'affaires in Amman said about 50,000 people were en route to the border, most of them Egyptians.

Only a handful of Westerners have managed to leave Iraq since Thursday. There were about 20,000 Western nationals in Iraq and Kuwait when Iraqi forces invaded on Aug. 2, including 3,000 Americans and 5,000 British citizens.

One Briton was shot and killed when he tried to flee from occupied Kuwait after the Iraqi invasion.

Before Saturday's declaration, Iraqi officials said Westerners were safe and their departures were delayed as a precautionary measure. In a move foreshadowing the announcement, about 35 Americans were reported Friday to have been moved from the Rashid Hotel in Baghdad to another downtown hotel and U.S. officials were refused permission to visit them.

''The people of Iraq have decided to play host to the citizens of these aggressive nations as long as Iraq remains threatened with an aggressive war,'' Saadi Mahdi Saleh, speaker of the Iraqi National Assembly, said in a statement to the Iraqi News Agency INA.

''This measure would continue until the aggressive countries offer the sufficient and tangible guarantees for the people of Iraq that danger of aggression has ended,'' he said.

Saleh said the foreigners would stay at military and other key installations in Iraq and Kuwait, including oil refineries and air bases - apparently an attempt by Iraq to create a human shield against possible attack or pre-emptive strikes, analysts said.

Saleh said Western governments, the United States in particular, had adopted ''unjust and hostile stances ... over the question of precautionary measures adopted for keeping nationals of those governments in Iraq.''

The United States deployed tens of thousands of troops to Saudi Arabia following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and sent dozens of warships to the gulf.

On Friday, the U.N. Security Council asked Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar to look into the plight of the foreigners remaining in Kuwait and Iraq.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported, however, that an undisclosed number of Soviet citizens were set free and that Moscow had sent buses, ambulances and trucks to pick them up at the Jordanian border. The Soviets have not joined the multinational force in the gulf, although Moscow said it would do so if the United Nations supervised the action.

Hours before Iraq stepped up its pressure against Western governments, the U.S. Navy challenged two Iraqi ships in the gulf under Bush's orders to enforce U.N. economic sanctions against Iraq.

U.S. warships intercepted the two Iraqi vessels in the gulf Friday but let them proceed when it was determined they were empty. Another Iraqi ship loaded with food sailed through the Suez Canal Friday toward a possible showdown with U.S. naval forces patrolling the Red Sea.

Pentagon sources said the warships were under orders to turn back ships bearing food and only allow though shipments of medicine. The U.N.'s Perez de Cuellar has said he believes the U.S. decision to enforce the embargo goes beyond the U.N. resolution on sanctions, which allows humanitarian shipments of food and medicine and does not specifically call for enforcement.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, traveling to the region, told reporters that U.S. troops would stay in Saudi Arabia as long as needed and it was too soon to tell if they would be there ''a year or two from now.''

''The commitment is long term,'' Cheney said.

Saleh called the buildup of foreign forces in the gulf region unprecedented and arrogant and said the economic embargo against Iraq is a ''war of starving the Iraqi people in a brutal and unprecedented manner.''

Iraq repeated its claims Saturday that it would use ''comprehensive destructive weapons'' - an apparent reference to its deadly arsenal of chemical weapons - if it was attacked.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein invaded and later annexed Kuwait over border and oil disputes, claiming the tiny oil-rich emirate is historically part of Iraq.

His decision to ''host'' foreigners at key installations in Iraq and Kuwait was a disturbing reminder of the American hostages held in Iran for 444 days and released in 1981, minutes after the inauguration of Ronald Reagan.

Joe Sisco, a former U.S. undersecretary of state, said Iraq's detention of the Westerners revealed a further deterioration in the gulf situation, but ''I doubt very much we are going to be provoked at this point in time into military action.''

Despite the emotional impact of the detention of American citizens by a foreign country, Sisko said he did not believe the Bush administration would allow it to ''subordinate the fundamental objectives'' of its policy to force out Iraq from Kuwait.

But he warned, ''if ever we get to the point where the holding of these people really becomes the prime thing, you are not going to get a modest reaction.''

Before the Iraqi announcement, the United States put commercial airlines on alert to help transport military equipment to Saudi Arabia, where about 45,000 American ground troops in Operation Desert Shield faced Iraqi forces across the tense border.

The Washington Post also reported that as many as 80,000 U.S. Army reservists could be called to support the operation, the first time reservists would be activated in almost 20 years.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (AUG. 18) UPI - The Philippine armed forces were placed on maximum alert after rightwing rebels announced they would try again to overthrow President Corazon Aquino's government, officials said Saturday.

Maj. Gen. Rodolfo Biazon, deputy military chief of staff, said the order involving the 159,000-member armed forces went into effect Friday following the announcement and after six bomb explosions rocked the capital in recent days, damaging government buildings and a bank but causing no injuries.

Biazon inspected some 2,500 marines in full battle dress Saturday at the armed forces headquarters in suburban Quezon City in a display of government force that included 21 tanks and armored vehicles, heavy artillery, anti-tank and anti-aircraft weapons.

Security around the sprawling military camp and in other bases in the capital was also tightened, Biazon said.

Former Col. Gregorio Honasan, who led the December 1989 coup attempt that nearly toppled Aquino, issued a statement Wednesday urging rightwing forces ''to resume the conduct of tactical operations effective immediately.''

Military rebels suspended attacks against the government following the July 16 earthquake that killed more than 1,600 people and devastated the main island of Luzon.

At least 119 people were killed and more than 500 wounded in the Dec. 1-9 mutiny, the sixth and most serious challenge against Aquino, who took power in a civilian-backed military revolt in 1986.

''If they would stage another coup, we are ready for it,'' Biazon told reporters during his inspection.

JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA (AUG. 18) UPI - Saudi Arabia's foreign minister said Saturday the United Nations may authorize a multinational naval blockade against Iraq to enforce trade sanctions being enforced unilaterally by the United States.

Foreign Minister Saud al Faisal, in a news conference following his return from talks with President Bush in the United States, said all diplomatic solutions to the crisis are doomed because Iraq refuses to withdraw from Kuwait, the tiny emirate it conquered Aug. 2.

''We have no aggressive intentions on Iraq,'' he said. ''We are ardently hoping that military action could be avoided ... (but) I am afraid the issue of peace and war will result from an Iraqi act.''

Saud said the United Nations, in an escalation of its campaign to pressure and isolate Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, is considering giving military muscle to economic and trade sanctions imposed by the U.N. Security Council a week after the invasion.

''They are considering military actions,'' he said. ''It is an issue of international peace and stability and we wholeheartedly support the action.''

Saud also said Saudi Arabia is contributing to ''international cooperation'' but he would not confirm reports Riyadh is helping bankroll the U.S. military commitment, reported to be costing $300 million a day.

Saudi officials clarified that Saud was referring to plans under discussion to turn the U.S interdiction into a venture fully endorsed by the United Nations.

U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar said earlier this week he believed the U.S. decision to board and search Iraqi ships went beyond the bounds of the sanctions resolution and other U.N. officials have privately expressed concern over the U.S. action.

Britain has said it will join in the interdiction.

Saudi officials said Chapter 7 of the U.N. charter requires member nations to take legal actions against an offender nation and to take military action only when all other measures fail.

''You start by being nice,'' one Saudi official said. ''You then take certain measures and you gradually escalate until U.N. forces go to war.''

U.S. warships Friday checked two Iraqi vessels in the Persian Gulf near Kuwait but allowed them to proceed when it was determined they were empty. British helicopters intercepted two freighters near Oman, reports said.

There was no immediate indication of how other nations might respond to the possible U.N. call for a multinational blockade armada. France, West Germany, Spain, Italy, Belgium, Canada, and Australia all have ships in the gulf, as does the Soviet Union, which said it is not part of the multinational force but would join it under U.N. supervision.

Saud said the crisis cannot be resolved until Baghdad withdraws from Kuwait and the Kuwaiti emir is restored to power.

''Any diplomatic contact without this cornerstone is doomed to die,'' he said.

Saudi Arabia has been assured by all nations with ground forces in the kingdom - the United States, Britain, Egypt, Morocco and soon Syria - they would depart when the Saudis asked them to.

BEIJING (AUG. 18) UPI - Officials announced Saturday that nine people were arrested on charges they spied for Taiwan and conspired to ''instigate new turmoil on the mainland.''

State television quoted Ministry of State Security officials as saying the arrests ''smashed'' four Taiwan spying rings across the country.

Despite a recent warming of Sino-Taiwanese ties, China has been technically at war with Taiwan's ruling Kuomintang, or Nationalist Party, since the Nationalists fled the mainland following the communist takeover in 1949.

The nine men were accused of attempting to ''instigate new turmoil on the mainland'' and have all confessed their crimes, according to the television report. The cases are still under investigation.

Saturday's evening news broadcast featured surveillance footage of the accused spies, as well as photographs of a cache of guns confiscated by authorities.

Mainland authorities arrested several people on spying charges last year, charging they had been sent by Taiwan to stir up the 1989 democracy protests that were brutally crushed in June of that year.

NAIROBI, KENYA (AUG. 18) UPI - Kenyan religious leaders called Saturday for a public investigation of the death of Anglican Bishop Alexander Kipsang Muge, who was killed in a mysterious car crash earlier this week.

Muge, 44, an outspoken critic of the Kenyan government, died Aug. 14 when his car crashed into a milk truck as he was driving from the border town of Busia, 225 miles northwest of Nairobi.

The bishop had recently criticized Cabinet ministers and called for a probe of government corruption. One of the ministers he named, who is from Busia, had threatened to kill him.

Anglican bishops, Presbyterian clerics and the National Council of Churches of Kenya called for the investigation, citing threats on Muge's life just days before he died.

''It defeats human intelligence not to speculate on the circumstances that culminated in death,'' the Kenya Times quoted a National Council of Churches statement as saying.

The bishop's death came in the wake of a series of political detentions in the East African nation and just six months after the unsolved grisly murder of Foreign Minister Robert Ouko.

Kenyan President Daniel arap Moi has been under increasing pressure to install a multi-party democracy in Kenya instead of a single party.

FORT HOOD, TX (AUG. 18) UPI - Units of the 1st Cavalry Division and the 2nd Armored Division prepared Saturday to join other Army units deploying to the Middle East.

Deputy Public Affairs Officer Eloise Lundgren at Fort Hood could not release any information about the number of soldiers, equipment, dates of departure or specific assignments, but confirmed preparations were under way.

''They will join the multi-national force being assembled there to deter further Iraqi aggression and protect the integrity of Saudi Arabia,'' she said.

Both units have distinguished combat records. The 1st Cav was a major fighting unit in the Korean and Vietnam wars and the tanks of the 2nd Armored wrote military history under Gen. George S. Patton Jr. in World War II.

The 2nd Armored was ordered deactivated by Defense Secretary Dick Cheney before this latest callup and this may be its last assignment. A Texas judge rejected a lawsuit challenging the action, which will hurt the central Texas economy.

The Fort Hood units have trained at the Army's desert training facility in the Mojave near Fort Irwin, Calif., as have units of the 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment that are being deployed from Fort Bliss in west Texas.

Unspecified numbers of troops from the 11th Air Defense Artillery Brigade also are being sent from Fort Bliss.

About 4,200 soldiers, 300 of the Army's most modern tanks and other armored vehicles, and Blackhawk and Cobra helicopters are assigned to the regiment, which be was not surprised that the Fort Bliss units had been called.

''They're well trained and they're needed,'' Maloney said. ''And they'll acquit themselves well if they have to fight. But let's all hope they don't have to be used and that peace is maintained.''

A troop train is being loaded at Fort Bliss, apparently headed for the port of Beaumont, Texas, 900 miles away.

The regiment's M1A1 tanks are considered to be the best in the world. It also had an undisclosed number of Bradley Fighting Vehicles, which are smaller tracked assault carriers with a 25 mm guns.

The 11th brigade is reportedly sending personnel trained in the Patriot, Hawk, Chaparral and Stinger missile systems, and Vulcan cannon systems. They are designed to defending against low and medium-flying aircraft.

JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA (AUG. 18) UPI - Saudi Arabia Saturday vowed it will pump an extra 2 million barrels of oil daily if its OPEC partners refuse to increase production to meet global shortages caused by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Saudi Oil Minister Hisham Nazer said his country could satisfy half of a worldwide shortfall of approximately 4 million barrels daily that has been caused by an embargo on Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil.

Nazer said he believed Venezuela and the United Arab Emirates could each produce an extra 500,000 barrels daily, but even increased production would still leave a global shortage of 1 million barrels a day.

The 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, of which Iraq and Kuwait are members, pumps about 40 percent of the oil traded on world markets. The cartel has traditionally avoided involvement in political conflicts, but Nazer said OPEC must meet ''immediately'' to determine strategy in response to the Iraqi invasion.

''Do you want a thirsty market to be even more thirsty by reducing supply and causing economic recession?'' Nazer said during a news conference. ''The first countries that would be hurt (by a recession) would be the OPEC countries.''

Reports have indicated Indonesia, Nigeria, Libya, Iran and Algeria are opposed to OPEC raising cartel production to compensate for the embargoed oil.

Nazer said if the cartel does not meet and agree to increases, Saudi Arabia would proceed to increase its current daily output of 5.38 million barrels. He added his country has had orders totalling 7.9 million barrels a day.

''We did not necessarily say (to the members) that we want to take unilateral action, but if they refuse they leave us no alternative,'' said Nazer. ''We do not shy away from contentious and divisive affairs, but we cannot see how any organization can turn its face the other way and say there is no crisis.''

Nazer said an Iraqi pipeline that has a daily capacity to transport 1.6 million barrels through Saudi territory would remain closed until Iraq withdrew from Kuwait. Saudi Arabia has refused to allow Iraqi-owned tankers that have arrived at the pipeline's terminal to load with oil.

Nazer indicated Riyadh's strategy was aimed at assisting cash-strapped developing nations that cannot afford oil prices as high as $28 a barrel on international markets.

''We will not let the countries of the third world down the drain,'' he said.

An OPEC meeting in July had concluded with an agreement to set the barrel price at $21 a barrel by December, with the cartel's total output at 22.941 million barrels daily.

Crude oil prices had rocketed to 4 1/2-year highs and wholesale gasoline shot up more than 8 cents a gallon Friday.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, the benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for September delivery shot up $1.27 to $28.63 a barrel - the highest Merc closing price since $28.74 on Dec. 6, 1985, and within reach of the Merc's all-time high of $30.15, achieved in January 1984.

On the European cash market, the United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude shipped mainly to the Far East - soared $1.15 to $24.70 a barrel, up $2.25 on the week.

Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent finished up $1.10 at $28.50 a barrel.

NEW YORK (AUG. 18) UPI - A jury focused on the defense cases of two of the three youths accused of raping and attempting to kill a female jogger in Central Park as it headed into its 10th day of deliberations.

The panel, which resumed its deliberations just before 11 a.m. Saturday morning, listened Friday to a readback of testimony from two police officers that supported a defense theory offered by Raymond Santana's lawyer, Peter Rivera.

In his summation, Rivera noted that several police officers responded to calls about a ring of fire burning just 100 feet from where the 30-year-old investment banker was attacked.

Prosecutors say the jogger was bashed in the head, gang-raped, beaten again and left for dead about 9:30 p.m. on April 19, 1989.

Police officer Mark Carlson testified he arrived at the fire at about 9:40 p.m. and found two other officers there, while officer Ivelisse Flores estimated she arrived at the fire about 9:25 p.m. or 9:30 p.m.

Rivera argued that with police officers in the area, it was unlikely the youths would have risked attacking the woman. He also argued the police officers would have heard her screams.

Instead, Rivera argued, the rape must have occurred later in the evening - after the youths left the park and were under arrest - and therefore was committed by someone else.

On Friday, the ninth day of deliberations, the jury also watched defendant Antron McCray's videotaped confession for the fifth time.

Earlier in the day, they re-heard the testimony of his mother, Linda McCray, who claimed her son lied when he confessed last year to the rape and beating so he could go home with his parents.

As the video camera began recording at the police precinct, Linda McCray testified, her teenage son gave a graphic account of the beating and gang-rape of the woman jogger in Central Park.

McCray, 16, Santana, 15, and Yusef Salaam, 16, are on trial on 13 criminal counts of being part of a gang of up to 30 youths who went on a ''wilding'' rampage, randomly beating and robbing people. The trial began June 25.

On the video, McCray admitted kicking the jogger, hitting her with a metal pipe, holding her down while others raped her and then climbing on top of her and feigning intercourse.

''Were you shocked?'' asked Assistant District Attorney Elizabeth Lederer during her cross-examination at the trial in state Supreme Court in Manhattan.

''I know, I know myself he wouldn't do anything ... . I know it was a lie '' the mother replied in a choked voice.

''My husband said that the police told him if Antron tell them what they want to know and put himself in it, he go home. If he don't, he go to jail '' she added.

''Did you honestly believe that if Antron said, 'I held her down while four others raped her, I raped her, I beat her with a pipe,' did you honestly believe he would go home?'' Lederer asked incredulously.

''I believed what my husband said, that the police said he could go home '' the mother replied.

PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 18) UPI - The city's deepening debt woes have raised the specter of a descent into a severe fiscal crisis of the sort that afflicted New York in the 1970s.

Despite acknowledged differences between Philaldephia's plight and New York's in 1975, economists and business leaders are urging Philadelphia Mayor Wilson Goode to form a New York-style team of experts to restore the city's fiscal health.

''Maybe the best thing is to get a financial advisory board and an outside management team,'' says Jeremy Siegel, professor of finance at the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Business.

''The truth of the matter is ... (Goode) has not made the management savings that are needed,'' Siegel said. ''What we need is a good business manager for Philadelphia.''

Siegel's view echoes a recent call by the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce for a bipartisan panel to deal with the city's fiscal problems.

Philadelphia, though it is thought to be in less dire shape than New York 15 years ago, says it needs to raise $450 million immediately by selling short-term notes to cover city expenses.

A published report Saturday said the city will tell potential investors it will run out of cash in September unless it can sell the notes.

The Philadelphia Inquirer said a preliminary statement intended to help persuade investors to buy the notes indicates that Goode will propose fiscal reform measures including a $150 million emergency tax increase and the sale of some city assets, including Veterans Stadium.

''The severity of the city's budgetary and cash situation in (this) fiscal year requires extraordinary action,'' the statement says.

The credit-rating agency Standard & Poor's has already alerted investors it is considering a further lowering of Philadelphia's dismal bond rating.

Two months before New York went broke, S&P suspended the ''A'' rating on New York City bonds, a higher rating than Philadelphia's current triple B-minus.

In June 1975, facing $792 million in debt, New York Mayor Abraham Beame agreed to the creation of the Municipal Assistance Corp., which three months later was augmented by the Emergency Financial Control Corp.

It took four years and a lot of acrimony between unions and the city, but the polish was finally restored to the Big Apple.

As was the case with New York, a national economic slowdown, generous settlements with labor unions and city spending that outpaced revenues have all contributed to Philadelphia's fiscal problems, Siegel says.

But Siegel cautions that such comparisons obscure a major, and perhaps crucial, distinction in Philadelphia's plight.

Despite President Gerald Ford's initial reluctance to help New York, the federal government eventually doled out $23 million to the city, much more than Washington and Harrisburg combined seem willing hand over to Philadelphia.

''The city is grappling with greater (crime, drug and other urban) problems without federal or state help, and the state is not in the mood to help them if they think the city is not run right,'' Siegel says.

Taking the heat for running the city into debt are Goode and, to a lesser extent, the City Council. Both have been criticized for allowing political stalemate and indecision to rule fiscal policy.

Goode is barred by the City Charter from running for a third term in 1991. Some potential successors already have surfaced and that has polarized the council.

For the politicians, the potential bottom line on calling in outside management - which might be seen as an admission of failure - is clear: Beame lost to Ed Koch when he ran for re-election in 1977.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (AUG. 18) UPI - Describing President Bush as ''deeply concerned,'' the White House Saturday condemned Iraq's threat to relocate and to withhold food from Americans trapped in that country until the threat of war is over.

''The use of innocent civilians as pawns to promote what Iraq sees as its self-interest is contrary to international law,'' press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said in a statement.

''We urge that Iraq immediately reconsider its refusal to allow any foreign national desiring to leave, to do so without delay or condition,'' he said.

Fitzwater also termed as ''totally unacceptable'' Iraq's announcement late Friday that it would hold Americans and other foreign nationals until the threat of war is over.

The press secretary issued the brief statement shortly after Iraq announced it would also limit food to these nationals, including babies, until a de facto blockade is lifted.

Fitzwater said Bush was ''deeply concerned'' about the latest developments in the Middle East crisis that began Aug. 2 when Iraq invaded the oil-rich emerate of Kuwait, prompting U.S. military intervention in the region.

A spokesman for the Iraq Labor Ministry appealed in a televised broadcast for the families of the foreigners to protest the U.S. decision to enforce economic sanctions against Iraq, imposed by the United Nations following Iraq invasion of Kuwait.

''We decided to treat the foreign newborn babies similarly with the Iraqi babies if there were to be any reduction in the necessities ... because of the economic embargo,'' the spokesman said.

The ''blockade, including food and medicine ... is considered an act of war,'' the Iraqi spokesman said.

In Saturday's initial announcement, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein said through a spokesman that Iraq would ''host'' thousands of foreign nationals at key military and economic installations in Iraq and Kuwait, presumably to discourage action by Western forces gathered in the Persian Gulf.

Meanwhile, Bush was expected to act soon on a Pentagon recommendation to activate tens of thousands of U.S. military reserves.

There are believed to be 45,000 U.S. ground troops in Saudi Arabia, and officials said that force could grow to as many as 100,000 American soldiers.

If reserve forces are activated to back up U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia, it will mark the first full-scale test of the post-Vietnam War restructuring of the American military.

NEW YORK (AUG. 18) UPI - The Miami Hurricanes, the dominant college football team of the 1980s with three national titles, Saturday were named No. 1 by the United Press International Board of Coaches in the first poll of the 1990 season.

As they did in the final poll last year, the Hurricanes beat out Notre Dame and Florida State for the No. 1 position in voting done by 58 members of the Board of Coaches.

For the first time, the ratings reflect the nation's top 25 teams, up from the 20-team poll UPI has used since the inception of its ratings in 1950. In addition, the Board of Coaches has been expanded from 50 members to 59 in 1990.

Miami received 25 first-place votes and 799 of a possible 870 points, easily outdistancing No. 2 Notre Dame, which received 15 first-place votes and 755 points. No. 3 Florida State was named first on eight ballots and finished with 686 points.

''It's nice to have respect from people. That's what preseason ratings mean to me - preseason respect,'' said Miami Coach Dennis Erickson, who took the Hurricanes to the 1989 national championship in his first year as coach. ''Early ratings don't mean a whole heck of a lot. The ratings at the end of the year are the most important.''

Miami finished 11-1 last year, its only loss coming against rival Florida State. But the Hurricanes toppled previously unbeaten Notre Dame 27-10 in the regular-season finale and beat Alabama 33-25 in the Sugar Bowl to become the first team since the 1983 Miami squad to win the national title without going undefeated.

The Hurricanes are seeking to become the first team in 20 years to repeat as national champions. The last team to win back-to-back UPI national titles was Texas in 1969 and 1970.

''It's very difficult to repeat as national champions. It's difficult to be the national champion once,'' Erickson said. ''You've got to have a lot of luck. Last year we were very fortunate in winning some key games and having some people beat each other. To have that happen twice in a row, you've got to be really lucky.''

The Hurricanes also will try to become only the second team in the last 13 years to win the national championship after being named No. 1 prior to the season. Notre Dame accomplished the feat in 1977, and Oklahoma matched it in 1985.

Notre Dame finished 12-1 last year, the best record in the country, after beating previously undefeated Colorado 21-6 in the Orange Bowl. The Fighting Irish traditionally play the toughest schedule in the nation, but that was wiped out in the minds of voters last year by the loss to Miami.

''People like to pick us No. 1 because we have the best record against the toughest schedule. We had that last year and we weren't No. 1,'' said Notre Dame Coach Lou Holtz, whose team finished third in the final 1989 poll.

No. 3 Florida State lost any chance at the national championship last year when it lost its first two games, but won 10 in a row from that point to finish second.

Auburn was ranked fourth in the 1990 preseason, having been named first on eight ballots and finishing with 666 points. No. 5 Colorado, last year's regular-season No. 1 which missed its first national title by losing in the Orange Bowl, received the final two first-place votes and totaled 565 points.

Sixth was Southern Cal, three-time defending Pacific 10 Conference champions, followed by Big Ten titlist Michigan, in its first season without Bo Schembechler as coach since 1970. Longtime Schembechler assistant Gary Moeller now leads the Wolverines.

Nebraska was ranked eighth, followed by No. 9 Tennessee and No. 10 Clemson also with a new coach, as former Arkansas mentor Ken Hatfield replaced the ousted Danny Ford.

No. 11 Texas A&M made the biggest jump into the ratings, having dropped out in the final 1989 poll after a loss to Pittsburgh in the Hancock Bowl. Illinois was No. 12, followed by Big Ten rival Ohio State, another newcomer from last year.

No. 14 Brigham Young was followed by No. 15 Arkansas under new Coach Jack Crowe and No. 16 Washington. No. 17 Alabama, under new Coach Gene Stallings, took the biggest fall from last year's final poll, dropping 10 places from seventh. Penn State was 18th.

No. 19 UCLA is one of only two teams in the ratings that finished with a losing record last season. The Bruins went 3-7-1 for only their second losing season in 14 years under Coach Terry Donahue.

Pittsburgh was No. 20, followed by defending Atlantic Coast Conference champion Virginia, Michigan State and Arizona. Syracuse and Texas tied at No. 24, with the Longhorns the other ranked team coming off a losing record.

The national champion will receive the UPI Coaches Trophy and a $32,000 non-athletic scholarship from the Gerrits Foundation and United Press International. Schools ineligible for consideration in the ratings because of NCAA sanctions are Houston, Memphis State, Oklahoma and Oklahoma State.

(AUG. 18) UPI - Iraq says three-thousand U-S citizens trapped in Iraq and occupied Kuwait will remain until the threat of U-S ''aggression has passed.'' The statement yesterday by the speaker of Iraq's parliament comes as Defense Secretary Cheney heads for Saudi Arabia to view the U-S troop buildup. Cheney says American troops will remain as long as needed. They were sent to block further Iraqi aggression following Baghdad's August 2nd invasion of Kuwait.

Falling temperatures and rising humidity are a boon for firefighters battling wildfires in the West. KANSAS CITY, MO (AUG. 18) UPI - A concert-goer leaving a performance by the rap group Public Enemy was fatally shot in a parking lot at Kemper Arena, police said Saturday.

Leo Whitebear, 19, was declared dead at the scene from what appeared to be a gunshot wound from a handgun, said Sgt. Keith Francis of the Kansas City Police Department-homicide division.

Francis said Whitebear may have been a bystander when a dispute between two groups of people erupted into gunfire just before midnight Friday.

''He was just walking along. He may have been an innocent victim,''

Francis said. ''Two groups got into an altercation, shots were fired from one group to another group, and he was struck by a bullet.''

An autopsy was scheduled Saturday. Police had no suspects.

JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA (AUG. 18) UPI - Saudi Arabian intelligence sources said Saturday that the main body of Iraqi troops deployed in occupied Kuwait is camped 25 to 45 miles away from the Saudi-Iraqi border.

''There are small Iraqi units on the Saudi-Iraqi frontier, but these numbers are very small. ... They go to the border and then return,'' one Saudi military intelligence official said.

''They are not permanently deployed along the desert border. Other than Iraqi border posts, the main body of the Iraqi force is 40 to 70 kilometers (25 to 45 miles) back.''

The Saudi official said all indications were that ''the main Iraqi force of some 170,000 men and 1,000 pieces of armor (tanks) are digging in.''

But he pointed out that those forces could rapidly turn into an offensive force in what he described as perfect tank country.

''The potential for mobilizing those forces and turning them into an offensive force at short notice is very great,'' he said.

''It is quite normal for Iraqi troops to dig in before an attack,'' he added. ''This area is perfect for tanks.''

The Saudi intelligence official said popular feelings in Iraq after Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's capitulation to Iran have dimmed.

''Popular feelings when Kuwait was incorporated have dimmed since (Saddam) caved in to Iran,'' he said.

The Saudi official said Saddam may have a tremendous force at his command to mount an operation against Saudi Arabia, but he would find it difficult to sustain the operation.

Saddam ''may have a tremendous force at his command. ... He may be able to mount an operation into Saudi Arabia. But how long he can sustain it is another question,'' the official said.

''The drain and the distances involved are potentially an important factor '' he added.

He said there was evidence to show Saddam had moved at least five to six divisions westward back into Iraq from the Shatt-al-Arab waterway in the northern gulf. But there was no evidence these troops had been redeployed in Kuwait. Each Iraqi division contains between 18 and 20,000 men.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (AUG. 18) UPI - Describing President Bush as ''deeply concerned,'' the White House Saturday condemned Iraq's threat to relocate and to withhold adequate food from Americans and other foreign nationals trapped in that country until the threat of war is over.

''The use of innocent civilians as pawns to promote what Iraq sees as its self-interest is contrary to international law,'' press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said in a statement.

''We urge that Iraq immediately reconsider its refusal to allow any foreign national desiring to leave, to do so without delay or condition,'' he said.

Fitzwater also termed as ''totally unacceptable'' Iraq's announcement late Friday that it would hold Americans and other foreign nationals until the threat of war is over.

The press secretary issued the brief statement shortly after Iraq announced it would also limit food to these nationals, including babies, until a week-old de facto blockade initiated by the United States is lifted.

The carefully worded one-page statement was the administration's first comment on Iraq's threat late Friday to hold all foreign nationals until the Persian Gulf crisis ends.

In the statement, the administration still refused to describe these captives as ''hostages,'' referring to them instead as ''American citizens '' ''individuals'' or ''foreign nationals.''

Fitzwater said Bush views the statement Friday by the speaker of Iraq's national assembly that Baghdad '''will play host to citizens of these aggressive (foreign) nations until as long as Iraq remains threatened''' to be ''totally unacceptable.''

Fitzwater said, ''The president is deeply troubled by the indication that Iraqi authorities intend to relocate these individuals within Iraq against their will.''

''The president is also deeply concerned about today's announcement by the government of Iraq that foreign nationals may not have access to adequate quantities of food,'' he said.

A spokesman for the Iraq Labor Ministry appealed in a televised broadcast for the families of the foreigners to protest the U.S. decision to enforce economic sanctions against Iraq, imposed by the United Nations following Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

''We decided to treat the foreign newborn babies similarly with the Iraqi babies if there were to be any reduction in the necessities ... because of the economic embargo,'' the spokesman said.

The ''blockade, including food and medicine ... is considered an act of war,'' the Iraqi spokesman said.

In Saturday's initial announcement, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein said through a spokesman that Iraq would ''host'' thousands of foreign nationals at key military and economic installations in Iraq and Kuwait, presumably to discourage action by Western forces gathered in the Persian Gulf.

Meanwhile, Bush was expected to act soon on a Pentagon recommendation to activate tens of thousands of U.S. military reserves.

There are believed to be 45,000 U.S. ground troops in Saudi Arabia, and officials said that force could grow to as many as 100,000 American soldiers.

If reserve forces are activated to back up U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia, it will mark the first full-scale test of the post-Vietnam War restructuring of the American military.

Bush, on a three-week working vacation in Maine, discussed the latest Iraqi threat, and the administration's response to it, during a phone call with aides while aboard his speedboat, Fitzwater said.

The White House announced that a scheduled return by Bush to Washington Sunday had been moved up by a few hours so he can have dinner with national security advisers at the White House.

On Monday, Bush is to meet with Energy Secretary James Watkins and budget advisers to discuss the impact of the crisis in the oil-rich gulf on the United States' energy supply and spending plans.

The Pentagon estimates that the massive buildup of U.S. troops in the Middle East will cost $1.3 billion during the first six weeks, more if fighting breaks out.

Fitzwater, in his statement, expressed hope that Iraq would pay heed to a U.N. statement Friday ''expressing concern and anxiety'' over the fate of foreign nationals in Iraq and Kuwait, and ''calling upon the secretary general to take all appropriate steps.''

Fitzwater said the United States intends to consult with the governments of other citizens being held Iraq and Kuwait ''to determine what additional measures ought to be taken.''

(AUG. 18) UPI - The stakes are rising in the Middle East in the wake of Iraq's August 2nd invasion of Kuwait. The Washington Post reports the United States may call up as many as 80-thousand Army reserves, the first

From all indications, U-S forces will be in the Middle East for some time. Defense Secretary Cheney told reporters yesterday on his way to Saudi Arabia that the U-S commitment to the region is- in his words- ''long term.''

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (AUG. 18) UPI - President Bush, irritated by unflattering pictures and soundbites of him vacationing in Maine as tensions escalate in the Persian Gulf, became somewhat teed off Saturday at the Golf Arundel Golf Club.

Asked by reporters if he had been in touch with the White House situation room yet, Bush snapped, ''I talk to them every morning at 5:30 and, I'm not going to take any more comments up here, though. Let's go.''

With that, the president ignored a question about the fate of Americans in Iraq and Kuwait, turned around with a huff and hooked his drive on the first hole into the rough.

Bush's self-proclaimed 25-day working vacation, now in week two, has had a number of rough spots. Take a strange scene Friday that was repeatedly played on television:

Bush, seated in his golf cart, told reporters of a possible roundup of Americans in Iraq, and condemned such action as a ''controvention of international law.''

He then sped off toward the first green, saying, ''I got to run!''

Later in the day, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater snapped, ''No,'' when asked at his daily press briefing if the administration detected any concern by the public about the contrasting pictures of Bush at play and American troops diggin in.

But Saturday Bush seemed concerned himself, even defensive.

''I'm never mad at you,'' Bush told reporters after finishing his morning round of golf. ''I just don't like taking questions on serious matters on my vacation.''

''I think we are readily available to the press, probably more so than most, and I'll try to continue that,'' said Bush, who has had two formal and two informal news conferences in the past week.

''But it just doesn't seem appropriate'' to answer questions on the golf course, he said.

''So I hope you'll understand ... when I'm recreating, we'll recreate,'' he said. ''And when we're working, which I'm trying to do up here, I'll work hard.''

Bush began his ''working vacation'' Aug. 10, saying ''life goes on'' and that he doesn't want to be held ''hostage in the White House'' by his showdown with Iraq's Saddam Hussein.

Since then, between nearly daily boating and golfing and some jogging, tennis and fishing, Bush has monitored events in the gulf from his seaside home with briefings with top aides and frequent telephone calls to world leaders.

He's even taken and made some calls with a cellular phone from his golf cart and speedboat, Fidelity, and last week made a 21-hour trip to Washington for a Pentagon briefing and a White House budget meeting and news conference.

Last Sunday, he ordered a de facto blockade of Iraq, and on Wednesday he met at his summer home with Jordan's King Hussein and two top Saudi officials - and then went to a GOP fundraiser.

Late night TV comic Jay Leno offered his own assessment: ''President Bush announced America 'would stand by its friends,' and then went on a three-week vacation. Saddam Hussein retalitated by announcing he would go on a four-week vacation. Boy, things are getting rough.''

Bush has provided plenty of material for comics and reporters and TV cameras.

After one rain-drenched golf round, he was asked if he was aware aware of any shooting in the Middle East.

''You tell me,'' Bush told reporters. ''I've been playing golf out here.''

On Saturday, the president's oldest son, George W. Bush, tried to shield his father from reporters' questions.

''Hey, hey,'' George W. Bush chided reporters. ''Can't you wait until we finish hitting at least? My game is really bad, so when you are talking my backswing is even worse.''

The comment drew a cringe and a glare from the president.

Later Saturday, while Bush was at sea aboard his speedboat, Fidelity, he helped craft a brief administration response condemning a new threat by Iraq, made just hours earlier, to relocate and to withhold adequate food from Americans.

Fitzawater also announced that Bush's scheduled return to Washington Sunday had been moved up a few hours so he could have dinner at the White House with national security advisers.

Aides said he still planned to return to Kennebunkport and resume his vacation late Monday, following a couple of morning White House meetings, a speech to the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Baltimore and an address to a political fundraiser in Rhode Island.

TUNIS, TUNISIA (AUG. 18) UPI - A group of Tunisians who managed to flee occupied Kuwait described serious food shortages and continuing resistance to Iraqi troops in the tiny Gulf nation, a newspaper report said Saturday.

The group of 156 Tunisians left Kuwait on a Tunis Air flight through Amman Jordan, and Damascus, Syria, arriving Friday in the Tunisian capital.

Members of the group described long lines for bread and other necessities, and said they continued to hear gunshots fired in the night, apparently by

Kuwaiti resistance members, according to the newspaper ''Le Temps.''

Meanwhile, Kuwaiti Crown Prince Al Salem al Sabeh arrived in Tunis Saturday for an unspecified period for talks with government officials.

The prince was expected to meet with President Zine el Abedine Ben Ali, who initially condemned the Iraqi invasion but later appeared to side with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein against the intervention of Western military forces. Tunisia boycotted the Arab summit that voted to condemn the Iraqi invasion.

An estimated 2,000 Tunisians, mostly workers, were in Kuwait when it was overrun Aug. 2 by Iraqi troops.

Some of those who arrived in Tunis said there was ''practically nothing left'' in stores, which were emptied in the first few days after the invasion, the newspaper said.

''The militia forced us to give them bread which we obtained at great difficulty,'' one Tunisian said. ''They confiscated all our electrical appliances and video cassettes.''

The Tunisians said they did not feel threatened by the troops, adding that all Arab nationals appeared to be well treated except Egyptians, ''who are considered as undesirables,'' according to one witness.

The Iraqis appeared to show disdain for all Westerners, a Tunisian said, ''but the Americans and the British are the most hated.''

The Tunisian governmen said it would not immediately seek to repatriate all Tunisians in Iraq and Kuwait but would help those who wanted to leave. In addition to special flights by the Tunisian airline, some were being evacuated by bus into Jordan, the government said.

Although Tunisia has long been considered one of the more moderate Arab nations, public opinion, reflected by several newspapers, appears to favor Iraq. Some journals have virulently denounced the ''rich emirates'' while voicing support for Saddam Hussein.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (AUG. 18) UPI - Here is the text of a statement Saturday by White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater on the the Middle East crisis:

On several occasions since the Iraqi invasion and subsequent occupation of Kuwait, the president has stated publicly his interest in the well-being of American citizens and all foreign nationals in both Iraq and Kuwait.

The president thus views yesterday's statement by the speaker of Iraq's National Assembly, that Iraq will ''play host to the citizens of these aggressive nations as long as Iraq remains threatened with an aggressive war,'' to be totally unacceptable.

He is deeply troubled by the indication that Iraqi authorities intend to relocate these individuals within Iraq against their will. The president is also deeply concerned about today's announcement by the government of Iraq that foreign nationals may not have access to adequate quantities of food.

The use of innocent civilians as pawns to promote what Iraq sees to be its self-interest is contrary to international law and indeed to all accepted norms of international conduct.

We urge that Iraq immediately reconsider its refusal to allow any foreign national desiring to leave, to do so without delay or condition. We would also hope that Iraq would take note of yesterday's statement by the U.N. Security Council president expressing the Council's concern and anxiety over the situation of foreign nationals in Iraq and Kuwait, and calling upon the Secretary General to take all appropriate steps.

The United States intends to consult with other governments, with citizens being held in Iraq and Kuwait, to determine what additional measures ought to be taken.

(AUG. 18) UPI - Here is a roundup of the latest events in the Persian Gulf crisis sparked by the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of the oil-rich emirate of Kuwait.

Iraq calls the U.S. naval quarantine in the Persian Gulf an ''act of war'' and warns that foreign babies detained in the besieged country will suffer along with Iraqi infants if there are shortages of food and medicine. Iraq, upping the stakes in the Persian Gulf crisis, earlier declared it would keep citizens of ''aggressive nations'' at military and other key installations in Iraq and Kuwait as long as the country is threatened with war.

The White House condemns Iraq's threat to relocate and to withhold food from Americans trapped in that country until the threat of war is over. White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater termed as ''totally unacceptable'' Iraq's announcement that it would hold Americans and other foreign nationals until the crisis ends.

Saudi Arabia vows to pump an extra 2 million barrels of oil daily if its OPEC partners refuse to increase production to meet global shortages. Saudi Oil Minister Hisham Nazer says his country could satisfy half of a worldwide shortfall of 4 million barrels daily caused by an embargo on Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil.

Saudi Arabia's foreign minister says the United Nations may authorize a multinational naval blockade against Iraq to enforce trade sanctions being enforced unilaterally by the United States. Foreign Minister Saud al Faisal says all diplomatic solutions are doomed because Iraq refuses to withdraw from Kuwait.

Saudi Arabian intelligence sources report the main force of Iraqi troops deployed in occupied Kuwait is camped 25 to 45 miles from the Saudi-Iraqi border. Officials say the force of 170,000 men and 1,000 pieces of armor is ''digging in.''

President Bush snaps at reporters questioning the timing of his vacation during the Persian Gulf crisis. Bush, preparing to tee off for a morning round of golf, was asked if he had been in touch with the White House situation room yet. Bush shot back: ''I talk to them every morning at 5:30 and, I'm not going to take any more comments up here, though. Let's go.''

(AUG. 18) UPI - The United States is preparing to dig in for a lengthy stay in the Persian Gulf. Defense Secretary Cheney says U-S troops sent to Saudi Arabia to counter further Iraqi aggression will remain as long as needed. Washington has also put commercial airlines on alert to help transport military equipment to Saudi Arabia.

President Bush is expected to call up military reserves to take over stateside duties of regular troops sent to the Middle East. A Bush administration source says the president is ''leaning'' toward a call-up, a move that could be announced today. It would be the first such mass activation in 20 years.

dead and more than 200 wounded.

NEW YORK (AUG. 18) UPI - An inmate beaten in a bloody riot this week at the Rikers Island jail died Saturday, the first casualty of the uprising that left 162 prisoners and guards injured following a strike by corrections department officers, authorities said.

Steven Glover died at Harlem Hospital at 6:51 a.m., said Ed Titus, an administrator at the facility. Neither Glover's age nor details of his detainment were immediately available.

Some 65 percent of the nearly 14,000 inmates at Rikers are awaiting trial, according to corrections department officials.

On Friday, Mayor David Dinkins stood by his administration's handling of the uprising Tuesday night but suggested remarks by the president of the guards' union may have led to the bloody riot.

''He doesn't seem to care sufficiently for his people or our city given the fashion in which he has behaved ... and the careless accusations he places at the feet of others,'' the mayor said of union President Phil Seelig.

In question was Seelig's interpretation of an agreement worked out with the city Tuesday night regarding the use of force on inmates, an agreement that effectively settled a two-day blockade of the jail by guards.

Seelig told his members the union won a victory and that a directive that outlined how much force an officer can use on an unruly inmate had been superceded.

However, the order was only revised and even that is under review by U.S. Judge Morris Lasker.

Minutes after Seelig's announcement, a riot broke out that injured 162 prisoners and guards, the worst confrontation at the city jail since 1986.

An investigation is focusing on charges that guards took revenge on the inmates by systematically lining them up and beating them.

Seelig, in turn, had accused the Dinkins administration of blunders that contributed to the volatile situation at Rikers. He did not respond to Dinkins' criticism Friday.

Dinkins backed his own administration's handling of the blockade by guards saying the situation was settled in 36 hours.

(AUG. 18) UPI - The following is a chronology of key events in the Persian Gulf crisis:

Thursday, Aug. 2 - In a blitzkreig-style raid, a massive Iraqi invasion force crosses into Kuwait, expelling the government and taking control of the oil-rich state. President Bush and other world leaders condemn the attack. Bush freezes billions of dollars of Iraqi and Kuwaiti assets and says the United States will place an economic embargo on Iraq.

Friday, Aug. 3 - Iraq begins to mass forces on the nation's southern border with Saudi Arabia, the world's leading oil supplier. U.S. and Soviet officials call for the immediate Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait.

Sunday, Aug. 5 - New intelligence information shows Iraqi movements near the Saudi border. Bush calls on the United Nations to impose harsh economic sanctions on Iraq. He sends Defense Secretary Richard Cheney to Saudi Arabia to discuss placing U.S. troops there in defensive positions.

Monday, Aug. 6 - The U.N. Security Council votes overwhelmingly to impose a worldwide embargo on trade with Iraq and Kuwait.

Tuesday, Aug. 7 - The Saudi government tells Cheney it will allow U.S. troops in the country and Bush immediately begins sending air and ground forces to join Navy ships already in the region.

Friday, Aug. 10 - Arab leaders meeting in Cairo call for the creation of a pan-Arab peacekeeping force to be deployed on the Saudi-Kuwaiti border. Saddam calls on ''Arabs, Moslems and believers in God'' to wage ''holy war'' against Western intruders.

Sunday, Aug. 12 - The United States says it will use force to block all sea trade with Iraq, including food shipments. Secretary of State Baker says a blockade responds to Kuwaiti requests for enforcement of the U.N.-ordered embargo.

Saddam vows Iraq will not withdraw from Kuwait until Israel leaves occupied territories and Syria pulls out of Lebanon.

An Air Force technician is killed in a runway accident in Saudi Arabia, marking first American death since U.S. forces arrived.

Monday, Aug. 13 - The embargo tightens as an Iraqi tanker sails away from the Saudi Red Sea port of Yanbu without taking on oil after tugs refuse to guide it into harbor.

Great Britain and Australia agree to join the U.S. blockade, but France balks, fearing it would become a ''co-belligerent.'' U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar and Security Council members including Soviet Union criticize unilateral U.S. action.

Pakistan agrees to join the military force in Saudi Arabia.

Tuesday, Aug. 14 - An Iraqi official calls Americans in Iraq and Kuwait ''restrictees'' who will not be allowed to leave until crisis ends.

Bush threatens a U.S. blockade of the key Jordanian Red Sea port of Aqaba unless shipments to Iraq are halted. Bush also offers aid to Jordan if its honors Iraqi embargo. King Hussein of Jordan flies to United States for a meeting with Bush.

Wednesday, Aug. 15 - Saddam unexpectedly agrees to meet nearly all Iranian terms for a formal end to the war with that country, offering to withdraw from Iranian territory and exchange prisoners. Iranian officials welcome offer and call it their ''biggest victory'' since 1979 revolution. The Iraqi move was seen as a bid to free up troops and possibly gain Iranian aid in evading embargo.

Bush, in a speech at the Pentagon, sharpens rhetoric, accusing Saddam of lying.

Thursday, Aug. 16 - Iraqi authorities order 2,500 Americans and 4,000 Britons in Kuwait to assemble at two hotels, raising fears they will be moved to Iraq.

Bush meets with King Hussein in Kennebunkport, Maine, and makes little progress on easing crisis. Hussein says he will honor embargo but questions whether it applies to food.

U.S. naval forces are ordered to intercept commercial shipping to and from Iraq or Kuwait.

Despite Saddam's offer to Iran, that nation repeats its opposition to the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Saddam calls Bush a liar and vows that if the United States attacks, thousands of Americans would go home in ''shrouded and sad coffins.''

Friday, Aug. 17 - U.S. officials say 35 Americans in the Iraqi capital of Baghdad were moved from a hotel against their will and Japanese nationals were being barred from leaving Iraq and Kuwait.

Iraq releases Iranian POWs and reportedly shifts troops from its border with Iran to Kuwait's border with Saudi Arabia.

An Iraqi cargo ship laden with food sails through the Suez Canal on course for a possible showdown with U.S. warships ordered to interdict trade.

President Bush considers a plan to call up U.S. military reserves.

Saturday, Aug. 18 - Iraq calls the U.S. naval quarantine in the Persian Gulf an ''act of war,'' warning that foreign babies detained in the country will suffer along with Iraqi infants if there are shortages of food and medicine.

Iraq also declares it will keep citizens of ''aggressive nations'' at military and other key installations in Iraq and Kuwait as long as the country is threatened with war.

The White House condemns Iraq's plan to use Americans as ''pawns'' as a violation of international law and immediately calls upon Baghdad to release all foreign nationals.

CLEARWATER, FL (AUG. 18) UPI - Virginia lawyer Thomas Root, who survived a mystery flight to the Bahamas last year than ended in a watery crash, has surrendered to authorities to face 50 criminal charges of investment fraud in the sale of FM radio license applications.

Root, who became nationally known last year when his plane crashed off the Bahamas after a bizarre six-hour flight, flew to Clearwater Friday from his home in Norwalk, Ohio, to surrender to Pinellas County authorities.

He was booked briefly in the county jail before a circuit judge ordered him released on his own recognizance. A sheriff's department spokeswoman said Root left immediately for Ohio.

Root is accused with three other men of selling fraudulent investment opportunities in FM radio license applications pending before the Federal Communications Commission.

The 37-year-old attorney handled applications for investors in Sonrise, a Georgia company that espoused Christian principles in its sales literature.

Root has already pleaded guilty to federal felony charges of misrepresenting clients. He faces up to 35 years in prison and $1.2 million in fines and he will likely be sentenced within 30 days.

He also has been indicted by a grand jury in North Carolina on 455 counts of securities fraud and other charges.

He will be tried in Pinellas County on the state charges because a sizable number of the 200 Floridians who invested in Root's ventures live in Pinellas and Pasco counties.

Root became newsworthy last year when his plane crashed in the Atlantic Ocean off the Bahamas after a six-hour flight from the Washington, D.C., area. He claimed he blacked out during the flight and the plane flew on automatic pilot until it hit the water.

Navy pilots tracked the flight and disputed that account, saying they saw Root moving in the cockpit.

The mystery deepened when rescuers discovered Root had a gunshot wound in his abdomen, which has still not been explained.

(AUG. 18) UPI - Saudi Arabia's foreign minister says the United Nations may authorize a multi-national naval blockade against Iraq. U-N Secretary General Perez de Cuellar said earlier this week he believed the U-S decision to board and search ships leaving or sailing to Iraq and Kuwait went beyond the bounds of the U-N-mandated sanctions. Britain says it will join in the U-S interdiction.

Iraqi policy is firming with regard to foreign nationals in Iraq and occupied Kuwait. Baghdad declared today it would keep citizens of so-called ''aggressive nations'' at military and other key installations as long as it's threatened with war. Britain condemned the detentions... denouncing them as illegal and contrary to accepted international behavior.

A White House spokesman promises a comment on the detention of Americans later today. While Iraq did NOT specify which foreigners would remain... it clearly meant citizens of Western nations that sent military forces or financial aid to sustain troops in the Persian Gulf. Nationals from the United States, Britain and Japan appear to have been singled out.

Officials in Manila say the Philippine armed forces are on maximum alert as a precaution after right-wing rebels announced they will stage another

ST. LOUIS (AUG. 18) UPI - Pat O'Connor, a former standout on the professional wrestling circuit, has died of cancer. He was 65.

O'Connor, a native of New Zealand, where he was an amateur champion, was recognized as the world champion by the National Wrestling Association after defeating Dick Hutton at Kiel Auditorium in St. Louis on Jan. 9, 1959.

O'Connor died Thursday night at Jewish Hospital in St. Louis, officials said.

He held the NWA title until June 30, 1961, when he lost to Buddy Rogers before a paid crowd of 38,622 at Comiskey Park in Chicago. That crowd is believed to be the second-largest in United States pro wrestling history.

O'Connor's last match was in St. Louis on Jan. 1, 1982.

O'Connor served in the New Zealand Royal Air Force in World War II. He competed in the Pan American Games in 1948 and the British Empire Games in 1950. He lived in Minneapolis, Chicago and Kansas City before moving to St. Louis in 1983.

He is survived by his wife, Julie; three daughters in Kansas City and a brother, Mervin, of New Zealand.

NEW YORK (AUG. 18) UPI - American television networks remained frustrated Saturday in efforts to broadcast reports from Iraq, where only CBS still had correspondents on the ground, network officials said.

Iraqi officials ''invited'' ABC correspondents Ted Koppell and Forrest Sawyer to leave the country with their crews within days of arriving Tuesday, ABC spokesman Scott Richardson said.

Koppell, who had interviewed Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz, was ordered out of the country. He returned late Friday to Washington. Sawyer was able to stay just one more day, Richardson said.

Koppell had been the first Western network representative to reach Baghdad arriving a day ahead of CBS's Dan Rather. NBC's Tom Brokaw got only as far as Saudi Arabia.

In Saudi Arabia, news executives have expressed frustration with the Pentagon, complaining that U.S. military officials were significantly restricting the effectiveness of the pool of reporters and photographers covering American troops taking up defensive positions in that Arab country.

Richardson said ABC has ''no one in Iraq now,'' but 12 correspondents and producers and crews remain in other Middle East locations.

NBC has 70 employees around the area, including Jordan, Egypt and Israel, but not in Iraq, spokeswoman Katherine McQuay said. Garrick Utley was scheduled to report from Jordan on Sunday.

From Baghdad, Rather has been unable to transmit picture coverage, but has reported via telephone lines and interviewed Aziz Saturday, CBS said. Correspondent Allen Pizzey also was filing reports.

Network spokesman Tom Goodman said the CBS news crew arrived in Iraq Wednesday via Jordan and that it was unclear how long they would be able to stay.

He declined to discuss in detail any security concerns the network might have about its employees in Iraq, which has said it will keep detained citizens of ''aggressive nations'' at military and other key installations in Iraq and Kuwait as long as it is threatened with war.

''At this point, we're not really saying much about them,'' Goodman said. ''We're taking every possible precaution. They say the people on the ground are being treated well.''

(AUG. 18) UPI - Iraq said Saturday it would detain thousands of foreigners in Iraq and Kuwait as a human shield against U.S. attack and vowed foreign babies would suffer along with Iraqi infants if economic sanctions deprive the country of food and medicine.

An Iraqi Labor Ministry spokesman called the U.S. decision to intercept Iraqi ships and cut Iraq off from trade with the world an ''act of war.''

Baghdad, using trapped foreigners as bargaining chips in a high stakes bluffing game, reportedly offered Brazil the return of its nationals if the South American country defied the economic embargo imposed by the United Nations following Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The maneuvers by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, beseiged by the embargo and confronting a U.S.-led multinational military force, appeared destined to isolate Baghdad even further. Britain and France quickly condemned the detentions, while the White House deplored using innocent foreigners as ''pawns'' of war.

There are an estimated 300,000 Westerners and Asians caught in Kuwait and Iraq, including 3,000 Americans, and over a million other Arab nationals who are apparently unaffected by the announcement.

The United States, which decided unilaterally to enforce the sanctions by boarding and searching ships, intercepted two Iraqi ships Friday but allowed them to proceed when it was determined they were empty. Pentagon sources said the U.S. Navy has been ordered to turn back shipments of food but not medicine.

The Iraqi Labor Ministry said in a statement that ''the United States and its allies have surpassed the economic embargo, ... including food and medicine, which is considered an act of war in accordance with international custom and international law.''

Saadi Mahdi Saleh, speaker of the Iraqi National Assembly, said in a statement early Saturday that Americans and other foreigners would be moved to key military and economic installations. Other Iraqi officials said the move was a ''preventive measure'' to deter Western attacks.

He did not say whether the foreigners had already been moved, but indicated they would stay put until the United States and other Western nations withdrew the tens of thousands of troops that have been deployed to Saudi Arabia to guard the kingdom against a possible Iraqi attack.

''The Iraqi people have decided to play host to the citizens of these aggressive nations now in Iraq, and in their forefront the United States, as long as Iraq continues to be under threat of an aggressive war,'' Saleh said the statement carried by the Iraq News Agency, INA.

Later in the day, the Iraqi Labor Ministry announced foreigners will suffer from the quarantine in an emotional statement that repeatedly referred to infants deprived of milk.

Pulling out all stops on pyschological warfare, it called on families of the detained foreigners to appeal to the United States, saying the ''right solution is for the embargo to end.''

''We decided to treat the foreign newborn babies similarly with the Iraqi babies if there were to be any reduction in the necessities ... because of the economic embargo,'' the spokesman said.

It said that Iraq would allocate its dwindling resources first to its troops, then to Iraqi citizens and, finally, to the foreign detainees.

''Their share of food, quantity and quality, will be affected by the blockade,'' the statement said.

Bush aides condemned Iraq's plan to use Americans as ''pawns'' as a violation of international law and immediately called upon Baghdad to release all foreign nationals. The administration has refused to term the Americans in Kuwait and Iraq as ''hostages.''

At his vacation home in Kennebunkport, Maine, a visibly irritated President Bush waived off questions from reporters early Saturday when asked about the fate of Americans in those countries.

Britain quickly denounced the detentions as illegal, unacceptable and contrary to norms of international behavior, and France warned the detentions could result in ''grave consequences.'' Moscow said it was concerned and studying the situation.

The United States continued its efforts to convince the United Nations to ''take steps'' to secure the release of the detained foreigners.

While Iraq did not specify which foreigners would remain, it clearly meant those from Western nations that sent military forces or financial aid to sustain troops in the Persian Gulf following the invasion of Kuwait.

Nationals from the United States, Britain and Japan appear to have been singled out while hundreds of Soviet citizens have been allowed to leave. Moscow has not joined the multinational military force, although it said it would do so if the United Nations supervised the operation.

The United States deployed tens of thousands of troops to Saudi Arabia following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and sent dozens of warships to the gulf.

Troops from Arab countries, principally Egypt, also have been deployed in Saudi Arabia. But more than 23,000 Arabs and other foreigners have been allowed to flood across the Iraqi border into Jordan since Thursday.

In a move foreshadowing Saturday's announcement, about 35 Americans were reported Friday to have been moved from the Rashid Hotel in Baghdad to another downtown hotel.

Before Saturday's declaration, Iraqi officials said Westerners were safe and their departures were delayed as a precautionary measure.

A newspaper closely linked to the Brazilian government reported Saturday that Iraq offered to return some of the country's estimated 500 nationals in Iraq and Kuwait if Brazil resumed trade broken off by the U.N. embargo.

The Brazilian government said it had no intention of accepting the offer.

The United States was also reportedly offering some deals, although with money instead of civilians. Senator Jim Stasser, a Democrat from Tennessee told Poland that Washington may reduce some of Poland's debt in gratitude that the struggling East European country joined the international sanctions.

In other actions Saturday, Saudi Arabia said it would step up its production of crude if OPEC, the Organization of Oil Producing Countries, failed to meet the increased demand caused by the Iraqi embargo.

Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy urged the United States to set a deadline for the withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

Saudi's Foreign Minister said in a news conference he believed the United Nations was prepared to put more muscle behind the economic embargo and order a multinational force to enforce the sanctions.

ABOARD THE USS EISENHOWER IN THE RED SEA (AUG. 18) UPI - The frigate USS Reid fired six warning shots across the bow of an Iraqi tanker in the Gulf of Oman that refused a warning to stop, Navy officials said Saturday.

The U.S. Naval fleet in the Persian Gulf went to battle stations following the incident but later discontinued its general quarters status.

A naval official told pool reporters traveling with Defense Secretary Dick Cheney that the Reid had fired the shots. It was not immediately known when the incident occurred Saturday or whether the tanker was stopped and boarded.

On Friday, two U.S. warships stopped two Iraqi cargo ships near the coast of Kuwait but allowed them to proceed when it was determined they were empty. The ships stopped when requested to do so and were not boarded, Pentagon officials said.

The shots Saturday were the first fired in the gulf region since the United States announced Thursday evening it would unilaterally enforce an economic embargo against Iraq imposed by the United Nations following Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Pentagon officials said the U.S. Navy was instructed to board and search suspected vessels and fire warning shots across the bows of ships that failed to heed warnings to stop.

Pentagon sources said shipments of food would be turned back and that only medicine would be allowed through to Iraq.

The U.N. resolution on the sanctions allows the shipments of food and medicine if warranted for humanitarian reasons.

CINCINNATI (AUG. 18) UPI - Ken Griffey, the remaining vestige of the Cincinnati Reds Big Red Machine of the 1970s, retired Saturday before the Reds' game with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Griffey, who made his major league debut with Cincinnati in 1973, reported to the Cincinnati clubhouse before a nationally televised game with Pittsburgh and reportedly was partially dressed for practice when summoned to Manager Lou Piniella's office.

Shortly afterward the 40-year-old reserve said he was ending his 18-year big-league career. Griffey left Riverfront Coliseum reportedly to travel to New York where his son, Seattle Mariners outfielder Ken Griffey, Jr., is playing against the Yankees.

''Ken is a class person who had a great career,'' Piniella said. ''I played with him for the Yankees and coached and managed him at New York and here in Cincinnati. He helped with the leadership in our clubhouse and I enjoyed being around him.

''Ken had talked about retirement and today he did it, but he'll still be around here to help us and work with the staff.''

The Reds manager said Griffey, who spent nine seasons with the Reds from 1973-81 and was a key member of Cincinnati's 1975 and '76 world championship teams, was considering coaching, possibly with the Reds.

Griffey's departure opened a roster spot for left-hander Chris Hammond, who started Saturday's game against the Pirates. Hammond was recalled from Class AAA Nashville of the American Association, where he was 14-1 with a 2.17 ERA. He had 139 strikeouts in 141 innings.

Hammond is replacing Danny Jackson, now on the 15-day disabled list, in the Reds' starting rotation.

Griffey was traded to the Yankees on Nov. 4, 1981, for Fred Toliver and Brian Ryder. He spent 4 1-2 seasons with New York before being traded to Atlanta on June 29, 1986 with Andre Robertson for Claudell Washington and Paul Zuvella.

Griffey was released by Atlanta and signed by the Reds as a free agent on Aug. 2, 1988.

''It'll be tough without Kenny,'' said Reds center fielder Eric Davis. ''He was an inspiration to us through his very presence in the clubhouse. He gave us leadership that always was positive. He was my friend and he'll be missed.''

NEW YORK (AUG. 18) UPI - The jury weighing the fate of three teens accused of raping and trying to beat to death a woman jogger in Central Park reheard testimony Saturday from a detective who questioned one defendent.

A court officer read back the testimony of Detective Harry Hildebrandt, who elicited a confession from Antron McCray at a precinct house last year where the teen was questioned about the events in Central Park the night of April 19, 1989.

Defense lawyers have argued that police coerced confessions from the youths during long hours of interrogation after the incident drew intense media interest.

Hildebrandt's testimony was read back to the jury of 10 men and two women, who appeared exhausted in their tenth day of deliberations with no sign of a verdict at state Supreme Court in Manhattan.

McCray, 16, Yusef Salam, 16, and Raymond Salaam, 15, are on trial on 13 criminal charges, including rape and attempted murder, for the rampage through the moonlit park.

They are accused of being part of a pack of up to 30 youths that roamed through the park, attacking nine victims including the woman jogger.

Hildebrandt's questioning with McCray's parents present resulted in one written and one videotaped confession by McCray.

Santana also made written and videotaped confessions. Salaam made no confessions, but made incriminating statements during an interview with a detective who took notes.

In a case with little physical evidence linking the youths to the crime, the teens' own words are the most damaging evidence against them.

They recounted in emotionless voices how they charged bicyclists, a homeless man and joggers. They said the group jumped the investment banker now 30, near the 102nd Street park transverse, bashed her in the head with a metal pipe, and dragged her into the woods. Several youths raped her and hit her in the head again, then left her for dead, they said.

Under the prosecution's theory presented in the six-week trial, the woman was the fifth victim of the one hour crime spree. The teens allegedly emerged from the woods in search of other victims and headed for the reservoir, where they attacked male joggers.

WEST COVINA, CA. (AUG. 18) UPI - The first casualty of the U.S. deployment in Saudi Arabia was eulogized Saturday as a ''peacemaker'' who died ''so children may never have to fight in a war.''

Air Force Staff Sgt. John Campisi, 31, a father of four children, was killed Aug. 12 when he was hit by a truck on a darkened runway in Saudi Arabia. He was the first American serviceman killed in the ''Operation Desert Shield'' deployment ordered by President Bush.

At a funeral mass at St. Christopher Catholic Church, his family's parish in the San Gabriel Valley city of West Covina, Campisi's longtime friend, Mark Rizkowski, told a congregation of about 300 that the two had kept in touch by letter or phone calls since Campisi joined the Air Force at age 18.

In an emotional eulogy, Rizkowski, often choking back tears, said, ''He was one the one we called the peacemaker. ... John died for a reason, a reason that meant a lot to John and all of us. ... He died so that one day his, mine and all our children may never have to fight in a war. They can always live in peace.''

Monsignor Helmut Hefner told the congregation: ''We must realize the cost of war. ... We must not let (Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein) start a holy war to stampede us.''

Before the hour-long service ended, singers, including several of Campisi's cousins, were accompanied by a single guitar in several hymns.

Campisi's coffin was carried by six pallbearers, all in Air Force uniforms out of the church to a hearse, which carried it to a nearby cemetery for interment.

Campisi, who grew up in Covina, was an aircraft maintenance technician who had been assigned to Offutt Air Force Base in Nebraska. Family members said he planned to spend 20 years in the service and then retire.

Pentagon officials said he may have been wearing protective ear gear that prevented him from hearing the truck that hit and killed him, three weeks before his 32nd birthday.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (AUG. 18) UPI - Describing President Bush as ''deeply concerned,'' the White House Saturday condemned Iraq's threat to relocate and to withhold adequate food from Americans and other foreign nationals trapped in that country until the threat of war is over.

''The use of innocent civilians as pawns to promote what Iraq sees as its self-interest is contrary to international law,'' press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said in a statement.

''We urge that Iraq immediately reconsider its refusal to allow any foreign national desiring to leave, to do so without delay or condition,'' he said.

Fitzwater also termed as ''totally unacceptable'' Iraq's announcement late Friday that it would hold Americans and other foreign nationals until the threat of war is over.

The press secretary issued the brief statement shortly after Iraq announced it would also limit food to these nationals, including babies, until a week-old de facto blockade initiated by the United States is lifted.

The carefully worded one-page statement was the administration's first comment on Iraq's threat late Friday to hold all foreign nationals until the Persian Gulf crisis ends.

In the statement, the administration still refused to describe these captives as ''hostages,'' referring to them instead as ''American citizens '' ''individuals'' or ''foreign nationals.''

Fitzwater said Bush views the statement Friday by the speaker of Iraq's national assembly that Baghdad '''will play host to citizens of these aggressive (foreign) nations until as long as Iraq remains threatened''' to be ''totally unacceptable.''

Fitzwater said, ''The president is deeply troubled by the indication that Iraqi authorities intend to relocate these individuals within Iraq against their will.''

''The president is also deeply concerned about today's announcement by the government of Iraq that foreign nationals may not have access to adequate quantities of food,'' he said.

A spokesman for the Iraq Labor Ministry appealed in a televised broadcast for the families of the foreigners to protest the U.S. decision to enforce economic sanctions against Iraq, imposed by the United Nations following Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

''We decided to treat the foreign newborn babies similarly with the Iraqi babies if there were to be any reduction in the necessities ... because of the economic embargo,'' the spokesman said.

The ''blockade, including food and medicine ... is considered an act of war,'' the Iraqi spokesman said.

In Saturday's initial announcement, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein said through a spokesman that Iraq would ''host'' thousands of foreign nationals at key military and economic installations in Iraq and Kuwait, presumably to discourage action by Western forces gathered in the Persian Gulf.

Meanwhile, an administration source said the White House and Pentagon had not yet agreed on how many U.S. military reservists to activate, but said that the first called up would likely include cargo handlers, medical experts and other specialists.

The Washington Post quoted sources as saying the number could be as high as 80,000, but The New York Times quoted an unidentified official as saying the number would not exceed 2,500 to 3,000, at least at first.

There are believed to be 45,000 U.S. ground troops in Saudi Arabia, and officials said that force could grow to as many as 100,000 American soldiers.

If reserve forces are activated to back up U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia, it will mark the first full-scale test of the post-Vietnam War restructuring of the American military.

Bush, on a three-week working vacation in Maine, discussed the latest

Iraqi threat, and the administration's response to it, during a phone call with aides while aboard his speedboat, Fitzwater said.

The White House announced that a scheduled return by Bush to Washington Sunday had been moved up by a few hours so he can have dinner with national security advisers at the White House.

On Monday, Bush is to meet with Energy Secretary James Watkins and budget advisers to discuss the impact of the crisis in the oil-rich gulf on the United States' energy supply and spending plans.

The Pentagon estimates that the massive buildup of U.S. troops in the Middle East will cost $1.3 billion during the first six weeks, more if fighting breaks out.

Fitzwater, in his statement, expressed hope that Iraq would pay heed to a U.N. statement Friday ''expressing concern and anxiety'' over the fate of foreign nationals in Iraq and Kuwait, and ''calling upon the secretary general to take all appropriate steps.''

Fitzwater said the United States intends to consult with the governments of other citizens being held Iraq and Kuwait ''to determine what additional measures ought to be taken.''

ABOARD THE USS EISENHOWER IN THE RED SEA (AUG. 18) UPI - A U.S. warship in the Gulf of Oman fired six warning shots Saturday across the bow of an Iraqi tanker that refused orders to stop, the Navy said. Iraq contended warning shots were fired at two ships challenging the U.S. embargo.

The Iraqi News Agency, INA, said shots were lobbed in front of two tankers the Khanakeen in the Gulf of Oman, and the Baba Gurgur in the Persian Gulf, but that both ships continued their course and refused to allow American forces to board.

The U.S. naval fleet in the nearby Persian Gulf went to battle stations following the incident in the Gulf of Oman, but the alert status was later discontinued, naval officials said.

The shots were the first fired in the Persian Gulf region since the United States announced Thursday evening it would unilaterally enforce an economic embargo against Iraq imposed by the United Nations following Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The Navy told pool reporters traveling with Defense Secretary Dick Cheney that the frigate USS Reid had fired six shots at 4 p.m. (9 a.m. EDT) at an unidentified tanker in the narrow entrance to the Persian Gulf in Gulf of Oman.

Reports reaching the pool aboard USS Eisenhower six hours later did not say whether the tanker turned back, but said the U.S. ships in the gulf had stood down from general quarters.

''One of our frigates, out in the Gulf of Oman, has fired a warning shot an an Iraqi tanker, in fact, fired six of them,'' said Capt. Morris Foote of the guided missile curiser USS Ticonderoga, which is cruising with the Eisenhower battle group.

Foote said the shots from the Ticonderoga's 76mm gun passed across the bow of the ship, which he said was probably not armed. Foote did not have details, but other U.S. officers and INA both said that the ship had refused orders to stop.

''I don't think that there was any other provocation,'' Foote said. ''I don't think there was anything, in fact, threatening from the Iraqis or from any other source.

''But as a general course, when we start getting into the business of firing shots, you're never sure of the reaction,'' he said, explaining why the ships in the gulf ordered personnel to battle stations.

Foote said the frigate's commander received permission to fire from Adm. William Fogarty, commander of the Middle East task force in the Persian Gulf.

The Navy said nothing about the second Iraqi tanker that INA said was fired on in the Persian Gulf.

''A number of American war boats fired shots in front and behind the two tankers in an attempt to force them stop and change course, but the two tankers continued in the pre-assigned course, challenging the American fleets breaching international law,'' said INA in a translation to English.

Oil Minister Isam Abdul Raheem al-Chalaby was quoted by the news service as saying that several other ships were challenged, but provided no details.

The oil ministry warned that aggression toward Iraqi tankers and their crews would result in unspecified ''grave consequences,'' INA reported.

Al-Chalaby also told the news service other tankers would defy the U.S. warships in order to prove their loyalty to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

On Friday, two U.S. warships stopped two Iraqi cargo ships near the coast of Kuwait but allowed them to proceed when it was determined they were empty. The ships stopped when requested to do so and were not boarded, Pentagon officials said.

The Pentagon said the U.S. Navy was instructed to board and search suspected vessels and fire warning shots across the bows of ships that failed to heed warnings to stop.

Pentagon sources said shipments of food would be turned back and that only medicine would be allowed through to Iraq.

The U.N. resolution on the sanctions allows the shipments of food and medicine if warranted for humanitarian reasons.

Cheney, who learned of the incident from aides, told an assembly of 6,000 sailors on the Eisenhower that the next two or three weeks would be ''critical'' in the history of nation.

(AUG. 18) UPI - Americans and other foreigners being held in Iraq and Kuwait are figuring more into the strategic battle in the Persian Gulf. Iraq issued new threats against the detainees today... saying their babies would suffer from a U-S naval blockade along with Iraqi infants. Iraq says the quarantine of ships... including those carrying food and medicine... is an ''act of war.''

Iraq said earlier the foreigners would be held at military bases and other key installations as long as there was a threat of war. Britain has denounced the detentions as illegal. Aides to President Bush condemn the move... saying the Americans are being used as ''pawns'' in violation of international law. The aides called for the immediate release of all foreigners held in Iraq and Kuwait.

West Germany's main opposition party says the situation in East Germany calls for the immediate unification of the two nations. The deputy leader of the Social Democratic Party says each day of further delay accentuates East Germany's political and economic crisis. The party official urged the East German Parliament to vote for an immediate merger when it meets next Wednesday.

TYRE, Lebanon (AUG. 19) UPI - A Lebanese who fled a Kuwaiti jail after the Iraqi invasion said Saturday 17 Shiite activists imprisoned in Kuwait on terrorist charges were still at large in the Emirate disguised as Kuwaitis and waiting to flee to Iran.

Abdel Aziz Krayem, a 40-year-old Shiite Lebanese who arrived Friday in south Lebanon from Kuwait, told United Press International he was held at Kuwait's State Security Prison along with the 17 prisoners, among them 16 Shiites and one Christian.

Krayem, who was serving 15-year term for masterminding the bombing of water and electricity companies in Kuwait, affirmed that the 17 were members of the Iranian-backed Islamic Jihad and were now free but hiding in Kuwait City.

The blond, green-eyed Krayem was interviewed at his hideout in the village of Yater, 10 miles south of the port city of Tyre, 46 miles south of Beirut.

Krayem, the father of three, said he spent a few years of his term with the convicts in the same cell at the Kuwaiti State Security Prison.

Fundamentalist sources confirmed the convicts Krayem mentioned by name were among the 17 imprisoned in Kuwait.

Previous reports said only 16 were convicted in the bombings of the U.S. and French embassies and the emirate's oil refineries in 1983.

Their seizure was one of the factors that triggered a wave of abductions of Westerners in Lebanon.

The Islamic Jihad, the group claiming responsibility for detaining U.S. citizens Terry Anderson and Thomas Sutherland, had repeatedly demanded the release of the prisoners in exchange for freeing the two U.S. captives.

''The last time I saw (the Shiites) was when we escaped from prison 12 days ago,'' Krayem said. ''They shouted Allah Akbar (God is Great) and Victory for Believers,'' he said.

Krayem said the families of Kuwaiti prisoners stormed the jail shortly after the Iraqi Army invaded Kuwait August 2. The prison guards fired at the prisoners, killing two of them.

''The Kuwaitis who stormed the jail provided the 17 convicts with gealabias (Kuwaiti traditional long white robes) and kufias (head scarves) and escorted them out.

''They rode waiting taxis and were driven in one convoy along with three Kuwaiti prisoners convicted of murder to an unknown destination,'' Krayem said.

He said that during their stay in prison ''the Islamic Jihad group'' have established good relations with a number of Kuwaiti inmates and enjoyed wide popularity among the prisoners.

''They just disappeared in the streets of Kuwait. They are dressed like Kuwaitis. They look like Kuwaitis and it is simply impossible to recognize them or locate them,'' Krayem said.

He said that before he left Kuwait a few days ago, witnesses told him they saw the 17 Shiites in the Emirate.

Krayem quoted Lebanese sources in Kuwait as saying that ''they can leave the Kuwaiti territories in ways which they know very well.''

He said their Lebanese fundamentalist friends in Kuwait were trying to secure their return to Lebanon but the convicted activists preferred to go to Iran.

Krayem's statement contradicted earlier reports that the prisoners were seized by the Iraqi Army when it invaded Kuwait and taken to Baghdad.

''We regained freedom by ourselves and with God's help and nobody has played any role in our release as media reports have indicated earlier,'' Krayem said.

He added that he succeeded in forging travel documents and arrived in Lebanon through Jordan and Syria late Friday.

ALBANY, NY (AUG. 19) UPI - U.S. District Judge James Foley, who was appointed to the federal bench by President Harry Truman in 1949, has died at age 80.

Foley, who served the northern district of New York state, died Friday at St. Peter's Hospital in Albany. He had suffered a stroke five days earlier.

The judge was known for tackling controversial civil rights and affirmative action litigation.

''Judge Foley set an example for all judges,'' U.S. District Judge Con Cholakis said. ''He knew the law. He knew human nature. And he treated everyone with courtesy and respect.''

Foley, who became a ''senior'' or semi-retired judge in 1980, is best remembered for a 1979 opinion in which he ruled the New York State Police were unintentionally discriminating against women and minorities. He ordered hiring quotas that remained in effect for 10 years.

Foley also wrote a 1972 decision that forced state corrections officials to improve the treatment of prison inmates, finding routine strip searches and an arbitrary denial of outdoor exercise to violate the Constitution's prohibition of cruel and unusual punishment.

''It is a hard test for the humanism of a federal judge not to want to correct policies and regulations that to him seem harsh and arbitrary,'' Foley wrote.

Foley worked as a trial judge for his entire career, shunning the cloistered work that a promotion to an appellate court would require.

''I always wanted to be what I am: a pure, unadulterated district judge,'' Foley said in a 1987 interview. ''I like meeting people - litigants, witnesses, juries.''

Memorial services are scheduled for Monday at the John Clinton Funeral Home in Troy.

(AUG. 18) UPI - President Bush is said to be ''deeply concerned'' about the latest threat out of Iraq. In a brief statement this morning, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater condemned as ''totally UNacceptable'' Iraq's announcement that it would relocate and withhold food and medicine to Americans trapped in Iraq... including babies... until Washington lifts its de facto blockade.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein said through a spokesman today that Iraq would ''host'' thousands of foreign nationals at key military and economic installations in Iraq and Kuwait. The action apparently is aimed at discouraging air strikes by Western forces gathered in the Persian Gulf.

Citizens from the United States, Britain and Japan seem to have been singled out.

Saudi Arabia today vowed to pump an extra two-Million barrels of oil daily if its OPEC partners refuse to increase production to meet global shortages caused by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait. Saudi Oil Minister Hisham Nazer said his country could satisfy half of a worldwide shortfall of approximately four-Million barrels daily.

President Bush is becoming increasingly angered by questions of why he's taking a vacation in Maine during the Persian Gulf crisis. Bush snapped at reporters that he keeps in touch with White House advisers on the situation every morning. He then ignored reporters and turned his attention to a round of golf.

(AUG. 18) UPI - NASA engineers say they've managed to maintain steady contact with the space probe Magellan today... but are still scrambling to figure out why they temporarily lost touch with the Venus radar mapper. Communications were lost late Thursday after an UNknown problem put the probe into a protective state of computer hibernation.

The Manhattan jury in the case of the Central Park jogger entered its 10th day of deliberations today. The panel listened yesterday to a readback of testimony from two police officers that supported defense claims that the defendants were NOT in the park at the time a woman jogger was gang-raped and beaten. Three youths are accused of the crime.

PASADENA, CA (AUG. 19) UPI - Three different problems apparently were to blame for throwing the Magellan Venus probe into protective hibernation

Thursday, including a computer glitch and confusion about its location in space, officials said Saturday.

Project managers now believe it may take 10 days to two weeks to fully understand the problems, transmit corrective computer programming and resume testing of Magellan's critical radar system, the centerpiece of a $551 million project to Earth's sister planet in unprecedented detail.

''Nobody thinks they have a fatal problem,'' said Mary Beth Murrill, a spokeswoman for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory. ''They even think they may be able to begin mapping, possibly on schedule, around Sept. 1.''

Resuming operations with Magellan is crucial to the space agency, which has suffered through a storm of media and congressional criticism this summer over the flawed Hubble Space Telescope and problems with the shuttle program.

JPL engineers lost touch with Magellan Thursday, but they were able to re-establish radio contact late Friday. With the probe's antenna locked firmly back on Earth, engineers spent the day Saturday sifting through reams of data from the solar-powered spacecraft.

Preliminary results indicate three apparently unrelated problems contributed to putting Magellan into various levels of protective hibernation called ''safe modes.''

Contact with Magellan was lost shortly after Magellan attempted to find and lock onto a guide star. Such ''star calibrations'' are part of a routine procedure to update on-board computers about the spacecraft's orientation in space.

Steve Wall, a Magellan engineer at JPL, said Saturday the safe mode programs apparently were activated when the computer that controls the spacecraft's attitude suddenly stopped sending routine timing signals to Magellan's master computer.

This loss of the first computer's ''heartbeat'' prompted the main computer to put the spacecraft into an initial safe mode called ''RAM safing.''

The spacecraft immediately stopped what it was doing, aimed its solar panels broadside to the sun and began to search for the bright star Sirius. By knowing its position relative to the sun and Sirius, Magellan would be able to point a radio antenna at Earth to receive further instructions.

At that point, the second problem occurred.

''What seems to have happened ... is that it located something it thought was Sirius but was not,'' Wall said. ''It started looking for the Earth and of course didn't find it.''

The star sensor may have gotten confused by ''a dust speck, it could have been Venus, it could have been another planet, but it locked onto whatever it was,'' Murrill said.

Magellan's master computer then began executing programs to find out what was wrong and at some point during that process a third event took place that triggered a deeper level of protective software.

Magellan then began actively seeking Earth by rotating about its vertical axis so its radio beam eventually would sweep across the planet. And that is exactly what happened Friday.

''They're dealing with three separate problems here,'' Murrill said. ''They don't know if they're related in any way. What they have to find first is what caused the heartbeat loss on the (attitude control computer).''

Magellan dropped into orbit around Venus Aug. 10, 15 months after launch from the shuttle Atlantis, and engineers had just started testing the radar mapping system Thursday when contact was lost.

Even so, preliminary analysis of data from the first mapping ''pass'' indicated Magellan was working as planned, taking what officials said were spectacular photographs of Venus's surface that will be released Monday.

The probe's radar system is capable of imaging surface features as small as a football field - 10 times better than any previous effort. Scientists are hopeful such relatively sharp photos will help them learn why Venus ended up the 900-degree inferno it is today, the victim of a runaway ''greenhouse'' effect.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (AUG. 18) UPI - President Bush signed a landmark oil pollution measure Saturday, despite opposition to a provision that would impose a moratorium on oil and natural gas exploration off North Carolina's Outer Banks.

''Such a moratorium is ill-advised in view'' of the ongoing crisis in the oil-rich Persian Gulf, Bush said in a statement, ''and the administration will work to repeal it.''

Bush sent the comprehensive environmental protection measure to Congress last year in wake of the record 11 million-gallon oil spill in Alaska by a grounded tanker, the Exxon Valdez.

The new law provides for greater safeguards in the transportation of oil, such as requiring double hulls in tankers, and makes an $1 billion trust fund available to cover cleanup costs not compensated by the spiller, whose financial responsibilities are now significantly increased.

Bush called the measure ''landmark,'' but also said, ''I deeply regret the act's inclusion of an unrelated provision that places a moratorium on natural gas and oil exploration in an area 38 miles off North Carolina.

''This area ... is the largest potential natural gas field east of the Mississippi, and could be used to offset our dependence on foreign energy resources,'' he said.

Bush said he also objects to the bill's failure to ratify an international oil spill agreement.

The accord would provide the United States with compensation for spills by foreign tankers by giving access to up to $260 million per spill from an international fund.

Senate leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, led the opposition to ratification saying it could actually lead to a limit on damages.

Bush said, however, the failure to ratify may prompt many large companies to no longer transport oil.

Therefore, he urged Congress to reconsider the accord and approve it.

Bush signed the Oil Pollution Act of 1990 at his summer home in Kennebunkport, Maine, where he is on a working vacation.

RAHWAY, NJ (AUG. 19) UPI - The family of an environmentalist arrested by government troops in the war-torn African nation of Liberia Aug. 10 said Saturday that he has been freed from custody.

Jolanda Voros of Rahway said State Department officials notified her by telephone Saturday that her son Andrew, 33, had been released and placed on a boat carrying refugees away from the west African country.

''I was so happy that I did not even ask how it happened,'' she said.

Voros was arrested in Monrovia at the guest house of the U.S. Agency for International Development and charged with aiding anti-government rebels fighting in the eight-month-old civil war. Liberian government officials said he was carrying an M-16 rifle and a loaded revolver when arrested.

Voros' mother said her son was probably detained for being ''in the wrong place at the wrong time.'' She said she did not believe her son was armed when arrested.

''Some officials who were in Liberia for a long time told me that if he had a gun he would not be alive - they would have shot him,'' she said.

His mother said Voros, who went to Liberia eight years ago as a Peace Corps volunteer, was trying to finish a government-sponsored environmental film when the fighting broke out.

Voros' family had issued a press release Saturday calling on U.S. officials to work for his release. They had feared that uproar over the Persian Gulf crisis had detracted attention from Andrew Voros' plight.

More than 200 Marines were airlifted to Monrovia Aug. 5 to evacuate Americans and protect U.S. installations, but U.S. officials have said they would not intervene to halt the civil war.

Voros' family said he was not politically active and that he was interested in fighting against deforestation and poachers in Liberia. He was the founder and first president of the Liberian chapter of the World Wildlife Federation.

NEW YORK (AUG. 19) UPI - An inmate hospitalized after a bloody riot on Rikers Island died Saturday, and officials were investigating whether the death was caused by injuries sustained during alleged beatings by guards.

Inmate Steven Glover, a 36-year-old parole violator awaiting a hearing, died at Harlem Hospital at 6:51 a.m., a hospital spokesman said.

His death may have been the first as a result of the jail riot. Another inmate was found dead in his cell after the clash, but his death was ascribed to a heart attack unrelated to the incident.

Glover was hospitalized with fever, chills and left-side pain, but reports were conflicting and incomplete about the cause of his death and whether he was beaten.

Correction Department spokeswoman Ruby Ryles said Glover was not feeling well and had been on his way to see doctors when the confrontation broke out between guards and inmates Tuesday night.

''He was on his way to see doctors when the disturbance occurred,'' Ryles said. ''I can't say for sure that he wasn't beaten at that time. Doctors did not indicate that he sustained any riot-related injuries.''

A spokesman for Mayor David Dinkins said his office received a preliminary report saying the inmate died of natural causes.

But Michael Letwin, president of the Association of Legal Aid Attorneys, said Glover died as a result of the retaliatory beatings.

Letwin, who talked with Glover's doctor at Harlem Hospital, said, ''He had to have been injured in the events that happened Tuesday night.''

Rikers, the largest jail complex in the country, is a short-term facility with nine jails.

A still undetermined number of inmates were beaten, some seriously following a Tuesday declaration by the union president that the city had relaxed its restrictions on ''use of force.''

Guards, who had been blocking access to the jail for two days in a dispute over the restrictions, rushed to the site of an outburst at the Otis Bantum Center, near where Glover was housed, minutes after the announcement.

Robert Kasanof, chairman of the state Board of Corrections, said his department was investigating the link between the riot and Glover's death.

''We are receiving contradictory information from the Department of Correction. We have asked the Department of Investigation to freeze the Department of Correction's records,'' Kasanof said.

''There is some indication that at one point the injuries were related (to the rio mounting that there was retaliatory brutality.''

The city's Department of Investigation also is looking into the charges of retaliation beatings by guards.

Correction Department investigators reported that Glover died of natural causes and had been scheduled for a kidney stone operation, Ryles said.

The medical examiner's officer said it would issue a cause of death Sunday.

At a doctor's visit Wednesday, Glover ''compained of pain to his left waist and told doctor that the pain started Tuesday morning,'' Ryles said. He was ordered transferred to the hospital within three hours at 1:45 p.m. she said.

But a Health Department report said that Glover was not hospitalized until 1 a.m. Thursday. It also said that 50 inmates were taken to hospitals, with 12 being admitted, three with broken skulls, two with broken jaws and one with a mangled finger.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AUG. 19) UPI - A sellout crowd of 100,000 people jammed Prague's Sprahov Stadium Saturday for the Rolling Stones' first concert in Czechoslovakia.

Playing such old favorites as ''Brown Sugar'' and ''Honky Tonk Woman'' along with more recent hits like ''Between a Rock and a Hard Place,'' the Stones dazzled the rock-hungry Czechoslovak fans with music and pyrotechnic stage effects.

Tickets sold for a relatively exorbitant price of $10, about 8 percent of the average Czechoslovak's monthly wage. In Western European cities toured by the rock supergroup this summer, tickets fetched upward of $30.

The legendary British quintet said it would donate all proceeds from the concert to a charity for the handicapped headed by the wife of Czechoslovak President Vaclav Havel.

The Stones' lead singer, Mick Jagger, and other band members met with Havel several hours before the concert, the official CTK news agency said.

''The president's reception of the group demonstrated ... the appraisal of the contribution of the Rolling Stones to modern music culture during more than a quarter of a century of their activity on the scene of world pop music,'' the news agency said.

The European leg of the Stones' 1990 Urban Jungle tour began May 18 and will end Aug. 25 in London.

(AUG. 18) UPI - The situation in the Middle East took a turn for the worst today as the frigate U-S-S Reid fired warning shots across the bow of an Iraqi tanker that refused orders to stop in the Gulf of Oman. The warning shots were the first use of force by American troops deployed in the Middle East after Iraq's August 2nd invasion of Kuwait. But the Iraqi News Agency says the shots did NOT deter the ship from its course.

The shots punctuate a day of escalating tensions in the Middle East.

Earlier, Baghdad threatened it would use foreign nationals held in Iraq and Kuwait as a human shield to discourage U-S attacks. An Iraqi Labor Ministry also warned that foreigners would be among the first to suffer if the U-S-led blockade succeeds in cutting off food and medical supplies. The White House reportedly is pressing the U-N Security Council to discuss the fate of the foreigners.

Officials in Tomah, Wisconsin, are keeping a careful eye on two dams strained by rains that sent floodwater up to three feet deep in some parts of the town. Fire Chief Tom Flock says a small hole was discovered in the corner of one dam. 700 people were evacuated as a precaution. Thunderstorms also caused flooding today in parts of Illinois and Indiana.

JACKSBORO, TX (AUG. 19) UPI - The wife of one of the 35 Americans held under armed guard by Iraq says she is upset that President Bush is enjoying a golfing vacation while her husband's whereabouts remain unknown.

''My husband's not on vacation. My husband is not having recreation time. And I want him home,'' said Margie Walterscheid, the wife of oilfield worker Rainard Walterscheid. She has not spoken with her husband since before the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2.

Her husband had been scheduled - before the invasion - to return to the family home west of Fort Worth from his Mideast stint this weekend, she said.

Irritated by unflattering pictures and soundbites of him vacationing in Maine as tensions escalate in the Persian Gulf, the president snapped at reporters Saturday at a golf course. Bush's self-proclaimed 25-day working vacation is in its second week.

Asked by reporters if he had been in touch with the White House situation room yet, Bush snapped, ''I talk to them every morning at 5:30 and, I'm not going to take any more comments up here, though. Let's go.''

With that, the president ignored a question about the fate of Americans in Iraq and Kuwait, turned around with a huff and hooked his drive on the first hole into the rough.

''I just don't like taking questions on serious matters on my vacation,'' Bush told reporters later Saturday.

Mrs. Walterscheid, her voice quavering, said she is angry the president has placed so much importance on not letting the crisis ruin his vacation.

A State Department spokesman Friday said the Iraqis told U.S. officials that the 35 Americans were moved from the Hotel El Rashid, where they had been held under armed guard, to another hotel, the Melia-Monsour, but the U.S. Embassy could not confirm that since U.S. officials were denied entry to the hotel.

Mrs. Walterscheid said she considers the 35 Americans to be hostages, a word the Bush administration has avoided using, contending such talk would escalate tensions.

''I said that (the American are hostages) two weeks ago,'' she said. ''They took these men for a reason.''

Mrs. Walterscheid said Saturday night that she had not heard from the State Department since Friday morning.

She said she wishes U.S. military forces had remained outside the region until her husband and the other Americans could be freed.

''These people (the Americans still in Iraq) should have been out before we went in,'' she said. ''But, by God, my opinion and the opinion of the other families doesn't mean a hill of beans. I'm terribly upset.''

SOWETO, South Africa (AUG. 19) UPI - Army troops joined police in efforts to quell factional fighting Saturday that has left more than 240 dead and about 1,000 wounded in six days of butchering in Soweto and other black townships on Johannesburg's outskirts.

In the eastern township of Thokoza, where fighting first ignited Monday, a white pickup truck already loaded with five bodies trailed a police personnel carrier, stopping to take on the bodies of two more victims of the bloodletting, witnesses said. Police said the fatalities were among 14 killed in Thokoza Saturday.

Police Commissioner Gen. Johan van der Merwe announced the deployment of ''strong contingents'' of army troops in Soweto, the nation's most densely populated black city southwest of Johannesburg, to support police in trying to keep the factions apart.

Black army troops began arriving by midafternoon aboard personnel carriers taking up positions outside barrack-style hostels for migrant Zulu workers who support the Zulu movement Inkatha led by Mangosuthu Buthelezi.

Since Monday, at least 241 people have been killed in mostly hand-to-hand clashes between the Zulus armed with machetes, spears and hatchets and rival ''comrades'' of the African National Congress, which includes Xhosas.

Despite Buthelezi's repeated calls to meet ANC Deputy President Nelson Mandela for a peace summit that many South Africans believe could help defuse the crisis, senior ANC leader Walter Sisulu told state-run television Saturday a meeting between the two men would be ''a most disastrous approach.''

He accused Inkatha of launching ''a war to bring us to our knees. For that type of thing (meeting) we are not prepared.''

Police put the death toll in Soweto since Thursday at 63, with 352 injured and 178 killed in the eastern Township of Thokoza since Monday. State-run radio said 24 people in Soweto were in critical condition.

At least 14 people were reported killed Saturday in Soweto, police said. Many township roads, especially in areas surrounding the Zulu hostels, were barricaded with rocks and other debris by ANC supporters, and residents reported hearing shooting into the night.

At least 14 people were reported killed Saturday in Soweto, according to a compilation of official figures. Many township roads, especially in areas surrounding the Zulu hostels were barricaded with rocks and other debris by ANC supporters.

In Thokoza, where fighting first ignited Monday, a white pickup truck already loaded with five bodies trailed a police personnel carrier Saturday, stopping to take on the bodies of two more victims of the bloodletting, according to witnesses.

Police also deployed reinforcements further south in the white conservative towns of Vereeniging and Welkom, where blacks of nearby townships marched into town centers Saturday in protest against township living conditions.

In Welkom, armed white extremists of the Afrikaner Resistance Movement stood inside the properties of white residents along the 3-mile route. One 16-year-old among the 3,000 marchers was shot in the left arm by an arrow from a crossbow, police said, but no other incidents were reported.

In Vereeniging, about 50 miles south of Johannesburg, about 10,000 blacks marched into the town. White residents watched from the sidelines but no incidents were reported.

The fighting spread to various districts of Soweto on Thursday after clashes in three townships east in Johannesburg erupted Monday. Analysts blamed the spread of the internecine strife, once confined to the Indian Ocean province of Natal, on a combination of tribal rivalries between Zulus and Xhosas and Buthelezi's attempts to carve out his power base in advance of formal negotiations with the government on a post-apartheid constitution.

Both ANC leader Nelson Mandela and Buthelezi have condemned the violence and traded accusations over culpability. But efforts by President Frederik de Klerk, Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok and Mandela on Thursday to halt the bloodshed through a ''peace forum'' have failed to take hold.

(AUG. 18) UPI - The Pentagon is confirming two incidents today in which a total of nine shots were fired across the bows of two Iraqi tankers that refused to stop. The shots were fired by U-S Navy warships in the Persian Gulf and further south in the Gulf of Oman. The Pentagon says both Iraqi tankers are under Navy surveillance. Iraq described the move as ''a breach of international law.''

In Kennebunkport, Maine, a spokesman for a vacationing President Bush says

Bush is ''deeply concerned'' about Americans and other foreign nationals in Iraq. Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater also terms ''totally unacceptable'' Iraq's announcement late yesterday that it would hold Americans and other foreign nationals until the threat of war has ended.

(AUG. 18) UPI - The five permanent members of the U-N Security Council are meeting tonight. They're considering a resolution submitted by the United States demanding that Iraq allow foreigners to leave Iraq and Kuwait.

Services were held today in West Covina, California, for John Campisi- the first casualty of the ''Operation Desert Shield'' deployment ordered by President Bush. The air force staff sargeant was hit by a truck in Saudia Arabia six days ago.

Three teen-agers face five to 10 years in jail when they are sentenced next month for taking part in the beating and gang-rape of a jogger in New York's Central Park last year. The trio was cleared of attempted murder by a jury that reached a verdict tonight.

One of the jurors began sobbing as the verdict was read, interrupting the tense silence in the Manhattan courtroom. Outside the courtroom, the father of one defendant broke into uncontrollable sobs.

Mick Jagger met with Czechoslovak President Vaclav Havel before the Rolling Stones performed in Prague tonight. A sellout crowd heard Jagger and the Rolling Stones perform their first concert in Czechoslovakia.

President Bush today signed into law a bill providing federal funds to battle AIDS. The measure is named in honor of Ryan White, the teen-ager who fought discrimination against AIDS victims before his death in April.

(AUG. 18) UPI - Police in Kansas City, Missouri, say they do NOT have any suspects in a fatal shooting that followed a rap conert last night. A teen-ager was shot in a parking lot at Kemper Arena after leaving a performance by Public Enemy.

A Fayette County, Pennsylvania, man faces a year in prison and the promise of more time if he fails to pay about 40-thousand dollars in back income taxes. A judge described Christopher MacGregor as ''more fool than criminal.''

An eastern Washington mother of six is hospitalized in critical but stable condition in Spokane- the Northwest's first heart-lung transplant recipient. Lynn Long, who suffers from emphysema, underwent surgery today in Spokane.

Musician Wynton Marsalis says he'll remember Pearl Bailey as ''the best that the world has to offer.'' The entertainer whose singing and dancing career spanned seven decades died in Philadelphia last night at the age of 72.

Services are scheduled in Troy, New York, Monday for a judge appointed to the federal bench by President Harry Truman in 1949. U-S District Judge James Foley died yesterday at the age of 80... five days after suffering a stroke.

Authorities say a man who jumped from the Brooklyn Bridge today NOT only survived the fall, but landed near a police boat. The man was saved within minutes in a rescue described by one New York police officer as ''pretty amazing.''

(AUG. 18) UPI - The U-S representative to the United Nations, Tomas Pickering, voiced what others in the Bush administration have avoided saying as the U-N Security Council met tonight. Pickering says it is clear that Iraq intends to- quoting here- ''hold hostage all foreigners'' in Iraq and Kuwait. The administration has NOT used the term ''hostage'' to describe the thousands of Americans and other foreign citizens trapped in Iraq. The council met to consider a resolution demanding Iraq allow foreigners to leave. Earlier, Baghdad announced it is moving foreigners to vital installations as a human shield against U-S attack.

A trial that had racial tensions running high ended tonight in New York City. A jury deliberated 10 days before finding three teen-agers guilty of beating and raping a jogger in Central Park. However, Yusef Salaam, Antron McCray and Raymond Santana were found innocent of attempted murder. Supporters of the defendants shouted ''devil'' at the lead prosecutor as she left the courtroom after the verdict... but a handful of women screamed ''thank you.''

South African authorities today called out Army troops to help police try to put down bloody factional fighting in Soweto and other black townships. Black army troops began arriving by midafternoon in Soweto, where they took up positions outside hostels for migrant Zulu workers. Since Monday, at least 234 people have been killed in street clashes between the Zulus and African National Congress supporters.

In Wisconsin, officials in Tomah evacuated about 15-hundred people today after the small town was socked by more than eight inches of rain overnight. Most of the evacuees were given the order to leave after authorities discovered a small hole in the Tomah Dam. The town's mayor says there have been NO injuries reported in the flooding, which left part of the town under as much as three feet of water.

JAMMU, India (AUG. 19) - Authorities relaxed a curfew in Kashmir's summer capital Sunday, one day after six people died in the disputed Indian state in violence linked to a bloody Moslem secessionist campaign.

Shops opened and did brisk business, while private and public transport returned to the streets in Srinagar city during the 12-hour curfew break, officials said here in Jammu and Kashmir's winter capital.

Army and paramilitary troops kept up a high-profile presence in Srinagar, the Moslem-majority summer capital and urban hub of the militant campaign to secede Kashmir from India.

Srinagar has been under a constant curfew since the beginning of this year.

Security forces gunned down four Moslem militants after they sneaked into India from neighbouring Pakistan late Saturday, officials said. All died in Uri sector, on Kashmir's heavily-guarded border with Pakistan.

Moslem gunmen also shot and killed two Moslem civilians accused of being police informers overnight Saturday in Baramulla town, 53 kilometers (33 miles) from Srinagar, the officials said.

At least 15 policemen and an unspecified number of Moslem rebels were wounded in sporadic gunbattles across Srinagar city late Saturday. Four federal para-military troopers were said to be in critical condition.

Armed clashes between Moslem militants, who New Delhi says are trained by Pakistan, and Indian security forces have become routine in Jammu and Kashmir, India's only Moslem-majority state.

India and Pakistan dispute Kashmir, and have fought two of their three wars over the province.

The latest deaths have pushed the death toll in Kashmir's homeland campaign this year to at least 1,146.

LIMA (AUG. 19) - The government of President Alberto Fujimori has decreed a 300-per-cent increase in private-sector salaries, following more than a week of unrest over its draconian economic austerity measures.

Labor Minister Carlos Torres announced the decree Saturday, some 10 days after the government mandated dramatic price hikes of as much as 3,000 per cent as part of its plan to control rampant inflation.

Saturday's decree raised the minimum monthly salary from 4,000,000 intis to 16,000,000 intis -- the equivalent of some 50 U.S. dollars, Mr. Torres said.

In his announcement, Mr. Torres acknowledged that the increased salary would not cover the cost of living for one month, which currently is estimated at 87,000,000 intis, or about 270 U.S. dollars. But he said a minimum salary set any higher would threaten to raise inflation and bankrupt many small businesses.

"It is not the salary that the government wants to give, rather what can be given," he said, adding that improved wages and salaries could be expected after Peru resolves its economic crisis.

Mr. Fujimori's anti-inflation plan, implemented August 9, drove up food prices between 400 and 1,000 per cent and sent the price of gasoline up 3,000 per cent -- the same as Peru's annual inflation rate last year.

Friday, the government increased rates on electrical, water, telephone and postal services by 2,000 to 3,000 per cent.

Pablo Checa, an official of the Peruvian Workers General Confederation (CGTP) -- the nation's largest labor central -- called the wage hike a form of "genocide" and warned that the CGTP would launch a two-day general strike beginning August 21.

"This salary adds fuel to the flame of popular discontent," he said.

Union leaders Saturday said police still held about 400 workers and union leaders detained Thursday during a so-called Day of National Protest against the austerity plan.

Mr. Torres said the new salary increase would take effect for August paychecks and that another pay hike would be necessary in September.

He also said the government's austerity measures would trigger "certain recession" and the closing of inefficient businesses.

CAIRO (AUG. 19) - The Egyptian air force continued Sunday to transport military units to Saudi Arabia for use in accordance with the August 10 resolution of the Arab League summit conference in Cairo, the Egyptian news agency Mena reported.

Together with other Arab and Islamic units, the Egyptian troops were taking part in the defence of the holy sites, under Saudi Arabian command.

No information was given as to the strength of the forces dispatched so far. Political observers estimated that several thousand Egyptian soldiers are in Saudi Arabia.

Meanwhile Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister, Prince Saud al Faisal, met in Cairo with his Egyptian opposite number, Esmat Abdel Meguid, following a meeting with President Hosny Mubarak.

No details were officially given, except that Faisal's talks were taking place within the regular consultations after the Iraqi invasion in Kuwait.

KATHMANDU (AUG. 19) - A new draft constitution for Nepal recommends Hinduism as the state religion, describing the country as a Hindu Kingdom, drafting commission sources said here Sunday.

The nine-member Constitution Recommendation Commission, headed by Supreme Court justice Biswo Nath Upadhyaya, made the recommendation in a completed confidential draft of the new constitution, the sources said.

Apart from the provisions on religion, the draft recommends the introduction of a constitutional monarchy and a two-chamber legislative assembly, the sources said.

Officially, all the proceedings of the commission are secret but the draft document has been leaked by delegates from the Nepali Congress and the Nepal Communist Party.

The choice of a state religion was one of the most controversial issues facing the commission, as Buddhists and other non-Hindu groups were pushing to have Nepal declared a secular state in the constitution.

Buddhists here claim to represent some 54 per cent of the total population.

However, the World Hindu Organization and some 20 other Hindhu groups had threatened to take to the streets in protest if the commission agreed to call the country a secular state.

MOSCOW (AUG. 19) - Iraqi authorities have adopted a "benevolent" attitude to Soviet officials preparing the evacuation of Soviet women and children from Iraq, a Soviet Foreign ministry official said according to TASS reports Sunday.

Earlier indications of Iraq's careful handling of Soviet expatriates came from evacuees arriving in Moscow Saturday saying they had been well-treated before leaving Iraq.

The evacuation of Soviets resident in Iraq, supervised by a group led by Soviet First Deputy Prime Minister Igor Belusov, was expected to begin "within the next few days", the agency quoted the official as saying.

On Sunday 166 Soviets were still in Kuwait after the evacuation of several hundred from the emirate on Saturday.

The first contingent of some 226 Soviet nationals flew Aeroflot from Amman to Moscow Saturday.

A second group of 123 was due to leave Baghdad for Amman on Sunday morning, from where they would be flown to Moscow Monday.

Some 363 more left Kuwait for Baghdad Saturday, accompanied by 29 Palestinians, Jordanians and Italians, the agency reported.

According to official Soviet sources, there were some 882 Soviets in Kuwait and 7,791 in Iraq when Iraq invaded its Gulf neighbour on August 2.

ISLAMABAD (AUG. 19) - A rocket attack on the Afghan capital of Kabul killed six people and wounded 14 Sunday, Afghan state radio reported.

The Moslem resistance fighting the pro-Soviet regime in Kabul was blamed for the attack, the radio said.

Fighting continued meanwhile to the west and north of the capital, in Paghman and Parwan respectively, according to communiques issued Sunday in Pakistan by MIDIA, the rebel government agency.

The strategic Salang road linking the Soviet Union to Kabul was closed to traffic following "combined operations" led since August 11 by the forces of the northern council of commander Massoud in Parwan province and others.

Twenty two tanks and 131 military vehicles were "put out of service," according to guerrillas who said 54 soldiers were killed during an attack on a government convoy.

Moreover, MIDIA said the rebels made advances in Paghman region, one of the areas from which the guerrillas regularly fire rockets on Kabul. The Afghan government said recently it had dislodged the rebels from this region.

ALGIERS (AUG. 19) - OPEC countries are holding consultations on a Saudi request to hold an extraordinary meeting of the 13-member organization of oil exporters, a source close to OPEC president Saddek Boussena said here Sunday.

Five countries had officially come out in favor of an OPEC meeting: Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Venezuela, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar, the source close to Mr. Boussena, the Algerian minister of industry and mines, said.

The source said that a majority of members of the Organization of Oil Exporting Countries favored holding an extraordinary session but that differences remained on setting a date for the meeting.

The president of OPEC can call a session at the request of seven of the 13 members.

Saudi Arabia has officially requested a special session of OPEC to study the consequences of the embargo against Iraq and Kuwait, both OPEC members, on oil markets.

Iraq, which invaded Kuwait on August 2 and annexed the oil-rich emirate, has said it was opposed to such a meeting, describing it as useless.

The last OPEC meeting was held in Geneva in July.

CARACAS (AUG. 19) - India has asked Venezuela to supply 14,000 barrels of oil a day for processing in its refineries pinched by the Gulf crisis, government officials said Sunday.

Indian Ambassador to Venezuela Gurcharan Sing made the request, equivalent to more than 2,000 tonnes a day.

India imports an annual 7.9 million tonnes of oil from Iraq and Kuwait. But as a result of the U.N. economic blockade imposed after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, India will have a deficit of 1.7 million tonnes for August and September, officials said.

Venezuela has said it was prepared to increase its oil production by 500,000 barrels a day for export to the United States.

ABU DHABI (AUG. 19) - The United Arab Emirates agreed to receive forces from some ''Arab and friendly countries'' as a contribution to Arab and international efforts to defend the Gulf region, Wam news agency quoted foreign ministry sources here as saying Sunday.

''The Uae agreed to recieve forces from some Arab and friendly countries to participate in Arab and international efforts aimed at the defence of the area,'' Wam quoted the sources as saying.

The decision came ''in the light of the developments in the Gulf region and in compliance with the Arab League and U.N. conventions, the Arab joint defence accord and Arab economic cooperation'', the sources were quoted as adding by the Uae news agency.

The move was also in line with a U.N. Security Council resolution on the situation in the Gulf area and with the decision of the Cairo Arab League emergency summit August 9-10, the source said. Wam gave no details of the size or nationality of the forces.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (AUG. 19) - The United States Sunday maintained its demand for an immediate and unconditional Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait.

The demand came in response to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's offer to release foreigners in exchange for a pull out from the Gulf by U.S. and allied forces.

There was no immmediate official White House comment on Mr. Hussein's statement but a presidential spokesman, Doug Davidson, stressed that U.S. policy toward the crisis remained unchanged.

The United States demanded a "complete, immediate and unconditional" withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait, Mr. Davidson said.

Mr. Hussein proposed allowing foreigners in Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait to leave if President George Bush agreed to make a written commitment to withdraw U.S. forces and those of his allies from Arab territories.

The Iraqi leader also proposed an end to a commercial, financial and arms embargo against Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait which was approved August 6 by the U.N. Security Council. But his plan made no mention of an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait.

Since Iraq overran Kuwait August 2, annexed it and began massing troops along the Saudi-Kuwaiti border, the United States has deployed warships to the Gulf and thousands of troops to Saudi Arabia.

Last week, U.S. warships began enforcing a U.N.-mandated embargo against Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

Mr. Bush was to discuss the latest developments in the Gulf crisis with his advisers when he returned to Washington late Sunday.

The U.S. leader was scheduled to return to his holiday home at Kennebunkport Monday after delivering an address on the crisis in Baltimore, near Washington, at a meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (AUG. 19) - The White House Sunday disavowed the word "hostages" to describe the estimated 2,600 U.S. citizens whom Iraqi authorities have prevented from leaving Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

Thomas Pickering, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, used the taboo word Saturday, telling reporters at U.N. headquarters in New York that an Iraqi Government statement earlier in the day indicated Iraqi President Saddam Hussein "was going to hold hostage all foreigners."

But Sunday, U.S. officials accompanying President George Bush on a vacation here stressed that Mr. Pickering was not speaking for the U.S. Government when he made his comments.

Saturday, Baghdad announced it would "retain" nationals of "hostile" nations at vital installations in Iraq and Kuwait until the threat of war was lifted.

The Iraqi statement was issued as thousands of U.S. troops continued to arrive in Saudi Arabia and as U.S. warships and planes were deployed to the Middle East.

Mr. Bush ordered the massive deployment after Iraqi troops overran its small, oil-rich neighbor August 2 and began gathering along the Kuwaiti-Saudi border.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Mr. Bush wanted to avoid using the word "hostage" to avoid increasing Baghdad's bargaining power over the eventual release of U.S. citizens in Iraq and Kuwait.

Observers said another reason for U.S. officials avoiding the word was that Mr. Bush did not want to lose any of the consensus that has been generated by his firm policy toward Iraq. Polls show three Americans in four support his actions.

Many analysts attribute much of the political misfortune of former U.S. president Jimmy Carter, who lost his 1980 re-election bid, to his handling of the case of the U.S. citizens held hostage in Iran for 444 days.

Sunday, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein offered to release the foreigners in exchange for a pull-out from the Gulf by U.S. and other forces.

There was no immmediate official White House comment on Mr. Hussein's statement but a presidential spokesman, Doug Davidson, stressed that U.S. policy remained unchanged.

The United States demands a "complete, immediate and unconditional" withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait, Mr. Davidson said.

U.S. officials have told U.S. citzens trapped in Kuwait and Iraq to stay where they are but not to resist if they are rounded up by the Iraqi authorities, a senior U.S. official said Sunday.

Robert Kimmit, under secretary of state for political affairs, told a television interviewer, "Our first concern is to protect American lives."

(Sunday, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein said in a statement announced in Baghdad he was detaining tens of thousands of foreigners in Iraq and Kuwait in a bid to open a dialogue with nations Iraq considered hostile.

(He offered to release the foreigners in exchange for a U.S. military withdrawal from the region and a settlement of the Kuwaiti issue "in a strictly Arab framework.")

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, currently visiting U.S. forces in the region, told one U.S. television network, "We hope that through diplomatic means we will be able to secure their release."

Mr. Cheney refused to speculate about possible U.S. action but noted that Washington had "a wide range of options" available.

He refused to speculate on whether U.S. forces sent to the Gulf would be constrained by the placing of U.S. citizens and other foreigners at potential targets.

JERUSALEM (AUG. 19) - Israeli troops shot and wounded 11 Palestinians on Sunday when they opened fire to disperse pro-Iraqi demonstrations in several parts of the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip, Arab sources said.

Pro-Iraqi demonstrations have rocked the occupied territories in the aftermath of Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait, with many Palestinians hailing the Iraqi president, Saddam Hussein, as a hero of Arab nationalism.

NICOSIA (AUG. 19) EFE - Baghdad agreed Sunday to allow citizens of Switzerland, Sweden, Finland, Austria and Portugal to leave Iraq and Kuwait, while vowing to hold thousands of other Westerners until the United States withdrew its forces from the Gulf region and ended the trade blockade.

In a statement to the Iraqi news agency INA, a government spokesman said the citizens were being released as a "good will gesture" because their countries had sent neither troops nor arms to the region.

He did not say how many people were to be freed.

Less than an hour earlier President Saddam Hussein, in an open letter to the families of detained Westerners, said the foreigners would remain trapped "until the end of the crisis" for "the good of humanity" to prevent war and to open a peace dialogues.

The statement outlined a five-step plan to insure +complete and comprehensive peace+ which included a United Nations resolution for foreign forces to withdraw from the region within weeks.

If the U.N. did not adopt a measure, Iraq said it would accept a "written and unambiguous" statement from U.S. President George Bush pledging a complete withdraw of troops and an immediate end to the trade blockade.

Among the tens of thousands of Westerners stranded in Iraq and Kuwait, are 5,000 Britons and 3,000 Americans.

The statement came hours after the Iraqi Foreign Ministry ordered all Westerners and Australians in Kuwait to report to three hotels.

"As a measure designed to guarantee the lives of Westerners and Australians living in the Iraqi cities of Kuwait, Al-Nidaa and Al-Jahrah these people should gather at the following hotels: Hyatt Regency, Meridien and International," INA quoted an Interior Ministry spokesman as saying.

"Those who do not heed this request will be responsible, along with their respective governments, for any aggression that could result from the forces of aggressors," said the spokesman.

AVILA, Spain (AUG. 19) EFE - A bomb exploded on a railway in central Spain Sunday, injuring no one but prompting officials to suspend traffic along the line, an Interior Ministry spokesman said.

The bomb, planted by suspected Basque separatists, exploded near the town of Adanero, on the line linking Madrid with the northern cities of Valladolid, Leon and Oviedo.

It was the third bomb to explode on a railway since the Basque separatist group ETA threatened on August 13 to bomb Spain's main rail routes.

Sunday's bomb went off only a few meters from the site of one of the other bombs, which exploded Friday. The first bomb exploded Tuesday on the same line, near Leon.

No injuries have resulted from the three bombings.

ETA has killed more than 600 people since it took up arms in 1968 to win the right to independence of the Basque region of northern Spain.

BRAINTREE, MA (AUG. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The Board of Directors of Grossman's Inc. (NASDAQ: GROS) announced today that it has begun to solicit revocations of consents from the stockholders of Grossman's in response to the consent solicitation proposal made by Hawaii-based real estate investor Jay H. Shidler and another real estate investor named Robert W. Holman, Jr. On August 8, 1990, Grossman's Board of Directors announced its unanimous opposition to Shidler/Holman's efforts to take control of the Company's board.

Tom Schwarz, President and Chief Operating Officer of Grossman's said, "We believe Shidler/Holman have nothing to offer Grossman's stockholders. They have abandoned an earlier plan, submitted to stockholders just last week, under which they were prepared to implement a sale/leaseback transaction -- that is, to have the Company's real estate sold to a Shidler/Holman affiliate and then leased back to the Company, on unspecified terms -- if no one came forward with a plan that their nominees found to be better for the Company. Shidler/Holman acknowledged in their own materials that conflicts of interest pervaded their plan. This week, they have walked away from their sale/leaseback proposal. Grossman's stockholders should ask themselves: Is this the kind of leadership Shidler/Holman seek to bring to the Company? By contrast, the present Board of Directors has a consistent and proven record of building this Company's book value and financial strength."

Under the Delaware corporation law, Shidler/Holman's solicitation will be successful only if consents from the holders of record of a majority of the outstanding shares of Common Stock (as of May 30, 1990) are delivered to the Company by October 8, 1990 (unless earlier dated consents are delivered to the Company).

Grossman's, a major retailer of lumber and building materials, operates 156 stores in nine Northeastern states and California.

UNITED NATIONS (AUG. 19) UPI - The U.N. Security Council voted unanimously Saturday night to demand that Iraq allow foreigners to leave, and the U.S. delegate said he was certain Iraq would ''hold hostage'' thousands of Americans and citizens of other countries.

The council acted after Iraq said it would move foreigners trapped in Iraq and Kuwait - including about 3,000 Americans - to vital Iraqi installations as a human shield against U.S. attack.

''No nation can allow this kind of measure to be taken against their citizens without a fullest response'', said Thomas Pickering, U.S. representative to the United Nations, after the vote.

Pickering also became the first member of the Bush administration to apply the term ''hostage'' to the thousands of Americans and other foreign citizens trapped in Iraq. President Bush has repeatedly refused to use the word, hoping to minimize their value as bargaining chips with Iraq.

''We are now responding to the three steps (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein has taken during the last 24 hours, beginning a process of sequestering foreign nationals, the announcement he is going to use them as military shields and finally the statement this morning in which it was clear he was going to hold hostage all foreigners,'' Pickering told reporters before the council met.

The resolution, drafted during an afternoon meeting of the council's five permanent members - the United States, Soviet Union, Great Britain, France and China - also said Iraq must permit foreign citizens under its authority to contact their embassies.

''Obviously the world is concerned and we expect Saddam Hussein will pay atention to the world,'' Pickering said.

The meeting was the fifth time the Security Council has gathered to discuss the crisis in the Persian Gulf.

The body condemned the Iraqi invasion Aug. 2, just hours after troops rolled over the border into Kuwait.

Later, it unanimously declared ''null and void'' Iraq's annexation of Kuwait.

U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who is in Lima, Peru, said he would send two high-ranking diplomats to Baghdad to discuss the situation of the foreign residents. The envoys are expected to arrive in Iraq Monday.

The Security Council meeting was another step reflecting Iraq's growing worldwide isolation and diplomats said the body was inching toward application of Article 42 of the U.N. Charter, which provides for military actions under the umbrella of the United Nations.

It also may strengthen the U.S. argument that it is acting under Article 51 of the Charter that states any nation may act in self-defence, in this case the life and security of thousands of its citizens.

BRANFORD, CT (AUG. 19) UPI - An Amtrak passenger train headed from Boston to Philadelphia was disabled Saturday night after the locomotive struck a boulder that had rolled onto the tracks, officials said.

No one was injured in the 9 p.m. incident about 12 miles north of New Haven, but passengers on Train 197, the Benjamin Franklin, were delayed for about two hours, said Amtrak spokeswoman Marci Larson.

''A boulder fell onto the track and it fell just as train 197 was coming by,'' she said. ''The boulder hit the front end of the locomotive. There was damage to the locomotive.''

Larson said the train did not derail, but a replacement locomotive from a work train was needed to pull the passenger cars into the New Haven station.

Larson did not know how many people were aboard the train, and said the passengers likely would transfer to another southbound train in New Haven.

MANILA, Philippines (AUG. 19) UPI - Armed men shot and killed a police officer and four bombings rocked the capital before dawn Sunday amid threats of another uprising against President Corazon Aquino.

The 159,000-member Armed Forces of the Philippines was placed on maximum alert Friday after fugitive army Col. Gregorio Honasan, leader of right-wing rebels, announced a resumption of hostilities against Aquino.

Police said Capt. Raymundo Venus was riding his motorcycle home Saturday night with his daughter on back when two helmeted men on motorcycles shot him in the head at close range in suburban Quezon City.

Venus was hit twice and died instantly. His daughter was unharmed.

Following the killing, a spate of bombings hit a shopping mall in Quezon City, the RFM food manufacturing company in suburban Pasig, a police outpost about a mile from Aquino's palace and the Department of Justice parking lot in the capital's tourist district.

Police said the bombings between 8 p.m. Saturday and 3 a.m. Sunday smashed windows and building walls. A security guard was injured at RFM, a company owned by the family of Trade Secretary Jose Concepcion.

No one has claimed responsibility for the bombings. Authorities said the ''high-explosive'' bombs were either hurled by people on foot or riding motorcycles or cars.

Concepcion, whose offices were bombed last week, said the latest attacks were not meant to ''harm but to make the perpetrators know they are around.''

''If they think they can scare us we'd like to let them know we will continue doing our job,'' said Justice Secretary Franklin Drillon. His office is prosecuting rebel soldiers.

Honasan, 41, led the Dec. 1-9 coup attempt in which 119 people were killed and more than 500 were wounded. He said last week ''tactical operations'' would resume after Aquino spurned his offer of reconciliation. Aquino has crushed six coup attempts.

The renegade colonel had offered a cease-fire in the face of the July 16 earthquake that devastated wide areas of the northern Philippines and the Persian Gulf conflict that has displaced thousands of Filipino workers in the Middle East.

''If they would stage another coup, we are ready for it,'' said Maj. Gen. Rodolfo Biazon, chief of the National Capital Region Defense Command, during an inspection of 2,500 troops at the armed forces headquarters in Quezon city.

Biazon said he doubted the rebels have the capability to mount another uprising, saying ''the most they can do is (undertake) destabilization moves such as terroristic acts and bombings. It would be foolish of them to try anything.''

Armed forces chief Gen. Renato de Villa who appeared with Biazon called on troops to remain loyal, saying soldiers have a ''duty to protect our country and our people.''

Several dozen bombing incidents have rocked the capital since July 13, causing minor damages but no casualties.

(AUG. 19) UPI - The U-N Security Council is demanding Iraq allow foreigners to leave. The council acted Saturday night after Iraq announced it would move foreigners- including about three-thousand Americans- trapped in Iraq and Kuwait to vital Iraqi installations as a human shield against possible U-S attack.

Salvadoran rebels want the government to make public the details of its investigation into the November slaying of six Jesuit priests. The government delegation did not immediately comment on the rebel demand made Saturday at U-N-mediated peace talks being held in Costa Rica.

Fish were swimming down at least one Chicago street Saturday after heavy overnight thunderstorms caused flooding in Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana. In Tomah, Wisconsin, police evacuated 15-hundred people after discovering a small hole in a dam. The town's fire chief says he's NOT sure how long the dam will hold.

Operation Push is dismissing as ''inadequate'' Nike's plans to add blacks to high positions in the company. In Chicago, the executive director of the civil rights group says the plans announced Friday by the athletic shoemaker would take too long and fail to adequately address the problem.

Amtrak officials say a passenger train heading from Boston to Philadelphia hit a boulder just after the big rock rolled onto the tracks. NO one was injured in the incident Saturday night about 12 miles north of New Haven, Connecticut. Passengers, however, were stuck on the tracks for about two hours.

Police in New York say a six-year-old boy was hit by a random bullet Saturday while playing with friends on a Manhattan street. The child was taken to a hospital with a bullet wound in his stomach, but his condition is NOT considered life-threatening.

ITASCA, IL (AUG. 19) UPI - A chain-reaction bus collision Saturday injured 31 people, including five members of a musical group who were on their way to a concert, authorities said.

The accident occurred about noon when a tour bus carrying members of the group Soul II Soul rear-ended another tour bus while slowing in a construction area on Interstate 290, triggering a chain-reaction accident, police said.

Four cars also were involved in the accident, police said.

Ten people, including the five band members, were treated and released from Glen Oaks Medical Center, a nursing supervisor said. Another 11 people were treated and released from Alexian Brothers Medical Center, officials said.

Two other accident victims were taken to Northwest Community Hospital and eight were treated at the accident scene, authorities said.

State Police Trooper Bruce Shimizu said one of the lanes on the interstate was closed for three hours, causing ''considerable backups.''

Soul II Soul canceled the rest of its concert tour after doctors told band leader Jazzy B he had suffered a slight spinal injury in the accident and should rest for at least seven days, said manager Don Taylor.

(AUG. 19) UPI - Pitcher Jim Key's perseverance has helped the Blue Jays find first place again in the American League East.

Key, 8-6, whose 2.76 ERA for 1987 was tops in the AL, has been hindered by arthroscopic shoulder surgery performed last October. Saturday, he shut out the Minnesota Twins over seven innings, leading the Blue Jays to a 3-0 victory, Toronto's fourth in five games.

The Blue Jays gained a share of first place with the Boston Red Sox. The two teams were tied for the top spot Aug. 2.

''I'm still not what I used to be,'' Key said. ''I don't know if it's the surgery or what. But I've been throwing pretty good for the last month or so and I'm getting better as I go.''

''That was the best Jimmy has pitched for us this year,'' Toronto Manager Cito Gaston said. ''And it helps to get the bullpen involved. That picks us up.''

Key allowed eighth inning singles to Carmelo Castillo and Kent Hrbek before Tom Henke relieved and retired the next three batters. He pitched the ninth for his 26th save.

''I'd like to go eight or nine innings, but for whatever reason I'm not there yet,'' Key said. ''(Home plate umpire) Drew (Coble) had a low strike zone tonight, and I like to pitch down there.''

Key's victory came less than a week after the Twins pounded him in Toronto for nine hits and five runs in three innings.

''He was throwing pretty much the same, he mixed it up a little better,'' Twins outfielder Shane Mack said. ''He threw more changeups. He had pretty good control of the change. We hit him well last time but not this time.''

Key allowed four hits over seven innings. He retired 16 of 17 Twins batters between the first and sixth innings.

Minnesota starter Allan Anderson, 5-16, lost despite pitching a complete game.The Twins lost their fourth straight game.

--- AROUND THE AL ---

Elsewhere in the AL, California downed Boston 4-3, Kansas City buried Milwaukee 10-1, New York routed Seattle 6-0, Detroit stopped Cleveland 6-3 Oakland beat Baltimore 3-1, and Texas toppled Chicago 8-3.

Angels 4, Red Sox 3

At Boston, Kirk McCaskill scattered five hits over 6 1-3 innings and Pete Coachman collected an RBI in his major-league debut. McCaskill, 9-8, walked two and struck out five. Bryan Harvey earned his 15th save. Tom Bolton fell to 7-2.

Royals 10, Brewers 1

At Milwaukee, Kevin Appier scattered six hits over six innings and Brian McRae went 4-for-6 in a 17-hit Kansas City attack. Appier, 9-4, won his fourth straight game and seventh in his last eight starts. Jamie Navvaro, 3-5, lasted only 1 1-3 innings.

Yankees 6, Mariners 0

At New York, Mike Witt threw a two-hitter and Jesse Barfield and Kevin Maas each hit home runs. Witt, 2-5, recorded his first shutout and first complete game of the season. Brian Holman ll-9, took the loss, giving up seven hits and five runs.

Tigers 6, Indians 3

At Detroit, Cecil Fielder lined his third home run in as many games, increasing his major league-leading total to 39, and Alan Trammell added a two-run homer. Walt Terrell, 2-1, allowed nine hits over 8 2-3 innings. Cleveland starter Jeff Shaw dropped to 2-4.

Athletics 3, Orioles 1

At Baltimore, Rickey Henderson, the leading hitter in the American League, smacked a two-run home run in the seventh inning. Henderson's homer came off rookie Ben McDonald, 5-1, who had posted victories in his first five starts. Gene Nelson, 3-2, recorded the victory in relief.

Rangers 8, White Sox 3

At Arlington, Texas, Gary Green's three-run double keyed a four-run sixth inning for the Rangers. John Barfield, 2-0, entered the game in the fourth and threw six innings of no-hit relief. The loss went to Alex Fernandez, 1-1, who was making his fourth major league start.

TOKYO (AUG. 19) UPI - Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu will confer with President Bush in New York next month on Japan's role for stability in the Middle East before embarking on a tour of five Persian Gulf nations, a newspaper said Sunday.

The economic journal Nihon Keizai Shimbun said Kaifu's plan was made known by Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama in his meeting with Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister Saud al-Faisal in Jiddah, Saudi Arabia, on Saturday.

Nakayama arrived in the Saudi capital Saturday to begin a tour of five Middle East nations on behalf of Kaifu, who earlier postponed his journey to the region because of upheavals triggered by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2.

Nakayama will proceed to Oman, Jordan, Egypt and Turkey on an eight-day swing.

Nihon Keizai said Kaifu plans to meet with Bush and outline Japan's measures to contribute to stability in the Middle East.

Kaifu and Bush plan to attend the U.N.-organized children's summit in New York in late September, the paper said.

Kaifu summoned senior Foreign Ministry officials Saturday to be briefed on ways Japan can contribute to peace and stability in the gulf region, government officials said.

The officials said the Foreign Ministry suggested dispatching an emergency aid mission, including medical, transport and communications personnel, and extension of aid to gulf nations affected by U.S.-led sanctions against Iraq.

Nakayama's tour is primarily designed to exchange information with leaders of the five gulf nations to help Kaifu's government formulate measures to help restore stability in the region, Foreign Ministry officials said.

''This is an unprecedented operation on our part ... please don't misunderstand that we are only thinking of money. We are trying to come up with something else,'' Foreign Ministry spokesman Taizo Watanabe said at a news conference following Nakayama's departure Friday.

Watanabe, however, admitted that the government is hampered by constitutional limitations, barring the deployment of combat forces beyond Japan's territory.

Japanese dailies said the government and the ruling Liberal Democratic Party were divided on the idea of sending non-combat personnel to the international multinational forces stationed in Saudi Arabia.

Japan previously studied the possibility of sending minesweepers to the gulf during the 1987 crisis, but the plan was dropped.

(AUG. 19) UI - The Cincinnati Reds said good-bye to an old friend Saturday and Barry Bonds said good-bye to a changeup.

''It was the first time in three years of playing this game that a left-hander has thrown me a changeup,'' Bonds said after hitting Chris Hammond's pitch 400 feet for his 24th homer to lift the Pirates to a 3-1 victory over Cincinnati.

''He left the pitch right out there over the plate'' said Bonds of his fourth-inning blast that gave the Pirates a 2-0 lead. Bonds also doubled in a run.

Hammond, 0-1, was on the Reds' roster because a familiar face at Riverfront Stadium suddenly decided to call it quits. Ken Griffey Sr., the last link to Cincinnati's fabled Big Red Machine of the 1970s, retired before the game.

Griffey, who made his major league debut with Cincinnati in 1973, reported to the Cincinnati clubhouse before the game but shortly after being summoned to Reds Manager Lou Piniella's office. He then announced he was ending his career at the age of 40.

''Ken is a class person who had a great career,'' Piniella said. ''I played with him for the Yankees and coached and managed him at New York and here in Cincinnati. He helped with the leadership in our clubhouse and I enjoyed being around him.

''Ken had talked about retirement and today he did it, but he'll still be around here to help us and work with the staff.''

Pittsburgh has won six of its last seven and remains two games ahead of the New York Mets in the National League East.

Pirates starter Zane Smith, acquired from Montreal Aug. 8, limited Cincinnati to five hits in 7 1-3 innings to improve to 8-7.

The Reds, who have lost the first three games of the four-game series between the division leaders, haven't had much luck at the plate recently.

--- AROUND THE NL ---

Elsewhere in the National League, New York slapped San Francisco 9-2, Atlanta clubbed Chicago 17-6, Houston nipped St. Louis 3-2 in 11 innings, San Diego downed Philadelphia 4-2 and Los Angeles edged Montreal 3-2.

Mets 9, Giants 2

At San Francisco, David Cone pitched a seven-hitter and struck out a career-high 13 and Howard Johnson had three hits, including two doubles, and three RBI to help New York. Cone, 9-6, pitched his second complete game of the season.

Braves 17, Cubs 6

At Chicago, pinch-hitter Tommy Gregg drove in four runs and Andres Thomas collected three RBI to power a 24-hit Atlanta attack. The 24 hits and 17 runs were season highs for the Braves. Atlanta sent nine men to the plate in the third, fourth and seventh innings. Charlie Leibrandt, 5-7, got the victory.

Astros 3, Cardinals 2 (11 innings)

At St. Louis, pinch-hitter Mark Davidson singled home Franklin Stubbs for the game-winner in the 11th inning. Stubbs sent the game into extra innings with a lead-off homer - his 18th blast of the season - in the ninth inning. Dave Smith, 4-4, got the victory.

Padres 4, Phillies 2

At San Diego, Jack Clark hit his 20th homer, a three-run blast in the sixth inning, to erase a 2-0 deficit and power the Padres. Mike Pagliarulo added an RBI single in the inning to make a winner of Andy Benes, 9-8.

Dodgers 3, Expos 2

At Los Angeles, Stan Javier singled in Alfredo Griffin with the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning to move the Dodgers to within 6 1-2 games of first-place Cincinnati in the NL West. Fernando Valenzuela, 10-10 worked seven innings to gain the victory.

(AUG. 19) UPI - Iraq ordered all Westerners in occupied Kuwait to assemble Sunday at three hotels, warning if they failed to comply their governments will bear ''full responsibility for the consequences.''

Baghdad Radio, monitored in Beirut, quoted a spokesman of the Iraqi Interior Ministry as ordering all ''Westerners and Australians in the Iraqi cities of Kuwait ... to assemble in three hotels.''

It said the measure is ''to guarantee their safety'' and said anyone who does not respond to the call will hold along with their government ''full responsibility for the consequences of any act that might target them from hostile elements.''

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said ''there is no change in our policy. We have not asked U.S. citizens to comply with the various

Iraqi demands and we don't expect the Iraqi government to make any demands of them.''

There are an estimated 2,500 American citizens in Kuwait, and another 500 in Iraq, who have been stranded since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on Aug. 2.

Saudi Arabian television reports, meanwhile, said Kuwaiti guerrillas carried out a suicide mission against Iraqis in Kuwait, killing many soldiers.

The Saudi report, quoting Kuwaiti Radio Sunday, said a Kuwaiti ''resistance hero'' had driven a car loaded with explosives into a hospital in Kuwait City being used by Iraqi soldiers, leaving several troops dead and wounded.

''Kuwaiti radio announced this evening that one of the Kuwaiti resistance heroes this evening stormed al-Hadi hospital in al-Jabiriyah district in a car loaded with explosives.

''The operation resulted in his martyrdom and a large number of casualties among the Iraqi soldiers, dead and injured, who have occupied the hospital and made it their headquarters.''

U.S. warships on Saturday fired warning shots across the bow of two Iraqi tankers that refused orders to stop in the Persian Gulf and the Gulf of Oman, and Iraq said it considered the U.S. naval quarantine an ''act of war.''

In Saudi Arabia Sunday, U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney told reporters ''Iraqi vessels are still under surveillance. They're not going near any port at the moment. We are prepared to see that the U.N. sanctions voted on and the actions that the legitimate government of Kuwait asked us to perform will be carried out.''

Cheney also said the United States has no immediate plans to significantly increase its current troop deployment, currently estimated at 45,000.

Earlier, Iraq had said it would move foreigners trapped in Iraq and Kuwait to vital Iraqi installations as a human shield against U.S. attack, and vowed that foreign babies would suffer along with Iraqi infants if economic sanctions deprive the country of food and medicine.

At the United Nations, the Security Council voted unanimously Saturday night to demand that Iraq allow foreigners to leave, and a Bush administration official for the first time used the word ''hostage'' to describe thousands of Americans and citizens of other countries trapped in Iraq and Kuwait.

The warning shots in the Gulf of Oman, fired by the frigate USS Reid, were the first use of force reported by American ships and ground troops deployed in the Middle East after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

U.S. Navy spokesmen said U.S. naval forces in the Persian Gulf went to battle stations when the Reid fired six shots at an unidentified Iraqi tanker in the Gulf of Oman when it refused orders to stop.

''The Persian Gulf forces have gone to general quarters. They are at battle stations,'' said Capt. Morris Foote of the guided missile cruiser USS Ticonderoga, cruising with the aircraft carrier USS Eisenhower battle group in the Red Sea. The general quarters order was rescinded after the incident, which occurred at about 4 p.m.

Iraqi oil minister Isam Abdul Raheem al-Chalaby warned that any aggression directed at Iraqi tankers and their crews would result in ''grave consequences,'' the official Iraqi News Agency reported.

INA quoted al-Chalaby as saying a number of American warships fired shots in front of and behind the Iraqi tanker Khanakeen in an attempt to force it to stop and change course.

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AUG. 19) UPI - U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf region are now strong enough to make Iraq ''pay a price'' if President Saddam Hussein is ''foolish enough'' to invade Saudi Arabia, U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said Sunday.

Cheney, speaking to reporters during a visit to Saudi Arabia to assess Washington's response to the gulf crisis, said the United States had no immediate plans of significantly upgrading its current troop deployment schedule.

''The total size of the final deployment will depend on future developments,'' Cheney said. ''We have got sufficient forces in the country that, should Saddam Hussein be foolish enough to launch an attack on Saudi Arabia, we would do an effective job of making him pay a price.''

U.S. sources said the Pentagon intends to deploy three brigades of Marines - about 45,000 troops - with full armor and artillery as a deterrent against more than 170,000 Iraqi troops based in Kuwait and now threatening Saudi Arabia.

At least one brigade has arrived and is now stationed near the border about 170 miles north of Dhahran, with troops of the Army's 82nd and 101st airborne divisions.

The sources said the other two brigades were en route by land and sea to bolster the 95,000-strong Saudi military, which is also being supported by ground forces from Britain, Egypt, Morocco, Syria and soon Pakistan and Bangladesh.

Asked if the United States, which fired warning shots across the bow of two Iraqi tankers Saturday, is prepared to sink Iraqi vesels, Cheney said, ''Iraqi vessels are still under surveillance. They're not going near any port at the moment. We are prepared to see that the U.N. sanctions voted on and the actions that the legitimate government of Kuwait asked us to perform will be carried out,'' said Cheney.

Asked whether Saudis or Americans control the military force, he said an agreement had been reached with Riyadh under which American constitutional requirements that the president remain supreme commander were satisfied, and Saudi concerns about sovereignty were also respected.

Cheney wore blue jeans and a cotton shirt as he was shuttled around the mammoth base that has been the main staging post for incoming military transport planes unloading men and materiel.

The city of Dhahran seemed empty. Many Saudi residents had left and most women and children have been evacuated. Virtually all dependents of foreign oil workers had left.

Huge C-5 aircraft continuously spilled out Sheridan tanks, armored personnel carriers and munitions which lie in rows on the desert waiting to be moved to forward positions.

Cheney met troops in blistering 104-degree heat. He was taken to see an Apache attack helicopter and a Patriot ground-to-air missile site. The missiles are designed to hit both planes and incoming missiles and are thought to be the best defense against a possible Iraqi attack with Soviet-supplied Scud missiles, potentially tipped with chemical warheads.

While Cheney viewed the base, F-15 fighters took off, ripping across the sky to join a 24-hour patrol along the Saudi-Kuwait border.

Cheney, who had spent the night on the carrier USS Eisenhower in the Red Sea, was to continue Sunday afternoon to Bahrain and then go to the United Arab Emirates, Oman and Qatar. Then he may have a brief stop in Egypt.

JERUSALEM (AUG. 19) UPI - Israeli soldiers Sunday shot and killed one of two Jordanian soldiers who crossed the border into Israeli-occupied territory and opened fire, the army said.

The other Jordanian was wounded, but no Israelis were hurt, an army spokesman said.

The incident took place south of the Damiya Bridge, about a half-mile west of the Jordanian border in the occupied West Bank, the spokesman said.

The men were wearing Jordanian army uniforms and carrying weapons, the spokesman said.

Israeli soldiers, who tracked the two, ordered them to stop, but they opened fire, the spokesman said. The Israeli patrol returned fire, killing one soldier and wounding the second, who was not seriously hurt, the spokesman said.

SOWETO, South Africa (AUG. 19) UPI - Factional battles flared again across the nation's largest black township and other settlements Sunday, pushing the death toll after the seventh day of slaughter to almost 279 and injuries to at least 1,100.

Police and army units have inundated the strife-torn areas, but could not stop sporadic and savage tribal-style fighting overnight between dozens of combatants wielding clubs, spears and machetes.

Witnesses reported two groups clashing in a 15-minute pre-dawn battle on one of Soweto's dirt highways, leaving a number of wounded writhing and screaming for aid before the sides separated, exhausted, and camp followers moved in to take away the injured.

''The fighters came together shouting war cries. Some wore the tribal dress of cowskins. This has been going on all over in different spots,'' witness Marcus Ndlovu, 19, said.

Since the outbreak of the conflict Monday, at least 279 people have been killed in mostly hand-to-hand battles between Zulu supporters of the Inkatha movement and rivals of the African National Congress, which groups mainly Xhosas in its support base.

Police and detachments of troops, which moved into Soweto in force Saturday, have been unable to stop the widespread conflict despite firing on warring groups with tear gas, birdshot, and rubber bullets.

The fighting spilled over into Soweto from a cluster of three townships east of Johannesburg on Thursday, and the sprawling township of 2 million has since seen the worst violence.

Police spokesman Col. Tienie Halgryn put the death toll in Soweto by Sunday at 77, with 417 hurt. He added violence in Thokoza township overnight claimed at least another 2 dead and 10 injured.

The 279 dead ''also numbers bodies we have found from battles which could have taken place some days ago,'' Halgryn said. He noted the official injury estimate ''certainly does not take into account all those who let their wounds go untreated.''

Police reported the townships were quiet in most places but tense Sunday, and they were removing barricades of rocks and debris the sides had erected to serve as makeshift regrouping and fighting positions.

Analysts blamed the internecine violence, once confined to the Indian Ocean province of Natal, on a combination of tribal rivalries between Zulus and Xhosas and attempts by Inkatha President Mangosuthu Buthelezi to carve out his power base ahead of formal negotiations with the government on a post-apartheid constitution.

Battles between Buthelezi's supporters and those of Nelson Mandela's ANC in Natal have claimed more than 3,000 lives since 1987. With the legalization of the ANC in February, Inkatha has been accused of taking the fighting particularly into the ANC stronghold of Transvaal province, to ensure Buthelezi maintains a foothold in Soweto and other townships.

But Buthelezi and Mandela have both traded accusations over culpability, while also condemning the violence. Efforts last Thursday by President Frederik de Klerk, Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok and ANC Mandela to halt the bloodshed through a ''peace forum'' failed to take hold.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AUG. 19) UPI - Vietnam's private sector, boosted by market- oriented reforms, is rapidly outgrowing the once-dominant state sector, the official Vietnam News Agency reported.

''The non-state sector occupies an ever more important position in the national economic life,'' wrote Huu Tho, the deputy editor in chief of the Communist Party journal Nhan Dan, in a VNA dispatch dated Saturday.

The ''non-state sector'' includes private enterprises, family farms and workshops and small-scale cooperatives.

This sector, once deliberately suppressed in efforts to move to a higher level of socialism, is now credited with having ''boosted the volume of social product, helped in the circulation of goods, and created jobs for millions of people,'' Tho wrote.

Vietnam instituted economic reforms beginning in 1987 meant to revive the nearly bankrupt socialist economy.

The reforms gradually ended most state subsidies, put most state agencies on a profit basis and opened large areas of the economy to private enterprise.

VNA said Tho argued that more active steps should be taken to enact and enforce legislation encouraging the development of the private sector ''while limiting its negative aspects.''

He said the non-state sector now accounted for about 90 percent of the rice, 56 percent of the coffee, 90 percent of the domestic animals and poultry, and nearly 100 percent of the vegetables, fruit and eggs produced in the country.

Private and cooperative factories produce 50 percent of the country' s industrial output and employ more than 2 million people, he said.

Tho urged, however, that fraud was more likely in such a market-oriented economy ''spurred by the profit motive.''

He said more legislation and preventive measures were needed to prevent and punish fraud in an economy whose entire structure was changing rapidly.

''Work in the fields of legislation and organization has not kept pace with those changes,'' he said.

He said the National Assembly must quickly pass needed laws on trading, labor, the settlement of bankruptcies, and the setting up of courts of law dealing with economic litigation.

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AUG. 19) UPI - Former Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto called Sunday for the formation of a new caretaker government that could be trusted to hold elections scheduled for October.

''We do not believe that the present caretaker administration can give this country free, fair and independent elections,'' Bhutto told reporters at a news conference in Islamabad.

''We want fresh a caretaker administration at the center and at the provinces, which must be constituted of neutral people such as the speakers, who are elected by Parliament, to play neutral roles.''

President Ghulam Ishaq Khan dismissed Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party government Aug. 6, charging it with ''corruption and nepotism.'' He also dissolved the National Assembly and appointed an interim government until elections scheduled for Oct. 24.

Bhutto, 37, said the present caretaker administration had shown its ''dishonesty of intentions'' in the type of people picked for office.

''I do not know of any other country where the prime minister is dismissed and the leader of the opposition, who has been defeated in two home constituencies, is picked to be made prime minister,'' Bhutto said.

The interim government of Prime Minister Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi announced last week the formation of special judicial tribunals to assess ''accountability'' of all members of the previous National Assembly.

But Bhutto said Sunday she refused to accept the validity of the tribunals.

''Justice demands that people not be tried before kangaroo newspaper trials but that the innocence of people be decided before the ordinary courts of the law,'' Bhutto said.

Bhutto's call for a new caretaker government came one day after Nawaz Sharif, the former chief minister of Punjab province, sharply criticized Bhutto's party.

''The PPP government had eroded its ethical and legal basis,'' said Sharif who is seen by some analysts as the most credible alternative to Bhutto in the coming election. ''It was the most corrupt regime in Pakistan's history.''

Bhutto, who became the first woman leader of a Moslem nation, was given a boisterous welcome on her arrival in Islamabad from Karachi, the southern port where the family home is located.

''Benazir is innocent,'' shouted the crowd as she emerged from the airport lounge.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AUG. 19) UPI - Khmer Rouge guerrilla forces attacked the Cambodian government's main transport routes in two provinces last week, destroying a tank and killing 33 troops, rebel radio reported Sunday.

The radio report said ''our national resistance forces'' routed enemy troops in Banteay Srei district on route 67, about 25 miles north of the capital of Siem Reap province last Monday.

The province, about 180 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, has been the focus of recent Khmer Rouge attacks because it contains the 12th-century ruins of Angkor Wat, an ancient Khmer temple that is a national symbol.

''We killed 15 enemy soldiers, including a tank regiment commander, and wounded 20 others,'' the broadcast said.

It said the attack destroyed one Soviet-supplied T-54 tank and damaged another.

A separate broadcast said another attack near Pursat town, about 120 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, wiped out a military convoy carrying weapons and ammunition.

''We burned 15 trucks, killed 18 and wounded 25 enemy soldiers,'' the radio said.

Diplomatic observers have said Khmer Rouge reports are frequently exaggerated, but Cambodian government officials admit the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge have recently begun operating in larger groups for guerrilla attacks focused on transport links and economic targets.

The Khmer Rouge, ousted by the 1978 Vietnamese invasion after three years of bloody rule, are part of a three-party resistance coalition that includes two U.S.-backed groups. The United States recently withdrew recognition of the Khmer Rouge at the United Nations.

EAST BERLIN (AUG. 19) UPI - East Germany's Social Democratic Party held a special meeting Sunday to discuss its planned break from the government coalition, raising a new obstacle to hopes for a smooth unification with the West.

The party was widely expected at the meeting to pull out of the coalition, leaving the government of Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere with 193 parliamentary mandates, eight short of a majority.

The SPD's executive had asked party members last week to formally approve the break with the government after de Maiziere dismissed two SPD cabinet ministers who were had been blamed for the East's current economic crisis.

Although it was unclear how the unification issue itself might affect the SPD's decision to break with the government, party leader Wolfgang Thierse said the SPD does not support the proposed unification treaty in its present form on grounds that it does not give East Germans sufficient guarantees of social security.

The SPD is the second-largest party in the government coalition and has 88 deputies in the 400-strong East German Parliament. The treaty can be passed only by a two-thirds parliamentary majority.

Government officials in Bonn have warned that, if the SPD does not support the treaty, the unification procedure will be set down in a transitional law unilaterally passed by the West German Parliament.

The officials said they were prepared to enforce this option if necessary but did not favor it because it would look like an ''Anschluss,'' a reference to Adolf Hitler's annexation of Austria in 1938.

East and West German officials said that, if the option is used, East Germans would have little influence over their own fate.

''If one fails with the unification treaty, one puts people without protection in an inadequate situation,'' de Maiziere said.

The SPD has not issued a statement either supporting or rejecting West Germany's authority to act unilaterally on unification.

Officials of the West German opposition SPD and the Christian Social Union - West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl's Bavarian partners - called Sunday for immediate unification in view of the current political and economic crisis in East Germany.

They said that at its next session, on Wednesday, the Parliament in East Berlin should request accession to the West German federal republic.

''Every day of further delay of (East Germany's) accession accentuates the crisis and increases the costs of unity,'' said Ingrid Matthaeus-Maier, deputy leader of the West German SPD.

The East and West German SPDs - like de Maiziere and Kohl's CDUs - are separate parties but are due to unite in late September.

''Before one allows a further increase of the economic collapse and the political dissolution, one must of course be prepared to take over responsibility. We are,'' CSU Secretary-General Erwin Huber said.

East German Foreign Minister Markus Meckel of the SPD said he believed an acceptable unification treaty may still be negotiated. He said that if the negotiations failed, unification should take place after Sept. 12.

Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States - the World War II victorious powers - and the two Germanys are expected to formalize agreements on the external aspects of unification at a meeting Sept. 12 in Moscow.

(AUG. 19) UPI - TODAY'S PEOPLE:

BETTE BASHES BARR: Bette Midler holds most big-name female humorists in high regard, except for Roseanne Barr. ''I'm sorry, but I don't think she's funny,'' Midler says in the latest issue of Redbook magazine. ''I think she's crass.'' But she describes Tracey Ullman as ''brilliant - witty beyond belief'' and Carol Burnett as ''very, very classy. Whoopi Goldberg is described as ''gifted'' and ''geniune in her own work.'' Midler herself has wrapped up filming a new Paul Mazursky picture with co-star Woody Allen. She plays a therapist anxious about the onset of her 16th wedding anniversary.

NBC GETS DAN RATHER MAD: Dan Rather doesn't take kindly to being mocked by his competitors. ABC's Ted Koppel beat Rather into Iraq and there was a joke going around NBC that the only action Rather saw from his headquarters in Amman, Jordan, was a fight between housekeeping and room service at his hotel. ''He's just watching Jordanian TV,'' an NBC executive said in The Washington Post. The NBC exec wasn't named, but Rather says it was Steve Friedman, Tom Brokaw's producer. ''We know it and he knows it,'' Rather said. ''He speaks for Tom Brokaw. I respect Tom Brokaw tremendously, but this I don't respect - even less so because they didn't have the guts to put their names on it. Why do they do that? It's in their nature.''

ROCKING' IN PRAGUE: The Rolling Stones, nearing the end of their 3-month-old Urban Jungle tour, rolled into Prague Saturday, drawing 100,000 to their first concert ever in formerly Communist Czechoslovakia. The crowd was all the more impressive because tickets sold for the equivalent of $10, about 8 percent of the average Czechoslovak's monthly wage. The Stones are donating all proceeds from the concert to a charity for the handicapped headed by the wife of Czechoslovakia's playwright-president, Vaclav Havel. Mick Jagger and the rest of the band met with Havel before the concert, demonstrating, in the words of the official Czechoslovak news agency CTK, Havel's appreciation of ''the Rolling Stones to modern music culture during more than a quarter of a century of their activity on the scene of world pop music.''

SOUL TOUR KO'D: Soul II Soul has had to cancel the rest of its current tour after all five members of the group were hurt in a bus crash in suburban Chicago. The group was en route from a sold-out appearance in Detroit to a Saturday night performance outside Chicago when its bus rear-ended another in a construction zone along Interstate 290. That triggered a chain reaction that involved four cars and injured a total of 31 people. The group canceled the rest of its concert tour after doctors told leader Jazzy B, who suffered a slight spinal injury, that he should rest for at least seven days.

ELVIS MINUTIAE: Eddie James of Nashville won Saturday's Elvis Trivia Contest at Graceland Plaza as Memphis concluded a week's commemoration of the anniversary of the death of Elvis Presley. James correctly recalled the title Presley said he would have used for his autobiography, ''Through My Eyes.'' James beat out three other finalists. Presley died 13 years ago last Thursday. About 40,000 fans spent the better part of last week observing the anniversary.

OAKLAND, CA (AUG. 19) UPI - The Soviet Union's chief of protocol remained in the San Francisco Bay Area after Mikhail Gorbachev's June visit for treatment of a heart condition, it was revealed Saturday.

Vladimir Shermyshev, 61, was admitted to Merritt Peralta Medical Center June 11 for two days of tests. No announcement was made at the time for security reasons, hospital spokeswoman Gerrie Shields said.

She said Shermyshev had been advised by Soviet doctors to have a heart bypass operation. Tests ordered by Merritt Peralta heart surgeon Dr. Nilas Young indicated surgery was not necessary, Shields said.

The diplomat left the hospital June 13, but remained in the Bay Area for two more weeks as doctors observed him and treated him with drugs.

Gorbachev arrived in San Francisco June 3 for a brief visit.

Young is involved in Heart to Heart, a training program for Soviet heart surgeons. He has performed operations on Soviet children with heart defects.

VATICAN CITY (AUG. 19) UPI - Pope John Paul II may visit the Soviet Union in the summer of 1991, ecclesiastical sources quoted by the Italian news agency ANSA said.

ANSA, quoting sources it did not identify, reported Saturday the pope had expressed in a meeting with a small group of Soviet Catholics a desire to visit the Soviet Union between June and September of next year.

Pope John Paul was invited to visit the Soviet Union at a meeting in the Vatican last December with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

The church sources said the visit would depend on a solution to the problems of the Eastern Rite Catholic Church of the Ukraine, which is negotiating for the return of property handed over to the Russian Orthodox Church on the orders of Soviet dictator Josef Stalin in 1946.

The sources also said the visit could not take place if relations between Lithuania and Moscow broke down completely.

The predominantly Catholic Lithuanian republic is seeking independence from the Soviet Union and tensions over this issue make a papal visit to the Lithuanian capital Vilnius unlikely, diplomatic sources said.

The church sources said the pope hoped Soviet Catholics would be allowed to have their own bishop, based in Moscow, by Christmas, meeting another condition the Vatican has set before a papal visit can go ahead.

They said the papal nuncio to Moscow, Monsignor Francesco Colasuonno, had discussed the possibility of the visit in a meeting with the Soviet leader.

Colasuonno was appointed the pope's representative in Moscow when diplomatic relations were established between the Vatican and the Soviet Union March 15.

Pope John Paul has frequently spoken of his desire to make a ''pilgrimage'' to the Soviet Union.

Meanwhile, in Castel Gandolfo, Italy, Pope John Paul called Sunday for prayers for peace but made no explicit reference to the crisis in the Persian Gulf.

Speaking in English to pilgrims at the midday angelus at his summer retreat in the hills near Rome, the pope invited them to join him in praying for peace.

''I invite all of you to join me in praying that God will inspire in all peoples a deep desire for lasting peace based on justice,'' the pontiff said.

''Commending this intention to the prayers of Mary the queen of peace, I cordially invoke upon you and your loved ones the abundant blessings of our heavenly father,'' the pope said.

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AUG. 19) UPI - Sudan said Sunday that a U.S. warship illegally intercepted a cargo ship that was on its way to the Jordanian port of Aqaba to evacuate Sudanese nationals who had fled from Kuwait.

The African country protested the incident to the United Nations and the United States, with Minister of Justice Ahmed Mahmoud Hassan calling the action ''illegal and a violation of human rights as the ship was on its way to evacuate civilians escaping a battle area.''

Sudan, located in Africa southwest of Iraq and Jordan and directly opposite Saudi Arabia across the Red Sea, is one of the few nations supporting Iraq in the current gulf crisis and has pledged to send Sudanese troops to support Iraqi forces.

Sudanese officials said the cargo ship, ''Dongola,'' was heading to Jordan to pick up the evacuees when it was intercepted by U.S. warships and planes and ordered to return to its Sudanese port. They said the ship was currently anchored 110 miles away from Aqaba, waiting for further instructions.

U.S. officials said they wanted to board and search the cargo ship, the officials said.

There was no immediate comment from the White House or Pentagon, which announced late last week that the U.S. Navy would begin boarding and searching ships suspected of breaking the U.N.-imposed embargo against Iraq.

On Friday, two U.S. warships fired salvos of shots across the bows of two Iraqi tankers in the gulf, which ignored the warnings and proceeded on course with the warships trailing behind.

Sudanese officials said their ship should be exempt from the search order.

''The ship was not an Iraqi one and it was away from Iraqi waters but it was still intercepted,'' Sudanese Foreign Minister Ali Ahmed Sahlol said at a news conference in Khartoum. ''Does this mean that the Aqaba port is closed and does it mean the embargo includes not only Iraq but its neighbors?''

Government ministers said an estimated 500 Sudanese, most of them women and children, had arrived in Aqaba from Kuwait last week and were waiting to be transported home to Sudan.

Iraq, which invaded Kuwait Aug. 2, has said it will keep Western foreigners in Iraq and Kuwait to guard against attack by Western forces in the gulf, but has allowed hundreds of thousands of Arabs and other nationals to flee the two countries.

The officials said Sudan attempted to hire a ship to evacuate the Sudanese from Aqaba, but were force to send one of its own cargo ships Thursday.

They said the ship was laden with 200 pounds of cargo, mostly steel, and had been carrying water and medicine for the evacuees.

Sahlol said U.S. government officials told him warships were enforcing the U.N. embargo against Iraq and that the ''Dongola'' had to be searched before it could dock at Aqaba.

Sahlol said Sudan was contacting U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar to seek advice.

SEBRING, FL (AUG. 19) UPI - Call them the Dirty Dozen, Plus Two.

Fourteen state prison inmates, including one serving a life sentence for murder, have offered to volunteer for military service in the sands of Saudi Arabia. All they're asking in return is a decent burial if they're killed or a pardon if they survive.

The inmates at the Cross City Correctional Institution spelled out their offer in a letter to President Bush, saying that serving in the U.S. deployment to the Middle East would ''restore some of the lost honor we have inflicted on ourselves and this country.''

No one in authority appears to be seriously considering the offer. A White House spokeswoman laughed when told about it.

''It sounds like they've been watching too many movies,'' said Bob Macmaster, a spokesman for the Florida Department of Correction, recalling the 1967 movie ''The Dirty Dozen,'' in which a group of murderers, rapists and other criminals are sprung from a military prison for a dangerous World War II mission.

NEW YORK (AUG. 19) UPI - George Steinbrenner is scheduled to resign Monday as general partner of the New York Yankees and remove himself from day-to-day operation of the club he seen soar from World Series champions to major league doormats.

But what seemed certain a few weeks ago - that Steinbrenner would relinquish control of the Yankees and quietly fade from the post he has held since 1973 - has become unsure in the wake of a lawsuit his ban from baseball by Commissioner Fay Vincent.

As part of the agreement the principal owner signed July 30 with Vincent, Steinbrenner agreed to surrender control of the team by Aug. 20 and reduce his financial interest in the Yankees from 55 percent to under 50 percent.

But Steinbrenner may yet retain control of the team with the assistance of some of the the team's limited partners. A suit brought by two of the Yankees' minority owners, Harold Bowman and Daniel McCarthy, seeks to block Steinbrenner's removal from game. It further questions Vincent's broad powers to ''protect the best interests of baseball.''

The suit, filed in a federal court in Cleveland, asks for a temporary restraining order which would allow Steinbrenner to maintain control of the Yankees until the matter can be settled.

Steinbrenner has insisted he has not participated in the suit. In fact, Steinbrenner wrote his partners that he opposed any legal action against the commissioner's office.

The suit seeks to address two main issues. Bowman and McCarthy claim Vincent abused his powers as commissioner and led a witchhunt against Steinbrenner. They also contend, win or lose, all baseball owners should be concerned with the powers vested in the commissioner's office.

Other major league owners have distanced themselves from the Steinbrenner affair.

On the surface, it appears the lawsuit was engineered to circumvent Steinbrenner's restriction from bringing legal action against baseball or Vincent.

Aided by his lawyers during the 11-hour meeting when the agreement was hammered out, Steinbrenner agreed not to sue. Technically, Steinbrenner has not violated the agreement, though he would be in violation if he did not resign Monday.

If Steinbrenner violates the agreement by refusing to step down, he could be subject to more severe sanctions by the commissioner, including the possibility of being forced to sell the Yankees.

The minority owners met in Cleveland last week to nominate Steinbrenner's successor as general partner. However, the selection process eventually unraveled, laying the groundwork for litigation.

After Steinbrenner's 33-year-old son Hank rejected the position, the orderly transition of Yankees power lost focus.

The next nominee was Leonard Kleinman, the Yankees' executive vice president and chief operating officer, but he failed to gain Vincent's support. Vincent rejected his appointment as general partner on the grounds that Kleinman was party to the $40,000 payment made to gambler Howard Spira, the transaction which laid the groundwork for Steinbrenner's ouster.

Robert Nederlander, a New York theatrical producer and close friend of Steinbrenner, was nominated Thursday to become the Yankees' general partner. Nederlander and his brothers, James and Harry, own a combined 6 percent of the club.

The appointment remains subject to approval by 10 of the 14 American League owners and 7 of 12 National League owners, as well as Vincent.

MANAMA, Bahrain (AUG. 19) UPI - President Bush's interdiction program against Iraq faced its first challenge Sunday as two Iraqi oil tankers that already ignored U.S. warning shots were moving south through the Persian Gulf, shadowed by American warships.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, who was in the region to visit U.S. forces and Persian Gulf leaders, was monitoring the situation and talking to Washington by phone during his trip.

He became less talkative about the two Iraqi tankers during the day and refused to say what action, if any, would be taken to stop the vessels.

''After events proceed, we will to the best of our ability try to keep you informed,'' Cheney told reporters traveling with him.

Asked if Bush had backed away from his intention of using force against Iraqi ships since they apparently are still underway, Cheney answered with a curt, ''No.''

Cheney also was asked whether the issue of the approximately 3,000 Americans being held in Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait was affecting U.S. decision-making on the Iraqi ships.

''We are concerned, obviously, about the Americans held in Iraq and Kuwait. We are also concerned about vessels that might try to violate the sanctions ... but the two are unrelated,'' he said.

Cheney made the statement in Bahrain after meeting with officers and crew members of the USS LaSalle, the command ship of the U.S. Joint Task Force-Middle East, which has eight warships in the Persian Gulf, including the ship that fired the warning shots.

On the first day of Cheney's four-day trip to the region, Navy officials in the Red Sea said U.S. ships in the Persian Gulf had gone to battle stations Saturday after the frigate USS Reid had fired at least six warning shots from its 76mm cannon across the bow of an Iraqi tanker, but that the vessel would not stop.

It was later learned that two Iraqi oil tankers were involved.

Cheney, who had been visiting sailors Saturday aboard the aircraft carrier USS Eisenhower in the Red Sea, confirmed the firing when he arrived at a Saudi Arabian air base early Sunday to visit with U.S. ground and air forces.

''I am aware that in the Persian Gulf yesterday, as part of our interception operations, one of our vessels did fire warning shots near an Iraqi vessel,'' Cheney told reporters.

''At this point, the Iraqi vessels are still under surveillance. They are not close to any port or any harbor at this point. Our vessels continue to maintain that surveillance.

''I wouldn't want to speculate what happens next,'' Cheney said. ''We obviously are prepared to see to it that the sanctions that the United Nations voted and the actions that the officers of the legitimate government asked us to undertake are carried out.

''The Iraqi tankers in question that are coming down or out of the Persian Gulf continue to be under surveillance of U.S. forces,'' he said.

The tankers are believed to be loaded with oil since they are moving south away from Iraq.

Bush ordered U.S. forces late Thursday night to interdict commercial vessels with goods that are either leaving or bound for Iraq or Kuwait.

The U.N. Security Council adopted the economic embargo in response to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

In his comments to reporters in Bahrain, Cheney said the United States was working both diplomatically to seek cooperation from all nations on the sanctions and militarily to intercept ships that may be trying to break the embargo.

In his later remarks, Cheney declined to discuss specifics about the Iraqi tankers, such as their location in the Persian Gulf or whether they were loaded.

''We have under surveillance a number of vessels in the Gulf and the Red Sea that may or may not be trying to get around the sanctions,'' he said.

''The United States ... is interested in seeing to it that the sanctions are enforced. But also, if necessary, we will use U.S. military forces to carry out the instructions of the president to intercept shipping that is in violation of those sanctions,'' he said.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AUG. 19) UPI - The European Community executive is being asked this week to grant economic and environmental exemptions to East Germany as its 16 million people are incorporated into the EC.

The EC Commission, meeting on Tuesday in a rare August session, seeks to minimize the potentially staggering costs of bringing East Germany into the wealthy community once German unification is completed.

Initial estimates are said to run about $7.5 billion over the next three years, though officials are worried the pricetag could escalate due to rapid deterioration of East Germany's economy since German monetary union took effect on July 1.

Incorporation of East Germany was approved at a special April summit in Dublin by EC heads of state, who called for the EC Commission to develop a package of special transitional steps.

''The transitional measures will be confined to what is strictly necessary and aim at full integration as rapidly and as harmoniously as possible,'' said the summit conclusions.

The EC commissioners are expected to recommend the addition of 18 new seats in the European Parliament to reflect the East German population. That's the easy mathematical part.

Far more challenging is the adoption of creative new policies to deal with East Germany's severe economic, agricultural and environmental problems.

For example, East German nuclear power plants and factories that rely on filthy brown coal fall far short of EC safety and pollution standards. The commission is likely to call for phasing in such standards over several years for the territory of East Germany.

''In most cases, they will need only a little delay, only until the end of 1991, but in some cases it could be until the end of 1992 or even a little longer in a few environmental areas,'' said a West German diplomat in Brussels who has been preparing for the commission meeting.

Other areas to be addressed include the impact of East German farm surpluses on the EC's Common Agricultural Policy, and whether the EC will grant a special exemption to a tariff on products from Comecon countries entering East Germany.

''For example, until now East Germany got all its wine from Hungary and some other agricultural products all from Bulgaria,'' the West German diplomat said. ''The East European countries told the commission that they do not want to lose this commerce at this time, because they are having a very difficult time adapting to market economies.''

The commission will be considering a 500-page report prepared this summer by EC officials, many of whom were grudgingly ordered to curtail their usual four-week August holidays to pore over paperwork in Brussels.

Diplomats who have read the report said it contains reams of highly complex technical regulations but no dramatic surprises.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 19) UPI - Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, has received nearly a million dollars from business-related political action committees and Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., leads all congressional candidates in money from labor PACs, campaign documents showed Sunday.

With less than three months to go before the Nov. 6 elections, PACs of all types are pouring thousands of dollars into races to try to help mold the makeup of the next Congress. Business and labor groups contribute more than 80 percent of the total.

Gramm, who is running well ahead in his run for re-election, has received $977,612 from business-related PACs in the period from Jan. 1, 1989 through July.

Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va., who also has a fairly easy race, ranked second among recipients of business PAC money with $822,338. He was followed by Rep. Lynn Martin, R-Ill., who is challenging Simon, with $793,545 and G. Hank Brown, Republican candidate for the open Senate seat in Colorado, with $767,182.

Totals from labor PACs were not as high as from business but still were substantial.

Simon was first with $307,547, followed by Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., with $293,315 and Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, with $238,710.

The totals were compiled from reports filed by the PACs with the Federal Election Commission.

Simon also finished first among recipients of money from entitlement PACs, $20,000, and from liberal ideological groups, $44,225.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., was first among conservative groups with $21,950 and Levin among PACs promoting Israeli interests, $155,800.

In addition to getting the second highest total of business money, Rockefeller also ranked eighth among labor PACs with $174,750. Four other Democratic senators ranked in the top 15 in both business and labor PACs.

They were: Jim Exon of Nebraska, eighth in business with $735,644 and sixth in labor with $189,150; Max Baucus of Montana, ninth in business with $692,211 and seventh in labor with $186,450; Howell Heflin of Alabama 12th in business with $667,765 and 14th in labor with $120,250, and Bill Bradley of New Jersey, 14th in business with $582,872 and 15th in labor with $113,500.

Candidates for House seats received less on the average than Senate candidates but some significant sums were racked up.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., powerful chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, led all House candidates in business PAC money with $390,721.

He was followed by the two House leaders - Republican Bob Michel of Illinois with $383,305 and Democrat Richard Gephardt with $362,871. Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, was next with $276,922, followed closely by Rep. Bob Matsui, D-Calif., with $276,840.

The top three recipients of labor PAC money all ran in special elections during the Jan. 1, 1989-July 1990 period, which allowed them to collect additional money for that race.

They were: Rep. Jill Long, D-Ind., with $264,354; Rep. Glen Browder, D-Ala., with $260,941, and John Vinich, a Democrat who lost a special House race in Wyoming, with $188,300. Gephardt led all labor recipients who did not have a special election with $174,025.

Long also led in getting money form liberal ideological PACs with $53,494, followed by Rep. Jolene Unsoeld, D-Wash., with $39,738.

Rep. Ileana Ros-Lehtinen, R-Fla., who also had a special election, led in conservative PAC money with $17,624, followed by House Republican Whip Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., with $11,000.

Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., led in entitlement PAC money with $9,500 and Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., with $31,300 led from PACs promoting Isreali interests.

PARIS (AUG. 19) UPI - France, concerned over reports that French nationals have been rounded up in Kuwait and taken to an unknown location, may have ordered its warships to help enforce the U.N. embargo against Iraq, military sources said Sunday.

French officials previously had said their forces would not fire on cargo vessels bound for Iraq because such a move would constitute an ''act of war.'' U.S. naval ships have been actively enforcing the embargo, ordered by the United Nations after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The Foreign Ministry said Sunday that new guidelines had been issued to French naval forces in the gulf region. They said the orders were a military secret but indicated the instructions called for ''firmness'' in enforcing the embargo.

Military sources said the new orders allowed French naval ships to stop suspicious cargo vessels and fire warning shots, but said that presidential authorization was needed before the navy could directly attack a suspect ship.

There are a total of 3,310 French troops in the gulf region or en route on eight ships, the military sources said.

The largest part of the French flotilla - the aircraft carrier Clemenceau and two accompanying ships - were in the Red Sea Sunday after sailing through the Suez Canal with 2,421 troops.

The Foreign Ministry said earlier Sunday that 27 French nationals trapped in Kuwait and later transported to Baghdad had been moved to an ''unknown location'' in Iraq.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein said Western nationals trapped in Kuwait and Iraq would be moved to key military and economic installations to guard against attack by Western forces in the gulf.

The Foreign Ministry confirmed a report earlier Sunday by a French woman interviewed by the television network TF1, who said her husband had been part of the group.

The unidentified woman said her husband, a businessman trapped in Kuwait, had first been moved from Kuwait city to a Baghdad hotel with other French nationals.

She said a representative of the French embassy in Baghdad had been able to visit the French nationals daily until Thursday, when he saw several buses parked outside the hotel.

''An hour later, he saw the French group, along with some British and Americans, put on board the bus, which left for an unknown destination,'' the woman said.

There are an estimated 210 French nationals in Iraq and 270 in Kuwait.

LEWES, DE (AUG. 19) UPI - A Panamanian tanker and a barge carrying more than 7 million gallons of gasoline and heating oil collided in the Delaware Bay early Sunday, spilling 150,000 gallons of gas into the water, authorities said.

Because of Sunday's high temperatures, the Coast Guard said, the gas was evaporating quickly and was not expected to threaten the Delaware or New Jersey shorelines.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said, however, that a fish kill is likely.

No one was injured in the collision, which occurred about 4 miles off the Delaware shoreline about 12:45 a.m., the Coast Guard said. The barge Ocean 192, which was being pushed by the tugboat Independence, collided with the tanker Faith 1, said Cmdr. Donald Gilbert of the Coast Guard Marine Safety Office in Philadelphia.

The barge, headed from Marcus Hook, Pa., to Boston, was loaded with 7.1 million gallons of gasoline and No. 2 heating oil, Gilbert said. The collision ruptured a cargo tank in the rear of the barge, which was loaded with 600,000 gallons of gasoline.

Gilbert said about 150,000 gallons spewed into Delaware Bay, the waterway connecting Wilmington, Del., Philadelphia, Camden, N.J., and other upstream cities on the Delaware River with the Atlantic Ocean. The remaining fuel on the barge was transferred to another barge.

''Both vessels are now at Big Stone Anchorage,'' Gilbert said. ''The exact circumstances of the collision are unknown at this time, but they are under investigation.''

Authorities will let the spilled gasoline evaporate, Gilbert said.

''For gas, the safest thing is to just let it dissipate. The vapors can be highly explosive,'' he said.

The tanker sustained some hull damage to the front of the ship, but its cargo tanks were not damaged. The Faith 1 was carrying catalytic feeder stock which is used in the petroleum-refining process, and was headed to Coastal Eagle Point in New Jersey. No one was injured in the collision.

Coast Guard vessels established a large safety zone to keep ships and boats from getting too close to the gasoline spill, Gilbert said.

''That area is closed to traffic,'' Gilbert said. ''In the case of commercial traffic, we're evaluating on a case-by-case basis.''

The Cape May-Lewes ferry, which operates between the New Jersey and Delaware shores, was unaffected by the gas spill and subsequent closing of the area.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 19) UPI - President Bush, picking up a torch last raised by President Jimmy Carter, has once again called on Americans to save energy. But his own commitment to conservation - such as requiring more fuel-efficient cars - appears wishy-washy at best.

As with Carter's 1977 call for an energy conservation campaign that would be the ''moral equivalent of war,'' Bush's appeal comes amidst Mideast turbulence that has rudely reminded the United States of its heavy dependence on foreign oil by pushing up gasoline prices 15 cents a gallon within a week.

However, conservation proponents are not expecting any bold new energy efficiency policies from the administration anytime soon.

Marc Ledbetter, senior associate with the American Council for Energy-Efficient Economy, said he detected no sense of urgency about America's foreign oil addiction when he met with Energy Department officials last week to push sweeping new conservation initiatives.

''One of the underlying assumptions (among department officials) was we are not facing an energy crisis and consequently strong measures are not needed,'' Ledbetter said.

''They are not looking at anything that would be more than modest changes '' he said. ''We don't expect them to do anything significant.''

On a personal level, Bush's dedication to saving energy also appears questionable. Shortly after going on national television to urge Americans to cut back on unnecessary energy use, Bush was roaring around his oceanfront vacation home in Kennebunkport, Maine, in his huge powerboat, Fidelity, which reportedly guzzles 25 gallons of gasoline an hour.

Fortunately for Bush, the nation is better equipped to cope with oil shocks now than it was in the 1970s due to widespread energy efficiency improvements brought on by Carter's efforts and the high oil prices of the past.

The clearest evidence of the country's progress: U.S. energy consumption has increased only 8 percent since 1973 while the economy has grown by 50 percent.

The picture promises to brighten further as renewable energy sources such as solar, wind and geothermal power become cheaper and more cost-competitive.

The bad news is the drive for greater efficiency has virtually disappeared in the last two years, even though the nation still uses twice as much energy to produce a dollar's worth of goods as Europe and Japan.

Worse, declining domestic oil production and enticingly low oil prices during the 1980s revived the American appetite for foreign imports and sent the country back to the bad old days of the late 1970s.

The United States now imports 8.4 million barrels a day - approaching the 1979 level of 8.5 million barrels a day. Foreign oil supplied a record 50 percent of U.S. demand in the first half of 1990, with 25 percent coming from the Middle East.

When faced with his energy crisis, Carter launched a crash national program to reduce oil use and develop synthetic fuels derived from domestic resources such as coal and oil shale. The effort had mixed success, with real strides being made in conservation while synfuels flopped because of high cost.

But with the nation now re-entering the danger zone, Bush has done little to encourage conservation or alternative energy sources. To date, his Energy Department has put forward only a few minor initiatives to promote more efficient lighting and building insulation codes, accelerate the commercialization of solar energy and expand hydropower.

While administration officials touted it as a ''major initiative,'' Ledbetter said, ''I think it was a fairly small package that was not nearly as bold as the way it was sold. The package was not aggressive.''

The one Bush proposal that could have greatly reduced in U.S. oil consumption - mass production of cars that could run on natural gas or grain alcohol - was largely abandoned by the administration in the face of strong opposition by the influential Big Oil and Big Auto lobbies.

At the same time, the administration has resisted efforts in Congress to raise fuel economy requirements for new cars to 40 miles per gallon by the year 2000.

That legislation, likely to be taken up by the Senate this fall, could reduce U.S. oil demand by 2.8 million barrels per day - one-third of current oil imports.

NEW YORK (AUG. 19) UPI - Three youths convicted of raping and brutally beating a female jogger in Central Park spent Sunday at the Rikers Island jail as supporters of the teens criticized a judge's decision to revoke bail in the case.

Yusef Salaam, 16, Antron McCray, 16, and Raymond Santana, 15, were found guilty Saturday of rape, assault and a series of lesser charges in the April 19, 1989, attack on the jogger. But the trio was cleared of attempted murder, the most serious charge against them.

McCray's father, Bobby McCray, Sunday knocked down television and radio equipment outside his Harlem apartment building as reporters gathered for a news conference by the Rev. Al Sharpton, who has been a family adviser.

The flamboyant minister said the elder McCray was ''very upset his son is on Rikers'' and criticized Justice Thomas Galligan's decision to revoke bail for Salaam and McCray. Santana has been unable to make bail.

Sharpton said holding the three on Rikers represented a ''double standard'' for black defendants because tax cheat Leona Helmsley and the Howard Beach racial killers were allowed to remain free on bail after their convictions pending appeals.

Sharpton said the McCray family would use bail money to fund an appeal.

The three youths face five to 10 years in prison when they are sentenced Sept. 11.

The three were part of a gang of about 30 teenagers who entered moonlit Central Park on April 19, 1989, with plans to go ''wilding'' - randomly beating and mugging passers-by.

During the two-hour rampage, the gang attacked a homeless man, a couple on a tandem bicycle and a male bicyclist before attacking the woman jogger, who was beaten, reportedly raped and left for dead.

The trial was the first in a series for six youths indicted in the attack. The others will go to trial at a later date.

Howard Diller, a lawyer for one of the remaining defendants, Kevin Richardson, said he was ''distressed'' the judge would not let the defendants remain free.

He said the three teens ''should have been enjoying the full benefits of our legal system,'' especially in light of what he called their ''good track record.''

Colin Moore, the lawyer for Kharey Wise, who is awaiting a separate trial for rape and attempted murder of the jogger, called Saturday's verdict ''a travesty of justice.''

''I think it was a compromise verdict,'' he said, noting the trio was cleared of the attempted murder charge. ''It was not a logical verdict.

''I think the jurors were obviously correct in exonerating the defendants on attempted murder, because there was no intent.''

But, he said, ''The jurors should have displayed courage and exonerated them of rape. There was no evidence, therefore there was no crime.''

He said there were ''extensive DNA tests and none connected'' the defendants to the victim.

If sentenced to jail time, the three teens would be held in a juvenile detention center until age 18, then transferred to an adult prison to finish the sentence.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (AUG. 19) UPI - President Bush interrupted his three-week vacation in Maine for a second time Sunday to head back to Washington to meet with national security advisers about the escalating crisis in the Persian Gulf.

Bush was to return to the White House from his seaside home in Kennebunkport at 5:30 p.m. for a dinner meeting an hour later with senior aides.

One of the most perplexing problems confronting the president is the fate of an estimated 3,000 Americans trapped in Kuwait and Iraq.

Bush, looking subdued as he left St. Ann's Episcopal Church in Kennebunkport early Sunday, ignored a question by a reporter about Ambassador Thomas Pickering's use of the word ''hostage'' at the U.N. late Saturday to describe those held by Baghdad.

Bush interrupted his working vacation last week for a 21-hour visit to Washington where he conferred with aides, held a news conference and received a Pentagon briefing.

Bush was to meet at the White House Monday with economic and energy advisers, and then go to Baltimore for a previously scheduled address to the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Aides said Bush was likely to focus his remarks to the veterans on his showdown in the oil-rich gulf with Iraq's Saddam Hussein.

During Sunday's church service at St. Ann's Episcopal Church, the Rev. Laman Bruner asked the congregation to pray with him that God would ''uphold the hand of our president ... in the Middle East'' and would protect those held against their will.

Following Bush's address to the VFW Monday, he was to attend a GOP fundraiser in Rhode Island, and then return to Kennebunkport.

(AUG. 19) UPI - Saudi Arabia television reports an alleged suicide mission against Iraqis in Kuwait that killed many soldiers. The Saudi report- quoting Kuwaiti Radio- says a so-called ''resistance hero'' drove a car loaded with explosives at a hospital in Kuwait City being used by Iraqi soldiers... and killed many of them. Further details were NOT available.

Iraq has issued a new order for all Westerners in occupied Kuwait to assemble at three hotels. Baghdad warns that if they fail to comply, their governments will bear ''full responsibility for the consequences.'' Baghdad Radio says the measure is ''to guarantee their safety.'' An estimated 25-hundred American citizens are in Kuwait, and another 500 in Iraq.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said there is NO change in U-S policy toward Iraq. The government has NOT asked U-S citizens to comply with the various Iraqi demands. The White House says President Bush is ''deeply concerned'' about the latest Iraqi threats to relocate Americans and other foreigners trapped in Iraq and Kuwait, and to withhold adequate food from them.

The first casualty of the U-S deployment in Saudi Arabia was eulogized yesterday as a ''peacemaker'' who died ''so children may NEVER have to fight in a war.'' Air Force Staff Sergeant John Campisi of West Covina, California, was killed one week ago today when he was hit by a truck on a darkened runway in Saudi Arabia. Covina is the father of four young children.

(AUG. 19) UPI - The Philippine armed forces are on full alert today in the wake of new violence that comes amid threats of another possible coup attempt against President Aquino. Authorities report four bombings last night and early this morning in Manila. Officials also say armed men shot and killed a police officer last night as he was riding his motorcycle home in Quezon City, a suburb of Manila.

Three New York teen-agers face five to 10 years in prison after being found guilty yesterday of beating and gang-raping a female investment banker while she was jogging last year through Central Park. The youths will be sentenced September 11th. Their lawyers say they're considering appealing the convictions. Three other youths indicted in the case are to be tried later.

Officials say an inmate hospitalized after last week's bloody riot in New York's Rikers Island prison complex died yesterday. Authorities are investigating whether the death of 36-year-old Steven Glover was caused by injuries from an alleged retaliatory beating by guards. Another inmate was found dead in his cell after the clash, but his death was ascribed to a heart attack.

LONDON (AUG. 19) UPI - Britain urged its citizens in Iraq and Kuwait Sunday to stay indoors and keep ''a low profile,'' but not to resist if Iraqi authorities come to round them up.

The advisory by the Foreign Office came a day after a group of 50 foreign nationals, including 40 Britons, five Americans, four Germans and one Frenchman, were taken from Kuwait hotels and checkpoints to unknown destinations. The roundup was followed Sunday by Iraqi orders for all Westerners to report to three hotels in Kuwait.

A Foreign Office spokesman said he had no further information on the whereabouts of the group, who were detained after Iraq declared Friday it would play ''host'' to Westerners in Kuwait and Iraq until the threat of war was over.

''The British government views these actions with the very gravest concern. It will bring the greatest possible pressure to bear on the Iraqi government to reverse them,'' the Foreign Office said in a message broadcast on the British Broadcasting Corp. World Service.

The Foreign Office advised some 4,700 Britons in Kuwait and Iraq to ''stay at home and maintain a low profile.'' But if Iraqi authorities tried to detain them they should not offer resistance.

Iraq told foreigners Sunday to report to three hotels in Kuwait and warned that anyone ''who does not respond to this call, he and his government should shoulder full responsibility towards the grave consequences that may be committed by hostile elements.''

The Foreign Office, after receiving clarification of the order from Iraq through the British embassy in Kuwait, said: ''The Iraqis have said that those who report to the hotels as instructed will be transferred to what are described as key installations in Kuwait and Iraq.''

''Those who do not report to the hotels will be rounded up and taken direct to the sites,'' the Foreign Office said.

Meanwhile, several Britons who managed to flee from Kuwait to Saudi Arabia arrived at London's Gatwick Airport.

Among the escapees was Jennie King, 28, who dyed her fair hair dark and dressed as a Bedouin Arab to make the desert escape in a four-wheel vehicle. King said she and others in Kuwait had huddled around their raen like,'' a tearful King told the BBC. ''The BBC World Service has been our only link with the outside world. Everyone knows the theme tune to that radio program extremely well now and every single word is dissected until the next hour's bulletin.''

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AUG. 19) UPI - In the intense heat of the desert, soldiers cannot run very far, least of all into battle, and Saudi Arabia's unforgiving environment has made water the vital fuel of both the U.S. military machine and its multi-billion-dollar weaponry.

A massive logistical operation is underway in the sun-blasted deserts to quench the thirst of the military men and women whose mission is to counter the moves of Iraq's Saddam Hussein.

''I've been here about 20 minutes and I've already drunk half a canteen,'' gasped a dazed and blinking U.S. Marine named John, following a 26-hour flight from the United States.

U.S. troops assembling for deployment cradle their M-16 assault rifles in one hand and large plastic drink bottles in the other. Platoon leaders bark out orders for their men to drink at least a quart of fluids an hour, required to replace water lost in constant sweating.

Noon temperatures under hazy-blue skies usually level off at about 115 degrees, an oven-like atmosphere enhanced by thick humidity created by the nearby gulf.

The daily inferno conspires with sandstorms and dust that seems capable of getting into anything, making machinery maintainence a never-ending task.

Soldiers occupy vehicles on which an egg can easily be fried in the midday sun.

''First of all I vomited, and then I had stomach cramps and no energy,'' Sam, a trooper from Puerto Rico, said of his experience of heat fatigue. ''But then they re-energized me, and I was ready to go again.''

American medical personnel at one air base daily treat between 15 and 30 soldiers for heat exhaustion inside a 50-bed, fully air-conditioned tent.

On a recent visit to the MASH-type facility, one trooper lay quietly on a stretcher, a saline drip inserted in his arm as he rested under the cool breeze of a fan.

His mistake had been to keep working without drinking; the effect was swift and crushing.

Maj. Richard Williams, commander of the field hospital, said all heat-related ailments so far have been minor, requiring only swift rehydration. But serious water shortage could lead to a heat stroke, which could in turn lead to brain damage.

''The order is drink, drink, drink,'' Williams said. ''The sun is just as hot for everybody. (The Iraqis) have been living in it, but in a couple of weeks we will acclimatize.''

Many of the soldiers have trained in similar conditions in the deserts of Nevada and Califronia, but the possibility that the American military presence in Saudi Arabia could be a protracted stalemate has made longterm water supplies vital.

U.S. military authorities plan to fly in massive ice-making machines to supplement Dhahran's over-stressed factory, whose daily output of 6,000 pounds is swiftly consumed.

U.S. officials said experts have checked local water supplies for chemical and bacterial content at key staging areas in the unpopulated border areas along Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, where most U.S. troops will be deployed.

Water tankers have been given as key a place in the military airlift as armor and weaponry to ensure that GI throats aren't parched.

For most U.S. personnel, it's simply a matter of adjusting to an unremitting daily bout with heat and dust.

''The tide just ain't coming in,'' said a staff sergeant named Sean, kicking the sand as he mused about his home in Hawaii. ''But we're certainly going to get a good suntan.''

NEW YORK (AUG. 19) UPI - Cash-strapped developer Donald Trump was scheduled to appear in a Manhattan courtroom Monday to answer a complaint filed by his estranged wife, Ivana, who is seeking a larger chunk of his fortune.

Justice Phyllis Gangel-Jacobs of the state Supreme Court in Manhattan recently ruled the real estate mogul could be questioned by Ivana's attorneys about his alleged relationship with model Marla Maples.

The judge even said there were possible Trump ''concealments'' - or hidden assets - that should be considered at trial.

Ivana Trump brought her husband to court over an agreement they signed on Christmas Eve 1987 that would award Ivana $25 milllion and certain properties should the couple separate.

Ivana's lawyers say she is entitled to a larger share of her husband's fortune, even though Trump's attorney, Jay Goldberg, calls the agreement rock solid.

Ivana Trump's attorney, Michael Kennedy, claims the deal was fraudulently obtained.

The lawyer said the document was obtained by Trump as he pledged his love under false pretenses - while he was dating Maples on the side.

Kennedy said that if his client knew of any extramarital affair she would not have signed the agreement.

Since the couple's separation earlier this year, Trump's fortunes have taken a few turns for the worse, as he failed to meet a deadline to make interest payments on bonds that financed one of his New Jersey casinos.

The New Jersey Casino Control Commission said it will rule Tuesday on Trump's plan plan to meet interest payments on more than $1 billion of his debt with a $65 million emergency loan.

If the plan is rejected he would have to surrender his interest in three casinos and, according to his attorneys, be forced into bankruptcy.

He previously made a deal with 70 banks to handle delayed debt deadlines to help him through his cash flow crunch, which hit just prior to the unveiling of his latest prize, the Taj Mahal casino in Atlantic City.

(AUG. 19) UPI - The State Department says it doesN'T expect Americans in Kuwait to comply with an Iraqi demand aimed at constructing a human shield against U-S attack. Iraq warned that any Westerners who fail to report to three hotels in Kuwait will face ''grave consequences.'' America's U-N Ambassador Thomas Pickering says Iraq's plans to hold the Americans at military installations makes it clear that they will be hostages.

The U-S airline industry is feeling the pressure caused by the Persian Gulf crisis. The nation's carriers are dealing with problems ranging from rising fuel prices to military demands for their pilots and planes. Airlines are being asked to provide planes under the never implemented Civil Reserve Air Fleet program. Many airline pilots are members of the military reserve who have been called up for active duty.

A black Memphis minister is inviting dissatisfied members of the predominantly white Southern Baptist Convention to join his group. Southern Baptist moderates have been pitted against fundamentalists in a decade-long battle for control of the church group. The Reverend Fred Lofton says the fight is ''pathetic'' and moderates are welcome to join the mostly black Progressive Baptists.

Yugoslavia's Serbian minority is going to the polls today to vote on a

(AUG. 20) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein announced Sunday that nationals from five European countries would be permitted to leave Iraq and said he would release other Western foreigners if the United Nations promised that U.S. troops would pull out of the region.

Barring that, Saddam said he would accept a ''commitment and a clear written pledge'' from President Bush that he will withdraw U.S. troops from the Persian Gulf and Saudi Arabia as fast as they were dispatched there.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater dismissed the offer to free the foreigners as an example of the ''daily seminar of Iraqi ridicule.''

''It doesn't improve the prospects for resolving the crisis,'' he said aboard Air Force One on a trip from Kennebunkport, Maine, to Washington with President Bush.

Iraq, meanwhile, appeared to be moving to set up its human shield of foreigners, reportedly busing French, U.S. and British nationals from a Baghdad hotel to an unknown location.

Continued international outrage failed to deter Iraq from taking steps to implement its stated intention to place foreigners at key economic and military sites to guard against attack from Western forces.

Iraq ordered U.S., British, Australian and other Western nationals in Kuwait to congregate at three hotels in Kuwait City, an order first issued last week but never enforced.

''One who does not respond to this call, he and his government should shoulder full responsibility towards the grave consequences that may be committed by hostile elements,'' the Iraqi Foreign Ministry warned in a statement Sunday.

A group of 50 foreigners - 40 Britons, five Americans, four Germans and one French - were taken Saturday from Kuwaiti hotels and checkpoints to undisclosed locations, British officials said.

An unidentified woman told French television that her husband was among the group. The French Foreign Ministry confirmed that a French Embassy representative witnessed the incident.

Thirty-five Americans found shelter from the Iraqi roundup by hiding out in diplomatic headquarters, CBS News reported. ''We're not going to allow our people to be just simply herded up like sheep and made to go places against their will without trying to help,'' said Joe Wilson IV, the U.S. charge d'Affaires in Baghdad.

The United States and Britain said they remained determined to enforce U.N. economic sanctions imposed against Iraq following its Aug. 2 invasion of tiny Kuwait. The U.N. Security Council voted Saturday to demand that Iraq allow foreigners to leave. The council's five permanent members met Sunday to consider stronger sanctions against Iraq.

There are an estimated 20,000 Westerners in Iraq and Kuwait, including approximately 3,000 Americans and 4,500 Britons.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, in Saudi Arabia touring military bases, told Pentagon pool reporters that U.S. warships were shadowing two Iraqi tankers that failed to stop Saturday when warning shots were fired across their bows.

''We want to give them every opportunity to turn around and change course '' Fitzwater said.

It was not clear whether the U.S. warships would attack the tankers if they attempted to unload their shipments of oil. Military sources told the pool that the Navy may attempt to shoot at the rudders of the ships and disable them.

The Sudanese government complained U.S. warships and planes had intercepted a cargo ship on its way to the Red Sea port of Aqaba to pick up 500 Sudanese nationals who had fled from Kuwait to Jordan.

France, concerned over reports 27 French nationals were among those bused from the Baghdad hotel to an unknown location, may have ordered its ships in the region to join in the enforcement of the embargo, military sources said.

Previously, France had maintained that to fire at Iraqi cargo vessels would be an act of war.

(AUG. 20) UPI - DIGEST:

Baseball

Pitcher Chien Fu Kuo Lee of Chinese Taipei was honored as Most Valuable Player in the World Baseball Championships. Six of the 12 players named to the all-star team were from Cuba. Brent Gates was chosen as team MVP for the United States, although no U.S. player made the all-star squad.

Cycling

Charles Mottet outsprinted three perennial rivals Sunday to become the first-ever Frenchman to win the Championship of Zurich World Cup race. Mottet covered the 240 kilometers (149.16 miles) in 6 hours, 7 minutes, 8 seconds, averaging 39.228 kph. Mottet and reigning World Champion Greg LeMond were accompanied by Italian Claudio Chiapucci and Spaniard Marino Lajerreta. As they neared the finish line LeMond shot past Chiapucci but was overtaken by Mottet in the last few meters, giving the Frenchman the win by the narrowest of margins.

Rugby

The Australian club, Wallabies, defeated the New Zealand All Blacks to bring to an end a streak of 50 consecutive match victories by the New Zealanders, including 23 international matches, dating back to 1986.

Swimming

The World Championships, to be held in Perth, Australia in January 1991, will see the first appearance of a single German team. An agreement was reached after East German swimming association (DSSV) chairman Wilfried Windorf told representatives of West Germany's swimming associations (DSV) led by chairman Bodo Hollmann, that the regional swimming associations of East Germany will apply for integration with the DSV in September.

Track and Field

A record number of nations have confirmed they will be sending teams to the 15th European Track and Field Championships set to start Aug. 27, in Split, Yugoslavia. Antun Vrdoljak, chairman of the organizing committee confirmed that applications are in from 34 nations - five more than competed at the last European Championships at Stuttgart, West Germany, four years ago. He said they were expecting more to arrive between now and when the championships started.

SAN ANTONIO DE BELEN, COSTA RICA (AUG. 20) UPI - Peace talks between the Salvadoran government and leftist rebels hit a virtual standstill Sunday as the government refused to talk about institutional changes in the armed forces.

Francisco Mena Sandoval, a former army captain and now a commander of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, known as the FMLN, also questioned the ''moral authority'' of Col. Mauricio Vargas, the army's representative, to participate in the talks.

Vargas responded by saying, ''Mr. Mena Sandoval does not have the authority to question me about anything.''

Sunday was the third day of talks at a resort hotel in San Antonio de Belen, about 8 miles outside the Costa Rican capital of San Jose.

The talks centered on changes in the Salvadoran military, but the sides appeared further apart than at previous negotiating sessions, which are aimed at ending the decade-old war that has claimed more than 72,000 lives.

''The position of the government will not allow a single solution to the armed conflict,'' Mena said. ''The negotiations have one key - the armed forces as an institution.''

Vargas, however, said: ''We reject any type of debate over the army as an institution. We accept methods and procedures and are subject to perfections. I am not going to enter into a propoganda war with the FMLN.''

Vargas said the talks were moving ''slowly but surely,'' but indicated he did not expect any agreement over changes in the army. ''At the end, we can only hope that our words will be put into something concrete that will further the peace process.''

The FMLN put a new proposal on the table Friday that demanded the elimination of the internal security forces such as the civil guard and a promise by the government for the eventual elimination of the entire armed forces, before the rebels will agree to a cease-fire.

The proposal is much more extreme than former proposals in which the FMLN has asked for reductions in the army, the dismissal of many top officers and other changes, such as the end of miliatry control over public services.

U.N. representative Alvaro de Soto, who mediated the talks - the fourth round since May and the second in a row to be held in Costa Rica - said the new rebel position ''seem extreme but they don't necessarily have the effect of radicalizing their position.''

He said the proposal was more a political move, and added ''I think the negotiations are progressing, but they are progressing over the most difficult theme - the armed forces.''

Mena defended the harsher line, saying ''the army has pushed us to be like this.''

Asked if the harsher stance was to further the rebels' position in the event of a U.N.-devised, middle-of-the-road proposal, Mena said the FMLN was continuing to insist that any cease-fire proposal be negotiated by both sides, with the United Nations acting only as a mediator.

Rumours of a new rebel offensive this fall have clouded the talks, and many observers say the FMLN is waiting to apply military pressure on the army to strengthen their position before continuing seriously in the negotiations.

Both sides, however, are wary that their good faith in the talks will be determining factor in any further U.S. aid to the Salvadoran military.

De Soto said the United Nations would be reluctant to form a human rights panel before a cease-fire. ''The existence of a cease-fire allows us to assure whether conditions exist to carry out a verification,'' he said.

''Without such an arrangement, it would be far more difficult'' because of danger to U.N. officials.

He also said he would be willing to put up a middle-of-the-road proposal ''if both sides agree to it.''

NEW YORK (AUG. 19) UPI - Stephen E. Smith, brother-in-law and former campaign manager of President John F. Kennedy, died early Sunday at his Manhattan home after a long illness, a Kennedy family spokesman said. He was 62.

Smith, the husband of Jean Kennedy Smith, had managed JFK's 1960 presidential campaign and served as a financial adviser to members of America's most famous family. He was also active in the development in Boston's John F. Kennedy Library.

Family members, including Mrs. Smith and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., were with him when he died, said Kennedy spokesman Ed Martin. The nature of the illness was not disclosed.

''For 34 years, from the day he married Jean, Steve was like a brother in our family,'' Kennedy said. ''He was the wisest adviser and the most skillful campaign manager and the best friend that any of us ever had.

''There wouldn't have been a Camelot without Steve Smith,'' Kennedy said.

Besides his wife, Smith is survived by two sons, William and Stephen E. Jr., and two daughers, Amanda and Kym.

A wake was to be held Monday evening at the Frank E. Campbell Funeral Home in Manhattan, funeral director Paul Horvath said. A funeral mass to be said Tuesday at St. Thomas Moore Church.

(AUG. 19) UPI - Iraq says it will let some Westerners leave, but that does NOT include the estimated three-thousand Americans stuck in Iraq and Kuwait. Saddam Hussein says the announcement involves an undetermined number of citizens from five European nations that have NOT sent troops or weapons to the gulf region.

The Americans trapped by Iraq will likely be a major topic of conversation during a dinner at the White House tonight. President Bush is interrupting his three-week vacation in Maine to return to Washington. Bush plans to dine with national security advers to discuss the escalating gulf crisis.

The Hartford Courant says a scientist who worked on the Hubble Space Telescope retired a year early in part because his company refused to run more tests on the costly telescope. The newspaper says Perkin-Elmer Corporation voted against the tests to save time and money. The one-and-a-half-BILLION-dollar telescope is now NOT focusing properly.

Hospital patients and senior citizens have been evacuated from an area of north central Indiana because of concern that a dam might break under heavy rain. Fulton County Sheriff officials at Rochester predict six-foot floodwaters if the dam at Lake Manitous does NOT hold.

East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere says the Social Democratic Party is ''evading responsibilities'' by breaking with the government. De Maiziere also says ''there was NO reason'' for today's party decision to leave the coalition government. The move threatens the timetable for German unity.

HONG KONG (AUG. 20) UPI - Five U.S. warships in an amphibious unit attached to the 7th Fleet left Hong Kong Monday for deployment in the turbulent Middle East, a spokesman said.

The five ships, whose home base is San Diego, arrived in the British colony Wednesday and the approximately 4,450 sailors and marines aboard enjoyed five days of liberty before setting out for their mission.

A spokesman at the U.S. Consulate in Hong Kong said the ships were scheduled ''for eventual deployment in the area of conflict in the Middle East.'' It made no mention of whether they would participate in the U.S. interdiction of Iraqi ships, prompted by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The ships were the Okinawa, an amphibious assault craft; the USS Durham, an amphibious cargo ship, the USS Ogden, an amphibious transport craft, the USS Fort McHenry, a dock landing ship, and the USS Cayuga, an amphibious transport ship.

(AUG. 19) UPI - Military sources in the Persian Gulf region say France may have ordered its ships to join in the enforcement of the U-N-embargo against Iraq. The Paris government has maintained that firing at an Iraqi vessel would be an act of war. But France may have changed its stance following reports that 27 French nationals were among those bused from a Baghdad hotel to an unknown location.

Baghdad had word today for relatives worried about foreigners trapped in Kuwait and Iraq. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein says nationals from five European nations that have NOT sent arms or troops to the region will be allowed out. As for other foreigners, Iraq reportedly moved today in setting up its promised human shield of foreigners to guard against U-S attack.

South Africa says police and army units have inundated strife-torn areas in and around the nation's largest black township... but have failed to stop tribal-style fighting. Factional battles flared again today, pushing the death toll in the seventh day of fighting close to 300. Police say at least 11-hundred people have been injured in the battles between Zulu supporters and rivals of the African National Congress.

Officials at the Pasadena Jet Propulsion Laboratory say they are impressed by the quality of data collected by the Magellan Venus probe so far. Magellan science manager Tommy Thompson told reporters today that images transmitted to Earth from the Venus-orbiting craft are much better than had been anticipated. The images, which are computer generated from radar beams, will be made public Tuesday.

(AUG. 19) UPI - The White House has dismissed a proposal by Iraq that Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein said would have led to the freedom of Westerners detained in Iraq. Saddam said he'd allow the Westerners to leave his country after gaining assurances that U-S forces would withdraw from the Middle East. Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitwater said Saddam's offer ''doesN'T improve the prospects for resolving the crisis.''

It appears as if the Bush administration is delaying military action to enforce sanctions against Iraq. Defense Secretary Cheney confirmed one of two reports report of a U-S warship firing a warning shot at an Iraqi oil tanker yesterday. But both Iraqi vessels maintained their course through the Persian Gulf without further U-S action. An administration source implied that further U-S action is on hold as the U-N Security Council considers enforcing the embargo.

Three conservative parties remain in East Germany's four-month-old coalition goverment after today's pullout by the Social Democratic Party. The gas spewed after the collision of a Panamanian tanker and a barge.

(AUG. 19) UPI - President Bush is spending the night at the White House, with his vacation interrupted a second time by the mounting tension in the Persian Gulf.

Bush left his coastal Maine home this afternoon in order to dine with his national security advisers in Washington tonight. One aide describes the meal and conversation as a ''status review meeting.''

But crisis is NOT the only factor in Bush's trip to Washington. It is also proving convenient, since Bush was already due in nearby Baltimore tomorrow to address the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Bush has scheduled meetings tomorrow morning on the energy and economic implications of the gulf crisis before his speech to the V-F-W. He returns to Kennebunkport tomorrow afternoon after a G-O-P fund-raiser in Rhode Island.

Bush's return comes as the Pentagon awaits his order to mobilize military reservists to add to the massive deployment of U-S forces in Saudi Arabia.

Scientists with the Magellan Venus probe project spent the day shifting through reams of data in Pasadena, California.

Engineers are trying to figure out what caused the probe to lose contact with Earth for more than 14 hours before re-establishing contact last week.

Initial results indicate that three apparently unrelated problems caused the blackout. Scientists are optimistic that they can prevent it from happening again.

Despite the trouble, project officials scheduled a news conference Tuesday to release the first radar pictures from Magellan. Magellan science manager Tommy Thompson is NOT discussing them, saying only- ''we got something exciting.''

But other officials say the images show volcanos and lava flows... things usually hidden from view by clouds that blanket Venus.

The probe's 551-Million-dollar 243-day mission is designed to map at least 90 percent of the planet's surface.

(AUG. 19) UPI - Attempts by South African police and army troops to stop a week of factional fighting is failing. The death toll has risen to nearly 300.

Police and troops moved into Soweto in force yesterday, using rubber bullets, tear gas and birdshot in feeble attempts to stop the widespread conflict.

The tribal-style fighting spilled into Soweto from a cluster of three townships east of Johannesburg three days ago. Since then, the nation's largest black township has seen the worst violence.

Witnesses say two groups clashed early today on one of Soweto's dirt highways, leaving the wounded screaming for aid.

Other residents say they saw a roving mob grab a man suspected of belonging to a rival faction, and club him senseless before setting him on fire.

The fighting has involved mostly hand-to-hand battles between Zulu supporters and rivals of the African National Congress movement.

A deluge in Indiana threatening a dam today has led officials to evacuate a hospital and a senior citizens center.

Water is spilling from Lake Manitou in the north central part of the Hoosier state. If the dam does NOT hold... officials estimate that six-foot floodwaters will occur within about 30 minutes after the dam's failure.

The sheriff's department at Rochester evacuated 28 patients from Woodlawn Hospital and about 50 residents from a senior citizens center... ironically named Waterhaven.

But a similar scare in western Wisconsin has eased. About 15-hundred people returned to their homes in the town of Tomah... where a threat of dam breakage yesterday caused their evacuation.

The town fire chief says Tomah Lake has receded about two feet... after flooding 250 homes and causing about three-Million-dollars worth of damage.

However... parts of Wisconsin continued to get heavy rains and tornadoes today. Rain also flooded low-lying parts of Ohio.

In addition.. dime-size hail and winds gusting between 60 and 70 miles-an-hour were reported in the Texas Panhandle and central Oklahoma.

Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein said detained Westerners would be free to go if U-S troops left the region.

Despite international condemnation, Iraq appeared to be UNdeterred from using British, American, Australian and other Western nationals to form a shield around key Iraqi installations. Saddam is said to have rounded up a group of Western nationals yesterday.

The White House says it plans to enforce sanctions against Iraq despite the refusal of a pair of Iraqi tankers to heed warning shots from U-S warships. The American vessels are keeping an eye on the Iraqi ships. The Bush administration says its concern is that the vessels- ''not offload.''

South African officials say police and army troops have been largely ineffective in efforts to stem bloodshed between rival black groups. Authorities say seven days of intra-racial fighting has left nearly 300 people dead and another 11-hundred injured.

(AUG. 19) UPI - Peace talks between Salvadoran rebels and government negotiators bogged down today in Costa Rica. In an interview published today Bond says few people ever will be as charismatic as the late Martin Luther King Junior. But Bond says even during the 1960's, King was NOT the only leader. The former state senator from Georgia says he thinks there is- in his words- ''abundant leadership potential out there.''

Afghan rebels have NOT commented on radio reports today that credit the guerrillas with killing six civilians in Kabul in a rocket attack. The report said U-S-backed rebels based west of the capital fired into residential sections of the city. For the past year, guerrillas have bombarded the capital almost daily. Despite surviving the rebel attacks, a source says the Moscow-backed government is concerned about the proximity of the rebels.

Israeli officials have detained a Jordanian soldier for questioning after he and a fellow soldier crossed the Jewish state's border earlier today. An Israeli border patrol confronted the pair and killed one soldier while slightly wounding the detained man. Israeli defense officials say the incident is isolated and NOT related to growing tensions in the region.

CLEVELAND, OHIO (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - LDI Corporation (NASDAQ: LDIC) today announced that it expects second quarter financial results for the three months ended July 31, 1990, to be above last year's second quarter in revenues, net earnings, and earnings per share, and to be in line with analysts' expectations. Actual results are expected to be released in early September.

''Despite the unfavorable earnings comparisons of others in the computer and high-tech equipment leasing businesses, we foresee continuing strength in our earnings picture,'' said Robert S. Kendall, LDI chairman and chief executive officer. ''Our diversification strategy and conservative financial approach continue to serve us well.''

''These factors, combined with our strong balance sheet, should continue to help insulate LDI from the adversity that is affecting others in the industry. In addition, all major segments of our business have maintained good performance levels,'' Kendall said.

LDI Corporation, with headquarters in Cleveland, leases and sells a full range of new and used data processing equipment, telecommunications and other high-technology equipment, and provides maintenance, disaster recovery, technical support and related services. The Company's products include mainframe and mid-range central processing equipment and peripheral devices, as well as personal computers, telecommunications equipment, computerized medical diagnostic systems, and selected capital equipment. LDI is also an active dealer in the secondary market for used data processing, telecommunications and related equipment.

BROOMFIELD, CO (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Hathaway Corp. Monday announced that it achieved a net profit from continuing operations of $13,000 for its fiscal year ended June 30, 1990 compared with a net loss from continuing operations of $1,320,000, or 32 cents per share, last year.

Revenues for 1990 were $51,302,000, a record for the tenth consecutive year, compared with $48,098,000 last year, or a 5 percent increase. The company had a net loss for 1990 of $465,000, or 11 cents per share, compared with a loss of $1,397,000, or 34 cents per share for last year.

The company discontinued the operations of Inlab Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary, resulting in a loss from discontinued operations of $478,000, or 11 cents per share, in 1990. Last year, discontinued operations included the earnings and a gain of $200,000, or 5 cents per share, from the sale of the net assets of First Centennial Leasing Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of Hathaway, sold March 31, 1989, which was offset by Inlab's $277,000 net loss, or 7 cents per share, from last year's operations.

Eugene E. Prince, chairman and chief executive officer, stated, ''$346,000 was written off in 1990 to restructure the motion control group. Our future emphasis will be focused on the encoder and motion control systems business with the encoder business using the latest fiber optic technology and the motion control business using our advanced brushless motor technology.

''All encoder related motors are being transferred into the encoder operations in Chatsworth, Calif., and we are discontinuing the highly competitive OEM motor business.''

Revenues were $14,089,000 for the fourth quarter ended June 30, 1990 compared with $11,355,000 last year. The company had a net profit from continuing operations of $299,000, or 7 cents per share, compared with a net loss from continuing operations of $865,000, or 21 cents per share, last year.

A net profit of $67,000, or 2 cents per share, was achieved compared with last year's net loss of $910,000, or 22 cents per share.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Sherman L. Andelson, chairman of the board of BKLA Bancorp, (NASDAQ/OTC:BKLA) Monday announced that BKLA Bancorp and its subsidiary Bank of Los Angeles have selected Mark E. Buchman as their new president and chief executive officer.

He will succeed Gerald S. Weisstein, who has resigned to pursue other professional interests in the banking industry.

Buchman's selection is subject to regulatory approval. During this brief transition period, board chairman Sherman L. Andelson will act as chief executive officer and Buchman will be employed in a consulting capacity to the West Hollywood, Calif.-based bank.

With 26 years of banking experience, Buchman was most recently president of the Government National Mortgage Association (Ginnie Mae) during the second term of the Reagan administration.

Prior to that, from 1982 to 1987, he was executive vice president of Union Bank in Los Angeles, having earlier spent 20 years with Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. He is also a past president of the California Bankers Association.

Weisstein, 51, joined Bank of Los Angeles as president and chief executive officer in 1985. During his tenure, he assembled and led a strong management team.

Before Bank of Los Angeles, Weisstein was president and chief executive officer of Olympic National Bank in Los Angeles. He previously held executive posts at Imperial Bank in Los Angeles and at Union Bank.

''Mr. Weisstein's professionalism and his leadership will be missed by the company's board,'' noted BKLA Chairman Andelson. ''We all wish him well in his future endeavors.'' Said Weisstein, ''While I am leaving an organization that has given me many personal and professional friendships, I am looking forward to new challenges in the banking industry.''

Founded in 1982, the bank markets business and retail financial products from its regional offices in West Hollywood, Beverly Hills and Hollywood.

NEWBURY PARK, CALIF. (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Semtech Corp. (ASE:SMH) Monday announced that it has signed a letter of intent with Lambda Electronics Inc. to purchase the assets of its division, Lambda Semiconductors, located in Corpus Christi, Texas, and Reynosa, Mexico.

Consummation of the transaction is conditional upon the execution of a definitive agreement. The company said that it expects to complete the purchase within the next 30 days. Terms of the proposed purchase were not immediately available.

The division was started in 1975. Products manufactured by the division include: linear and switching voltage regulators both monolithic and hybrid designs; darlington transistors; interface drivers; pulse width modulators; overvoltage protection devices; rectifiers; and a wide selection of semiconductor die for hybrid circuit applications. The division has traditionally served the industrial, telecommunications and commercial markets with emphasis on power supply applications.

Wafer fabrication, hybrid assembly and test, semiconductor test, engineering, marketing and administration are located in Corpus Christi. Semiconductor assembly is located in Reynosa. The division currently has 100 employees in Corpus Christi and 40 employees in Reynosa.

Sales for Lambda Semiconductors in the latest fiscal year were reported to be approximately $7 million. The division has historically operated at a loss.

Semtech stated that it intends to operate the division as a stand-alone business, but the products will be sold through its existing sales organization.

Jack Poe, president and chief executive officer of Semtech, stated: ''We established a goal for diversifying our product offering beyond military and aerospace. If consummated, the purchase of Lambda Semiconductors would achieve an overall sales mix of approximately 50 percent military/aerospace and 50 percent industrial, telecommunications and commercial.

Semtech was founded in 1960 and is a leading international manufacturer of high-quality silicon rectifiers, high-voltage monolithic capacitors, transient voltage suppressors, power hybrids and related devices. Semtech focuses its efforts on producing these precision components for military, aerospace and commercial customers.

KANSAS CITY, MO (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - US Sprint Monday announced it has refocused its National Markets organization to more efficiently sell and service long-distance customers.

The National Markets organization will move from five major customer marketing and service groups to two - a Business Market Group, supporting customers with long-distance usage greater than $100,000 a year, and a Consumer Services Group supporting residential and business customers spending less than $100,000 annually.

The Business Market Group will continue US Sprint's highly successful National Accounts program that focuses on the largest telecommunications users and will have a strong major accounts program to service the increasingly complex needs of the medium-to-large users of telecommunications services. The new group also will encompass US Sprint's domestic data sales and support organizations.

In addition to enhance the acquisition of the small business customer a new National Sales Division has been formed to focus specifically on this important customer segment. The customers acquired by this division will be serviced through a special ''Premier'' customer service program specifically designed to meet the needs of these customers.

''US Sprint now will sell and support long-distance users via an organization that can better react to and service customer's needs,'' said Richard C. Smith, president of National Markets.

''The new Business Market Group extends the expertise of our national accounts program into the upper-middle market. This part of the market is increasing its use of the more sophisticated products such as virtual private networks, which were first introduced to the marketplace by Sprint's National Account Division,'' said Smith.

In terms of employment, hundreds of sales positions will be added while some 500 administrative positions will be trimmed from the National Markets portion of the company.

The National Markets organization of US Sprint is responsible for sales and servicing of residential and business long-distance customers for the nation's third-largest long-distance communications company.

US Sprint is a unit of United Telecommunications Inc., a diversified international telecommunications company headquartered in Kansas City, Mo.

SALT LAKE CITY (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Questar Corp. (NYSE:STR) said today it has significantly increased its projected 1990 capital expenditures to a record $160 million, citing ''expanding opportunities'' in energy development and transportation.

The revised capital spending figure is 65 percent higher than 1989s actual expenditures and 15 percent above the original 1990 estimate of $140 million. The previous high was $146 million in 1982.

R.D. Cash, Questar chairman and chief executive officer, said the higher capital outlays ''reflect our more-aggressive outlook about growth and earnings, especially higher natural gas usage for environmental and national energy security reasons. The new budget will support a strategy we implemented in 1989 to increase spending in solid activities that would increase our earnings and value over time. These include adding to our reserves, primarily natural gas, at competitive prices and enlarging our interstate gas transmission system to accommodate the growing gas-transportation market.''

Cash said expenditures for exploration and production activities are estimated at $63 million in 1990 compared with $45 million in 1989 -- a 31 percent increase. Two of Questar's exploration and production affiliates added 28 billion cubic feet equivalent of reserves through acquisitions and drilling during the first half of the year at an average cost of under $4 per equivalent barrel. Higher spending is also earmarked for development drilling related to new discovery wells, acquisitions and other projects.

Capital spending by Questar Pipeline Co., Questar's interstate natural gas transmission subsidiary, is projected to increase to $47 million in 1990 compared with $11 million the prior year. The expenditures include pipeline construction projects to more effectively transport gas supplies from the Rocky Mountain and Overthrust regions to national markets. In addition, the utilization of a large, underground gas-storage facility is being enhanced.

Cash said Questar is actively pursuing other opportunities that could sustain the company's capital spending budgets above $100 million annually for the next couple of years. In addition to expanding exploration and production, Questar is involved with the proposed TransColorado Pipeline, a $150 million-plus line that would carry Colorado and Rocky Mountain gas to major interstate carriers serving national markets. Questar Pipeline has a one-third interest in the partnership that is seeking federal authorization to begin construction of the line in 1991.

MILPITAS, CA (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Tengen Inc.'s announcement of the video game industry's first-ever ''rent & sell'' program was enthusiastically received by video retailers and video distributors attending the ninth annual Video Software Dealers Association (VSDA) Show in Las Vegas last week.

Commtron Corp., the nation's largest pre-recorded video distributor, has agreed to carry Tengen's full line of video games this fall for more than 25,000 video rental stores.

Tengen's new program offers video rental store customers a $5 rebate with the purchase of a Tengen video game playable on the Nintendo, Sega Genesis or NEC TurboGrafx-16 video game systems. Special point-of-purchase displays, ''rent and buy'' posters, and release and street dates, enable video rental stores to integrate this new product line easily into their existing business and market Tengen video games like movies.

Tengen is the wholly-owned subsidiary of Atari Games Corp. and has headquarters at 1623 Buckeye Drive, Milpitas, Calif., 95035; (408) 473-9400. Atari Games is a privately held company, is not affiliated with Atari Corp. and should be referred to as Atari Games.

PALO ALTO, CA (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Varian Associates Inc., Monday announced it has signed a multi-million dollar agreement with the U.S.S.R.

to supply cancer radiotherapy systems to treatment centers in Moscow, Volgograd, Alma-Ata, Archangelsk, and Obninsk.

The order includes a full range of cancer therapy equipment: linear accelerators to deliver precise doses of radiation to tumors; radiotherapy simulators, therapy planning computers, and radiotherapy management systems to help increase treatment reliability and accuracy as well as improve departmental efficiency and record-keeping.

Varian is the world leader in the manufacture of these systems, with nearly 1,700 Clinac/ radiotherapy accelerators in operation, treating more than 54,000 patients daily.

Varian was awarded the contract after several members of the Soviet Ministry of Health visited Moscow's Fourth Clinic and observed the performance of a Varian Clinac/ radiotherapy system which the company shipped in 1987.

''The contract is evidence of the strong emphasis the Soviet government is placing on improving health care,'' said Ueli Graf, managing director of Varian's Medical Equipment business in Europe.

The first of the new systems was installed in early summer at Moscow's All Union Oncology Center. The other four cancer centers will receive their new equipment in 1991.

SAN JOSE, CA (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - To automate the 24-hour operation of its petroleum refinery plant in Rosemount, Minn., Koch Industries installed a System90/85 superminicomputer from ARIX Computer Corp. (NASDAQ:ARIX).

The new system, valued at approximately $1.2 million, is the largest configuration to date of ARIX's System90 UNIX-based symmetric multi-processor product line. The system, configured to support more than 500 users, has expansion capability to support more than 1000 users.

The new computer system will replace an earlier generation of Motorola-based computer technology manufactured by ARIX and sold to Koch via an OEM relationship under the Unisys brand name.

''Our ARIX Model 850 (Unisys 5000/95) was very reliable,'' said Charles Greene, data processing manager of Koch Industries. ''When we outgrew the 850, we wanted to stay with a hardware platform we knew would do the job. Since Unisys does not carry ARIX's new System90 family, we went straight to ARIX.''

Said Gene Manno, chief executive officer, chairman and president of ARIX Corp.: ''To us, taking care of our customer base is of the utmost importance. One of the ways we do this is by ensuring a migration path for our customers which will preserve existing computer investments.

''By using state-of-the-market technology, streamlining our systems architecture, and enhancing the integration of vital industry software, we create the kind of throughput we need to meet the expanding needs of our customers.''

One of the largest petroleum refiners in the United States, Koch's plant operations have been based on a software package purchased several years ago and modified to meet their specific needs.

The complex inventory maintenance, purchasing and accounting system, originally designed to operate within the PICK environment, runs in UNIX via a sophisticated emulation package.

Said Greene: ''We recognized several years ago that UNIX, with its open environment, was the way to go. Emulating our PICK operating system in UNIX offered an easy migration to UNIX. Once there, we can migrate our operations directly into the UNIX environment at our own pace.''

Because the plant operates 24-hours-a-day, a fully redundant I/O subsystem that provides near-fault tolerant performance was required to ensure data protection and high system availability. In addition, Koch took advantage of striping and mirroring features of the System90 to provide key performance characteristics.

Other System90 features of importance included a comprehensive set of communications products which allowed Koch to integrate their existing computer investments and create a complex computer network.

ARIX Computer Corp. designs, manufactures and markets high-performance UNIX-based symmetric multi-processor computer systems.

HOUSTON (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Chiles Offshore Corp. (ASE:CHC), a provider of contract offshore drilling and workover services to major and independent oil and gas companies, Monday announced an agreement with Energy Service Co. Inc. (ENSCO) and R.D. Smith and Co. Inc. to purchase six jackup drilling rigs and one semi-submersible rig from Penrod Drilling Corp.

The six jackup rigs, the Penrod 53, 59, 60, 62, 65 and 66, and the semi-submersible, will be sold by Penrod for $54 million. All of the rigs will be delivered to Chiles Offshore Corp. in the Gulf of Mexico.

The purchase will increase the number of rigs under Chiles Offshore Corp. management by 50 percent, from 14 to 21. These will include 16 owned mobile offshore jackup rigs, three other jackup rigs under bareboat charter, one owned semi-submersible rig, and a self contained platform rig managed for and owned by Conoco Inc.

In commenting on the purchase, William E. Chiles, president and chief executive officer of Chiles Offshore Corp., said: ''The company is very pleased to be adding these rigs to our existing fleet.

''Some of them have design characteristics that make them capable of working in the Southern North Sea, and by upgrading them to meet current operating and United Kingdom Department of Energy specifications, this will give us cantilever rigs capable of working in most areas of the world. This will allow us to expand geographically should we choose to do so.''

The addition of these rigs is not only consistent with the strategic direction of Chiles Offshore Corp. to diversify its operating base from the Gulf of Mexico to other markets in the world, but it also places the company second in the number of jackup rigs operating in the Gulf of Mexico.

The sale of the rigs to Chiles Offshore Corp. is conditioned upon approval by the Federal Trade Commission, completion of the acquisition of the remaining 31.3 percent of Penrod's senior debt and equity securities that are not already owned by ENSCO and its affiliated group of investors and the the affiliates of R.D. Smith, and certain other conditions.

With headquarters in Houston and additional offices in Lafayette, La., Chiles Offshore Corp. is engaged in drilling and workover of offshore oil and gas wells on a contract basis for major and independent oil and gas companies.

DENVER (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - United Artists Entertainment Co. (UAE) has successfully negotiated, signed and funded a financing arrangement of approximately $2.8 billion under six separate credit facilities, it was announced Monday.

UAE officials said this transaction represents a refinancing of existing debt, an increase in the company's ability to replace short-term floating funds with long-term fixed rate funds, and the provision of funding availability to pursue future opportunities.

Eight institutions led the various financings, including Chemical Bank, Bank of New York, Toronto Dominion and Societe' General as agent banks; Continental Bank, Citibank and the Long Term Credit Bank of Japan as co-agent banks and Prudential Capital as the lead investor in a fixed-rate insurance funding. Approximately 100 banks and institutions from around the world comprise the financing syndicate.

''The refinancing was successful due to the breadth, depth and quality of the company's lending relationships,'' said Brendan Clouston, UAE executive vice president and chief financial officer.

''We were pleased with the significant contribution we received from the domestic markets, and the large increase in support from the international community.''

''Since the United Cable acquisition in May 1989, the company has planned this refinancing in order to create a flexible long-term capital structure for UAE.

We believe the positive operating performance of our cable and theatre businesses plus our successful divestiture of $300 million of non-strategic assets since last year's United Cable transaction has made this financing possible,'' added Clouston.

According to Senior Vice President and Treasurer Gary Howard, the refinancing changed the average life on UAE debt from 4.8 years to seven years. ''It dramatically improves our flexibility in two areas,'' said Howard. ''First, it substantially reduces our principal payments for the next three years and second, it builds into the structure the ability to pursue future opportunities without any further near-term restructuring.''

Howard also said that foreign sources of debt were key given the recent change in the highly leveraged transaction (HLT) rules in the United States promulgated by federal agencies.

While company officials declined to discuss the financial complexities of the transaction, they did say that in today's marketplace, the terms on the debt are attractive and appropriate given the strength of the credit, and at equivalent covenant levels, represent no material increase in borrowing costs.

UAE owns and/or manages 86 cable television systems serving approximately 2.7 million subscribers. The company also owns and/or manages approximately 2,660 motion picture screens in 609 locations.

UAE common stock is traded on NASDAQ's National Market Trading System under the symbols UAECA and UAECB. Rights to put UAE common stock also trade under the symbol TCOMR and are a security of Telecommunications Inc. UAE is the largest publicly traded affiliate of TCI. UAE's 12-7/8 percent cumulative preferred stock is traded under the symbol UAECP.

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Production has begun at Gallery Gold's (ASE:GYG) Hannandor Mine.

Gallery's mineral processing plant is operating smoothly at 200 yards per hour and preparations are underway to increase this to a maximum of 400 to 500 cubic yards per hour within the month of August.

Gallery's first gold has been shipped to the Englehardt Refinery in Richmond, British Columbia. It totalled 120 ounces assaying 90 percent gold.

Jan Schutze (P.Geo.) reports that Gallery has proven up substantial tonnages of fluvial channel ore of pre-glacial origin with gold grades between $10 and $20 per cubic yard. The size of the total reserves of this high grade ore is presently being determined.

Gallery announced the appointment of an advisory committee consisting of Elliot Yehia, a Vancouver businessman; Larry McDannold, an Edmonton businessman; and Elmer Pelto, a mining specialist from Kimberly, B.C. The advisors are likely to be nominated as director in this fall's annual general meeting of Gallery Resources.

PALO ALTO, CALIF. (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Hewlett-Packard Co. Monday announced a new processor in the 24-year-old HP 1000 real-time product line.

In doing so, HP is reinforcing its commitment toward customer investment and product compatibility.

Real-time computers are used in a variety of applications including high-speed automatic testing, factory automation, orbiting satellite control and lab automation as well as machine and process control. Industry users range from automotive, telecommunications and aerospace/defense to discrete and process manufacturing.

''After 24 years of HP 1000 computer production, demand for real- time systems remains very strong,'' said Bruce S. Campbell, general manager of HP's Data Systems Operations. ''Customers have found that general-purpose minicomputers are unable to achieve the same results as real-time computers, therefore making the HP 1000 an essential product in many industries around the world today.''

HP plans to manufacture the HP 1000 product line until the year 2000 and support it until 2010.

HP's new high-end, single-board processor, the HP 1000 A-Series Model A990 provides more than twice the CPU performance of the present, four-board, Model A900. The new model offers customers more compact size, faster processing and lower cost packaging for real- time applications than competitive systems. The Model A990 is compatible with other A-Series computers and is field upgradable.

The Model A990 can help increase profitability by controlling production-line defects, delivery times and material and labor costs. For example, the HP 1000 is used to detect defects or abnormalities in a variety of areas, including the manufacturing of compact discs and in automobile electrical systems, air conditioners and stereo equipment.

Hewlett-Packard Co. is an international manufacturer of measurement and computation products and systems recognized for excellence in quality and support. The company's products and services are used in industry, business, engineering, science, medicine and education in approximately 100 countries. HP has 92,000 employees and had revenue of $11.9 billion in its 1989 fiscal year.

INDIANAPOLIS (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Allison Gas Turbines announced today that it has received a contract from California Pipeline Co. for the purchase of 501-KC5 engines to power 17 Dresser Rand compressors for its Wyoming to California pipeline project, currently under development.

WyCal will transport natural gas from southwest Wyoming to local distribution companies, electric utilities and other high priority users in Southern California. Six compressor stations equipped with 17 gas compressor units will move the gas to this high priority market.

''The 670-mile pipeline is expected to begin service in April 1992,'' said Ethan Gilman, WyCal vice president, engineering. ''The Dresser Rand/Allison package will provide the right combination of high efficiency and dependability we will need for this project.''

Allison Gas Turbine's 501-KC5 engine is the mechanical drive variant of the widely-used 5,000-horsepower-class 501-K industrial gas turbine. Over 1200 501-K engines are in service worldwide, with more than 2O million hours of accumulated operation.

''Winning the WyCal Pipeline business is especially important to Allison '' said Jim Lunsford, director, Industrial Engines at Allison Gas Turbine. ''We are excited over future opportunities to provide Allison-powered equipment in the rapidly expanding oil and gas market.''

WyCal is owned by subsidiaries of The Coastal Corp., a Houston-based energy holding company. Coastal has consolidated assets of $8 billion and subsidiary operations in natural gas transmission and storage, oil and gas exploration and production, refining and marketing, coal and chemicals, and independent power production.

Allison Gas Turbine is a designer and manufacturer of gas turbine engines for aircraft and marine propulsion and for industrial uses. The company is a division of General Motors Corporation and is based in Indianapolis.

TORONTO (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - NHI Nelson Holdings International Ltd. (ASE/ToSE/VcSE:NNH) (''Nelson'' or the ''company'') Monday announced financial results (in U.S. dollars) for the three and six months ended June 30, 1990.

In line with the company's earlier predictions, total revenues for the second quarter were $16,684,000 compared with $21,876,000 in the second quarter of 1989. The net loss for the second quarter of 1990 was $3,684,000 compared with net income of $2,185,000 in the second quarter of 1989.

The 1990 second-quarter loss included approximately $1.7 million of additional amortization relating to the company's more conservative assessment of the ultimate performance of certain titles in its film library.

After taking account of the company's preferred dividend requirements, Nelson's net loss per common share was $1.03 in the second quarter of 1990 compared to net income per common share of 33 cents in the second quarter of 1989. The weighted average common and common equivalent shares outstanding for the quarter were 4,334,335 compared with 4,000,016 shares in the same period a year ago.

Nelson consolidates the operating results of Nelson Vending Technology Limited (''NVT''), a 69 percent owned subsidiary. Excluding the effects of this consolidation, Nelson's reported loss would have been $2,589,000, or 77 cents per share, in the second quarter of 1990, and the company's reported earnings would have been $3,131,000, or 56 cents per share, in the second quarter of 1989.

Total revenues for the six months ended June 30, 1990, were $35,601,000 compared with $38,231,000 for the same period in 1989. The net loss was $6,918,000 compared with a net loss of $2,289,000 for the first six months of 1989.

The loss per common and common equivalent share in the first six months of 1990 and 1989 after taking account of the company's preferred dividend requirements was $1.95 for 1990 compared with a loss of $1.11 for 1989. The 1990 weighted average common and common equivalent shares outstanding for the six months was 4,334,335 compared with 3,659,565 shares in 1989.

NHI Nelson Holdings International Ltd. is the holding company for the Nelson Entertainment Group and for 69 percent-owned Nelson Vending Technology Limited.

SHERMAN OAKS, CA (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Olson Industries Inc. (OTC PINK SHEETS:OLSN) reported Monday that sales for the second quarter for its only operating subsidiary, Dolco Packaging Corp., amounted to $17,076,831 in 1990, with a net loss of $530,867, or 81 cents per share.

The 1989 second-quarter results reflected sales of $17,940,763 with a net loss of $914,730, or $1.39 per share.

Sales for the first six months of 1990 amounted to $36,011,121. Net income from operations for the first six months of 1990 was $64,791, or 10 cents per share, compared with a loss of $1,577,755, or $2.41 per share, for the first six months of 1989.

The gross profit on Dolco's net sales was 16 percent and 13 percent for the first six months and for the second quarter of 1990, respectively, compared with 10 percent for the same periods in 1989. The improvement in Dolco's gross profit was largely due to the decreasing cost of resin, the major raw material ingredient.

The average cost of resin for the first six months of 1990 was 15 percent lower than the same period in the prior year and 14 percent lower for the second quarter of 1990 as compared with the same period in 1989.

As stated earlier, Dolco Packaging is presently involved in a reorganization under Chapter 11 of the United States Bankruptcy Code. The effect of any reorganization could materially reduce or eliminate the interest of Olson Industries in Dolco. Accordingly, the operating results of Olson Industries and Dolco as reflected herein on a consolidated basis may not accurately reflect the business prospects or operations of Olson Industries as a separate corporate entity.

NEW YORK (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - K-III Holdings announced Monday that its subsidiary, Newbridge Communications Inc. has reached agreement in principle to acquire Reader's Garden Inc.

Terms of the transaction were not disclosed. Upon closing, Reader's Garden will represent the seventh acquisition consummated by K-III since its formation in February of 1989.

Reader's Garden Inc. is a privately held corporation which operates two special interest book clubs: The Reader's Subscription and The Garden Book Club. The Reader's Subscription is a club for readers of serious fiction and non-fiction, classic literature and poetry. The Garden Book Club reaches serious gardeners.

The acquisition of Reader's Garden Inc. further enhances Newbridge Communications' position as the largest special interest book club organization in America. Newbridge also operates continuity programs for the educational and the home markets, The Fast Track, and Gryphon Editions.

Peter J. Quandt, president of Newbridge Communications said, ''This acquisition strengthens our core business in special interest book clubs. These are very fine clubs, with strong memberships and a tradition of high editorial standards. We're excited about their prospects for growth and about welcoming them to the Newbridge family.''

K-III Holdings acquired Newbridge Communications (formerly known as Macmillan Book Clubs Inc.) from Maxwell-Macmillan in July 1989. K-III, an affiliate of Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co., also includes Intertec Publishing Corp., a publisher of trade magazines and technical books, and K-III Press Inc., which publishes directories and other information products for the transportation industries. K-III's annual revenues exceed $200 million.

RANCHO CUCAMONGA, CALIF. (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Data-Design Laboratories Inc. (NYSE:DDL) Monday announced its results for the fourth quarter and year ended June 30.

Fourth-quarter sales from continuing operations were $23,528,000 compared with $22,948,000 in last year's fourth quarter. A net loss of $2,488,000 or 37 cents per share, was suffered vs. $1,707,000, or 26 cents per share last year.

In the current year's quarter, a $758,000 extraordinary gain was recognized upon the repurchase of 8-1/2 percent convertible subordinated debentures. In last year's fourth quarter, special gains totalled $2,080,000.

In the fourth quarter, operations at Aero Oregon, A.J. Electronics, Irlandus and DDL OMNI Engineering were profitable. DDL Electronics, the company's new printed circuit board assembly business in Northern Ireland, broke even with the aid of government grants. Aero Anaheim and Catel experienced losses.

For the year ended June 30, 1990, sales from continuing operations were $91,243,000, up 2 percent from last year's $89,819,000 due principally to growth at A.J. Electronics, Aero Oregon and Catel. The net loss in 1990 was significantly less than in 1989, $2,938,000 compared with $12,173,000, due largely to several unusual items described in the financial table below.

The company said losses at Aero Anaheim continued in the fourth quarter. In June, Thomas J. Gullo joined Aeroscientific as its president, responsible for all U.S. printed circuit board operations. Several process control related problems persist, and the new team is working to remedy them.

The high level of capital investment in the operation over the last 24 months has created an outstanding facility. With new leadership, Aero Anaheim should become the high-quality operation envisioned by DDL.

Catel's fourth-quarter loss included a $1,243,000 write-off of inventory determined to be excess or obsolete to its product lines. Catel's expected return to profitability in this coming fiscal year is primarily related to increased sales volume.

DDL is primarily engaged in the manufacture and assembly of printed circuit boards for computer, communications and instrumentation industries. It also manufactures broadband communications equipment at its Catel Telecommunications subsidiary for the CATV and telephone markets.

BOSTON (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Cognos (TSE:CSN;NASDAQ:COGNF) today introduced at Interex '90 a new release of its PowerHouse application development software for HP MPE/XL systems from Hewlett-Packard Co., as well as several new software products and value-added reseller relationships.

PowerHouse is the leading application development environment for the HP MPE operating systems, integrating 4GL, CASE, RDBMS and end-user technologies. Enhancements in the new HP MPE/XL release 6.09 make PowerHouse one of the most robust and feature-rich application development solutions available for HP users.

The new PowerHouse 6.09 offers an advanced user interface with full color support, pull-down menus, pop-up windows, screen overlays, dynamic highlighting, scrollable fields, variable size screens and designer function keys.

The new release also incorporates a new screen painter and PowerHouse QUICK, an on-line interactive debugger. Power to Integrate PowerHouse 6.09 is distinguished from competitive development environments by the ability of all PowerHouse products to work with all HP file systems and dictionaries. While competitive solutions limit users to working with only their own data files, PowerHouse provides read and write access in all HP environments -- including HP MPE/V, HP MPE/XL, HP-UX, MS-DOS and OS/2 -- and to all HP file systems, such as KSAM, HP TurboImage and HP MPE.

In addition, release 6.09 completes PowerHouse's comprehensive HP data connectivity by adding support for HP's ALLBASE/SQL database management system. In conjunction with the new PowerHouse release, Cognos also announced today its PowerHouse StarBase relational database management system is now available for HP MPE/XL systems.

StarBase is a second-generation RDBMS that offers several advanced features -- such as business rules, two-phase commit, triggers and SQL support.

Cognos is dedicated to providing comprehensive application development environments for distributed computing. The company serves its markets through 48 offices in 14 countries, with corporate headquarters in Ottawa, Canada and worldwide sales, service, and marketing operations located in Burlington, Mass.

The company's flagship product, PowerHouse, has over 15,000 installations on mid-range computers in 68 countries.

ATLANTA (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Fisher Business Systems Inc. (NASDAQ:FBUS), d/b/a Fisher Restaurant Systems, Monday announced the company's financial results for the second quarter and six months ended July 31.

For the second quarter ended July 31, the company reported revenues of $2,819,620, as compared to $1,118,314 for the same quarter of the previous fiscal year, an increase of 152 percent. For the quarter, the company reported net income of $63,221, or 1 cent per share, as compared to a loss of $273,082, or 6 cents per share, in the same quarter of the prior year.

For the six months ended July 31, the company reported revenues of $5,282,794, as compared to $2,133,884, for the same period of the previous fiscal year, an increase of 148 percent. For the six months, the company reported net income of $154,145, or 4 cents per share, as compared to a loss of $556,846, or 14 cents per share, in the same period of the prior year.

Larry Fisher, president, stated, ''I am pleased that the company has reported profitable results for three of the last four quarters. We attribute the success of the company during the first half of the current fiscal year to the continuation of the Denny's roll-out and stronger sales results by the company's direct sales force.

''We also are commencing installations of systems for the International House of Pancakes. We expect future quarters to continue to reflect significant installations for Denny's and IHOP.''

Fisher Restaurant Systems provides a complete point of sale and restaurant management system that is totally integrated to a complete financial and accounting package. The Fisher Restaurant Management System operates from a single IBM Personal System/2 and uses IBM terminals as server work-stations.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA. (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Logical Devices Inc. here announces a new universal semiconductor device programmer for field programmable gate arrays (FPGAs), programmable read-only memories (PROMs), ROM-embedded microcontrollers and other types of programmable logic devices (PLDs).

Logical's new ALLPRO-88 programmer is totally software driven, and uniquely features independent digital-to-analog converters (DACs) for each of its 88 pins. ''No other device programmer on the market offers the total flexibility of individual DACs and sensors for each of 88 device pins,'' notes David Mot, president of Logical Devices Inc.

Under software control, any pin can be programmed to do anything -- slew voltage, slew current, sense voltage, sense current, or even drive multiple asynchronous clocks up to 4 MHz.

ALLPRO-88 uniquely supports the new avalanche induced migration (AIM) devices which require current-pulsed algorithms rather than voltage-pulsed algorithms.

A comprehensive library of 2800 popular devices is included at no extra cost. The library makes ALLPRO-88 very easy to use. Calling up any device file automatically accesses, loads and implements all the programming parameters for that device, including required current and voltage slew rates, clock rates and timing relationships.

Data patterns to be programmed are conveniently downloaded from any logic compiler with a JEDEC file output. Full editing capabilities are available on any device file, including data encryption keys and auto-incrementing device serial numbers.

ALLPRO-88's standard test head handles DIP parts, leadless chip carriers, leadless plastic chip carriers, surface mount devices and small outline J-lead devices.

Between its device library and its socket selection, ALLPRO-88 handles fully 97 percent of all programmable devices on the market, and is qualified by all major semiconductor manufacturers for use on their devices.

Logical's new ALLPRO-88 DAC-per-pin device programmer is priced at $14,950. Availability is quoted at 30 days ARO.

BOSTON, MASS. (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Cognos (TSE/CSN; NASDAQ/COGNF) Monday announced at INTEREX '90 its PowerHouse StarBase relational database management system is now available for the HP MPE/XL operating system from Hewlett-Packard Co.

StarBase -- part of Cognos' PowerHouse application development environment -- is important for HP users because it gives them a second- generation RDBMS without sacrificing their existing HP MPE/XL file and data sources, such as HP TurboImage, KSAM and the HP MPE file system.

Until now, HP MPE/XL customers who purchased RDBMSs have had to forfeit their existing investments in data, applications and training, and start over from scratch.

"Most HP customers today have built successful applications using HP TurboImage and KSAM. They will want to retain this investment while taking advantage of the new relational database technology. Cognos PowerHouse with StarBase is the only application development environment which offers them that option. Competitive products trap them within their proprietary architectures. PowerHouse, on the other hand, supports all HP file systems on HP 3000 computers," said Kent Laver, Cognos' database marketing manager.

PowerHouse StarBase applications developed for HP MPE/XL can operate immediately, accessing and sharing data in HP TurboImage, KSAM and HP MPE files. This capability lets customers avoid time-consuming and costly data conversion. Business Rules and Advanced Features

StarBase provides several advanced features which are unavailable in other relational database solutions on HP MPE/XL. Most significant among these features is its support for business rules. For example, business rules can used to enforce credit limits: StarBase, using its business knowledge, can instruct an order entry application to automatically reject a customer order that exceeds its current credit line.

StarBase allows HP MPE/XL users to define an unlimited number of complex business rules which enable the database to automatically interpret the meaning of data, identify inconsistencies, verify data integrity, and update changes to the database globally.

Cognos is dedicated to providing comprehensive application development environments for distributed computing. The company serves its markets through 48 offices in 14 countries, with corporate headquarters in Ottawa, Canada and worldwide sales, service, and marketing operations located in Burlington, Mass. CUPERTINO, CA (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - College faculty and grade school teachers who are creating instructional software to run on Macintosh computers can now take advantage of a new publishing and distribution service geared to provide strong development and marketing support.

Apple Computer Inc. has selected Intellimation, of Santa Barbara, to take over and expand the former Kinko's Academic Courseware Exchange.

''We selected Intellimation after reviewing more than 30 companies nationwide because we felt they could take the bold step that was needed '' said Bernard R. Gifford, Apple's vice president of education.

''Intellimation will establish a new publishing model for educator-developed software, moving it well beyond distribution, the primary role of the former service. They will combine the disciplines of academic publishing -- with its close attention to content and value -- with a thorough understanding of the possibilities and benefits of technology.

Intellimation will publish the Intellimation Library for the Macintosh -- resources by educators, for educators. The library will include a variety of software, from stand-alone programs to interactive multimedia with complete curriculum integration materials.

The library will also be wide-ranging, from a set of tutorials to accompany a basic college biology textbook to an interactive HyperCard-based American history program that accesses images stored on videodiscs.

Also included will be software designed to work with commercial programs, such as classroom exercises designed to work with a music composition program, and written materials about using Macintosh technology and software in education.

Although initially the library will consist mostly of materials for college courses, Intellimation will expand the service to include instructional software for primary and secondary grades.

Intellimation will also expand distribution beyond the United States to other countries and will eventually include software developed by educators from countries around the world.

Intellimation was founded in 1987 to develop multimedia materials. It is a subsidiary of ABC-CLIO, a 37-year-old educational publisher. The company is best-known as marketer and distributor of the Annenberg/CPB Audio and Video Collection -- a series of college-level course materials that incorporate video, audio and print, including titles such as The Brain and The Mechanical Universe.

DAYTON, OHIO (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - NCR Corp. (NYSE:NCR) announced a cooperative marketing agreement with MITEK OpenConnect Systems of Carrollton, Texas, that allows MITEK to integrate its Digital On-Line Archival and Retrieval System (DOLARS) with NCR's TOWER line of UNIX based computers.

The agreement has an estimated value of $12 million over the next two years. DOLARS is an on-line document storage system, designed for large financial institutions who manage vast amounts of documentation.

''This relationship will provide MITEK with a powerful distribution channel,'' said Don Anselmo, president and chief operating officer of MITEK. ''DOLARS provides the customer an application solution with significant cost savings and improvements in functionality over conventional solutions.''

An alternative to microfilm/microfiche systems, DOLARS uses optical disk technology for high density data storage. It provides record archival and retrieval via queries from local or remote connected terminals.

The DOLARS system utilizes MITEK's SNA connectivity products providing the customer the option of directly attaching DOLARS to an existing SNA network. Thus, data is automatically downloaded, compressed, indexed and archived, and users can directly access records from their SNA connected terminals.

The NCR TOWER runs the DOLARS application software and controls the optical jukebox, which stores the data. Users of the NCR TOWER may also access host computers, as well as magnetic storage devices and peripherals in the host environment.

The NCR TOWER running the DOLARS application will be offered through NCR's direct sales force. MITEK will provide application software and integration services support, while NCR will support the TOWER system and peripherals through its network of field engineers.

MITEK develops, manufactures, markets and supports data networking systems products and acts as an integrator for complex systems. NCR develops, manufactures, markets and supports business information processing systems for worldwide markets.

LENEXA, KAN. (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Syntro Corp. (NASDAQ:SYNT) announced Monday that its officers and certain of its directors have purchased 400,000 shares of Syntro stock held by Lubrizol Corp.

The private transaction brings the officers' and directors' combined ownership in the company to approximately 11 percent of the 9.5 million shares outstanding.

''This transaction evidences the confidence the senior managers and directors have in the future of our company,'' stated Dr. J. Donald Todd, Syntro's president and chief executive officer. ''The timing seemed ideal. Members of Syntro's management wanted to increase their stake in the company and Lubrizol Corp., an investor since 1984, had changed its investment objectives.''

The company also announced that it has been advised that Mabon, Nugent & Co. has arranged the sale of the additional 504,000 shares of Syntro stock held by Lubrizol Corp. to a limited number of private investors.

This transaction is Syntro's third announcement in the past three weeks. On July 31, Syntro announced favorable third quarter results and Todd stated that the company's progress toward profitability was ''on course.''

In addition, on Aug. 6, Syntro announced a favorable resolution to a patent dispute with The Upjohn Co. ''With sales continuing to set new records and new products in the pipeline, we are extremely optimistic about fiscal 1991 and beyond,'' added Todd.

Syntro Corp., founded in 1981, is a Lenexa and San Diego-based biotechnology company engaged in the development and commercialization of animal health products. Its current strategy is focused on achieving rapid revenue growth and profitability by penetrating the animal health market with innovative vaccines while pursuing corporate alliances that will broaden its product line in the future.

SyntroVet, the company's animal health subsidiary, was established in 1985 to register, manufacture and market products resulting from Syntro's research.

VAN NUYS, CA (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Martin Lawrence Limited Editions Inc. (NASDAQ:MLLE) announced Monday that between July 2, 1990, the date the company announced that its board of directors had authorized the repurchase of up to 1 million additional shares of its common stock under its stock repurchase program, and Aug. 17, 1990, it had repurchased 500,000 shares at prices per share ranging from $3.43 to $4.63.

The company added that these shares, when combined with the 500,000 shares repurchased between April 30 and June 29, 1990, totaled 1 million shares repurchased by the company since the commencement of its stock repurchase program on April 30, 1990.

The company stated that it will continue to repurchase additional shares authorized under the expanded stock repurchase program from time to time through open market and privately negotiated transactions at prices deemed appropriate by management. The company said it will use cash generated from operations to fund the repurchase.

As of Aug. 17, 1990, Martin Lawrence Limited Editions had 7,349,648 shares outstanding.

In making the announcement, Allen A. Baron, the company's chief financial officer, stated, ''The company plans to continue pursuing its open market repurchase program because we believe that the company's common stock presents an attractive investment opportunity at current prices.''

Martin Lawrence Limited Editions is an integrated publisher, retailer and wholesaler of limited-edition serigraphs, lithographs, sculpture and other works of fine art created by internationally renowned and emerging artists. The company also purchases, for resale, original works of art as well as limited-edition works by recognized artists not published by the company.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Completing a turnaround begun when new management took the helm 16 months ago, Rent-A-Wreck of America Inc., reported its first profitable quarter in more than two years.

For the quarter ended June 30, 1990, net income was $13,143 compared with last year's first-quarter net loss of $106,152. Because net income did not cover preferred dividends, an overall loss of 1 cent per common share was reported, as compared with a 5 cent per share for the same period in 1989.

Total revenues for the quarter were $1,184,272 compared with $1,077,353 during the same period a year ago. The company's continuing licensee fees increased 14 percent from $241,009 to $276,868; initial license fees increased 16 percent from $152,500 to $177,000.

J. Richard Haigh, president and chief executive officer of Rent-A-Wreck, attributes these improvements to a dedicated franchise sales and marketing effort that has resulted in the addition of 115 locations since new management took over April 1, 1989, coupled with a rigorous program of expense control.

''The company's continued success is based on several factors. First, due to the record number of new franchises added to the system, the size of the fleet has shown considerable growth. This in turn has generated additional royalties that contributed to this quarter's profit.

''Furthermore, major new operational programs and support services have been launched, which help existing franchisees increase the size and profitability of their fleets. Of course, fleet growth and the subsequent growth in continuing royalties will ensure the future well being of Rent-A-Wreck,'' concluded Haigh.

Rent-A-Wreck is the country's foremost provider of used rental and lease vehicles. The 1990 recipient of Entrepreneur Magazine's prestigious Franchise 500 award. Rent-A-Wreck provides convenient cost-saving transportation that meets a variety of neighborhood vehicle needs.

NEWPORT BEACH, CA (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - John C. Warner, chief executive officer of Quiksilver Inc. (NASDAQ:QUIK), Monday announced fiscal 1990 third quarter and nine month operating results.

Net income for the third quarter ended July 31 increased 39 percent to $2,589,000, or 41 cents per share, as compared to net income of $1,867,000 or 30 cents per share, in the like quarter last year.

Net sales for the quarter rose 28 percent to $24,670,000 compared to $19,332,000 in the like period a year ago.

Net income for the first nine months of fiscal 1990 increased 41 percent to $7,627,000, or $1.21 per share, as compared to net income of $5,406,000 or 86 cents per share in the like period a year ago. Net sales for the nine month period rose 32 percent to $72,602,000 compared to $54,828,000 in the first nine months of fiscal 1989.

In reviewing operations, Warner indicated that Quiksilver's record financial performance through the first nine months of fiscal 1990 was primarily a result of continued strong acceptance of the company's product line.

Quiksilver Inc. designs, arranges for the manufacture of, and distributes beachwear, skiwear and casual clothing primarily for young men and boys under the Quiksilver label. RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Insta Cool Inc. of North America (NASDAQ:KOOL), manufacturer of ultra-rapid freezing equipment for freezing blood plasma, will develop a commercial freezer for food processing in joint venture with Fujitetsumo USA and Fujitetsumo Company Ltd., Japan, manufacturer of food freezing and chilling equipment.

Under terms of an agreement reached between the two companies, Insta Cool will supply its technology, refrigeration and coolant management system and Fujitetsumo will provide the freezer technology. Integration of the system will be a joint effort.

Ultra-rapid food freezing is estimated to be 6 percent of the total food freezing market or approximately $1 billion annually in North America.

Fujitetsumo Co. Ltd., founded over 50 years ago by Hirosuke Onodera and based in Nara City, Japan, serves major food processors worldwide. Based on many years of research, it offers a sophisticated technical approach to its design and manufacture of a wide variety of automated processing equipment for cooking, cooling and freezing of food products.

Fujitetsumo USA Inc. offers Fujitetsumo's world patented system in the U.S. market. Founded in 1986 by Hirofumi Onodera, president, and Jack Lackey, executive vice president and chief executive officer, the company gained national recognition in 1989 as recipient of the prestigious Putman Award, which annually acknowledges outstanding achievement in design, manufacture and performance of equipment for the food processing industry.

Insta Cool currently markets worldwide ultra-rapid blood plasma freezers utilizing its own patented technology. The company received FDA approval for the freezing of human blood in 1987 and for the crust freezing of chickens in October 1989.

Insta Cool's technology offers significant advantages over other freezing technologies currently in use, Coelho pointed out. ''In tests carried out at the University of California at Davis, Insta Cool's freezing rapidity achieved a 93 percent kill rate of salmonella bacteria in test chickens. Also, the technology can significantly reduce costs and improve product quality over other ultra-freezing methods.''

Customers for Insta Cool's blood plasma freezers include the American Red Cross, the Canadian Red Cross and Baxter Healthcare.

CHICAGO (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Hyatt Monday introduced a new corporate logo which, according to consumer research, capitalizes on the company's strongest symbol -- the word Hyatt.

The new logo, which will be incorporated in all 160 Hyatt hotels and resorts throughout the world, is a stylized version of the word Hyatt with a crescent crossing through the ''A.'' The crescent symbolizes the sunrise-to-sunset experience of the Hyatt guest. Main colors of the new logo are dark blue, red, white and gray. The new Hyatt logo replaces the company's previous logo, a circular symbol which had been in use since 1971.

Guests will begin seeing the new logo in national and international advertising as well as in select hotel materials in September, Hyatt officials said. Total implementation of the logo is expected to take three to five years as the new design is applied to all Hyatt hotels throughout the world.

In addition, the new logo will be incorporated into merchandise produced for Hyatt through San Francisco-based Red Sail Merchandising, the principal licensee of all Hyatt marks and a supplier of logo items for major hotel chains and other corporations.

Bernd Chorengel, president, Hyatt International Corp., said a new logo was needed to enhance Hyatt's presence in the international marketplace. ''It was time for a logo that would appropriately reflect the style and personality of Hyatt throughout the world, one that would capitalize on the strength of the Hyatt name,'' he said.

The design of Hyatt's new logo was part of an 18-month research and design process conducted by San Francisco-based Landor Associates, a leading identity management consultant.

In addition to interviews with employees and consumers, Landor conducted a visual audit of the company. This identity audit examined Hyatt signs, uniforms, airport vans and countless other items carrying the Hyatt logo to determine all the ways in which a new identity could enhance the Hyatt guest experience.

Following the research, Landor produced thousands of designs which were critiqued and revised by Hyatt. Post-design research showed the consumers preferred the new design three-to-one over the old logo.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - CBL Medical Inc. (NASDAQ:Common-CBLM; Warrants-CBLMW) Monday announced results for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Revenues increased 9.5 percent, to $1,557,596, compared with revenues of $1,422,880, for the same quarter of the previous year. Revenues for six months ended June 30, 1990, are $3,050,051, while for the same period last year they were $2,570,878.

For the second quarter net income decreased $19,330, to $129,135. This represents 7 cents earnings per share, on 2,061,277 shares outstanding, compared with the second quarter of the prior year's net income of $148,465, and earnings per share of 12 cents, on 1,200,000 shares.

In comparing six months of operations, net income increased 37.2 percent, to $311,490, or 17 cents per share, on 2,002,406 shares outstanding. For the same period in 1989, net income was $227,036, or 19 cents per share, on 1,200,000 shares outstanding.

In January 1990, the Workers' Compensation Reform Act became law. Increased benefits for workers provisions for prompt payment of medical bills and many procedural changes are part of this act. Although the act has many positive aspects, the procedural changes created uncertainty for attorneys who represent injured workers.

This resulted in a slight decline in referrals in the beginning of the second quarter. By June, these issues had been resolved and referrals returned to their expected levels.

In the second quarter, CBL entered into an agreement to perform certain services for Body Kinetics, a medical center that specializes in ''Muscle Strength Evaluation.'' These evaluations have been recognized by the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) as an effective measurement of worker's impairment.

Most of the patients at the medical centers under management by CBL will be candidates for the muscle strength evaluation. For its services, CBL will receive a percentage of fees collected. Under the terms of the agreement, there will be no cash advances made by CBL Medical.

CBL Medical operates medical centers specializing in forensic reporting and on the treatment of patients with employment-related injuries.

NASHVILLE, TN (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Anne Carr, who for the past ten years has represented clients on Capitol Hill, has become a partner in the state's oldest government relations firm, Smith & Johnson, it was announced. Carr, 38, will join the firm Sept. 1. She has been a partner in the Nashville goverment relations firm Fosbinder-Carr for the past four years.

"We are excited about someone with Anne's experience, credibility and reputation joining us," said Bo Johnson, who became a partner in Smith & Johnson in 1983."

Other partners in the firm - which represent such clients as General Electric, McDonald's, Hospital Corporation of America, Nissan and First Tennessee Bank - are Cleve Smith, who founded the firm in 1980 and Betty Anderson, former chief legislative liaison for Gov. Ned McWherter.

Carr was employed by the 16,000-member Tennessee State Employees

Association from 1979 through 1985, serving as assistant executive director for three years before ascending to the executive directorship of the organization. She represented the Tennessee Health Care Association in 1985-1986 and with partner John Fosbinder formed Fosbinder-Carr in late 1986.

Smith & Johnsons' professional activities are concentrated exclusively in the area of government relations, and it works in close contact with the state government regulatory agencies and the General Assembly. It maintains offices overlooking the State Capitol in the Stouffer Towers.

Carr is a member of the Tennessee and Nashville Women's Political Caucuses the board of the YWCA of Middle Tennessee and was an alternate delegate to the 1980 National Democratic Convention and served as a delegate to the 1984 National convention.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - The Kushner-Locke Co. has received an order to produce 34 half-hour segments of ''Krypton Factor,'' a new weekly game show, for first-run syndication through Western International Syndication for the 1990-91 season, it was announced Monday by executive producers and Kushner-Locke co-chairmen Peter Locke and Donald Kushner.

Willie Ames stars in the show, targeted at the youth market, to be produced by Michael Metzger, with Emmy Award-winner John Vogt directing.

Already a big success in Great Britain, where it is rated among the top 20 nationally, ''Krypton Factor'' is presently in pre-production on the U.S. version, under a production team headed by Kushner-Locke senior vice president, production, Jonathan Debin.

''We feel that Willie Ames is an ideal host for 'Krypton Factor,' '' stated Locke and Kushner. ''As the co-star of the hit comedy series 'Charles in Charge,' and a former teenage star of 'Eight is Enough,' he has long enjoyed great popularity with our target audience.''

In the show, four contestants compete against each other in contests testing their intelligence level, observation skills, physical capability and general knowledge, vying for a chance at a $50,000 grand prize scholarship.

To date, ''The Krypton Factor'' has been cleared in 75 percent of the United States, including all of the top 10 markets. NBC owned and operated WNBC-TV New York, KNBC Los Angeles, WMAQ-TV Chicago, WKYC

Cleveland and WRC Washington have cleared ''The Krypton Factor'' as an entry for their weekend schedules.

DALLAS (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Harken Energy Corp. (NYSE: HEC) of Dallas Monday reported a $6.7 million operating loss for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, compared to an operating loss of $2.9 million for the prior year's second quarter.

Harken's six-month operating losses during 1990 totalled $5.5 million compared to $2.3 million in 1989.

The major reasons for the second quarter operating loss were lower gasoline gross profits at Harken Marketing Co. (''HMC''), Harken's refined products marketing subsidiary, and increases to certain HMC expense reserves.

In addition to the operating loss, $9.8 million in unusual charges were recorded by HMC, including:

-- Costs associated with the decision to discontinue certain HMC operations and provisions for non-recurring expenses associated with the consolidation of administrative activities into HMC's Houston headquarters; and

-- Decreases in the carrying value of certain HMC assets due to the renegotiation of certain notes receivable in order to accelerate principal payments due HMC and remove HMC from certain contingent obligations.

In the prior year's second quarter, Harken reported consolidated net income of $3.6 million (7 cents per common share after accrued preferred stock dividends).

When comparing second quarter, 1990 results with those of the prior year's comparable period, the following were also significant: results for the second quarter of 1989 included a gain on the sale of a subsidiary as well as equity in the earnings of an unconsolidated public company which was sold later in 1989; also, interest expense was higher in 1990 due primarily to increases in project financing at Tejas Power Corp. (''TPC'') Harken's natural gas gathering and marketing subsidiary, and in HMC's bank financing.

Harken Energy Corp. (NYSE: ''HEC'') manages and develops energy assets. HEC retails, wholesales and distributes gasoline through its subsidiary, Harken Marketing Company. Through its subsidiary, Tejas Power Corporation HEC constructs, owns and operates natural gas gathering, storage and transmission facilities in Texas and Louisiana and markets third party gas to a variety of end-users.

HEC explores for, develops and produces oil and gas reserves domestically through its subsidiary Harken Exploration Company and internationally through its subsidiary Harken Bahrain Oil Company. PROVIDENCE, RI (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Cadre Technologies Inc. Monday announced a multi-million dollar agreement under which it will provide its teamwork and teamwork/Ada Computer Aided Software/Systems Engineering (CASE) products to GE Aerospace, one of the largest providers of defense electronics to the federal government.

The agreement, expected to provide revenues in excess of $10 million to Cadre over the course of the multi-year contract, is believed to be the largest single order ever for CASE software and one of the largest single software purchases in history.

Cadre's teamwork products will go to 14 GE Aerospace facilities throughout the United States for use in the development of defense, government and commercial aerospace systems. The software will run on workstations from Sun Microsystems Inc., HP/Apollo, Digital Equipment Corp. and IBM.

Cadre's teamwork products are the most widely used workstation-based CASE structured analysis and design tools in the industry. They deliver a powerful, integrated development environment for managing and automating the analysis, design, code generation, integration and testing of high-performance systems software.

The teamwork products purchased by GE Aerospace include teamwork/IM, teamwork/SA and teamwork/RT, workstation-based systems analysis tools that maximize efficiency throughout the requirements analysis process; teamwork/ASB (Ada Source Builder), which produces Ada source code directly from Ada structure graphs; and teamwork/Ada, a workstation-based design tool that supports industry-standard structured design techniques.

GE Aerospace, headquartered in King of Prussia, Pa., is a world leader in the design, development, integration, production and management of advanced electronic systems and equipment for defense, space and aviation.

Cadre Technologies Inc., headquartered in Beaverton, Ore., offers the most complete set of CASE products in the industry to provide full support during all phases of the software development life cycle. In Software Magazine's 1990 ranking of the top 50 independent software companies, Cadre was listed as the fastest growing software company in the world last year. NEW YORK (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - The Blockbuster Video chain will become the official retail distributor of Major League Baseball home videos beginning with the release of this fall's World Series video in November, Major League Baseball Properties and PHoenix Communications announced Monday.

Blockbuster Video, the world's largest home video retailer with 1,400 stores nationwide, will display both new and historical baseball videos for sale or rental in each of its stores 12 months a year. Under the agreement, certain videos will be available to other retailers for mass distribution.

"This agreement means that baseball fans throughout the country will have access to these historic videos for the first time," said Major League Baseball Properties' Director of Publishing David Alworth. "We are very pleased to announce this significant agreement with Blockbuster."

Major League Baseball productions will create five or six new videos per year during the five-year term of this agreement. These videos will be produced from the extensive Major League Baseball library and will highlight both the history, tradition, and entertainment value of the national pastime.

In addition, Blockbuster will carry dozens of historical titles from the Baseball library including World Series highlight programs dating back to 1943.

Major League Baseball Productions is operated under license from Major League Baseball by the PHoenix Communications Group. PHoenix also produces properties for television such as "This Week in Baseball," "Pennant Chase " and ESPN's "Major League Baseball Magazine."

Phoenix will continue to handle the marketing of baseball home videos by direct response and premium sale to corporate sponsors in conjunction with Major League Baseball Properties. Major League Baseball Properties is the licensing arm of Major League Baseball.

HOUSTON (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Offshore Pipelines, Inc. (''OPI'') 1/8NYSE:OFP3/8 Monday announced that it has acquired from Brown & Root International, Inc. certain marine construction vessels and other related assets for $80,200,000.

The net proceeds from OPI's Initial Public Offering, which closed on July 31, 1990, together with $70,000,000 of additional term debt financing provided by Den norske Bank AS and an affiliate of Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co. Incorporated were used to fund this acquisition as well as related working capital needs.

OPI now owns one of the largest marine construction fleets in the world, capable of handling a full range of large-capacity and deep-water construction projects.

Frank C. Wade, Chairman and CEO stated, ''This asset acquisition is a key element in our strategy for continued growth, which includes expanding our operations into deeper water in the Gulf of Mexico and into international offshore areas. In the Gulf, we now have the capabilities of both laying larger diameter pipe in deeper waters and handling more complex jobs that generally have higher profit margins associated with them.

Because of delays in closing the acquisition, due to concerns expressed by the U.S. Department of Justice OPI has agreed with the Department of Justice to sell two of its smaller pipelay vessels within the next ten months. Richard R. Foreman, President of OPI commented, ''While we believe that the Department of Justice's concerns had little merit, we can now implement our strategic expansion plan. Even after this sale, we will maintain the largest fleet of pipelay vessels presently operating in the Gulf of Mexico. We also intend to close the purchase of a fabrication yard and other related equipment from Brown & Root in September 1990.''

OPI provides a full range of marine construction services to companies engaged in offshore oil and gas production and development. OPI has emerged as an industry leader in laying marine pipelines and installing, salvaging and refurbishing offshore oil and gas platforms in the Gulf of Mexico. The Company also fabricates offshore platforms and their component parts and is now one of only two marine construction companies in the Gulf of Mexico capable of operating in all phases of the marine construction industry.

PORTSMOUTH, RI (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Quadrax Laser Technologies Inc., a unit of Quadrax Corp. (NASDAQ: QDRX) Monday filed a lawsuit in the Federal District Court for the District of Rhode Island against 3D Systems Inc. of Valencia, Calif., seeking a declaratory judgment that Quadrax's

Mark 1000 Laser Modeling System (a) does not infringe any 3D laser modeling system patent.

The suit also demands both monetary damages and injunctive relief for unfair and disruptive competitive sales practices by 3D and seeks a declaratory judgment that 3D's laser modeling patents are invalid and unenforceable. Ciba-Geigy Ltd. indirectly owns approximately 35 percent of 3D Systems.

"We are highly confident that the Quadrax Mark 1000 System is patentable in its own right and will be found to be non-infringing," said Richard A. Fisher, chairman and chief executive officer of Quadrax Corp.

"After consultation with patent counsel, we also believe - and are asking the court to confirm - that 3D's laser modeling patents are invalid and unenforceable," said Fisher.

The scope of 3D's original laser modeling patent was substantially narrowed in 1989 by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office as a result of a reexamination petition filed by E.I. DuPont de Nemours & Co. Inc.

"3D issued a public statement nearly four months ago that it intended to sue Quadrax for alleged patent infringement but, to date, we have not received any official notification of suit," Fisher said.

"3D continues to use its alleged patent rights and threatened litigation to intimidate buyers of our Mark 1000 System. These actions constitute unfair competitive practices for which we are seeking immediate injunctive relief and monetary damages," Fisher said.

"Quadrax is committed to offering customers superior systems in the rapidly growing market for laser modeling systems in which 3D previously held a monopoly position," added Fisher. "The legal action we have taken today underscores this commitment."

Quadrax introduced its Mark 1000 Laser Modeling System in February 1990, the first such system using a visible light laser. 3D's system is based on an ultra-violet laser. The Quadrax Mark 1000 System is capable of producing precision models up to five times faster than ultra-violet light laser systems and is also based on different chemistry and different mechanical systems than the 3D system.

KNOXVILLE, TN (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Proffitt's Inc. (NASDAQ: PRFT) Monday announced revenues and earnings for the three and six months ended Aug. 4, 1990.

Revenues for the six months ended Aug. 4, 1990, totaled $42,814,380, a 10.7 percent increase over $38,672,809 last year. Net income was $541,739, or 14 cents per share, versus a loss of $285,162, or (eight cents) per share, in the prior year. Average common shares outstanding totaled 3,792,021 compared to 3,787,367 in the prior year. On a comparative stores basis, sales increased by 8.9 percent for the current year over last year.

Revenues for the second quarter were $21,136,835 compared to $19,923,367 last year. Net earnings for the quarter increased to $37,469, or one cent per share, over a loss of $357,125, or (nine cents) per share, for the same period last year.

Proffitt's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, R. Brad Martin, said, "We are pleased with our performance for the first six months of the year. Our pre-tax earnings for the first half reflect the second highest level of performance in the company's history and represent a pre-tax earnings improvement of nearly $1.3 million over the same period in 1989. Our comparable store sales growth of nearly nine percent is an indicator of our capture of additional market share."

Martin continued, "Our gross margin of 39.3 percent was achieved in spite of the discontinuance of our electronics business, which slightly impacted our operating results for the half. The decision to discontinue this business going forward will allow us to allocate our inventory dollars and space more profitably.

Our selling, general, and administrative expenses declined to 28.4 percent of sales from 31.8 percent last year. This reduction is evidence of efficiencies gained through our substantial capital investment in both the stores and our systems and our continued focus on expense control." Proffitt's operates 11 specialty department stores in Tennessee, Georgia, and North Carolina.

SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Phoenix Laser Systems Inc. (NASDAQ:PXLS) Monday reported the first results of its preclinical and clinical trials being carried out in connection with company's Ophthalmic Surgical Workstation at the Instituto Barraquer de America, in Bogota, Columbia.

H. Alfred Sklar, director of research for the company, reported that for the past month, the Phoenix Workstation has been operating on a daily basis to carry out comprehensive preoperative diagnostics and ophthalmic surgical workstation procedures for four types of applications, including keratopalysis, scelerectomy, iridotomy and posterior capsuoltomy. These applications have been performed on more than 60 cases, including both animal and human testing.

According to Sklar, the company is currently performing follow-up on both the rabbit and human tests under Phase I of the company's clinical trials.

Sklar reported that ''the refractive changes in the preclinical studies are now stabilizing, and we are proceeding with histopathology.'' He noted that the refractive correction was modulated by varying both the laser parameters and the placement of the cavities. ''Refractive changes have been observed of up to nine diopters with relatively small mid-stromal cavities,'' Sklar said.

According to Sklar, the human clinical cases, which were treated at the outset of human testing, on Thursday, Aug. 9, ''have showed a clearly demarcated mid-stromal bubble up to within 30 minutes following the procedure. These 'bubbles' appear to collapse with 10 minutes following the procedure.

''Follow-up at 48 hours after the application has shown no trace of the laser treatment other than a refractive change. We have now started enucleations for histopathological verification,'' Sklar said.

As a result, Sklar affirms, ''The ophthalmic surgical workstation has performed up to expectations and has demonstrated its utility as an important instrument for refractive surgery,''

The clinical trials will continue at the Instituto Barraquer de America. Phoenix Laser Systems' Ophthalmic Surgical Workstation is a self-contained proprietary workstation that combines on-line diagnostic measurement, advanced laser beam positioning, high speed tissue tracking, and therapeutic devices for the precise control of laser surgery.

The company's technology permits surgery at cellular levels without creating significant thermal damage to surrounding cells.

LAS VEGAS (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - TGN Inc. - The Gaming Network - announced that its wholly-owned subsidiary TGN Productions Inc., has signed a letter of intent to purchase KBLR-TV, Channel 39 in Las Vegas.

The purchase, in consideration for approximately $2.2 million in cash and common stock, is subject to approval by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC).

KBLR-TV began operations in April 1989 and currently offers programming via broadcast and cable transmission to an estimated 250,000 households and 25,000 hotel rooms in the greater Las Vegas area. One of America's fastest growing communities, the Las Vegas ADI ranks 57th nationally among the top 100 markets for dollars spent on media advertising.

Channel 39 is licensed by the FCC to broadcast with 250,000 watts of transmission power, enough to reach every household in the Las Vegas valley with a clear signal; the station's actual transmission power exceeds 1.32 million watts.

KBLR-TV was the first American television station to broadcast High Definition Television (HDTV), a developing technology which is expected to revolutionize the industry by the year 2000.

Teaming up with Television Technology Corp. of Louisville, Colo. and Faroudja Laboratories Inc., of Sunnyvale, Calif., the station demonstrated HDTV at last year's annual convention of the National Association of Broadcasters in Las Vegas.

KBLR's test proved to be compatible with conventional television sets, as local viewers experienced enhanced images, better definition and more detail than normal transmissions.

TGN - The Gaming Network - is a development stage company planning to transmit televised entertainment and gaming programming via satellite subscribers and satellite dish owners. The common stock of TGN Inc. (formerly Celesta Corp.) is traded over-the-counter.

TAMPA, FL (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Seahawk Deep Ocean Technology has begun recovering gold bars from its wreck site 20 miles south of the Dry Tortugas, director Dan Bagley announced Monday.

Six gold bars have been recovered so far. Additionally, a gold emerald ring was recovered this week as well as several intact Spanish olive jars, bringing the intact olive jar total to 15.

''We are delighted to be finding gold this early in the excavation,'' said Bagley. ''Actual excavation of the wreck site has been going on for only about two weeks, and we've uncovered a very small portion of the wreck.''

Three of the bars have EN RADA (or possible a stylized PLAN RADA) stamped into the metal. This marking is cited by archaeologist R. Duncan Mathewson in his book, ''Treasure of the Atocha: A Four Hundred Million Dollar Archaelogical Adventure'' as the ''mysterious 'En Rada Stamp''' found on some of the Atocha's gold bars.

The Atocha was one of the galleons of the 1622 fleet that was lost in a hurricane. The Atocha was found by treasure hunter Mel Fisher in 1985 after many years of searching.

Seahawk has also recovered two mariner's astrolabes from the site. A precursor to the sextant, astrolabes were used by mariners to measure the angle of the sun or stars to determine the position of the ship relative to its latitude. According to Mathewson, ''Only larger Spanish vessels of a treasure fleet would have carried such an important piece of navigational equipment.''

While the markings on the gold bars and the presence of astrolabes suggest the ship is a larger vessel from the ill-fated 1622 fleet, Bagley emphazises that the company still has not been able to ascertain the identity of the ship.

Other artifacts recovered from the site include silver eight-real coins, musket balls, ceramics, and wood. The 1500-feet-deep wreck is the first intact colonial Spanish wreck ever found in deep water. Excavation is being conducted from the 200-foot recovery vessel, the Seahawk Retriever, utilizing the company's $2 million undersea robot, dubbed Merlin.

Seahawk Deep Ocean Technology is traded on NASDAQ under the symbol SDOT.

MISSISSAUGA, ONTARIO (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Lawrence G. Tapp, president and chief executive officer of Lawson Mardon Group, Monday announced the company's British subsidiary, Celloglas UK, has reached a business agreement which will give the company a leading position in the high volume UK trade finishing market.

Under the agreement, Celloglas and Five Star, a major UK trade finisher, will form a new company to be owned 67 percent by Lawson Mardon and 33 percent by Five Star.

''The merger will significantly increase our presence in the market, particularly in the South East,'' said Tapp. ''We anticipate an immediate rise in sales of about 4 million pounds.''

In 1989, Celloglas UK's sales were approximately 19 million pounds, while Five Star's sales were in excess of 3 million pounds. The merged company is projected to achieve sales of 23 million pounds in 1991, with a return on net assets of close to 30 percent.

Paul Cripps, who tripled Five Star's sales after its first three years in operation, has been appointed managing director of the combined company, which will continue to operate facilities under the Celloglas UK and Five State banners.

''Paul Cripps brings to the new company the dedicated entrepreneurial spririt and strong operations skills essential for success in this highly competitive market,'' said Tapp.

The addition of Five Star's operations will increase Lawson Mardon's capacity to provide high quality laminating and varnishing services and enable the company to expand its services to include cutting and creasing and shrink wrapping.

''Five Star also brings to Lawson Mardon two new process developments -- a water-based adhesive and an ultra-voilet varnish - which are expected to save the company about 750,000 pounds annually, giving us a sustainable competitive edge,'' said Terry Bloomfield, chairman of Lawson Mardon's Folding Carton Division, Europe.

CHICAGO (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Morton International Monday announced it has doubled the number of its Automotive Safety Products Group employees in two years to 1,000 employees. The rapid growth in the Automotive Safety Product's workforce, most of it at the Ogden, Utah, facility, resulted from the dramatic growth in demand for the airbag as a safety feature in cars.

''While we have grown rapidly over the past two years, we have been able to maintain a family feeling among our employees,'' said Kenneth D. Holmgren, president of Automotive Safety Products. ''All of us feel proud of the contribution we have been able to make in automotive safety, and maintaining a high level of reliability and quality remains strong here.''

Morton's Automotive Safety Products Group had sales in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, of $163.0 million, more than triple last year's sales. Business segment earnings were $15.3 million compared to a $5.0 million loss in the prior year. The company invested almost $30 million in capital equipment including acquiring a facility in Brigham City, Utah, for expansion of the airbag business to include passenger- side systems. The Brigham City facility is 13 acres under one roof.

HAMBURG, GERMANY (AUG. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Speaking at the 15th International Cancer Congress in Hamburg, Dr. Alberto A. Gabizon yesterday presented data showing that novel long-circulating liposomes increase the efficacy and reduce the toxicity of doxorubicin, thereby providing a net increase in the therapeutic index of this anticancer drug.

The long-circulating liposomes used in Gabizon's study, and identified as Stealth liposomes to differentiate them from ''traditional'' liposomes, are proprietary to Liposome Technology Inc. (LTI), a California-based pharmaceutical company.

Discussing results of pharmacology studies of Stealth-encapsulated doxorubicin, Gabizon noted that the long-circulating liposomes provided a fourfold enhancement in tumor-drug concentrations in a preclinical lymphoma model, as compared to both unencapsulated doxorubicin and doxorubicin encapsulated in traditional liposomes.

In addition, with Stealth-encapsulated drug, Gabizon observed a selective increase in drug concentration in the tumor and a decrease of drug in the surrounding healthy muscle, as compared to the other two formulations. The enhancement in concentration and selective delivery of drug to the tumor site provided the superior antitumor effect observed in Gabizon's studies.

Gabizon explained that inclusion of a proprietary lipid coating on the liposomal bilayer and special liposome preparation methods result in intravenous liposomal drug carriers with unique properties: Evasion of reticuloendothial system uptake, prolonged plasma circulation time, minimal leakage of drug during circulation, and concomitant enhancement of tumor uptake.

These unique properties distinguish Stealth liposomes from traditional liposomes and provide a promising tool for improving the selectivity and efficacy of cancer chemotherapy, according to Gabizon.

In another preclinical study comparing the Stealth formulation utilized in the lymphoma study with a second generation lipid coating developed by LTI Gabizon observed that Stealth liposomes incorporating the LTI lipid coating further increased the long-circulating properties of Stealth liposomes.

With these data in hand, Gabizon has concluded that the next logical step is to perform a clinical assessment of the Stealth doxorubicin formulations in man.

A senior lecturer at Hebrew University, Gabizon is associated with the Hadassah Medical Organization's department of Oncology, Jerusalem, Israel. He is conducting preclinical investigations of doxorubicin, sponsored by LTI and designed to develop safety data as required to submit regulatory filings and test Stealth-encapsulated doxorubicin in man.

Located in Menlo Park, Calif., LTI currently is developing injectable liposomal doxorubicin and epirubicin for anticancer therapy, injectable amphotericin B colloidal dispersion for antifungal treatment, and inhaled liposomal albuterol to treat asthma and bronchitis.

The company's second generation product focus is on utilizing LTI's second generation Stealth liposomes to target oncologicals, such as doxorubicin, to tumors and to deliver therapeutic proteins and peptides.

MARKHAM, ONTARIO (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - International Semi-Tech Microelectronics Inc. announced Monday that its wholly owned subsidiary STM Systems Corp. has consolidated its position as the leading information technology services company in Canada with the signing of final closing documents for the purchase of the shares of Manitoba Data Services (MDS) from the Government of Manitoba in a deal estimated to be worth in excess of $150 million.

Signing were Jim Gardiner, president of STM Systems Corp., and the Hon. Clayton Manness, Minister responsible for MDS.

In addition to paying $18.3 million for the purchase of the shares, terms of the agreement call for STM Systems Corp. to establish a company called STM Investments (Manitoba) Ltd. with an initial funding of $1 million to invest in small Manitoba information technology companies.

STM Systems Corp. will also establish an education program in conjunction with the province's universities and colleges, to be worth approximately $2 million over the next five years. It will include funds for guest lecturers, scholarships and the funding of joint projects.

Gardiner said STM Systems Corp. also has plans to construct a Systems Integration Centre of between 80,000 and 100,000 square feet in the Winnipeg area.

He said there is a vision of building a strong, vibrant information technology industry in Manitoba that is shared by the provincial government, universities, the business community and STM Systems Corp.

He said STM Systems Corp., a subsidiary of International Semi-Tech Microelectronics Inc., has annual revenues of $220 million and plans to grow to a billion dollar company with significant international presence before the end of the decade.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Robert K. King, president of Wells American Corp. (ASE: WAC), Monday announced the company's first quarter results for fiscal 1991.

Sales for the first quarter ended June 30, 1990 were $64,260, compared to $2,559,560 for the like period in fiscal 1990. The company incurred a net loss $1,298,300, or 27 cents per share as compared to a net loss of of $735,250, or 15 cents per share for the comparable period in 1990.

King indicated that the decrease in sales was attributable to the continued suspension of production which began in January 1990. He indicated that first quarter loss also included start-up marketing costs and R&D expenses associated with the company's new MegaMac product line and write-downs of approximately $473,000 which related to discontinued product lines.

King said that the board of Wells American is of the opinion that the company's cash and capital resources together with cash flow from operations will not be sufficient to finance continued operations unless revenues are restored in the very near future to a level which prevents further operating losses.

He indicated that the company has reduced personnel to key employees only and the board currently has ongoing negotiations with third parties in an effort to facilitate an infusion of capital into the company. The company is also attempting to identify and negotiate with individuals or entities who may have an interest in acquiring or merging with the company.

Provided adequate funding can be acquired, King said that the company intends to begin manufacturing its new product, the MegaMac, which is designed to increase the productivity of Macintosh computers for business users.

Wells American's common securities are traded on the American Stock Exchange under the ticker symbol ''WAC.'' For further information on Wells American and its products, contact Robert K. NEW YORK (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - National Patent Development Corp.'s (AMEX/PSE:NPD) 63 percent owned subsidiary, Duratek Corp. (NASDAQ/NMS:DRTK), Monday announced that Chem-Nuclear Systems Inc., a subsidiary of Chemical Waste Management Inc. (NYSE:CHW), purchased substantially all of the assets used in Duratek's domestic commercial low-level radioactive waste processing business at nuclear power plants.

Duratek received $3,930,000 in cash and will receive an additional $1 million in deferred payments over a five year period. In addition, Duratek entered into a five-year supply contract with Chem-Nuclear for the sale of Durasil products for commercial non-governmental low-level waste removal in the United States.

Duratek said that the sale of its domestic commercial low-level radioactive waste processing business will enable it to concentrate its resources on the increased development of the international commercial low-level waste market and the high-level radioactive market in the United States.

In addition, Duratek will continue to market its products to the United States Department of Energy facilities and develop products for the hazardous waste treatment market.

BOCA RATON, FL (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - SK Technologies (NASDAQ:SKTC) announced the company's first quarter results for the period ended June 30 which reflect a 258 percent increase in revenues vs. the like period a year ago.

SK reported total revenues of $368,167 for the quarter ended June 30, 1990 compared with revenues of $102,918 for the quarter ended June 30, 1989. The company reported a net loss for the quarter ended June 30 of $192,968, or 2 cents per share vs. a loss of $101,141 or 1 cent per share for the comparative quarter a year ago.

SK's management attributes the loss primarily to increases in selling, general and administrative expenses, as the company continues to aggressively implement its marketing program for its StoreKare software product.

Randy Selman, president of SK stated that he is very encouraged by the strong revenue base the first quarter has shown. He commented that, ''Our quarterly revenues are almost 50 percent of our previous fiscal year end figures. Our marketing program seems to be on target as evidenced by the jump in revenues.

''While expenses have significantly increased for the past few months, the infrastructure to handle our growth is now in place and we anticipate the SG and A expenses to stabilize. Coupled with continued aggressive marketing of the StoreKare system, we anticipate a continued growth trend for the up-coming quarters.''

SK Technologies Corp. develops and markets point-of-sale and data communications software specifically designed for fast food, restaurant and retail operations as well as other franchise businesses.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Encore Computer Corp. announced Monday the introduction of the computer industry's first parallelized, multithreaded Open Systems Interconnection (OSI) protocol suites.

The new data communications offerings are United States and U.K. Government OSI Profile (GOSIP) compliant and are being hosted on both the Encore Multimax and the Encore 90 Family of UNIX-based symmetrick multiprocessing computers.

Encore's multithreaded implementation of ISO Transport Services, File Transfer Access and Management (FTAM) and X.400 Message Transfer Services allows for unprecedented computer system scaling. These products are based on portable OSI software from Retix, located in Santa Monica, Calif. and are parallelized and integrated by Encore on top of its multithreaded AT&T System V Streams kernel.

Availability on the Encore Multimax 500 Series and the Motorola 88000-based Encore 90 Family computer systems is scheduled for the fourth quarter of 1990 and the second quarter of 1991, respectively. Both systems are capable of using Ethernet/IEEE 802.3 local area and CCITTX.25 wide area networks as communications protocols for the products.

Encore Computer Corp. is a Fort Lauderdale, Florida-based company that designs, manufactures, sells and supports the CONCEPT Family of real-time computer systems and the UNIX-based Multimax Family of parallel/multiprocessing systems and solutions for commercial, technical, and government markets worldwide.

BEAUMONT, TX (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Gulf States Utilities Co. (NYSE:GSU) officials said Monday that they have signed a contract with Sabine Gas Transmission Co. for gas storage facilities that will be located in southeast Texas.

The contract for transportation and service will enable GSU to stockpile up to 10 billion cubic feet of natural gas to cope with swings in consumption at its Sabine Station power plant near Bridge City. Presently GSU must adjust gas consumption as it matches electric generation to customer consumption, which varies on an hourly, daily and seasonal basis.

As a result, the utility has been having to swing its fuel purchases on an hourly basis to match customer needs. Because recent pricing trends in the gas supply industry favor steady, uniform usage over swing usage, GSU officials said the storage facilities should save customers money on fuel costs.

''We already have a diversified fuel mix, with most of the electricity we generate coming from natural gas, nuclear and coal,'' an official said.

''Multiple pipelines at Sabine Station already give us the flexibility to buy gas from a number of suppliers. Gas storage capabilities will add a new dimension to our fuel diversification program, partly by enabling us to buy directly from producers, some of whom may be located in our service area.''

The exact location of the facility and other details will be disclosed later, officials said. They added it will probably be a couple of years before the facilities go into operation.

PONCE, PUERTO RICO (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Ramiro L. Colon Jr. Esq. chairman of the board of directors of Ponce Federal Bank, F.S.B. (NASDAQ: PFBS), announced Monday his intention to retire as chairman of the board and director tomorrow at the bank's regular board of directors meeting to be held in Ponce, Puerto Rico.

On August 10, the bank announced the retirement of Colon as president and chief executive officer and the appointement, subject to regulatory approval, of Hans H. Hertell Esq. as president and chief operating officer.

In announcing his intention to the board, Colon stated, "My decision, a week and a half ago, to continue as Ponce Federal's chairman was made solely to insure the occurence of a smooth transition of senior management.

"In view of the high caliber of the bank's board of directors, current management team, and the recently secured financial counsel of the investment banking firm Alex. Brown & Sons Inc., I am confident that all the necessary elements are in place to achieve such a transition while still continuing to provide excellent service to the bank's customers and the communities it serves. As a result, I have decided to retire from the position of chairman and director of the bank.

"Fortunately, the sadness I feel in leaving the institution that I have served for much of my professional life is tempered by my excitement to pursue new personal and professional challenges and my satisfaction in knowing that the bank is financially sound, under extremely capable management and well-positioned for future success."

Colon, a charter member of Ponce Federal's board of directors in 1959, was elected chairman and chief executive officer of the bank in 1972 and president in 1978.

During his tenure as CEO, Ponce Federal grew from a two office, mutual savings institution with $27 million in assets to a $1.3 billion, publicly owned, federal savings bank serving the Commonwealth through a 26 branch island-wide network supported by one of the stronger capital positions in the thrift industry.

Ponce Federal Bank, F.S.B., the third largest thrift institution in the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, is a federally chartered, full-service financial institution headquartered in the Southern Coastal City of Ponce, Puerto Rico.

As of June 30, the bank had both tangible and core capital ratios equal to 4.62 percent of adjusted total assets and a risk-based capital ratio equal to 8.10 percent of risk-weighted assets, all of which are in excess of the minimum of OTS requirements of 1.5 percent and 3.0 percent of adjusted total assets and 6.4 percent of risk-weighted assets, respectively.

HYANNIS, MA (AUG. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Software 2000, Inc., the leading provider of business management software for the IBM AS/400 midrange computer, today unveiled a new inquiry function for Environmental Management 2000 utilizing Presentation Manager running under OS/2.

The new inquiry function, which is compliant with IBM's Systems Applications Architecture (SAA), was demonstrated today at IBM's AS/400 announcement.

The new inquiry function adds true cooperative processing technology to the Environmental Management 2000 series, allowing the user to retrieve data stored on an AS/400 and manipulate it on a PS/2.

The new Environmental Management 2000 series of products provides companies with tools that analyze, track and manage regulatory information in order to comply with the Occupational Safety & Health Administration's (OSHA) Hazard Communication Standard and the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) Superfund Amendments & Reauthorization Act (SARA). The series currently consists of three integrated applications: Right-To-Know 2000, Industrial Health 2000 and Hazardous Materials 2000.

The first product to be enabled with the new inquiry function is Right-To-Know 2000. The inquiry function provides real-time access to hazard information in the workplace as mandated by OSHA. For each chemical substance, the inquiry system will provide information covering:

-- Personal protective equipment that should be worn

-- Acceptable methods of disposal
-- Methods of containment in case of fire
-- Spill clean-up procedures
-- First aid procedures

''Companies can now quickly inform users, including employees or emergency responders, of potential hazards relating to toxic substances and the actions to taken in the event of an emergency situation,'' according to Erin Golden, Software 2000's Product Marketing Manager for Environmental Management 2000.

The next release of the inquiry function will store access information, from which authorized users will be able to report graphically on the data. For example, the instances of required first aid could be graphed to show trends by chemical and the type of inquiry: protective clothing, disposal, containment, etc.

Environmental Management 2000 and the new inquiry function are available immediately and will be marketed through Software 2000's direct sales force.

PARIS (AUG. 20) - Sudan warned the United States on Monday that there would be "grave consequences" for U.S. relations with Sudan if U.S. warships continue stopping Sudanese commercial vessels.

The warning, in a communique issued by the Sudanese Embassy here, came after a U.S. Navy ship stopped a Sudanese cargo ship, the Dongola, in the Gulf of Aqaba as it was heading for the Jordanian port to pick up Sudanese refugees.

The statement said Sudan "denounces" U.S. interference with its shipping and demanded that no more Sudanese ships be stopped by U.S. naval forces in the region to enforce a trade embargo on Iraq following its invasion of Kuwait.

The Dongola must be "immediately allowed to continue its humanitarian mission" aimed at evacuating Sudanese who have left Kuwait through Jordan and are stranded in Aqaba, the communique said.

The communique said the Sudanese government had decided that the Dongola should stay where it is until the affair is resolved, and reminded the U.S. that United Nations Resolution 661 imposes sanctions on Iraq, not Sudan "or any other country other than Iraq."

Sudanese Foreign Minister Ali Sahloul said in Khartoum Sunday that the ship was carrying 200 tons of steel when it was stopped by the U.S. Navy because it had been unloading the metal at Port Sudan when it received immediate orders to sail to Aqaba.

A Jordanian source said Sunday that Amman was also considering filing a protest about the U.S. action to the U.N. Security Council.

PARIS (AUG. 20) - The OPEC Secretariat announced Monday that the oil producers' grouping will not hold a special conference, as Saudi Arabia's proposal to hold one had not received backing from a majority of the 13 member countries.

In a statement released by OPECNA, the news agency of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, and received here, the Secretariat said:

"In view of the fact that a simple majority of seven countries is required by OPEC statutes before an extraordinary meeting of the OPEC conference can be convened, and since the proposal by Saudi Arabia to vote such a conference has not been able to secure the necessary support, an extraordinary meeting of the OPEC conference will consequently not be held."

The statement added that "However, taking into consideration the situation in the oil market and to relfect the organization's serious concerns, the president of OPEC and minister of mines and industry of Algeria, Sadek Boussena, has taken the initiative to meet some OPEC oil ministers for consultations before the end of the month."

Saudi Arabia has announced that it would increase oil production by two million barrels a day, with or without support from other OPEC members, in the wake of the international embargo on Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil ordered after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on August 2. That would replace about half of the normal Iraqi and Kuwait oil exports, now off the market.

Saudi Oil Minister Hisham Nazer said Saturday that his country could not allow a shortage of oil exports to keep pushing oil prices up.

TOKYO (AUG. 20) - Japan said Monday it would search for ways to send non-combat military personnel to the Gulf despite a constitutional ban on deployment of Japanese troops abroad.

Deputy Foreign Minister Takakazu Kuriyama said the government would start a full-fledged study this week to decide how Japan can contribute to international efforts to restore peace and stability in the Middle East.

"We will study it from the standpoint that it is important to send personnel," Kuriyama told a news conference. He noted that Japan's post-World War II constitution prohibits the country from sending troops overseas for settling disputes.

"There might be a need to revise law or enact new law" to enable Japan to send non-combat military personnel to the Middle East, Kuriyama said. He indicated that Japan could revise its overseas emergency aid law to enable it to send the personnel. The 1987 law allows Japan to send medical experts, police officers, and fire fighters to areas hit by natural disasters.

A high-ranking Defense Agency official suggested that members of Japan's Self Defense Forces - the military - could be dispatched to the Middle East after their status was changed to designate them as foreign ministry officials. "The government needs to work out contribution measures as soon as possible," Kuriyama said.

Detailed Japanese assistance measures for Middle East peace efforts are to be announced by the end of this month, government sources said. Kuriyama meanwhile criticized Baghdad's moves to bar foreign nationals from leaving Iraq and Kuwait and to keep them at a specific area as "a violation of international law and human rights."

Another Japanese Foreign Minstry official rejected Iraq's offer to release foreign nationals in Iraq and Kuwait in exchange for a U.S. troop withdrawal. "Foreign nationals there should be treated from a humanitarian point of view," he said, adding that Iraq should not use them to push through its demand.

The ministry said Japanese nationals were not included in a list of foreigners ordered by Iraq to assemble at major hotels in Kuwait. Japanese are forbidden to leave Kuwait but have not been forcibly rounded up, it said. There were 278 Japanese nationals stranded in Kuwait and 231 in Iraq as of Sunday, according to the ministry.

U.S. Ambassasor to Japan Michael Armacost discussed the Gulf situation with Foreign Ministry officials here Monday, officials said without elaborating. But official sources said that Washington had asked Japan to cooperate by sending personnel and increasing its financial contribution to the U.S.-led multinational force assembling in the Gulf.

Japan is considering using private-sector ships and aicraft to transport personnel and materials to the Middle East, official sources said. Saudi Arabia had asked Japan to use commercial vessels and planes for transports to the Gulf, they said.

Japan's Maritime Safety Agency meanwhile said it had issued a navigation warning to Japanese-manned ships, calling for caution when sailing in the Gulf and the Red Sea. The warning was issued over the weekend after the U.S. Defense Department put in place a sea blockade against Iraq and Kuwait, officials said.

EAST BERLIN (AUG. 20) - A top West German manager resigned Monday four weeks after he shouldered the giant task of putting East Germany's battered industry back on its feet.

Reiner Gohlke, 56, who had a reputation for rescuing finanically troubled West German firms, was named director of a newly-formed trust in mid-July to oversee the deregulation and privatisation of the former communist nation's 8,000 state enterprises and combines.

Detlev Carsten Rohwedder, 57, so far trust administrative board chairman, was named new director to succeed Gohlke, the East German government said. Rohwedder is also board chairman of the giant West German steel and engineering firm Hoesch.

Gohlke's surprise resignation, which came only one day after the walkout of the Social Democrats, the country's second biggest party, from the government coalition, further deepened the political crisis.

The trust was set up to prepare East German industry for the market economy. Many sectors of once state-run industry are on the verge of collapse, following the currency union with West Germany on July 1.

Gohlke, former head of the West German subsidiary of the American Ibm computer concern, was appointed in 1980 to put West Germany's state railways back on the tracks.

MUSCAT (AUG. 20) - U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney arrived Monday in Salalah where he met immediately with Oman's Sultan Qaboos bin Said to discuss the Gulf crisis, officials said.

Mr. Cheney arrived in Salalah, 1,000 kilometers (620 miles) southwest of here, from the United Arab Emirates (UAE), where he announced that the UAE had agreed to the deployment of U.S. forces on its territory and said C-130 transport planes were already operating from the Gulf emirate of Abu Dhabi.

The UAE was the second Gulf country -- after Saudi Arabia -- to accept the U.S. troop deployment to ward off any Iraqi attack in the wake of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

Mr. Cheney, quoted earlier by an official travelling in the Gulf with him, did not disclose the number of troops to be stationed in the UAE.

Some 20,000 U.S. ground and air units have been deployed in Saudi Arabia so far as part of a multinational force to prevent Iraqi troops in neigboring

Kuwait from launching an attack on the kingdom.

Mr. Cheney arrived here as part of a Gulf tour that has already taken him to the UAE, Saudi Arabia and Bahrain for urgent talks with regional leaders on the Gulf crisis.

He is due to return to Saudi Arabia later Monday to meet Saudi Defense Minister Prince Sultan bin Abdel Aziz in Jeddah.

CAIRO (AUG. 20) - Iraq was ready to offer Egypt a sizeable bribe in foreign currency to turn a blind eye to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on August 2, the weekly economic paper Al Ahram Al-Iqtissadi reported Monday.

Quoting a senior Egyptian official, the paper said Iraqi President Saddam Hussein had sent an envoy with a verbal message to President Hosni Mubarak several days before the invasion, offering him "a bribe."

The paper said the bribe was "substantial, one such as Egypt had never received in one go," adding that Mr. Mubarak had "categorically" rejected the offer.

The report seemed to suggest that the Egyptian leader was forewarned about the invasion. There was no official reaction to it.

Earlier, the Egyptian press blasted Mr. Hussein and his latest proposal to trade tens of thousands of foreigners for a U.S. troop withdrawal from the Gulf.

"The Iraqi dictator is writing the darkest pages of world history," a commentator in the semi-official Al-Akhbar newspaper said.

Another influential newspaper, Al-Gomhouriya, charged that Mr. Hussein had "violated all the laws and obligations" that he was expected to respect.

Egypt has sent several thousand troops to Saudi Arabia to join an Arab force deployed in the kingdom along with at least 20,000 U.S. troops to prevent a possible Iraqi attack.

BANJUL (AUG. 20) - Liberian rebel leader Charles Taylor on Monday backed out of talks scheduled in the Gambian capital with West African leaders trying to end the eight-month civil war in Liberia.

A Gambian official said Mr. Taylor had sent a telegram to Gambian President Dawda Jawara, the current chairman of the 16-nation Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) which has assembled 2,500 troops to keep the peace in Liberia once a cease-fire is arranged.

The message said Mr. Taylor would be represented by a rebel delegation at the talks with Sir Dawda and foreign ministers of the ECOWAS mediating committee.

It was the second time in under a week that Mr. Taylor failed to show up here. Last Thursday his absence was ascribed to "technical reasons" in an ECOWAS statement, while a Gambian official said Mr. Taylor was unwell.

The peacekeeping force, currently standing by in Sierra Leone, has been welcomed by embattled President Samuel Doe and Mr. Taylor's rebel rival Prince Johnson, but Mr. Taylor has dismissed it as a "regional dictatorship club" and vowed to resist it if it enters Liberia without his express invitation.

The National Patriotic Front of Liberia leader's repeated absence from talks is viewed as a bid to gain time to strengthen his position on the ground so that he can win final victory over Mr. Doe and take power.

AMMAN (AUG. 20) - Japanese Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama arrived here Monday from Oman on a two-day visit for talks with Jordanian officials on the Gulf crisis and recent Middle East developments, an official said.

Mr. Nakayama had earlier met with Oman's Sultan Qaboos bin Said and handed him a message from Prime Minister Toshiko Kaifu. He is visiting Saudi Arabia, Oman, Jordan, Egypt and Turkey on a tour that was originally to have been undertaken by Mr. Kaifu.

Mr. Nakayama, the most senior Japanese official to visit the region since Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait, is touring the five countries to explain why Mr. Kaifu postponed his trip and to gather first-hand knowledge of the Gulf crisis.

Japan said Monday it would search for ways to send non-combat military personnel to the Gulf despite a constitutional ban on deployment of Japanese troops abroad.

GENEVA (AUG. 20) - U.S. warships in the Gulf are carrying 342 nuclear warheads, a former West German admiral speaking on behalf of Greenpeace claimed here Monday.

Elmar Schmaehling, speaking at a press conference held by various peace groups here, said that among the warheads were those on 42 Tomahawk cruise missiles.

With French, British and Soviet ships included, the number of nuclear warheads in the region totalled about 700, he said. Atomic weapons could not deter Iraq from using chemical weapons, Schmaehling warned.

RABAT (AUG. 20) - King Hassan has granted a pardon to 546 detainees Monday, the Moroccan news agency Map reported.

It said the pardon was to mark the 37th anniversary of ''the revolution of the king and the people'' - a reference to August 20, 1953 when Sultan Muhammad ibn Yousuf agreed to go into exile in Europe.

''Of the 546 detainees benefiting from the royal free pardon, some will be amnestied, some will be granted a reduction in their sentence while others will have their life imprisonment sentence commuted to term imprisonment,'' Map said.

WASHINGTONBAGHDAD (AUG. 20) - President George Bush, declaring Washington refused to be intimidated, held Iraq responsible Monday for the safety of the foreigners it is not allowing out.

In an angry speech, Bush accused Baghdad of violating the tenets of its ''own religion'' and traditional Arab hospitality in its treatment of foreigners - including some 3,000 Americans.

Bush also for the first time referred to the foreigners being held against their will in Iraq as hostages - a term the administration up to now has carefully avoided using. ''There can be little doubt they are, in fact, hostages,'' Bush said.

Iraq renewed its warning to all diplomatic missions in Kuwait Monday to close down by August 24, saying diplomats would be dealt with as normal foreign citizens after that deadline.

In Kuwait, Iraqi occupying forces Monday picked up 82 Britons from the Kuwait Regency Hotel. According to foreign ministry officials in London, the Iraqis also hold 14 Britons from the Kuwait International Hotel and about 27 picked up at roadblocks.

U.S. forces, meanwhile, are expanding their Gulf deployment into the United Arab Emirates, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said in Abu Dhabi Monday after talks with Uae president Sheikh Zayed bin Sultan al-Nahyan. Abu Dhabi television said 16 military transport flights had already brought 500 troops into the Emirates.

Cheney had said earlier that Washington was determined to defend the region and get Iraqi troops out of occupied Kuwait.

''We are determined to defend our friends in the Gulf and face the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait,'' he told the country's Wam news agency at the start of a Gulf tour. ''We will find the adequate means to get the Iraqis out of Kuwait and we have many things which we can do.''

Iraqi authorities Monday released the fourth batch of Iranian prisoners-of-war as the two former Gulf war foes stepped up their repatriation plans, Iran's official news agency Irna reported.

The latest group of Iranian Pows was handed over to officials of the International Committee of the Red Cross (Icrc) at Khosravi border point in western Iran Monday morning, the agency said.

There was no word on how many Iranian Pows were freed Monday as Iraqi buses continued to bring the former prisoners to Manzarieh township of Iraq on the border between the two countries, it added.

Iran and Iraq agreed Sunday to raise to 8,000 the daily number of Pows to be exchanged between them in an agreement finalised in Geneva.

The exchange of Pows is in line with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's peace offer to Iran last week which also provided for a withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Iranian territory in what was viewed as a tactic designed to free his eastern front for possible military confrontation in the Gulf crisis.

Iraqi forces Monday morning completely pulled out of the Iranian city of Mousian and its 21 villages, 300 kms southeast of the provincial capital, and returned to the internationally-recognized borders, Irna said.

DAMASCUS (AUG. 20) - Syrian President Hafez Assad met here Monday with special envoys from Saudi Arabia's King Fahd and Yemeni President Ali Abdullah Saleh to discuss the Gulf crisis.

The official Syrian News Agency Sana said Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud al-Faisal conveyed a letter from King Fahd during his three-hour meeting with Assad.

It did not give details of the message, but said that Assad gave Saud a reply letter. Sana added that ''talks centred on the situation in the Gulf''.

Assad also met Abdul Aziz Abdul Ghani, a special emissary of President Saleh and a member of the Presidential Council in Yemen. No details of their talks were available. But Abdul Ghani said in an arrival statement that he was carrying a letter from Saleh to Assad.

''I had come to consult on issues of common interest, and Arab and international developments,'' he said.

Meanwhile, Damascus Monday criticised Iraq's detention of foreign nationals in Kuwait and Baghdad, saying such action escalated tension in the region and gave foreign powers the justification to intervene militarily.

The political commentator of state-run Damascus Radio said that Iraq ''intended to increase the tension in the region, which might develop into a confrontation without giving any consideration for the repercussions on Kuwait, Iraq and the Arab nation''.

DJIBOUTI (AUG. 20) - The French aircraft carrier Clemenceau, the cruiser Colbert and the supply ship Var will arrive Wednesday in Djibouti, the French naval commander for the Indian Ocean, Rear Admiral Pierre Bonnot, said Monday.

The 40 combat helicopters aboard the aircraft carrier will be unloaded in Djibouti to take part in training exercises for several days before the convoy puts to sea again

The length of the port call in Djibouti and the ultimate destination of the the three ships has not yet been decided, Admiral Bonnot said.

The French foreign ministry said Sunday that France had instructed its naval force in the Gulf to act "firmly" to implement the U.N. embargo on trade with Iraq and to use "force" where necessary.

TEHERAN (AUG. 20) - A strong tremor Monday rocked the Caspian town of Roudbar, which was devasted by an earthquake in July, the Iranian news agency Irna said.

The fresh jolt, which measured 5.2 on the Richter scale, hit the town at 3.50 p.m. (12:20 Gmt). There were no immediate reports on casualties or losses.

The epicentre was 200 kilometres from Teheran.

On June 21, a major quake hit the Caspian provinces of Gilan and Zanjan, leaving more than 36,000 dead, tens of thousands injured and nearly half a milion homeless.

ISLAMABAD (AUG. 20) - Sacked Pakistani prime minister Benazir Bhutto met President Ghulam Ishaq Khan on Monday for the first time since he dismissed her from office two weeks ago, officials said.

Ms. Bhutto, her husband, Asif Ali Zardari and an aide, Happy Minwala, her former ambassador-at-large, discussed the role of the caretaker administration with Mr. Ishaq Khan during the one-hour meeting held at her request, they said.

Ms. Bhutto questioned the neutrality of the interim government headed by her rival Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi, the former parliamentary opposition leader who took over as prime minister August 2.

An official statement said Ms. Bhutto expressed concern that the caretaker government would either fail to hold elections as promised on October 24 or try to rig the polls.

Mr. Ishaq Khan assured her that fair, free and impartial elections would take place as scheduled and the people's verdict would be "accepted and honoured with open heart and mind," the statement added.

In response to a complaint from Ms. Bhutto about her "character assassination" in the official media, the president told her that she had not left behind "an impressive record," the statement said.

Mr. Ishaq Khan assured Ms. Bhutto, who charged victimization of her party workers, that no one had been or would be arrested without the sanction of law, and no evidence against her administration would be extracted illegally.

The interim government plans to establish special tribunals of superior court judges to try cases of corruption relating to Ms. Bhutto's 20-month rule.

Mr. Ishaq Khan accused her government of widespread looting and plundering.

Ms. Bhutto has denied the charges and said her party wants such trials to take place in ordinary courts of law.

BRUSSELS (AUG. 20) - Output of steel in the world's top 40 producer countries fell by 2.2 percent last month compared with July 1989, to reach 54.891 million tons, the International Iron and Steel Institute (IISI) reported Monday.

Production in the European Economic Community (EEC) fell back 2.4 percent, to 11.29 million tons, notably with a plunge of 9.3 percent in West Germany, the Community's biggest steelmaker.

Brazil saw production fall back 23.4 percent. There was an increase of 2.5 percent in the United States, comparing July 1989 and 1990, but this failed to redress an overall fall of 3.1 percent in U.S. production during the first seven months of this year.

Production remained unchanged in Japan, at 9.19 million.

In eastern Europe, steelmaking in the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Hungary and Poland declined 2.2 percent, reaching 16.03 million tons for July.

The 40 countries monitored by the IISI accounted for 87 percent of world steel production last year. The figures are considered an important indicator of economic growth, as steel is a basic material in construction, shipbuilding, car making and other consumer manufacturing.

BAGHDAD (AUG. 20)- Foreigners held in Iraq have been moved to ''all vital and military installations,'' a spokesman for the Iraqi National Assembly said on Monday.

The Iraq News Agency Ina quoted the spokesman as saying that the foreigners were being housed in comfortable conditions at modern facilities and were enjoying good health.

Iraq announced last week that foreigners would be moved to strategic installations, apparently to deter a U.S. strike in retaliation for Iraq's annexation of Kuwait.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 20) - The U.S. State Department advised Americans Monday to avoid going to Jordan following Israeli reports that Jordan's King Hussein may have put his country on a war footing as tensions in the Gulf mount.

All non-essential U.S. embassy personnel and dependents in Amman were also given permission to leave, the State Department warning said.

''Due to the Iraqi military invasion of Kuwait and continuing unstable conditions in the region, the Department of State advises all Americans to defer non-essential travel to Jordan,'' the warning said.

It added that non-essential embassy personnel and their families were being allowed to leave Jordan ''on a voluntary basis'' and that the State Department ''advises other American citizens in Jordan to consider doing the same.''

U.S. citizens in Jordan were advised to inform the U.S. embassy in Amman of their presence.

Similar travelers advisories were issued for Iraq, Kuwait, eastern Saudi Arabia and Yemen.

AMMAN (AUG. 20) - A U.S. warship was Monday afternoon sailing off the coast of the Saudi village of Haql, 25 kilometers (16 miles) south of the Jordanian port of Aqaba, a reliable source said, citing eyewitnesses said.

Jordanian taxi drivers shuttling between Haql and Aqaba saw the warship off the Saudi coast, near the Jordanian border, the source said, adding that the southern coastal area of Haql was declared off-limits by Saudi authorities.

Well placed Jordanian sources said the United States was attempting to seal off Aqaba by preventing all activity in the port to halt shipments to Iraq.

On Saturday Jordanian authorities at the port began unloading sugar from a Cypriot-registered ship destined for Iraq despite a United Nations Security Council trade embargo approved on August 6 against Iraq, four days after it invaded Kuwait.

Jordanian officials have said the restrictions do not apply to food and medicine.

U.S. Navy vessels in the Red Sea on Saturday prevented the Sudanese ship Dongla from sailing towards Aqaba to repatriate about 1,000 Sudanese nationals who fled Kuwait and Iraq and were headed for Jordan.

Crown Prince Hassan said Friday his country accepted the U.N. sanctions and had actually begun gradually decreasing the movement of goods at Aqaba.

Fewer ships have been calling at Aqaba in the wake of the Gulf crisis and the Western military buildup in the region.

On Sunday however, trucks loaded with frozen meat, cotton and other goods left Aqaba for Iraq after two Iraqi freighters were permitted to unload their cargoes, a shipping agent said.

LONDON (AUG. 20) - Amnesty International said Monday it was appealing to Iraqi authorities over a "wide variety" of human rights abuses in Iraq and Kuwait including the detention of foreigners, rapes and summary executions.

Iraqi plans for the detention of up to 13,000 foreign nationals in Iraq and Kuwait and reports that some 200 Western nationals had already been rounded up were "arbitrary and contrary to fundamental internationally-recognized standards of human rights," Amnesty said.

"They should be released immediately and unconditionally and allowed to exercise their right to return to their home countries," the London-based human rights organization said in a statement.

Amnesty was also "concerned" about reported human rights violations by Iraqi forces in Kuwait, "which included rape, extrajudicial killings and summary executions," the statement said.

The organization said it had received reports of a number of killings of unarmed civilians "outside the context of armed conflict."

Amnesty said it had been told that Iraqi soldiers fired at a group of 35 women and youths in the Jabiriyya district of Kuwait City and said an eyewitness had reported that three youths died after being shot in the head and heart.

It was also worried about "hundreds" of Iraqis living in Kuwait reported to have been arrested within days of the Iraqi invasion.

Many were said to be Shiite Moslems with suspected links to the Iraqi opposition group al-Dawa al-Islamiyya (Islamic Call), membership of which is a capital offense in Iraq.

NICOSIA (AUG. 20) - U.S. President George Bush called on Iraq to release foreign hostages as Baghdad continued to move Western nationals in Kuwait and Baghdad to strategic installations for use as human shields against any attack by Western forces in the Gulf.

The foreign military presence in the region was boosted further Monday by the start of deployment of U.S. forces in the United Arab Emirates, which said it would accept Arab and "friendly" forces.

Mr. Bush said in an address to war veterans in Baltimore that he would hold the Iraqi government responsible for the safety of U.S. citizens, whom he referred to for the first time as "hostages".

The U.S. president has rejected a deal proposed by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein Sunday to free foreign nationals if the United States removed forces from Saudi Arabia and a worldwide trade embargo were lifted.

Baghdad has ordered thousands of Westerners in Kuwait to go to three hotels for relocation, singling out British, French and U.S. nationals, whose governments have contributed to the multinational naval force deployed in the Gulf following Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

But Iraq is allowing some Western Europeans, a group of Argentines and all Indonesians to leave because their governments have not taken part in the military buildup. China has evacuated nearly 250 Chinese and Taiwan nationals.

Britain said Monday that Iraqi forces in Kuwait have rounded up a further 82 British nationals from a Kuwait city hotel and taken them to an unknown destination. The Foreign Office confirmed earlier that another 41 British nationals had also been rounded up Saturday by Iraqi forces.

Six French nationals were also moved from a Kuwait hotel, bringing to 33 those moved out. Some 35,000 Egyptians who fled Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait to Jordan following the Iraqi invasion of the emirate are in Jordan waiting to be sent home.

Some 10,000 expatriates, most of them Arabs, have trekked across the desert from Iraq and entered Jordan at the Roweished border post each day for the past week.

Iraq on Monday warned Iraqi and Kuwaiti nationals against harbouring foreigners without the government's knowledge, warning they would face "severe sanctions" if they take in foreigners without declaring their presence to the authorities.

Iraq earlier announced that embassies located in Kuwait had five days to close down and that envoys who ignored the order would lose their diplomatic immunity.

Meanwhile it was announced in Paris that the 12 EEC foreign ministers will meet Tuesday to discuss the fate of foreigners trapped in Iraq and Kuwait, particularly focussing on European nationals.

The OPEC Secretariat announced Monday that the oil producers' grouping will not hold a special conference, as Saudi Arabia's proposal to hold one had not received backing from a majority of the 13 member countries.

It said however that OPEC president Sadek Boussena, has taken the initiative to meet some OPEC oil ministers for consultations before the end of the month.

Saudi Arabia has announced that it would increase oil production by two million barrels a day, with or without support from other OPEC members, in the wake of the international embargo on Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil.

Japan said Monday it would search for ways to send non-combat military personnel to the Gulf despite a constitutional ban on deployment of Japanese troops abroad.

Deputy Foreign Minister Takakazu Kuriyama said the government would start a full-fledged study this week to decide how Japan can contribute to international efforts to restore peace and stability in the Middle East.

Japanese nationals are not included in a list of foreigners ordered by Iraq to assemble at major hotels in Kuwait. They are forbidden to leave Kuwait but have not been forcibly rounded up.

There were 278 Japanese nationals stranded in Kuwait and 231 in Iraq on Sunday.

The Gulf crisis continued to effect international markets although in New York the Dow Jones index gained 16 points in early trading before levelling off.

In Frankfurt stocks plunged to a new low for the year on Monday, as the DAX spot trend index ended at 1,635.69, off 30.19 points on the day.

The Paris Bourse was down 3.19 per cent at the close.

JOHANNESBURG (AUG. 20) - Pleas for an end to the ongoing slaughter of blacks in townships near here were drowned out by the crackle of gunfire Monday as violent clashes were reported on at least eight fronts.

Police said townships affected overnight and on Monday included Kwathema, Daveyton, Tembisa, Duduza, Wattville, Vosloorus and Katlehong, east of here, and Kagiso to the west.

But Tokoza and Soweto, which have borne the brunt of the killings in the past week, were reported by police to be calm but tense Monday.

In a frenzy of bloodletting in townships within a radius of 50 kilometers (31 miles) of here, the body count rose from 280 in the morning to a staggering 381 by nightfall. Police said they were finding new bodies hourly.

Most of the deaths and hundreds of injuries were caused by gunfire according to police, and hospital authorities reported treating scores of people for bullet wounds.

Police reinforcements were sent into Tembisa and Kwathema where Zulu hostel dwellers claiming allegience to Chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi's Inkatha party, battled African National Congress (ANC) supporters, correspondents said.

At least 22 Kwathema hostel dwellers, mostly non-Inkatha supporters, were hacked to death Monday morning. Police said most of the hostel complex was razed in the ensuing chaos.

Hundreds of non-Inkatha members packed their belongings and fled the area under police escort as threats grew of a looming clash after dark between township residents and Zulus.

Police late Monday were still trying to facilitate a truce between delegations from both sides in Kwathema, where 56 people have died in the past week, and in Tembisa, where a total of 16 are reported dead.

The Kwathema clashes, residents said, were sparked off by the influx of people fleeing violence in adjoining townships.

In Soweto, police said they had arrested three men carrying a Russian-made Scorpion assault pistol and two hand-grenades.

Police said two were trained ANC guerrillas while the third was a legal advisor for the South African commercial, catering and allied workers' union.

Meanwhile, clerics, police and commmunity leaders at the weekend callrf on ANC deputy president Nelson Mandela to hold talks with Mr. Buthelezi in a bid to stem the flow of blood.

And on Monday, the European Economic Community (EEC) added its voice to the growing pleas for peace, saying in a statement issued in Brussels that the "pointless bloodbath" was hindering the efforts of those workings towards the creation of a non-racial democracy in South Africa. But prospects for a meeting of the two leaders appeared remote Monday, with ANC internal leader Walter Sisulu at the weekend saying it was a "most disastrous type of approach".

"That means that Inkatha launched a war in order to bring us to our knees. For that type of thing we are not prepared," he said in a television interview.

The pro-ANC South African Youth Congress said in a statement that none of the voices that have thus far called on Mr. Mandela to hold talks with Mr. Buthelezi had "convincingly argued that such a meeting would bring an end to the Inkatha-led violence".

Denying that Inkatha was orchestrating the violence, Mr. Buthelezi late Sunday said Mr. Sisulu's remarks "stoked the flames of violence".

Meanwhile Mr. Mandela's wife Winnie on Sunday warned that the ANC may re-engage its army Umkhonto We Sizwe (MK) if the carnage in the townships was not ended and the single-sex hostel system was not abolished.

The ANC agreed to suspend its 29-year armed struggle against Pretoria's white minority government on August 6 as a means of contributing to the creation of the "climate of peace" the government says is necessary before constitutional negotiations can begin.

But MK chief of staff Chris Hani, who Monday had an order indemnifying him from arrest revoked by President Frederik de Klerk, expressed concern at violence emanating from the rightwing and from Inkatha.

The pattern of the violence convinced him that there were "destabilising forces" at play, Mr. Hani told Agence France-Presse in a telephone interview from Transkei tribal homeland Monday.

"I've seen similar patterns in Angola and Mozambique," he said.

In another development, President Frederick de Klerk will meeting with Chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi early Tuesday, Janneta Badenhorst, a spokeswoman for Mr. de Klerk's office confirmed Monday.

State-run television said the violence in the black townships would be the focus of talks between the two men, but Miss Badenhorst told AFP she could not confirm this.

MUSCAT (AUG. 20) - U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney late Monday left Salalah after meeting with Oman's Sultan Qaboos bin Said to discuss the Gulf crisis and deliver a message from President George Bush, officials said.

Mr. Cheney had arrived in Salalah, 1,000 kilometers (620 miles) southwest of here, from the United Arab Emirates (UAE), where he announced that the UAE had agreed to the deployment of U.S. forces on its territory and said C-130 transport planes were already operating from the Gulf emirate of Abu Dhabi.

In the United Arab Emirate of Dubai, a U.S. diplomatic source said that 525 U.S. troops and 16 C-130 Hercules transport planes were already deployed in the UAE's capital of Abu Dhabi.

The UAE was the second Gulf country -- after Saudi Arabia -- to accept the U.S. troop deployment to ward off any Iraqi attack following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

Some 20,000 U.S. ground and air units have been deployed in Saudi Arabia so far as part of a multinational force to prevent Iraqi troops in neigboring Kuwait from launching an attack on the kingdom.

Mr. Cheney arrived here as part of a Gulf tour that has already taken him to the UAE, Saudi Arabia and Bahrain for urgent talks with regional leaders on the Gulf crisis.

He was expected to return to the western Saudi city of Jeddah to meet Saudi Defense Minister Prince Sultan bin Abdel Aziz.

BONN (AUG. 20) - The government and opposition agreed Monday that West German troops could not be sent to the Gulf under the constitution, but planned to pursue talks on an amendment that would allow such action.

"The unanimous opinion is that it is not possible" under West Germany's post-war constitution, Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher told journalists after a meeting between the government and opposition.

However ruling and opposition parties would continue studying how the constitution could be amended so West German troops could join the multi-national force in the region, he said.

Social Democratic Party (SPD) leader Oskar Lafontaine, Chancellor Helmut Kohl's rival in the December elections, said the problem should be studied "quietly", with no "short-term" decisions.

NEW DELHI (AUG. 20) - Indian troops on Monday repulsed a Pakistani heavy artillery attack on the Kashmir border and inflicted casualties on the Pakistani side, the Press Trust of India (PTI) news agency said.

Earlier, an official statement here said Pakistani artillerymen fired high explosive and incendiary shells against Indian posts in the Kupwara sector of the border with some falling 500 meters (yards) inside Indian territory.

It said no casualty reports were immediately available.

PTI quoted defence sources as saying late Monday that the "attackers" suffered casualties, but did not give an exact figure.

The brief official statement merely said "appropriate defensive measures" had been taken to counter the alleged Pakistani shelling, but did not elaborate what those measures included.

"Exchange of small arms fire across the line of control is a frequent occurrence but the Pakistani forces have used heavy artillery today (Monday)," the statement said.

It said there had been an increase in infiltration in the Kupwara area in recent weeks.

The line of control dividing India and Pakistan in the disputed Kashmir region was set up after the last Indo-Pakistan war in 1971. Pakistan controls the northern third of the region. India controls the rest, although Moslems miltants there are leading a violent campaign for secession.

PTI said the Pakistani troops used Puttaka Gali, Nawan Gali and Safawali Gali routes to attack four Indian posts on the line of control.

The posts attacked were Kanthanwali, Safawali Gali, Nagnwali and Tuttakhan Gali, the defence sources quoted by the agency said.

Fears of a new war over Kashmir have been rife for the past four months because of a sharp deterioration in relations over Kashmir.

New Delhi accuses Islamabad of backing the bloody militant-led separatist uprising. Islamabad denies the allegations.

BEIJING ((AUG. 20) - China opened its first expressway on Monday, a 357 kilometer (221 mile) stretch connecting the cities of Shenyang and Dalian in northeast Liaoning province, the official New China News Agency said.

The cost of building the highway, which took four years to complete, was 2.2 billion yuan (468 million dollars), the agency said.

The route is four lanes wide and has a daily capacity of 50,000 vehicles travelling at between 100 and 120 kilometers per hour.

It reduces the travelling time between Shenyang, a major industrial city, and the port of Dalian from 12 hours to four hours.

Liaoning is also planning to build three other expressways to link Shenyang with Fushun, a petrochemical center and the steel-making city of Benxi, as well as Changchun, the capital of neighboring Jilin province.

China is aiming to modernize its backward infrastructure, including the construction of better roads to prevent chronic transportation bottlnecks and delays in delivery.

BANGKOK (AUG. 20) - Thai and Burmese officials are to seek foreign financial assistance for the joint development of two hydroelectric power plants, the state-run Thai News Agency (TNA) reported on Monday.

Financing for the plants is to be sought from Japan and the Asian Development Bank (ADB), the report said.

TNA quoted Thai National Energy Adminstration secretary general Praphat Premmani as saying that foreign funds would be for a feasibility study of the Sai River hydroelectric power plant in Thailand's northern province of Ranong with an output capacity of 20,000 kilowatthour.

Feasibility studies are expected to be completed by the end of next year, while construction of two power plants along the Thai-Burmese border were scheduled to be completed in 1995.

Praphat said Bangkok and Rangoon have agreed to jointly develop seven power generating projects along their common border with a combined capacity of 7.1 megawatts.

Thai and Burmese officials are scheduled to meet in Rangoon in November to work out details of the joint project.

HONG KONG (AUG. 20) - Hong Kong and France on Monday signed a bilateral air services agreement whose validity stretches beyond 1997, when the British colony reverts to Chinese rule.

Hong Kong Secretary for Economic Services Anson Chan and French Air Transport Services chief Robert Esperou signed the the agreement.

The accord was the fifth of its kind signed by Hong Kong with a foreign country -- after Canada, the Netherlands, Switzerland and Brunei.

Under a 1984 Sino-British pact which returns Hong Kong to China, Beijing allows the territory to draw up its own air services pacts with foreign countries. London has authorized the government here to start doing so.

The validity of such pacts goes beyond the 1997 handover and carries "no time limit," a government aviation spokesman said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 20) - Pan American World Airways said Monday it had been forced to cancel some domestic flights and use smaller than usual aircraft on some routes following the call up of civilian aircraft to help the U.S. deployment efforts in the Middle East.

It is the first time that the U.S. military has activated what is known as the Civil Reserve Air Fleet since it was created 38 years ago.

According to the Washington-based specialist newsletter Aviation Daily, aircraft have been enlisted from Northwest Airlines, United Airlines and Continental Airlines as well as Pan Am.

Jeff Kriendler, a Pan Am spokesman, confirmed that his company was among those to have had aircraft enlisted. He said the carrier had been forced to cancel some domestic flights and use smaller aircraft on some routes.

But he insisted the disruption was minimal. He declined to go into further detail, saying military officials had asked the airlines not to divulge details of how many flights or specify what routes had been affected.

Colonel Mike Cox, spokesman for the Military Airlift Command, said 20 or more DC10, DC8, L1011 and Boeing 747 aircrfat were being used each day.

The aircraft are among 38 -- from 16 different airlines -- activated under the first stage of the Civil Reserve Air Fleet.

There are two further stages of activation, both requiring approval by Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney: stage two would enlist 187 civilian aircraft while the third and final stage would enlist all 506 aircraft contracted by their carriers for possible call-up.

Before the first stage of the enlistment was activated, according to industry officials, the Department of Defense tried to meet its deployment needs by chartering aircraft.

Carriers which have their equipment enlisted are paid at rates established under their regular military contracts and include reimbursement for higher insurance costs and for maintaining the aircraft ready for call-up.

WASHINGTON, (AUG 20) - Black civil rights leader and former presidential hopeful Jesse Jackson is planning to fly to Baghdad and meet with Iraqi officials, one of his associates said Monday.

The associate, who declined to be identified, said Mr. Jackson hoped to be able to obtain the release of U.S. citizens held in Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

In 1984, Mr. Jackson met with Syrian President Hafez Assad who then released a U.S. Navy pilot, Lieutenant Robert Goodman, who had been taken prisoner by the Syrians after being shot down in the region.

In the same year, Mr. Jackson went to Cuba where he persuaded President Fidel Castro to release two dozen U.S. citizens from Cuban jails.

ANKARA, (AUG 21) - The Turkish Foreign Affairs Ministry late Monday "categorically denied" that U.S. Air Force F-117 Stealth fighter-bombers had arrived in Turkey.

A U.S. source had earlier said that 40 of the planes had landed at an airbase near the border with Iraq where U.S. F-111 bombers were already stationed, but a ministry official contacted by Agence France-Presse denied the report.

The only base that could fit the bill is at Incirlik near the town of Adana, 700 kilometres (435 miles) from the border with Iraq, where 14 F-111s are taking part in what Ankara and Washington have called "routine exercices".

A U.S. military source reached by telephone at Incirlik said Monday: "We have no Stealth. We do not expect any of them."

Stealth planes are designed to be virtually undetectable by radar.

TRIPOLI, (AUG 21) - Libya's leader Colonel Moamer Kadhafi Monday threatened to pull Libya out of the United Nations unless the U.N. Security Council condemned the United States for violating the U.N. Charter by its military deployment in the Gulf.

The Libyan leader told a press conference here that the Security Council "must adopt a resolution declaring null and void the decision of the United States and its allies to resort to force to apply Security Council Resolution 661", which approved an trade, financial and arms embargo on Iraq and Kuwait following Iraq's August 2 invasion of the emirate.

"If the U.N. is incapable of keeping world peace, then there is no reason to remain a member of it," Colonel Kadhafi said.

He also accused Saudi Arabia of violating the charter of the Arab League by "calling for help from foreign troops", in a reference to the U.S. forces deploying in the kingdom.

Col. Kadhafi said he considered that Riyadh had been "realistic" in calling for foreign troops, but added that he had asked the Arab League summit in Cairo on August 10 to replace "the foreign troops with Arab ones".

NEW YORK, UNITED NATIONS, (AUG 20) - The U.N. Security Council is to meet at 10:00 p.m. Monday (0200 GMT Tuesday) to discuss the crisis in the Gulf, the world body announced.

If agreement is reached on a U.S. proposal, the 15-member council could move into formal session to adopt a resolution, a U.N. diplomat said.

The United States is seeking formal U.N. authority for the use of force to uphold a U.N. embargo of trade with Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

WARSAW (AUG. 20) - Unemployment, virtually unknown during 40 years of communist rule, has become a new plague for 700,000 Poles and worse is to come, according to Labor ministry experts.

Most people looking for work at the regional job centre here are women and many are in their twenties and thirties.

Some line up for the first time to register and be eligible for unemployment pay but most have seen the centre before, complete with notebooks and pencils.

Danuta, a fiftyish divorcee, whose grown-up daughter is living in West Germany, is a decorator whose company dressed windows of state-run stores but is now facing bankruptcy.

"Businesses are being privatized and the new owners do not need us", she said. "I'm not keen on unemployment payments because they are so humiliating but I will probably have to apply".

Robert, 19, who recently got a diploma in gastronomy, would love to open a restaurant but lacks the money to invest in a business. "My parents don't have it and loans are too expensive", he laments. But he also considers working overseas.

Referring to "people who never had a job, dropouts but also housewives", Anna Kowalska, head of the Warsaw job centre, believes that "more than one third" of the capital's 7,000 registered unemployed people are "petty swindlers".

All take advantage of social legislation that entitles them to a minimum allowance of 230,000 zlotys (24 dollars) a month.

"Forty per cent of the assistance we pay out is in minimum allowances", Mrs. Kowalska says.

However, future applicants must prove that they have worked for three months before pocketing unemployment pay if new legislation is adopted next month. The amendment will not apply to graduates.

Unemployment is relatively scarce among Warsaw workers but Mrs. Kowalska said the situation in the provinces was less bright.

According to the Labour ministry, 5.2 per cent of Poland's 13 million employees are unemployed, or 3.8 per cent of the country's working population of 18 million. Poland's total population stands at 38 million.

The rate has exceeded the 12-per cent mark in some rural areas, especially in the northeast.

In Warsaw unemployment has particularly plagued journalists -- nearly 1,000 --, people with a degree in history and geography, and artists, whereas financial experts and accountants are by far better off.

Jobs in the building industry seem safe, with a few exceptions -- Jacek, 45, a painter who has always been on his own, says competition has become tough and clients rare as the economy went from bad to worse.

He says a pay of 900,000 zlotys (95 dollars), as proposed by a state-run company, was "ridiculous".

Labour ministry experts believe that retraining and relocating goes against many unemployed people's grain but in a bid to boost the number of jobs the ministry has set up make-work schemes for 47,500 people.

According to the ministry, a new phenomenon is due to make headlines in the next months with mass dismissals looming, after more than 8,000 companies said they were planning to axe 326,000 jobs by the end of the year.

TOKYO (AUG. 20) - Restaurants, supermarkets, even large department stores and other businesses are preparing to cash in on what they expect will be a dramatic rise in demand for lunches at a new business quarter here.

The daytime population in Tokyo's Nishiguchi area will jump by 35,000 to 270,000 when the metropolitan government shifts all of its 13,000 main office workers to a mammoth building in the area by next April, officials say.

In addition, at least 22,000 citizens are expected to visit the new building everyday for various reasons as it also houses conference and public halls, a metropolitan government spokesman said.

Currently some 200,000 officials, including those at the main and 23 ward offices, are working for Tokyo's 11.6 million population.

All functions of the main office are to be shifted between October and April to a 243-meter-high (800 feet) skyscraper, now being built in Nishiguchi at a cost of 156.9 billion yen (one billion dollars).

The shift from the century-old Marunouchi business district to Nishiguchi, some seven kilometers (4.3 miles) away, will cost 14 billion yen (90 million dollars), officials said.

Nishiguchi, the westside corner of JR (Japan Railways) Shinjuku Station and formerly the place of large running water purification plants, turned into a major business quarter with swarming high-rise buildings a decade ago.

The station handling the largest number of passengers in Japan is surrounded by busy shopping and entertainment quarters on the other side.

Nearly 700,000 passengers take JR trains at Shinjuku everyday.

Trains operated by two other major companies as well as subway authorities also run in and out from the same area.

People are already forced to form a queue in front of restaurants or box-lunch selling counters at lunchtime in the Nishiguchi area.

"Lunch will be a big problem after the metropolitan government office moves in," a social critic said.

Under the catchword "Target office workers in Nishiguchi," Odakyu Department Store in the area is to double its selling counters for "bento" or box lunches next month.

Its rival Keio Department Store has opened an additional bento corner.

Odakyu expects its bento sales to soar 50 per cent after the shift of the metropolitan government office completes in April.

Traditional Japanese bento -- made of boiled rice accompanied by fish, meat or vegetables -- is sold at an average 700 yen (4.8 dollars).

"It's a good chance to increase our sales," the owner of Imasa, a bento catering shop chain operator, said, referring to the expected sudden jump in Nishiguchi's population.

Nearly 80 caterers are now providing bentos to workers in 14 skyscrapers in Nishiguchi.

Six dining rooms with a total of 2,300 seats planned in the 48-story new metropolitan government building are not enough even if they are only to serve officials, citizens say.

Officials said the metropolitan government was now considering allowing dealers to sell bentos in its new building.

Many people working in the Nishiguchi area open bentos in their offices or at a nearby park at lunchtime because of a lack of restaurants.

"I feel tired of going out to form a queque at restaurants," an office worker in a Nishiguchi high-rise building said.

SINGAPORE (AUG. 20) - Japan's Takenaka Corporation has been awarded an 80-million Singapore dollar (45-million U.S.) contract to help build a 27-story office building in Singapore, it was announced Monday.

The Straits Steamship Land Limited, a subsidiary of the government-controlled Keppel Corporation Ltd. said Takenaka won the contract amid keen competition from local and foreign contractors.

The contract was for development of the superstructure of the building in a city suburb. The 200-million dollar (112-million U.S.) building is scheduled for completion by early 1992.

TOKYO (AUG. 20) - Mitsubishi Oil Co., Ltd. said Monday it would import 190,000 barrels of synthetic gasoline from New Zealand in September following the suspension of gasoline imports from Kuwait.

Mitsubishi officials said the major Japanese oil refiner and distributor decided to order emergency imports from Petrocorp of New Zealand as planned gasoline imports from Kuwait were made impossible by sanctions leveled against Iraq after its invasion of Kuwait.

Synthetic gasoline derived from natural gas is not widely used because of high manufacturing costs.

But the product is now competitive against ordinary gasoline, whose price here has surged above 40 dollars per barrel, the officials said.

New Zealand-produced gasoline accounts for 10 per cent of Mitsubishi Oil's total monthly gasoline sales.

The price of gasoline in Japan fell to around 25 dollars per barrel in June, but started to rise again in July.

NICOSIA (AUG. 20) - Saudi Arabia is expected to supply Kuwait's overseas marketing organization with some 450,000 barrels a day of oil a day, the Middle East Economic Survey (MEES) disclosed here Monday.

By terms of an agreement under study, Saudi Arabia would provide Kuwait Petroleum International (KPI) with 150,000 barrels of crude a day in September and 300,000 in October, according to the specialist weekly newsletter.

The Saudis have also agreed to meet KPI's naphtha requirements, while the Kuwait Oil Tanker Company wants Saudi authorities to charter some Kuwaiti tankers, all 30 of which are currently outside Kuwait.

The MEES report said KPI, currently managed from its London office, was "well-placed to conduct business as usual."

The company has some 15 million barrels of oil in tankers, loaded before Iraq's August 2 invasion and subsequent annexation of Kuwait.

In addition, eight of the 10 members of KPI's executive board are all safe and operating outside Kuwait, according to MEES.

NICOSIA (AUG. 20) - Iran is to boost deliveries of crude oil to Asian markets, notably in Japan, to one million barrels a day in the fourth quarter from 400,000 in the third, the Middle East Economic Survey (MEES) reported here Monday.

Most of the increase will be deducted from Iranian shipments destined for European markets, as Iran's capacity to expand output from its present level of three million barrels a day is limited, MEES said.

In addition, the National Iranian Oil Company (NIOC) "has secured substantialially improved price terms for its larger crude volumes to Japanese customers -- with the formulas up 0.60 dollars a barrel on Iranian Light and 1.40 dollars on Iranian Heavy," according to the specialist weekly newsletter.

The NIOC, the report said, has secured an average price hike of one dollar a barrel with Japanese refiners to take effect September 1 and to last until the end of the year.

Iran will boost deliveries to Japan to 760,000 barrels a day in the fourth quarter, up from a planned 230,000 barrels a day in the third quarter.

MEES said that as a result of the current oil embargo on Iraqi and Kuwaiti exports, Japanese customers stand to lose 370,000 barrels a day.

ABU DHABI (AUG. 20) - U.S. troops are to be deployed in the United Arab Emirates (UAE), U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said here Monday.

Mr. Cheney, quoted by an official travelling in the Gulf with him, did not disclose the number of troops nor the date of their arrival.

The UAE on Sunday announced it would become the second Gulf state after Saudi Arabia to accept the deployment of foreign troops on its territory.

A government spokesman here said the UAE would allow Arab troops and those from "friendly" nations to be stationed in the Emirates as part of international efforts to protect Gulf states against any Iraqi attack.

Some 20,000 U.S. ground and air units are deployed in Saudi Arabia as part of a multinational force to prevent Iraqi troops in neigbouring Iraqi-controlled Kuwait from launching an attack on the kingdom.

Some 5,000 troops from Egypt, Morocco, and Syria have also been dispatched to Saudi Arabia in the aftermath of Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Mr. Cheney arrived here earlier as part of a Gulf tour that has already taken him to Saudi Arabia and Bahrain for urgent talks with regional leaders on the Gulf crisis.

The official WAM news agency quoted Mr. Cheney as saying Washington was determined to defend its "friends" in the Gulf in the face the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait.

The U.S. defense secretary is to travel on to Oman before returning to Saudi Arabia later Monday to meet Saudi Defense Minister Prince Sultan bin Abdel Aziz in Jeddah.

Defense ministers in the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) are expected to meet Wednesday in Saudi Arabia to discuss ways of "coordinating" their policies in wake of the Gulf crisis.

The UAE is a member of the GCC, which also groups Saudi Arabia, Oman, Qatar, Bahrain and Kuwait. The six nations are bound by a joint defense pact.

DUBAI, UNITED ARAB EMIRATES (AUG. 20) - A senior PLO official on Monday called on Iraqi troops to withdraw from Kuwait, saying the occupation was illegal and not in Baghdad's interests.

"It is essential to get the Iraqi forces out of Kuwait. The occupation is illegal. It is in the interests of Iraq and the Arab world for the Iraqi forces to withdraw," PLO executive member Jaweed Al-Ghussein said.

The Palestine Liberation Organisation, which has close ties with Baghdad, has so far refrained from condemning Iraq's occupation of Kuwait and has attempted unsuccessfully to mediate in the crisis.

Mr. Ghussein, in an interview from his office in Abu Dhabi, also called on foreign forces to pull out of the Gulf, saying the differences between Iraq and Kuwait that prompted the August 2 invasion should be resolved "as soon as possible" by an Arab mission.

"We should avoid clashes and respect each country's borders," he said. "This is not a battlefield. This is a lively and important area for the world. Foreign forces must not stay here to dominate the area."

In a statement issued in Tunis on Sunday, the PLO charged that resentment over its mediation bid had prompted the expulsion of Palestinians from Gulf countries

But Mr. Ghussein, chairman of Palestine National Fund and the PLO's de facto finance minister, said he was "not aware of any Palestinians being expelled."

He also "categorically" denied witness reports that Palestinians were involved in militias helping Iraqi troops police Kuwait city.

Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied territoires have staged big demonstrations in support of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein since the crisis began.

PARIS (AUG. 20) - Six French nationals have been forcibly moved from a hotel in Kuwait to an unknown destination, the French Foreign Ministry said Monday.

The transfer brings the number of French citizens scattered by the Iraqi authorities to 33, with 26 from Baghdad and seven from Kuwait which was annexed by Baghdad on August 2.

The six were taken from the hotel Regency early Sunday, according to the foreign ministry. In London, the Foreign Office said 82 Britons had been moved from the same hotel since Sunday.

A foreign ministry spokesman also denied French media reports that French authorities had deliberately covered up the earlier internment of the 26 French nationals among a group of other foreigners inside Iraq.

Such "speculation" about a "deliberate delay" in making public the fate of French nationals was "totally groundless", the spokesman said.

The foreign ministry only announced on Sunday that French nationals were among groups of foreign internees, while according to their families they were moved on Thursday.

An adviser to Palestine Liberation Organisation chief Yasser Arafat, Bassam Abu Sharif, had said in a radio interview broadcast here Saturday that the PLO had received assurances that the 500 French citizens in Iraq and Kuwait would be "treated as friends".

France was Baghdad's second largest military arms supplier, after Moscow, until last May, and only on Sunday announced that its ships in the Gulf had been given instructions and resort to force if necessary under a U.N. embargo.

The International Herald Tribune, quoting Arab diplomats, said Monday that France had secretly sought separate treatment for French citizens trapped in Iraq, and had only adopted a tougher stand on Sunday after this policy "appeared to reach a dead end".

LONDON (AUG. 20) - The dry cargo market was unsettled by an easing of rates obtained by grain carriers on trans-Atlantic trips over the past week, following recent rises linked to events in the Gulf, traders said.

The BIFFEX (Baltic International Freight Futures Exchange) index lost six points on the week and finished at 1,226 points.

A 55,000-tonne grain carrier was fixed from the U.S. Gulf to Europe at 11.5 dollarstonne, 50 cents lower than the previous week. As a result, brokers lowered their nominal rate on that route to 11.7 dollars per tonne against 12.3 dollars at the end of the previous week.

This weakness outweighed improvements on the U.S. Gulf to Japan route, where a 52,000-tonne vessel obtained 21.5 dollars per tonne against 20.9 the previous week. The nominal rate for this route rose from 21.092 to 21.5

dollarstonne.

Indian charterers switched to the U.S. Gulf for fixings of fertiliser cargoes, as most of their supplies from the Middle East were cut off by the trade embargo. They fixed a 20,000-tonne vessel from the U.S. Gulf to west coast India at 35.75 dollarstonne, which compares with 40 dollars for the previous comparable fixture at the middle of June.

In the ore sector, a 90,000-tonne vessel obtained 4 dollarstonne on the West AfricaEurope route, against 3.75 dollars at the beginning of June.

In timecharter, a 25,000-30,000 tonner obtained 6,500 dollars per day against 5,600 at the end of July for a South Africa to Europe trip.

Rates also improved for 25,000-40,000 tonne vessels on the Far East to Europe route, with one vessel fixed at 5,750 dollars per day against 5,500 in June.

But a Panamax vessel (50,000 to 70,000 tonnes) on a round voyage between Japan and Australia had to accept 7,750 dollarsday against 8,500 dollars the previous week.

STUTTGART (AUG. 20) - Over 3,400 charges involving the wartime murder of Jews have been laid here against a 78-year-old German man, Josef Schwammberger, who was extradited from Argentina three months ago, prosecution authorities announced Monday.

The former Ss officer is accused of himself ordering the killing of at least 50 Jewish men and women between 1941 and 1944. He was commandant of Mielec forced labour camp near Cracow, Poland.

Another 3,377 accessory-to-murder charges involve killings he organised on orders from higher up in the Nazi chain of command.

Schwamberger's case took so long to come to justice because he fled to Argentina after the war. After a warrant was issued for his arrest in 1972 he fought his extradition through Argentine courts.

It took 17 years for Argentina to agree to detain him and send him to West Germany in May this year.

West German officials said Monday Schwamberger was able to stand up to detention and a trial despite his age. He admits shooting dead one person, but has rejected all the other charges.

BONN (AUG. 20) - Two parliamentary subcommittees were called into session Monday in Bonn to discuss the Gulf situation and a possible deployment of West German forces in the region, a matter of great controversy here.

Since World War Two, West Germany has always avoided sending troops outside the sphere of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (Nato), maintaining that under its constitution, the military forces are defensive in nature.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl, who said last week that West Germany could not refuse to show solidarity, was due to meet later on Monday with the leaders of the Christian Democrat (Cdu) and liberal (Fdp) coalition parties and of the Social Democrat (Spd) opposition.

The liberals and the Social Democrats so far have opposed sending West German troops to the Gulf.

The consultations are in preparation for Tuesday's meeting of foreign and defence ministers of the Western European Union, a nine-member alliance to coordinate European defence policy.

DAR ES SALAAM (AUG. 20) - Tanzania had earned 11.5 billion shillings (59.4 million U.S. dollars) from export of 218,984 bales of cotton by the end of the crop season last June, the Tanzanian Cotton Marketing Board (TCMB) announced here Monday.

The board said that the figure, 51 cent higher than 1988 but 9.3 per cent lower that the 1987 figure, was in addition to the 72,939 bales worth 2.6 billion shillings (13.4 million dollars) sold to local textile mills during the same crop season.

In future, the TCMB plans to process its cotton in an effort to give the crop an added value as the price for raw cotton was unstable in the world market, the board said.

Meanwhile, Tanzania's dried cassava entered the world market for the first time last season when a local cooperative union exported 1.4 million kilogrammes worth 26 million shillings (133,000 dollars) to Britain on a trial basis.

Southern Tanzanian regions of Lindi and Mtwara are the country's leading cassava producers, but lack export markets.

KUALA LUMPUR (AUG. 20) - Malaysia's crude palm oil production rose eight percent to 561,901 tons in July from 519,908 tons in June, figures released by the official Statistics Department showed Monday.

The department said cumulative production for the first seven months this year showed an increase of 13 percent to 3.5 million tons compared with 2.97 million tons in the same period of last year.

It said that total palm oil stocks stood at 835,370 tons at the end of July, up 0.55 percent from 830,802 tons a month earlier.

The department said crude palm oil stocks rose marginally to 513,723 tons at the end of July from 511,334 tons at the end of June while processed palm oil stocks rose to 321,647 tons from 319,468 tons during the same period.

It said that a 15 percent drop was registered in processed palm oil exports to 480,893 tons in June while cumulative exports for the first six months showed an increase of 18 percent to 2.84 million tons compared to the same period of last year.

Pakistan was the largest importer of processed palm oil, taking 409,385 tons, followed by Singapore (372,107 tons), China (292,214 tons), India (255,291 tons), Egypt (147,981 tons), Japan (135,755 tons), Soviet Union (117,428 tons) and Iraq (113,558 tons).

The eight countries accounted for 65 percent of the total exports in the first half of this year.

(AUG. 20) UPI - The GATT-sponsored talks seek to provide guidelines for 25 areas of international trade ranging from services and investment to textiles and tropical goods. Agriculture, however, is widely acknowledged as the most difficult area.

Mr. Yeutter, while deploring the lack of access to the Japanese rice market, reserved his strongest criticism for the European Economic Community.

The community's "stratospheric" export subsidies are the "most onerous practice" and the biggest obtacle to reforming international trade in agriculture, he said.

The visiting secretary predicted that liberalising rice markets would boost investment opportunities in the same way as the recent liberalisation of beef had led to Japanese buying cattle farms in the United States and Australia.

"There will be chances for Japanese farmers to do something similar," he said. "Whether it's in the United States or Thailand remains to be seen."

He noted, however, that rice-producing land in the United States was cheaper than in Thailand, the world's biggest rice exporter.

"Operations in Thailand will have to be altered," he said. "It will face very severe challenges a few years from now from countries such as Vietnam " he said.

Mr. Yeutter's visit to Japan follows a tour of Malaysia, Thailand and Hong Kong.

NAIROBI (AUG. 20) - Labor Minister Peter Okondo resigned from the Kenya government on Monday after the death in a car crash of a dissident bishop who said the minister had threatened his life.

Anglican bishop Alexander Muge, an outspoken critic of the government, said last week that Mr. Okondo had told a meeting in his Busia constituency in western Kenya that if the bishop went there, he "may not leave alive".

Bishop Muge went to Busia and was killed the next day on the way back to his Eldoret diocese in a head-on collision with a lorry.

The police said it was a straightforward accident, but the government has ordered an inquest.

The official Kenya News Agency said Mr. Okondo had resigned "after consideration and appropriate consultations regarding words I am reported to have uttered at Busia".

MANILA (AUG. 20) - President Corazon Aquino Monday blamed the spate of bombings in Manila on ''terrorists'' but said she would neither declare an emergency nor seek more powers from congress.

Bomb threats continued to sweep the Philippine capital as the armed forces repeatedly assured the nation that renegade soldiers led by cashiered army colonel Gregorio ''Gringo'' Honasan were incapable of mounting another power grab.

Meanwhile, three unidentified men gunned down the mayor of a northern town inside his rented apartment in Manila's Santa Cruz district, hours after a security aide of a suburban city official was also shot to death.

Security at the palace and at major army camps was tightened amid fresh coup jitters and the bombings of eight government buildings and private establishments the military has blamed on the rebel soldiers.

''As of now there is no necessity for doing so,'' said Aquino when asked if she was prepared to declare a state of emergency or seek emergency powers from congress.

''We will just study very closely the developments as they come,'' she said, appealing to the nation to condemn ''terrorist acts''.

Honasan has warned that his Revolutionary Alliance of the Masses (Ram) would attack government targets following the massive military operations launched against a Ram stronghold in northern Mindanao.

Authorities denied press accounts that 15 soldiers had been killed and 34 wounded in fierce encounters with rebel troops under dismissed colonel Alexander Noble who is holed up in Agusan province.

NEW DELHI (AUG. 20) - Detectives have seized heroin worth 34 million dollars in one of year's biggest hauls and are hunting for a drug kingpin believed to be linked with India's cinema industry, a newspaper said Monday.

The Statesman daily said federal anti-narcotics agents seized 60 kilograms (132 pounds) of refined heroin from central Rajasthan state's city of Jodhpur and arrested four people in connection with the haul.

The seizure was made Saturday, the officials said.

It was not known whether the contraband, found buried under stones, was scheduled for clandestine export abroad, but the newspaper said detectives were searching for the gang leader believed to be linked to the prosperous film industry in Bombay, the hub of Indian cinema.

Indian drug enforcement officials say the transit route has shifted from India to the Balkan states, from where drug supplies are shipped to North America and Europe.

This year's largest drug haul of 400 kilograms (880 pounds) worth 242 million dollars was made February 9 in Bombay --- which has an estimated 100,000 drug addicts.

FRANKFURT (AUG. 20) - West German prosecutors said Monday they were getting no cooperation from six men arrested last week in connection with shipments of parts for a chemical arms plant in Iraq.

A spokesman said the employees are ''strongly suspected'' of having delivered construction elements for a factory near Asmara, Iraq, in contravention of West German foreign trade regulations.

He said some refused to answer questions while others denied the charges. Initial reports that seven employees had been arrested were not true. Five men were still under arrest while a sixth was temporarily freed for health reasons.

The suspects are employees of the W.E.T. firm in Hamburg and the now-defunct Pilot Plant company near Frankfurt. Three of the men were formerly employed by the Preussag company in Hanover. Preussag has said it dismissed them in 1985 when their participation in establishing the W.E.T. company became known.

Prosecuting authorities in Darmstadt near here, who are conducting the investigation, said a Swiss chemical expert, Werner Richarz, had testified that the factory in Asmara shows ''construction details characteristic for producing and portioning out the chemical battle agents Lost and Tabun.''

According to Richarz, the nozzles of the distribution system had exactly the right diameter to fill gas grenades with deadly chemicals.

HELSINKI (AUG, 20) - The Finnish government announced Monday that it will extradite a Soviet hijacker who forced an Aeroflot airliner to fly to Finland on June 24.

Justice minister Tarja Halonen told a press conference here that 20-year-old Mikhail Vorfolomeyev would be sent back to the Soviet Union on condition that he would only face trial on hijacking charges.

Vorfolomeyev, who said he was forced to undergo psychiatric treatment in the Soviet Union because he did not want to be drafted into the army, requested political asylum in Finland but was turned down.

The Soviet hijacker was classified in his military passport as being mentally ill but a team of Finnish doctors who interviewed Vorfolomeyev said he was in good health.

Vorfolomeyev is the second Soviet hijacker to be extradited by Finland inside a month. On July 24 the government decided to return 20-year-old Oleg Kozlov who hijacked a Soviet plane to Helsinki on June 19.

ANKARA (AUG. 20) - A 44th child Sunday joined the household of a farmer of modest means in eastern Turkey, press reports said Monday.

Newspapers identified the proud father as Sirin Yavuz, 43, a tobacco grower in the eastern province of Mus who reportedly has four wives.

The newcomer has reportedly become the 12th child born by Gulsum Daglar, the 44-year-old second wife.

Hasibe Yavuz, 43, the first and legal wife, still holds the record of 13 children by the enterprising father.

Melek Yilmaz, 38, lined up third with 11 children and Hatice Golbasi, the youngest wife at 36, trailed with only eight.

Yavuz told reporters only eight of his offspring could attend school while the rest helped him in the tobacco fields.

He put the blame on his wives, saying they ''broke their promise'' about practicing birth control.

But he added: ''As long as they don't care about having more babies, I don't mind fathering them.''

Although he would not call himself a man of means, he said the family ''was not hungry either''. But he expressed gratitude to the provincial governor who, he said, had promised him financial help to repair the roof of his house.

SINGAPORE (AUG. 20) - The Singapore rubber market saw mixed trading on Monday with prices of the RSS improving slightly.

Local rubber dealers were continuing to monitor developments in the Iraq-Kuwait conflict when the local market opened in the morning and were still unwilling to commit themselves to fresh positions.

The paper RSS basis September was quoted at 158.00 Singapore cents (88.3 U.S. cents) per kilo per buyer at the opening, and in very quiet thin trading, the prices of nearby months advanced on short covering.

The TSR Award market, however, was quiet with a slightly better undertone mainly because sellers were reluctant to make firm orders.

Activity in the noon session was brisk with participation of both local and European traders, which moved prices of the nearby months for the RSS higher.

The RSS basis September climbed to a high of 161.25 Singapore cents (90.1 U.S. cents) per kilo per buyer, some 3.25 Singapore cents higher than its opening price.

The TSR Award market inched up a cent against the RSS with little business done.

MOSCOW (AUG. 20) - Less than 800 Armenian men responded to a draft call issued this spring, reflecting a prevalent tendency in Georgia and the Baltic republics, according to Soviet Defense Minister Dmitri Iazov.

In an article in the army daily Red Star, Marshal Iazov said that "the spring call-up practically failed in Armenia (7.5 per cent responding) and Georgia (28 per cent)."

The draft, which is obligatory for Soviet youths at the age of 19, also ran into difficulty in Lithuania (40.7 percent), Estonia (42.1 per cent) and Lithuania (55.3 per cent), according to the article.

Military service in the Soviet Union lasts two years in the army and air force, and three years in the navy.

Meanwhile, two young Soviet conscripts who deserted an army base in the Ukraine with a large number of weapons were killed in a gunbattle by one of the patrols assigned to capture them, Pravda said Monday.

The two deserters, both 20 years old, tied up an officer and wounded an aide de camp with a bayonette during their escape.

They took with them a light machine gun, three Kalashnikov assault rifles, 15 pistols, 20 grenades and ammunition, according to Pravda.

MANILA (AUG. 20) - The Philippine government defended Monday its proposed tariff reduction scheme in the face of calls by business groups and Congress for continued protection against imports.

The National Economic Development Authority (NEDA) said an import liberalization program begun in 1986 had helped Philippine industry, and the proposed tariff reform scheme would boost its benefits further.

The statement came amid clamor by Congress and business groups for the suspension of an order signed by President Corazon Aquino in July to lower and simplify tariffs, with September 1 as the target date of implementation.

Presidential spokesman Adolf Azcuna said Monday that it was up to Congress, not the president, to pass a law postponing the effective date of the tariff reform order.

NEDA disputed statements that import liberalization and tariff reform would harm the economy, saying it would instead force industries to lower prices and be more competitive.

"It is not import liberalization in the ordinary sense, but more properly a cost reduction program or, better yet, an efficiency-enhancement program," the NEDA said.

It added that the tariff reform would benefit industries, "as they will enjoy lower rates of duty for capital equipment, replacement parts and... raw materials."

NEDA admitted however that lowering tariffs may harm long-protected industries, cause a further rise in the trade deficit and even increase unemployment in the short term. But in the long run, it would result in "sustainable growth and development" as Philippine industries became more efficient, the agency said.

NEDA also dismissed reports that import liberalization resulted in a flood of consumer goods, saying figures showed that the bulk of imported goods consisted of raw materials, capital goods and mineral fuels.

PARIS (AUG. 20) - France has joined the United States, Britain and Belgium in rejecting the conditions outlined Sunday by Iraq for the release of foreigners held in Irak, a foreign ministry spokesman said Monday.

The proposals made by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein "do not respond to the conditions laid out by the United Nations Security Council, which are the immediate and unconditional withdrawal from Kuwait," the spokesman said.

"Iraq's obligations with regards to foreign citizens are defined by international law," he added.

On Sunday, Mr. Hussein proposed freeing foreigners held in Iraq and Kuwait in exchange for the retreat of U.S. forces from Saudi Arabia and the lifting of the embargo imposed by the United Nations.

TEL AVIV (AUG. 20) - Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy exposed deep differences in the government Monday calling for the immediate distribution to the general population of gas masks and protective equipment against chemical warfare.

Defence Minister Moshe Arens and senior army officials dismissed Levy's call, arguing that despite Iraqi threats of chemical warfare there was no need to distribute the equipment and publishing an announcement that ''nothing has happened to alter that decision''.

Political sources said Levy was not the only minister to support the distrubution of the equipment - opposed by the defence establishment on the grounds that it would increase panic, cause damage to the equipment and could be interpreted by Iraq as a preparatory move for an Israeli pre-emptive strike.

Defence officials reitreated Sunday that gas masks and chemical warfare equipment for Israel's 4.5 million citizens were stored in regional depots and could be distributed within 24 hours, a claim rejected by Levy as ''unrealistic''.

SYDNEY (AUG. 20) - Two women have developed full-blown AIDS eight years after receiving sperm from an infected artificial insemination donor, doctors said Monday.

Graeme Stewart, from Westmead Hospital, said four women tested positive for Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV), which causes the fatal disease, in 1985 after receiving sperm from a man unaware he had Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome.

He was unsure whether the two remaining HIV-positive women would develop full-blown AIDS, which robs the body of its ability to fight infection.

"All that we know is that about 50 per cent (of HIV-positive people) develop full-blown AIDS."

Another four women had received sperm from the man but had not tested positive for HIV, he said.

None of the eight women had given birth following the artificial insemination.

Sperm banks around Australia were closed for five months in 1984 after the National AIDS Advisory Committee became aware of the risk of infection and were only allowed to reopen five months later after introducing strict screening procedures.

BAGHDAD (AUG. 20) - Iraq renewed Monday its warning to all diplomatic missions in Kuwait to close down by August 24, saying that from the following day diplomats would be dealt with as normal foreign citizens.

The announcement by the Iraqi foreign ministry, carried over Baghdad radio, recalled a similar statement of August 9, to which several Western countries have since replied they will not close their embassies in Kuwait.

The Iraqi occupying forces Monday picked up 82 Britons from the Kuwait Regency Hotel. According to foreign ministry officials in London, the Iraqis also hold 14 Britons from the Kuwait International Hotel and about 27 picked up at roadblocks.

British diplomats in Kuwait and Baghdad were trying to get in touch with those held, but it appeared that the whereabouts of some of them were not known.

The Iraqis are now believed to hold a total of 123 British nationals, in addition to 66 military personnel seized when Iraqi forces marched into Kuwait, according to a report by Bbc radio.

The foreign ministry continued to advise Britons to ignore the Iraqi order to gather at hotels in Kuwait and told them again to ''keep a low profile''.

The French foreign ministry disclosed that the Iraqis seized another six Frenchmen in Kuwait, bringing the total held in Kuwait to seven and in Baghdad to 26.

Some 35 U.S. citizens were reported to have sought refuge in the U.S. mission in Baghdad. It was not immediately clear why they and not others were given shelter.

Like the Britons, other Western nationals in Kuwait were told by their governments or embassies that it was best to stay at home.

The Dutch foreign ministry said it was unable to tell whether its 84 nationals in Kuwait have also been ordered to assemble at hotels.

Italy said about 350 Italians in Iraq and 150 in Kuwait are still in hotels or residences and none so far had been rounded up to be taken to strategic points.

The Spanish government said 184 of its citizens were in Kuwait but they were believed to be in a ''less exposed position'' than other foreigners.

The foreign ministers of the European Community (E.C.) countries were scheduled to meet in Paris on Tuesday to discuss the fate of the foreigners, following a meeting of the nine-member Western European Union which coordinates European defence policy.

Meanwhile, another 122 Soviet citizens including 78 military advisers plus wives and children have been allowed by the Iraqi authorities to leave for Jordan. Some 224 Soviet oil workers have already been flown home.

Czechoslovak authorities in Prague said 98 Czechoslovak nationals arrived Monday in Baghdad and would be allowed to go home via Amman.

Thousands of foreign workers from Arab and Asian countries continue to pour into Saudi Arabia and Jordan from Iraq. Reports said that more than 100,000 had left Iraq since the outbreak of the crisis.

Jordan was said to have been unsuccessful in trying to have Iraq limit the daily number of people crossing the border to 5,000.

In Moscow, a foreign ministry spokesman said that Iraq's deputy premier, Saadun Hammadi, who arrived Monday for a previously unannounced visit, would be discussing the evacuation of Soviet citizens from Iraq. He gave the number of Soviet citizens in Iraq as 9,000.

He said the Soviets would stress to Hammadi that U.N. Security Council resolution No. 660 calling on Iraq to withdraw its forces from Kuwait must be fulfilled.

A special Soviet envoy to the Middle East, Mikhail Setenko, arrived in Yemen Monday after meeting Syrian President Hafez Assad and visiting Egypt. He would also go to Jordan, Iraq and other Arab countries, the spokesman said.

France virtually rejected Monday the proposal which Iraqi President Saddam Hussein issued Sunday to release the foreigners in exchange for an American withdrawal from the Gulf.

A foreign ministry spokesman said Saddam ''did not reply to the question at hand'', namely the international demand that Iraq should immediately pull out of Kuwait.

He said the detention of foreigners in Iraq and Kuwait violated the Geneva agreement on the treatment of civilians. The total number of Frenchmen abducted in Iraq and Kuwait was given as 33 In Cairo, Egyptian Minister of Transport Suleiman Mitawalli said on Monday alone about 11,100 Egyptian workers from Iraq and Kuwait left for home through the Jordanian port of Aqaba.

He said the refugees and more than 300 automobiles had arrived by ferry in Nuweiba on the Sinai Peninsula. It was the highest number of refugees on a single day to date.

Meanwhile, another 36,000 Egyptian workers from Iraq and Kuwait arrived in Jordan, many in their own cars, according to the Egyptian news agency Mena.

LONDON (AUG. 20) - A diplomatic solution could still be found to the Gulf crisis but further steps may be needed to deter Iraqi aggression in the region, British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said here Monday.

Asked if he believed armed conflict was now the inevitable next step in the swiftly-evolving crisis, Mr. Hurd answered "no."

But he described the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and the continuing detainment of foreign nationals in Kuwait and Iraq as "illegal and repulsive" and said "we, along with the Americans and others, have never ruled out further measures if sanctions against Iraq do not work."

Speaking at a news conference, Mr. Hurd said the United Nations Security Council was holding "constant discussions" in New York and said it would be "considerably advantageous" if the Council approved a resolution outlining specific military steps that could be taken to enforce Baghdad's isolation.

Mr. Hurd, speaking hours after Baghdad issued an ultimatum -- Friday -- for the transferral of diplomatic representations in Kuwait to Iraq, said Britain would keep diplomats in Kuwait for as long as possible.

"Our view is that we should try to keep British officials in Kuwait" to aid the British community there, he said, adding that the Iraqi ambassador to London was "constantly being called in" to the foreign office and told of Britain's objection to Baghdad's behavior.

He reiterated the official purposes for the deployment of British forces in the Gulf, saying they had been sent to deter an Iraqi attack on Saudi Arabia and to enforce the trade embargo against Iraq already approved by the United Nations.

"I believe myself that we lived through a dangerous few days" immediately following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on August 3, during which a second invasion of Saudi Arabia could have taken place, he said.

"We may have moved partly out of that moment of immediate danger," Mr. Hurd added.

He said Britain had "no precise information" on the wherabouts of British nationals who have been rounded up by Iraqi forces and a foreign office spokesman said later that information on numbers and locations of British nationals was now "too sensitive" to be disclosed.

Mr. Hurd said he had also been in consultation with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher on the situation in the Gulf and said no decisions had yet been taken on whether to recall parliament, which has broken for summer recess.

Earlier Monday, the foreign office said that Iraqi forces had rounded up a further 82 British nationals in Kuwait and taken them to an undisclosed destination.

They had been taken from the Kuwait City's Regency Palace Hotel within the past 24 hours and moved to another location, a spokesman said.

BRUSSELS (AUG. 20) - East Germany's junior economy minister, Stefan Koerber, asked on Monday for EEC finance to help modernize his country's ailing steel industry, reliable sources said.

The European Economic Community's executive said Koerber submitted a restructuring plan as part of the program to integrate the East German economy into the EEC when the two Germanys unite.

East German steel plants have been placed in the hands of a trustee agency, the Treuhandanstalt, tasked with privatizing the country's state-owned enterprises.

Suffering from outmoded equipment and dogged by pollution problems, the industry employs between 67,000 and 80,000 persons, many of whom face redundancy.

According to figures received by the Commission, which are considered far from reliable, of East Germany's total steel output last year of 7.31 million tons, only 42 percent was produced via the efficient method of continuous casting, compared with 85 percent in the Community.

East Germany will be entitled to EEC funds to help modernize its industry and soften the social impact of restructuring before unification, which will take place after elections in East and West Germany on Dec. 2.

LONDON (AUG. 20) - New bank loans in Britain in July amounted to 3.9 billion pounds (about 7.4 billion dollars) on the widest definition, against 6.9 billion pounds in June, the Bank of England announced Monday.

The announcement was made on the basis of seasonally-corrected provisional figures.

Analysts had expected a figure of 5.3 billion pounds.

The money supply in its narrowest definition, M0 (coins and banknotes), dipped by 0.5 percent in July on the basis of seasonally-corrected provisional figures. That result is in line with analysts' expectations.

The M0 money supply is up by a bit more than 5.5 percent in a year, against a year-on-year rise of 6.5 percent in June, thus moving growth closer to the government target range of one to five percent a year.

In its widest definition, M4, which includes building societies, was unchanged in July from June, although analysts had expected a 0.5 percent increase. Its annual growth rate is down to 16.3 percent, against 16.8 in June.

The Committee of London and Scottish Bankers confirmed the trend to moderate credit expansion. In figures issued Monday, it said bank advances to the private sector were stable in July by comparison with June at 2.6 billion pounds, corrected for seasonal variations.

LONDON (AUG. 20) - British oil company British Petroleum announced Monday that it has put all of its exploration and production business in The Netherlands up for sale.

BP Nederland B.V. wants to sell its BP Exploratie B.V. subsidiary, which has dominantly natural gas interests in 23 offshore blocks with a total area of 1,670 square kilometers (about 650 square miles) and two land zones covering 1,374 square kilometers (about 535 square miles).

This is a "very small operation for the size of BP", said oil analyst Mark Dixon at UBS Phillips and Drew, who estimated the sale price at 50 million pounds (96 million dollars).

BP Exploration Managing Director John Browne said "The proposed sale is in line with . . . our future strategic direction, which involves greater concentration on our core producing assets and frontier exploration".

Early this year, BP sold fields of minor importance in the North Sea, Indonesia and Colombia to U.S. oil firm Oryx for 1.3 billion dollars, and some other interests to Elf for 25 million pounds.

NEW YORK (AUG. 20) - The United States and Britain were spearheading efforts Monday for a meeting of the United Nations Security Council to discuss U.N. enforcement of the international trade embargo against Iraq, diplomatic sources said.

The council's five permanent members - the United States, the Soviet Union,

China, France and Britain - held informal talks Sunday on whether a U.N. military committee can play a role in putting the U.N. flag over a multinational naval force to enforce the sanctions.

The council has unanimously demanded a withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait and has imposed tough economic sanctions against Iraqi, declaring its annexation of Kuwait ''null and void''.

But Washington has in the past few days come under criticism from many U.N. members for its interdiction of Iraqi ships.

Meanwhile in the Gulf, American warships were shadowing two Iraqi tankers that defied warning shots by U.S. warships on Saturday.

China and the Soviet Union have repeatedly made clear that any military action in the region should be taken only within the framework of the United Nations.

VIENNA (AUG. 20) - The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said here Monday there was not majority support from its 13 members to hold a special meeting to deal with Gulf developments.

Saudi Arabia had applied Sunday for an extraordinary OPEC meeting to be convened within the next few days, saying it would wait and see if agreement on higher production levels could be reached.

However, if such a conference did not take place, Riyadh would go it alone in order to reduce the effects of the Gulf crisis on oil prices, Oil minister Hisham Nazer said on U.S. television.

Riyadh has made plain it is willing to step up oil production in order to compensate for a shortfall caused by embargoed Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil without awaiting approval from fellow OPEC members.

Riyadh could raise daily production by an extra two million barrels within a matter of days. Saudi Arabia has so far adhered to the 5.38 million bd (159 litres) agreed to under an OPEC agreement.

A radio Riyadh broadcast on Sunday said Saudi Arabi did not want to put OPEC under pressure by going it alone. Hisham Nazer had ''in no way threatened'' the oil cartel but stressed the urgency of holding an emergency OPEC session.

AMMAN (AUG. 20) - Some 35,000 Egyptians who fled Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait following the Iraqi invasion of the emirate are in Jordan waiting to be sent home, Jordanian Interior Minister Salem Massa'adeh said Monday.

Mr. Massa'adeh said most of the Egyptians had left without any belongings and were being put up in four locations in Jordan until transportion was found to send them to Egypt.

Cairo has proposed to set up an airlift between Jordan and Egypt and open a direct sea route between the Red Sea port of Aqaba south of Amman and the Suez Canal to facilitate the return of its nationals.

Thirty-three out of 50 expected buses have been sent from Egypt to take expatriates entering Jordan at the Roweished border post to Aqaba, some 600 kilometers (372 miles) away.

A million Egyptian workers were in Iraq before the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait while some 200,000 Egyptians lived in the Gulf emirate.

Their return home will deal a harsh blow to Egypt's economy which largely depended on remittances from abroad and tourism.

Some 10,000 expatriates, most of them Arabs, have trekked across the desert from Iraq and entered Jordan at the Roweished border post each day for the past week.

The Norwegian ambassador to Iraq, Harold Lone, was among more than 25 foreigners who arrived Monday in Jordan by plane from Iraq, the Norwegian consulate and here said.

Mr. Lone had suffered a heart attack in Baghdad and was on his way home for treatment after his condition became more stable, the consulate said.

Fourteen Indians, seven French nationals, three Poles, a Yugoslav, several Lebanese and nationals from the United Arab Emirates (UAE) were also aboard the Iraqi plane that arrived here.

Reports from Lausanne, Switzerland, indicated meanwhile that 40 Westerners were expected to leave Iraq and arrive in Jordan Tuesday aboard chartered buses that service the Swiss carrier Swissair.

Swiss ambassador to Jordan Dino Schauli told Swiss radio in Amman the group would include 15 Swiss nationals, Austrians, Swedes, Finns and Portuguese.

Iraq's parliamentary speaker Saadi Mehdi Saleh announced Sunday that some nationals from those countries would be free to leave Iraq because their governments had not joined a multinational troop buildup in the Gulf.

He added that another group would be released depending on their government's attitude to U.N. trade sanctions against Iraq.

Elsewhere, a second group of 5,000 Iranians residing in Kuwait arrived in Iran on Monday from the southwestern border town of Shalamjah, after having transited through southern Iraq, Teheran radio reported.

Five thousand other Iranians had made the same trek on Sunday.

MANILA (AUG. 20) - President Corazon Aquino said Monday her elite security force was conducting exercises to thwart any new coup attempt amid a wave of mysterious bombings and shootings in the Philippine capital.

"It is always better to be prepared than to be sorry later on," Mrs. Aquino told a news conference here.

She admitted that the Presidential Security Group (PSG) was conducting such exercises around the Malacanang presidential palace.

Mrs. Aquino said preparation had "paid off" during 1987 and 1989 coup attempts when renegade units attacked the palace but were repulsed by the PSG.

The armed forces have been on full alert since Friday amid rumors of a fresh plot against Mrs. Aquino, who has survived six coup attempts in four years.

The rumors followed a wave of bombings that began last week and calls from fugitive rebel leader Gregorio Honasan, a dismissed army colonel idolized by many soldiers, for a resumption of "tactical operations" by his forces.

Among those damaged by the explosions last week were the trade department and a school building near the presidential palace.

Over the weekend four bombs exploded outside the Justice Department building, a police precinct, a shopping center and an office building, where a security guard was slightly wounded.

Renegade soldiers were widely believed to have been behind the bombings.

The attacks followed a government campaign against mutineers in the southern island of Mindanao, led by former PSG deputy chief Colonel Alexander Noble, a leader of December's bloody coup attempt.

"What we are up against are terrorists," Mrs. Aquino said Monday. "I would like to make an appeal that, for us who believe in democracy, and who believe in peace processes, to condemn these terroristic acts."

She said military officials have told her the renegade troops "do not have any capability" to mount a coup of the scope launched in December last year, when she had to call in U.S. warplanes to provide cover for loyal troops.

Meanwhile, unidentified men in a car fired shots at a suburban police station before dawn here Monday, wounding a bystander, police said.

Investigators said the assailants sped off after firing at the police station with an M-14 rifle but refused to name any suspects.

In the news conference, Mrs. Aquino said she wanted to go ahead with a second state visit to Japan later this year but hinted that coup threats and other domestic problems could force her to stay home.

The Aquino government has recently been troubled by effects of the July 16 earthquake, which caused widespread destruction across the country's main island of Luzon.

The Gulf crisis stemming from Iraq's invasion of Kuwait has threatened both the Philippine oil supply and the welfare of thousands of Filipino workers in the Middle East.

Asked if she would attend the coronation of Japanese Emperor Akihito, expected in November, in view of her domestic problems, Mrs. Aquino said "as of now, yes."

"I have already informed the Japanese government that I will be going there. However, I will act according to what I believe is the national interest."

Rebel military officers led by Mr. Honasan tried to seize power when she made her first state visit to Japan in November 1986.

The plot, codenamed "God Save the Queen," would have turned her into a figurehead leader, government officials said.

Loyal officers led by then armed forces chief General Ramos thwarted the plot and Mrs. Aquino sacked defense minister Juan Ponce Enrile after he was linked to the conspiracy.

Mr. Ramos was named defense secretary, and Mr. Enrile has since become an opposition senator.

LONDON (AUG. 20) - With the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait nearing its third week, the Kuwaiti daily Al-Qabas has transferred its editorial headquarters to London and is operating as a "wartime resistance" newspaper, the editor said here Monday.

"The privileges of peace have stopped and we are now a resistance newspaper operating in a wartime situation," editor-in-chief Mohammed Alrumaihi said.

"When the invaders came they asked us to continue publishing business as usual. We refused," Mr. Alrumaihi said.

Speaking in a telephone interview with AFP, Mr. Alrumaihi, 49, described how the paper was now publishing a daily five-page edition compiled here by a skeleton staff of five journalists.

He said many of the paper's 150 reporters and editors were still in Kuwait City where the daily was based prior to the Iraqi invasion on August 2 with "some of them in hiding, others taken as hostages."

"We have our own sources inside Kuwait and very good connections for Gulf news," Mr. Alrumaihi said, adding that the paper was no longer "interested" in international news as such but only in the Gulf crisis.

Al-Qabas was using satellite technology to transmit facsimile copies for publication in London, New York, Cairo and at three sites in Saudi Arabia at Jeddah, Riyadh and Dahran.

Mr. Alrumaihi said that some 7,000 copies of the newspaper were being printed daily at the site in Dahran and of those "a good number" were being smuggled into Kuwait.

"A good many of our people are living in Saudi Arabia along the border with Kuwait and are smuggling the newspaper inside," he said, adding that passive resistance to the Iraqi occupation was strong inside Kuwait.

DHAKA (AUG. 20) - Iraq has said it is ready to release 443 Bangladeshis held captive in Baghdad, a senior official said here Monday.

But Foreign Secretary Abul Ahsan said Dhaka was witholding a decision on their evacuation pending clarification on whether they were being expelled.

Mr. Ahsan told reporters the situation in Iraq was unchanged, but Baghdad has "indicated that our citizens could be allowed to leave if Dhaka arranged their evacuation."

Dhaka had sought clarification on their families, belongings and savings, he said.

The Bangladeshis, who were working in Kuwaiti defence installations, were arrested after Iraqi troops invaded the tiny emirate August 2 and subsequently held captive in Baghdad.

Iraq was still refusing consular services for the captives despite repeated requests, Mr. Ahsan said, but added that he had been assured of their safety.

The foreign secretary said he had no knowledge about citizens employed in Baghdad or Kuwait being prevented from leaving, although the flow has been greatly cut during the last few days.

Some 80,000 Bangladeshis were in Iraq and Kuwait at the time of the invasion.

Nine people in two cars with valid travel documents reached Jordan on Sunday, he said, quoting a senior Bangladeshi diplomat in Amman, where 44 Bangladeshi nationals have taken shelter.

Meanwhile, a Foreign Office spokesman said Monday that the national flag carrier Biman would start evacuating from August 22 more than 6,000 Bangladeshis in Saudi Arabia after fleeing Kuwait.

HANOI (AUG. 20) - Michio Watanabe, a high-profile member of Japan's ruling party, arrives here Tuesday on a visit aimed at boosting ties with Hanoi and viewed with great interest at home by businesses keen to break into Vietnam's vast market.

Mr. Watanabe, a veteran and highly popular Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) politician, is to fly here from Phnom Penh after meeting leaders of Cambodia's Vietnamese-installed government.

He is scheduled to meet Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach, State Planning Commission Chairman Phan Van Khai and he "probably will see (Communist Party chief) Nguyen Van Linh and (Premier) Do Muoi," a Japanese diplomat here said.

Mr. Watanabe, 67, who has held the finance, international trade and industry, agriculture and welfare portfolios during his political career with the LDP was expected to discuss the Cambodian conflict and ways to enhance bilateral relations between Japan and Vietnam, the senior diplomat said.

The high-profile official is also expected to discuss economic matters, the envoy said, adding that "quite a lot of people, including businessmen, are looking at his visit with interest."

"If it is very successful... his image will be improved," the official said of Mr. Watanabe, head of an important LDP faction who has been widely tipped in Japan as an eventual party leader and premier.

Cambodia and Vietnam have become topics of major concern in Japanese policy this year among both politicians and businessmen.

Japan has this year taken major steps to mediate the Cambodian conflict, and in June hosted a meeting between Phnom Penh Premier Hun Sen and resistance leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk even though Tokyo has to date supported the three-party opposition movement.

Businessmen will in particular be eyeing the Vietnam leg of the trip which includes a visit Thursday to Ho Chi Minh City where Mr. Watanabe will visit a factory producing high-quality rice with Japanese milling equipment.

Japan is now Vietnam's second largest trading partner after the Soviet Union.

Two-way trade last year was worth just 512 million dollars because of outstanding differences over Cambodia, but trade increased sharply in the first five months of this year.

Japanese industry statistics showed exports up 85 per cent over a year earlier at 13.5 billion yen (90 million dollars), while imports doubled to 29.5 billion yen (196 million dollars).

Vietnamese officials are expected to telling Mr. Watanabe that they wanted economic assistance and to be allowed to join the international economic community, according to Japanese officials.

Japanese businessmen have long yearned for a larger foothold in the vast Vietnamese market with its population of 65 million, observers noted.

But Tokyo has been cautious about expanding economic links for fear of angering the United States, which unlike Japan does not recognise Hanoi and has maintained a trade embargo on Vietnam since 1975.

However, ties between Hanoi and Washington have improved recently and the United States said last month that it would no longer recognise the United Nations seat held by the Cambodian resistance coalition, essentially because it includes the Khmer Rouge who ruled through terror from 1975-79.

There has also been talk of lifting the embargo.

Reports from Japan say firms there see these as encouraging signs with one industrial source noting that Vietnam was "the last remaining Southeast Asian market of the future with abundant natural resources and a cheap labour force."

Several major Japanese companies, including Mitsui and Mitsubishi Corp. have begun moving in on the market with Vietnamese encouragement.

Deputy Foreign Minister Tran Quang Co said recently "We cannot underestimate the importance of Japan, especially in this region where it has powerful cards to play in the face of competition from other developed countries."

Mr. Watanabe, who visited Vietnam in May, leaves for Thailand on Saturday before visiting Indonesia, the diplomat said.

KUALA LUMPUR (AUG. 20) - Buoyant economic growth fuelled by expanding investments and domestic demand has sharply reduced unemployment, which until recently was the Malaysian government's major worry, officials said Monday.

A government Manpower Department report released Wednesday said the unemployment rate had fallen to less than 6.5 per cent, and warned of a wage spiral unless measures are taken to match demand and supply of workers.

Finance Minister Daim Zainuddin told a meeting of businessmen recently that Malaysia may have reached full employment, which most economists define as a rate of unemployent of three to four per cent.

Mr. Daim said labour shortages had emerged in factories and rubber and palm oil plantations, citing as evidence the large number of newspaper advertisments for workers in industrial zones in Penang, Johore and Kedah states.

Malaysian plantations have drawn tens of thousands of workers, mainly from Indonesia.

Unemployment peaked in 1987 when an estimated 524,800 workers of Malaysia's 6.4 million labour force were out of work after two years of virtually no growth in 1985 and 1986, according to central bank figures.

But three consecutive years of rapid growth in gross domestic product (GDP), averaging 8.5 per cent between 1987 and last year, rapidly expanded employment opportunities, resulting in serious shortages in some industries.

"We are facing a serious shortage, particularly of skilled technicians, which has resulted in some companies pinching workers off others," said Rama Naidu, assistant personnel manager for the Matsushita Electric Company, which employs some 1,700 workers.

He said many employers had taken to directly recruiting technicians and engineers from schools and colleges.

"Even then we are not sure whether they will show up for work," Mr. Naidu said.

Unemployment was estimated at 8.1 per cent in 1988 and 7.9 per cent last year, when the labour force totalled 6.8 million, according to Manpower Department and central bank figures.

During the last three years, the government operated a clearing house to seek jobs and provide on-the-job training for thousands of university graduates, fearing they might spark social unrest.

Some 4,000 graduates participated in the scheme in 1986, but their numbers steadily fell to about 1,700 at the end of last year, officials said.

While unemployment among univeristy graduates remains high, officials now say the problem is more the result of a mismatch between qualifications and employers' needs, rather than due to any shortage of jobs.

"With the more broad-based expansion of the economy, the demand for professionals has not only increased but has also been more diverse," the Manpower Department report said.

Officials say the government's immediate problem is how to overcome a shortage of skilled workers for a burgeoning manufacturing sector boosted by a flood of investments from Taiwan, Japan, Hong Kong, South Korea and Singapore.

Mr. Daim said that during the first six months of this year, the Malaysian Industrial Development Authority approved investments worth more than 18 billion dollars (6.7 billion U.S.).

The sharp rise in foreign and domestic investments and construction activity is expected to create some 300,000 new jobs this year, slightly more than the number of new entrants into the labour market, officials said.

They said labour shortages were likely to continue because Malaysia's rapid economic growth shows no signs of slowing down -- short of a recession triggered by the Gulf crisis.

The central bank reported recently that GDP expanded by 11 per cent in the first quarter of this year, while the Malaysian Institute for Economic Research, an independent think-tank, estimated growth during the first two quarters at 10 per cent.

Officials said Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad recently ordered the creation of a high-powered cabinet committee to examine the issue and map plans to train more skilled workers, particularly for industry.

PARIS (AUG. 20) - French industrial output, excluding building and public works, rose by only 0.44 percent in June from the May level, the National Statistics and Economic Studies Institute (INSEE) said on Monday.

It said the rise was due primarily to the energy sector.

The industrial production index, excluding building and public works and corrected for seasonal variations, stood at 113.1 in June against 112.6 in May, 112.4 in April, 110.8 in March, and 110.1 in February. It was 111.7 in June last year.

The manufacturing output index was down slightly in June at 113.9, against 114.1 in May.

PARIS (AUG. 20) - The International Energy Agency (IEA) announced here Monday that it was delaying the next meeting of its steering committee from Thursday to August 31.

The meeting is to consider possible actions in the wake of the embargo ordered by the United Nations Security Council on Kuwaiti and Iraqi oil following the August 2 Iraqi takeover of Kuwait, the IEA said.

It said the meeting was being deferred to August 31 to give governments more time to evaluate oil supply prospects and to allow more consultations with the oil industry.

LUXEMBOURG (AUG. 20) - As anxiety about oil supplies continued to grip the world spot market, the EEC's lending arm, the European Investment Bank (EIB), announced a 67.83-million-dollar loan on Monday to develop a Norwegian oil field. Output from the field will go entirely to the European Economic Community (EEC) as a condition of the loan, EIB spokesman Cees Post said.

Norway is not a member of the EEC, but such loans have been made to its oil companies since 1975 to increase the security of energy supplies to the Community, Post explained.

The Veslefrikk field, being developed by Norwegian subsidiaries of West German company Deminex, is located west of Bergen, at a depth of 175 meters (568 feet).

As the field is located outside the Community, the bank needed the special authorization of its board of governors - the EEC finance and economy ministers - to fund the project.

Post said it was "only by coincidence" that the decision occurred amid worries about the world oil supplies. "We looked at this project long before the crisis in the Gulf started," he said.

Veslefrikk is estimated to contain 90.7 million tons (662 million barrels) of oil, of which 32.3 million (235 million barrels) are recoverable, plus a quantity of gas, the spokesman said.

The loan is denominated in Swiss francs, repayable over four years. The loan, to Deminex (Norge) AS and Norske Deminex, is being managed by Westdeutsche Landesbank.

CAIRO (AUG. 20) - Egypt increased its oil prices by 2.25 dollars a barrel as of Monday, the fourth rise since the Gulf crisis started on August 2, the Egypt Petroleum Office announced.

The Office said the increases over the three-week period have ranged from 1.25 to three dollars.

The committee responsible for setting Egyptian crude oil prices, which has sat continuously since Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2, discussed world oil trends on Monday.

Egypt is not a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) and sets its prices depending on market developments, but it follows OPEC directives.

Here are the new Egyptian prices (first column), by comparison with the ones announced last Wednesday:

- Gulf Crude 26.80 24.55 dollars

- Suez Crude 26.50 24.25

- Balaim 25.65 23.40

- Ras Badran 24.50 22.25

JOHANNESBURG (AUG. 20) - Fresh fighting between two rival tribes flared up overnight in the the black township of KwaThema near Springs, 30 kilometres east of here, leaving 21 people dead, police said Monday.

The latest deaths brought to at least 363 the number of people killed in one week of fighting between Xhosas and the Zulus, the country's two biggest black tribes.

Vice President Nelson Mandela of the African National Congress (Anc), the largest opposition movement, and other Anc leaders are Xhosas, while the rival Inkatha movement is a Zulu-based organisation led by Mangosuthu Buthelezi.

The influential newspaper The Star said Mandela was under mounting pressure to hold talks with Buthelezi, leader of the country's seven million Zulus, to end the strife.

But another senior Anc offficial, Walter Sisulu, spoke out against such a meeting, saying it ''would encourage the view that killing forces talks''.

Buthelezi rejected Sisulu's remarks as irresponsible.

In a related development, South African President Frederik de Klerk extended until the end of this year a personal amnesty for 38 Anc, but dropped three prominent Anc members from the list without giving a reason for the move.

The three were Chris Hani, leader of the Anc guerrillas, who is in the nominally independent Transkei, Ronnie Kasrils, former Anc secret service chief, who has gone underground, and Anc executive member Sathyandranath Maharaj, who is being held for allegedly plotting to topple the government. dpa mu 201616 aug 90

MOSCOW (AUG. 20) - At least five people were killed and several injured in clashes along the Armenia-Azerbaijan border, as tension mounted in the area, the Interfax and Tass news agencies reported Monday.

Armenian extremists opened fire Sunday on a bus carrying five passengers in the Kazakh region of Azerbaijan, near the Armenian border, killing a policeman and seriously wounding three other people, including another policeman.

Two of the wounded died Monday in hospital, Interfax said.

In a battle between Armenians and security forces following the attack on the bus, one Armenian extremist was killed, another seriously wounded and two soldiers were wounded, Tass said.

Soon after the attack on the bus Sunday, a police lieutenant was killed and an Interior Ministry soldier was seriously wounded when six Azeri villages were attacked, forcing villagers to flee, Interfax said.

Intensive fire continued all day Sunday from across the border in Armenia and resumed Monday morning, it added.

Six helicopters were called in elsewhere in Azerbaijan on Sunday to quell two other attacks against the Azeri population.

One helicopter was hit in the operation and forced to make an emergency landing, while a lieutenant-colonel was wounded in exchanges of fire between security forces and Armenians.

The sudden flare-up of violence appears to be connected to alleged taking of Armenian hostages by Azeris.

Armenian President Levon Ter-Petrossian told parliament in the Armenian capital Yerevan on Saturday that Armenian hostages had been taken near the area where violence broke out Sunday.

PARIS (AUG. 20) - Western Europe mobilized amid developments in the Gulf Monday by calling a meeting of European Economic Community foreign ministers on the hostage crisis after scheduled talks here on coordinating a European task force.

The French Foreign Ministry announced that the 12 EEC foreign ministers would meet here Tuesday to discuss the fate of foreigners trapped in Iraq and Kuwait, particularly focussing on European nationals.

The foreign ministers will gather after nine of them, along with their defence counterparts, hold an emergency session of the Western European Union (WEU) aimed at coordinating a European task force in the Gulf.

Ambassadors of the three non-WEU countries (Ireland, Greece, Denmark) in the EEC had also been invited, along with Turkey, as observers to the meeting of the only European security forum.

The decision to call a full foreign ministers' meeting here comes after Iraqi forces Sunday transferred a further 82 Britons to an unknown destination from a Kuwait hotel, after taking away 41 on Saturday. Six more French citizens were moved Sunday from the same hotel, bringing the total number of French "restrictees", as Iraq calls them, to 33.

Thomas Pickering, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, has said that Baghdad's announcement that it would begin sequestering foreign nationals and use them as military shields made it clear Iraqi President Saddam Hussein "was going to hold hostage all foreigners."

The United States, Britain and Turkey are the western countries with the most nationals in Kuwait and Iraq. Turkey has some 5,500 citizens in both countries, while Britain has 4,500 and the United States 3,100.

WEU Secretary-General Willem Eekelen said in an interview with the Paris-based International Herald Tribune Monday that the European military response aimed to demonstrate that "beside adding military assets, Europe wants to show that this is not just a U.S. commitment".

In the wake of the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, the United States responded by sending a U.S.-led multinational force to the Gulf to enforce a U.N. embargo.

"Our main goal is a political commitment that would encourage other countries such as Italy and Spain to decide to send forces," Mr. Eekelen added, referring to the "dispersed" European reaction under which Britain and France have led the European military effort in the Gulf.

Mr. Eekelen, a former Dutch defence minister, also indicated that he favoured West German participation in the European force.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl's support for Bonn's participation in a Gulf task force has sparked domestic criticism as he appeared to question the widespread view that Bonn is constitutionally prohibited from foreign military activity outside the European military theatre.

The WEU, set up in 1948, was moribund until the mid-1980s when it was revived as a forum for European defence cooperation. The WEU notably organised a joint mine-sweeping operation during the Iran-Iraq war from 1987-88, but Mr. Eekelen said the current military response would be "qualitatively much superior" to the earlier operation.

A French Foreign Ministry spokesman meanwhile denied a report in Monday's International Herald Tribune that France had sought separate treatment for its 560 nationals in Iraq and Kuwait.

"At no time has France played a solo game in this affair," the spokesman said.

BEIRUT (AUG. 20) EFE - At least 10 people were killed and 20 others wounded Monday as rival Lebanese Shiite militias clashed in the southern part of the capital, police said.

The Syrian-backed Amal and the pro-Iranian Hezbollah fought artillery duels in several districts of Beirut while Syrian troops tried to position themselves between the groups to stop the fighting.

Meanwhile, the two militias also battled each other with artillery and automatic weapons Monday in the strategic southern Lebanese region of Iqlim al-Tufah.

More than 1,000 people have died in the two-year-old conflict between the Amal and Hezbollah (Party of God) militia, who are fighting for control over Lebanon's 1.5 million Moslems.

NICOSIA (AUG. 20) EFE - Baghdad announced Monday that it will allow Argentines and Indonesians to leave Iraq and Kuwait after their governments chose not to send troops to the Persian Gulf, the official Iraqi news agency INA reported.

INA quoted an official Iraqi spokesman as saying, +In appreciation and respect of the Argentine government's decision not to send troops to the zone, and as a gesture of good faith, we have decided to facilitate the exit of Argentine citizens from Iraqi national territory.+

Another Iraqi spokesman Monday expressed satisfaction over Indonesia's decision +not to bow down to pressure from the United States to send troops to Saudi Arabia, and because of that, we will allow its citizens to leave our national territory+.

Hundreds of Indonesians and a handful of Argentines are believed to be in Iraq and Kuwait.

Baghdad agreed Sunday to allow citizens of Switzerland, Sweden, Finland, Austria and Portugal to leave Iraq and Kuwait, while vowing to hold thousands of other Westerners until the United States withdrew its forces from the Gulf region and ended a trade blockade.

There are 5,000 Britons and 3,000 Americans among the more than ten thousand Westerners trapped in Iraq and Kuwait.

MADRID (AUG 20) EFE - The Spanish government said Monday that it would keep its embassy in Kuwait open despite Iraq having ordered all foreign embassies there to close within five days.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said that the diplomatic mission would remain open to attend to the needs of the estimated 100 Spanish residents in the emirate and the 16 Spaniards who were visiting the country when Iraq invaded August 2.

The spokesman said that Spain's position would be coordinated with the other European Community nations at an emergency meeting of EC foreign ministers in Paris Tuesday to discuss the plight of EC citizens trapped in Iraq and Kuwait.

The Iraqi Foreign Ministry Monday gave an ultimatum to all foreign embassies in Kuwait to close by Friday, August 24 or their representatives would lose their diplomatic status and be treated as normal foreign nationals.

U.S., British and French citizens in Iraq and Kuwait have been rounded up by Iraqi troops in the past two days and they are expected to be taken to key military and civil installations in Iraq to prevent an attack by the U.S.-led force gathered in Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf.

Following a meeting with Spanish Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez Monday, Kuwaiti Finance Minister Ali Khalifa said his exiled government had received Spain's "unalterable" support.

Gonzalez was later Monday to meet with his foreign and defense ministers to decide whether Spain should make a contribution to the task force.

The meeting with Foreign Minister Francisco Fernandez Ordonez and Defense Minister Narcis Serra is to be held on the eve of the Western European Union (WEU) meeting in Paris where the sending of a European naval force to the Gulf is to be discussed.

While condemning the Iraqi invasion and joining in international sanctions against Baghdad, Spain has been hesitant to involve itself militarily in the crisis and has called for an Arab solution.

Gonzalez met King Hassan of Morocco in Rabat Sunday, during a five-day holiday in the North African country, where the prime minister said that the use of force to solve the Gulf conflict was a step which he was not prepared to take.

He added, however, that Spain should not be isolated from its WEU partners whatever the outcome of the meeting.

The WEU is made up of Belgium, the Netherlands, West Germany, Britain, Luxembourg, Italy, France, Spain and Portugal--all members of the EC and NATO.

Non-WEU members, Ireland, Greece and Denmark have been invited to the meeting in their capacities as EC members as has Turkey which is not in the EC but is the only member of NATO which has a border with Iraq.

SEVILLE, SPAIN (AUG 20) EFE - Construction work on Spain's 1992 World's Fair came to a halt Monday when workers in the southern city of Seville went on strike to protest security measures banning them from bringing their cars onto the fairgrounds.

All 2,000 workers doing sitework for the Universal Exposition have refused to carry heavy tools from the distant parking area to the island in the Gualadquivir river where the fair is to be held, a union spokesman said.

Security measures for Expo 92 have been progressively tightened to forestall attacks by the Basque separatist terror group ETA, which has threatened to target the fair.

In May, an office worker employed by the Expo was maimed by a parcel bomb which ETA later claimed responsibilty for sending.

Acknowledging that construction deadlines were extremely tight, an Expo spokesman said officials were holding talks with the strike committee and were confident the dispute could be quickly settled.-

More than 14 million people are expected to attend the fair, which opens in April 1992.

LIMA (AUG 20) EFE - A group of diners who refused to pay their bill opened fire on the employees of a restaurant in the Peruvian capital, killing six people, police reported.

Witnesses said one of the waiters in the Aldea Show restaurant in the La Victoria neighborhood of Lima presented a group of clients with a bill in the early morning hours Monday.

But the diners claimed they were short of cash and asked to speak with the manager.

After a heated dialogue, the group took out guns, assaulted the manager and shot dead three waiters, two private guards and one musician.

Police have not yet captured the suspects who, before fleeing, broke into the cashier's box and stole dlrs 350, police said.

MOSCOW (AUG. 20) EFE - The Georgian parliament has passed an electoral law paving the way for multi-party elections.

Under the new law, the Georgian parliament will be made up of 250 delegates, 125 of whom will be elected by a simple majority of votes in their districts, while the 125 others will be elected under a proportional system.

The government and opposition reached a compromise on three bills under debate for several days on Sunday.

The vote came less than three weeks after protesters in the southern republic staged a six-day blockade of the Trans-Caucasia railway line to demand multi-party elections.

The parliamentarians rejected the opposition's most radical proposals requiring candidates to know the Georgian language and have lived in the republic a certain amount of time.

The law also designates that an electoral committee will be in charge of registering currently illegal parties, which number nearly 100 in Georgia.

Parties which encourage violence, dispute the republic's territorial integrity or incite inter-ethnic hatred are not to be legalized.

More than 15,000 people attended a meeting Sunday held by the opposition coalition in the Georgian capital of Tbilisi demanding the resignation of Georgian President Givi Gumbaridze.

LUSAKA (AUG. 20) XINHUA - THE ZAMBIAN INDUSTRIAL AND MINING CORPORATION (ZIMCO) HAS INCREASED THE PRICES OF PETROL, DIESEL AND PARAFFIN BY ABOUT 50 PERCENT BEGINING FROM LAST NIGHT BECAUSE OF THE CRISIS IN THE GULF FROM WHERE ZAMBIA BUYS ITS OIL, THE "ZAMBIA DAILY MAIL" AND THE "TIMES OF ZAMBIA" REPORTED TODAY.

THE ZIMCO SAID IN A EARLIER STATEMENT THAT THE PRICES OF PREMIUM PETROL AND REGULAR PETROL HAVE INCREASED TO 17.10 AND 14.60 KWACHA (40 KWACHA EQUALS TO ONE U.S. DOLLAR) RESPECTIVELY FROM 11.50 AND 9.82 KWACHA PER LITRE.

THE PRICE OF DIESEL INCREASED TO 10 FROM 6.73 KWACHA PER LITRE WHILE DOMESTIC PARAFFIN (KEROSENE) HIKED TO 9.50 FROM 6.42 KWACHA.

WHOLESALE PRICES OF OTHER PETROLEUM PRODUCTS, INCLUDING INDUSTRIAL KEROSENE, LOW SULPHUR GASOIL AND LIGHT FUEL, HAVE ALSO INCREASED.

THE INCREASE IN FUEL PRICES WAS CAUSED BY THE RISE IN WORLD OIL PRICES WHICH WAS TRIGGERED OFF BY THE GULF CRISIS. INTER- NATIONAL CRUDE OIL PRICES HAVE RISEN FROM 18 U.S. DOLLARS TO 25 U.S. DOLLARS PER BARREL AFTER IRAQ INVADED KUWAIT.

THE ZIMCO STATEMENT SAID THAT THE UNITED NATIONS BOYCOTT OF KUWAIT AND IRAQ OIL FORCED ZAMBIA TO MAKE SPOT PURCHASES OF PROCESSED FUELS AND CRUDE OIL AT PRICES HIGHER THAN WHAT IT OBTAINS UNDER NORMAL CIRCUMSATNCES.

THE FUEL PRICE HIKES WERE ALSO CAUSED BY INFLATION AND CURRENCY DEVALUATIONS, IT SAID.

LAUSAKA (AUG. 20) XINHUA - ZAMBIA HAS STARTED ITS THIRD NATIONAL CENSUS OF POPULATION, HOUSING AND AGRICULTURE AS FROM TODAY, LOCAL NEWSPAPERS REPORTED TODAY.

LAUNCHING THE TWO-WEEK-LONG POPULATION CENSUS IN A NATION- WIDE RADIO AND TELEVISION SPEECH LAST NIGHT, ZAMBIAN PRESIDENT KENNETH KAUNDA SAID THAT THE RESULTS OF THE 1990 CENSUS WOULD BE A "GREATLY HELP" IN THE FORMULATION OF THE NEW ECONOMIC RECOVERY PROGRAM AND THE FOURTH NATIONAL DEVELOPMENT PLAN.

INFORMATION GATHERED DURING THE CENSUS EXERCISE WILL BE USED IN DEVELOPMENT PLANNING, MONITORING SOCIO-ECONOMIC PROGRAMS AND ASSESSING THE POPULATION'S WELL-BEING, THE PRESIDENT SAID.

HE SAID THAT THE TWO-WEEK-LONG CENSUS MAY BE EXTENDED BY A FEW DAYS IN AREAS WHERE LOGISTICAL PROBLEMS MAY ARISE.

GOVERNMENT FUNDING FOR THE EXERCISE WAS SUPPLEMENTED BY WORLD ORGANIZATIONS INCLUDING THE UNITED NATIONS DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM (UNDP), THE U.S. AGENCY FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT AND THE FOOD AND AGRICULTURE ORGANIZATION.

ZAMBIA'S LAST POPULATION CENSUS WAS CONDUCTED ABOUT 10 YEARS AGO.

NICOSIA (AUG. 20) XINHUA - CYPRUS TODAY WELCOMED A NEW RESOLUTION OF THE U.N. SECURITY COUNCIL DEMANDING IMMEDIATE AND SAFE DEPARTURE OF FOREIGN CITIZENS FROM IRAQ AND KUWAIT.

GOVERNMENT SPOKESMAN AKIS FANTIS SAID IN A STATEMENT THAT THE RESOLUTION ADOPTED SATURDAY WAS "OF PARTICULAR SIGNIFICANCE FOR CYPRUS BECAUSE A NUMBER OF CYPRIOT NATIONALS ARE STRANDED IN IRAQ AND KUWAIT AGAINST THEIR WILL."

THE SPOKESMAN EXPRESSED THE HOPE THAT IMPLEMENTATION OF THE SCURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTION WILL END THE "REGRETTABLE SITUATION" CITIZENS OF THIRD COUNTRIES IN IRAQ AND KUWAIT HAVE FOUND THEMSELVES IN.

THE CYPRIOT GOVERNMENT DECIDED LAST WEEK TO EVACUATE CYPRIOT CITIZENS FROM

THE GULF COUNTRIES.

SOME 30 CYPRIOT NATIONALS WERE STRANDED IN IRAQ AND KUWAIT AT THE TIME OF IRAQI INVASION OF KUWAIT ON AUGUST 2.

THE FIRST BATCH OF CYPRIOTS, MOSTLY WOMEN AND CHILDREN, WERE FLOWN BACK CATER FROM BAHRAIN AND SAUDI ARABIA BY THE CYPRUS AIRWAYS.

THE CYPRIOT GOVERNMENT HAS REPEATEDLY EXPRESSED CONCERN OVER THE SITUATION IN THE GULF AND SUPPORT FOR U.N. SANCTIONS AGAINST IRAQ.

ON AUGUST 17, THE CYPRIOT GOVERNMENT ORDERED A BAN ON ALL IMPORTS, EXPORTS RE-EXPORTS AND TRANSIT TRADE FROM AND TO IRAQ AND KUWAIT.

MEANWHILE, THE ISLAND'S MERCHANT SHIPPING DEPARTMENT INSTRUCTED THE OWNERS OF ALL CYPRIOT-REGISTERED SHIPS TO BOYCOTT IRAQ.

LIMA (AUG. 20) XINHUA - A U.S. TOURIST WAS KILLED SUNDAY BY AN UNKNOWN ASSAILANT WHO PUSHED THE VICTIM FROM THE SIXTH FLOOR OF A LUXURY HOTEL LOCATED IN DOWNTOWN LIMA, SAID POLICE SOURCES.

HOTEL EMPLOYEES ONLY REPORTED HEARING A SPINE-CHILLING SCREAM THAT SHATTERED THE USUAL TRANQUILITY OF LIMA'S SHERATON HOTEL, AFTER WHICH THE ASSAILANT MANAGED TO ESCAPE THE SCENE THROUGH THE REIGNING CONFUSION.

THE VICTIM'S BODY, LATER IDENTIFIED ONLY AS SMITH, A 34-YEAR-OLD NATIVE OF VIRGINIA, SHOWED SCRATCH MARKS ON THE ARMS AND HANDS, INDICATING A STRUGGLE HAD PRECEDED THE FALL FROM HER HOTEL ROOM WINDOW.

POLICE UNCOVERED CLUES SUGGESTING THE VICTIM HAD BEEN INTIMATELY INVOLVED WITH HER ATTACKER ONLY MOMENTS BEFORE PLUNGING TO HER DEATH.

U.S. EMBASSY OFFICIALS WERE DISPATCHED TO THE SCENE OF THE CRIME IN ORDER TO MAKE THE INQUIRIES, WHILE LOCAL POLICE AUTHORITIES BEGAN TO LAUNCH AN INVESTIGATION AS TO THE MOTIVE AND IDENTITY OF THE KILLER.

ANKARA (AUG. 20) XINHUA - TURKISH POLICE SEIZED 22 KILOGRAMS OF PURE HEROIN AND 52 KILOGRAMS OF POWDER HASHISH OVER THE WEEKEND.

SECURITY OFFICIALS SAID TODAY THAT POLICE SEIZED 15 KILOGRAMS OF PURE HEROIN SUNDAY IN EDIRNE PROVINCE BORDERING BULGARIA AND GREECE.

THE OFFICIALS SAID THE POLICE, DISGUISED AS BUYERS, CONTACTED A HEROIN SELLER, WHO WAS DETAINED WHEN HE BROUGHT THE HEROIN.

MEANWHILE, SEVEN KILOGRAMS OF PURE HEROIN WERE SEIZED AND THREE SUSPECTS ARRESTED IN MERSIN, MEDITERRANEAN PROVINCE, POLICE SAID TODAY.

LAST WEEK, SECURITY POLICE SEIZED 52 KILOGRAMS OF POWDER HASHISH AND ARRESTED FOUR PEOPLE IN THE PROVINCES OF DIYARBAKIR, MARDIN AND ISPARTA.

ACCORDING TO POLICE STATISTICS, TURKEY LAST YEAR SEIZED 1,300 KILOGRAMS OF PURE HEROIN, MAINLY FROM AFGHANISTAN, IRAN AND PAKISTAN, AND ABOUT 6,850 KILOGRAMS OF HASHISH, MAINLY FROM THE BEKAA VALLEY OF LEBANON.

DRUGS ARE SMUGGLED INTO TURKEY MAINLY THROUGH ITS SOUTHERN, EASTERN AND SOUTHEASTERN BORDERS. A CONSIDERABLE AMOUNT IS SHIPPED TO EAST EUROPEAN COUNTRIES BEFORE REACHING FEDERAL GERMANY AND OTHER WEST EUROPEAN COUNTRIES.

TURKEY IS A TRANSIT POINT FOR ABOUT HALF OF THE HEROIN PRODUCED IN THE "GOLDEN TRIANGLE" BORDERING THAILAND, MYANMAR AND LAOS, AND THE "GOLDEN CRESCENT" BORDERING PAKISTAN, AFGHANISTAN AND IRAN.

CAIRO (AUG. 20) XINHUA - EGYPTIAN PRESIDENT HOSNI MUBARAK SAID TODAY THAT HIS COUNTRY WELCOMED INITIATIVES WITHIN THE FRAMEWORK OF ARAB EFFORT FOR ENDING THE IRAQI OCCUPATION OF KUWAIT, THE MIDDLE EAST NEWS AGENCY (MENA) REPORTED TODAY.

MUBARAK ALSO CALLED FOR ADHERENCE TO RESOLUTIONS OF THE AUGUST 10 EMERGENCY ARAB SUMMIT ON THE GULF CRISIS AND THE AUGUST 3 EMERGENCY MEETING OF THE ARAB MINISTERIAL COUNCIL, AS WELL AS THOSE OF THE U.N. SECURITY COUNCIL AND THE 19TH FOREIGN MINISTERS' MEETING OF THE ORGANIZATION OF ISLAMIC CONFERENCE.

THE SUMMIT CALLED FOR SENDING AN ARAB FORCE TO SAUDI ARABIA. THE MINISTERIAL MEETING DEMANDED IMMEDIATE, UNCONDITIONAL IRAQI WITHDRAWAL FROM KUWAIT AND RESTORATION OF KUWAIT'S LEGITIMATE GOVERNMENT AND THE OIC MEETING REPEATED THE DEMAND.

THE U.N. SECURITY COUNCIL, ON ITS OWN PART, ENDORSED GLOBAL ECONOMIC AND MILITARY SANCTIONS AGAINST IRAQ FOR ITS OCCUPATION OF KUWAIT.

MUBARAK, SPEAKING AT A CABINET MEETING ON THE GULF CRISIS, SAID THAT THE ARAB NATION AND ISLAMIC WORLD "CATEGORICALLY REJECT" ARMED AGGRESSION AGAINST "A BROTHER PEOPLE AND SISTER COUNTRY."

HE SAID EGYPT'S INTENSE EFFORTS AND THOSE OF THE ARAB FAMILY, THOUGH NOT SUCCESSFUL, DEMONSTRATED A KEENNESS IN SAFEGUARDING THE ARAB NATIONAL INTERESTS, THE INTERESTS OF THE IRAQI PEOPLE IN PARTICULAR, FROM "UNCALCULATED THREATS."

THE PRESIDENT CALLED FOR CONTINUING ARAB EFFORTS TO AVERT THE DANGER OF ARMED CONFRONTATION WHICH WOULD CAUSE "GRAVE CONSEQUENCES, AT PRESENT AND IN THE FUTURE, TO THE ARAB NATION."

HE ALSO UNDERLINED THE NEED TO SEEK A PEACEFUL SOLUTION TO THE GULF CRISIS AND CALLED FOR PROVISION OF AN ARAB UMBRELLA TO FACILITATE THE ATTAINMENT OF SECURITY, TRANSQUILITY AND STABILITY FOR THE ARAB COUNTRIES.

"IT IS FOR THIS PURPOSE THAT A CONTINGENT OF EGYPTIAN TROOPS IS COOPERATING WITH THE SAUDIS (IN SAUDI ARABIA)," HE SAID.

TODAY'S CABINET MEETING WAS CHAIRED BY THE PRESIDENT AND ATTENDED BY PRIME MINISTER ATEF SEDKI.

QUOTING INFORMATION MINISTER SAFWAT EL-SHERIF, MENA SAID THE CABINET CALLED UPON THE IRAQI AUTHORITIES TO REALIZE THE DANGER OF THE CURRENT SITUATION AND STOP ESCALATING THE CRISIS WHICH MAY EVENTUALLY LEAD TO CONFRONTATION.

THE CABINET ALSO URGED IRAQ TO "STOP GETTING FOREIGN NATIONALS INVOLVED IN THE DISPUTE," SAID EL-SHERIF, REFERRING TO THE HOLDING BY IRAQ OF AMERICAN AND OTHER WESTERN FOREIGNERS TRAPPED IN IRAQ AND KUWAIT SINCE THE IRAQI INVASION ON AUGUST 2.

EL-SHERIF ALSO SAID THAT EGYPTIAN TROOPS IN SAUDI ARABIA HAD THE DUTY OF DEFENDING ARAB TERRITORY AND THE TWO HOLIEST MOSQUES IN MECCA AND MEDINA, SIDE BY SIDE WITH SAUDI FORCES AND UNDER THE COMMAND OF THE HOST COUNTRY.

AS REGARDS THE SIZE OF THE EGYPTIAN FORCES TO BE EVENTUALLY MASSED IN SAUDI ARABIA AND THE LENGTH OF PERIOD FOR THEIR STAY THERE, THE OFFICIAL SAID THAT THESE MATTERS WERE LEFT FOR THE THE SAUDIS TO DECIDE.

KANAZAWA (AUG. 20) KYODO - THE CHAIRMAN OF KOMEITO, THE NO. 2 OPPOSITION PARTY, SAID MONDAY THE IRANIAN AMBASSADOR TO JAPAN HAS TOLD HIM THAT HIS NATION HOPES TO TRIPLE ITS CRUDE OIL EXPORTS TO JAPAN.

KOSHIRO ISHIDA SAID AMBASSADOR HOSSEIN KAZEMPOUR ARDEBILI TOLD HIM IN THEIR TALKS LAST TUESDAY THAT IRAN WOULD LIKE TO TRIPLE ITS CRUDE OIL EXPORTS FROM THE AMOUNT IT EXPORTED TO JAPAN BEFORE THE IRAQI INVASION OF KUWAIT ON AUGUST 2.

''THE AMBASSADOR SAID HE WANTED TO STEP UP EXPORTS FROM THE CURRENT 250,000 BARRELS PER DAY (BPD) TO ABOUT 700,000 BPD,'' SAID EISUKE YAMADA, A LOWER HOUSE REPRESENTATIVE OF THE SAME PARTY, ELABORATING ON ISHIDA'S COMMENTS.

THE CHAIRMAN MADE HIS REMARKS DURING AN ADDRESS HERE, WHICH WAS ALSO ATTENDED BY YAMADA.

DURING THE FIRST HALF OF THE YEAR, CRUDE OIL EXPORTS TO JAPAN FROM IRAQ

AND KUWAIT TOTALED 450,000 BPD, ACCORDING TO THE MINISTRY OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND INDUSTRY.

INDUSTRY SOURCES INTERPRETED ARDEBILI'S COMMENTS AS MEANING THAT IRAN WOULD LIKE TO STEP UP PRODUCTION TO MAKE UP FOR THE AMOUNT LOST FROM THE EMBARGO ON IRAQ AND KUWAIT.

TOKYO (AUG. 20) KYODO - THE UNITED STATES HAS CALLED ON JAPAN AMID THE PERSIAN GULF CRISIS TO INCREASE ITS FINANCIAL SUPPORT FOR U.S. FORCES IN JAPAN AND TO INCLUDE THE PURCHASE OF MAJOR U.S. MILITARY EQUIPMENT IN ITS NEXT DEFENSE BUILDUP PLAN, A FOREIGN MINISTRY SOURCE REVEALED MONDAY.

THE SOURCE SAID THE U.S. GOVERNMENT HAS ASKED JAPAN TO PICK UP A LARGER SHARE OF THE COST OF STATIONING AMERICAN MILITARY FORCES IN JAPAN, SOME OF WHICH HAVE BEEN DISPATCHED FROM OKINAWA TO THE GULF REGION.

THE U.S. GOVERNMENT HAS ALSO FORMALLY REQUESTED THAT JAPAN PURCHASE U.S.-MADE AIRBORNE WARNING CONTROL SYSTEM (AWACS) PLANES AND AERIAL REFUELING TANKERS UNDER ITS DEFENSE PROGRAM BEGINNING IN FISCAL 1991, THE SOURCE SAID.

THE SOURCE SAID JAPAN TOLD THE U.S. IT COULD NOT SAY DEFINITELY WHETHER IT WILL BUY AWACS OR AERIAL TANKERS, AS THE GOVERNMENT IS STILL IN THE PROCESS OF DELIBERATING THE NEXT DEFENSE PLAN.

BUT, ON THE REQUEST FOR INCREASED BURDEN-SHARING, THE SOURCE SAID, ''WE MUST TAKE THIS INTO CONSIDERATION.''

HE INDICATED THAT THE GOVERNMENT WOULD POSITIVELY CONSIDER THE MATTER IN THE CONTEXT OF ITS PLANS TO COME UP SOON WITH A PACKAGE OF CONCRETE CONTRIBUTIONS TO INTERNATIONAL EFFORTS TO COUNTER IRAQI AGGRESSION IN THE PERSIAN GULF.

THE FOREIGN MINISTRY SOURCE SAID U.S. GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS POINTED OUT THAT JAPAN, WHICH DEPENDS ON THE MIDDLE EAST FOR SOME 70 PERCENT OF ITS PETROLEUM, BENEFITS FROM THE DISPATCH OF AMRICAN FORCES TO THE GULF REGION AND THUS HAS A ROLE TO PLAY.

THE U.S. OFFICIALS ESTIMATED THE COST OF THE U.S. OPERATION AT SOME 1 BILLION DOLLARS A MONTH, THE SOURCE SAID.

THE U.S. REQUESTS FOLLOW PRESIDENT GEORGE BUSH'S TELEPHONE CALL LAST TUESDAY TO PRIME MINISTER TOSHIKI KAIFU, IN WHICH HE CALLED ON JAPAN TO HELP BAIL OUT COUNTRIES WHOSE ECONOMIES WILL SUFFER AS A RESULT OF ECONOMIC SANCTIONS AGAINST IRAQ.

ANOTHER FOREIGN MINISTRY SOURCE ON MONDAY REVEALED THAT JAPAN PLANS TO MAKE FUNDS AVAILABLE TO HELP SAUDI ARABIA CARE FOR THE ESTIMATED 30,000 KUWAITI REFUGEES THERE.

VICE FOREIGN MINISTER TAKAKAZU KURIYAMA, MEANWHILE, TOLD REPORTERS THAT JAPAN IS CONSIDERING EVERYTHING SHORT OF DIRECT MILITARY ASSISTANCE IN ITS PLANNED PACKAGE OF CONTRIBUTIONS.

HE STRESSED THE NECESSITY FOR JAPAN TO SEND NOT ONLY MONEY AND MATERIALS TO THE GULF REGION, BUT PERSONNEL AS WELL.

NAHA (AUG. 20) KYODO - FOUR PEOPLE WERE KILLED WHEN A TELEVISION NEWS HELICOPTER FILMING U.S. NAVY VESSELS FOR A SPECIAL PROGRAM ON THE IRAQI CRISIS CRASHED INTO THE SEA OFF EASTERN OKINAWA ON MONDAY, OFFICIALS SAID.

THE HELICOPTER, CHARTERED BY JAPAN BROADCASTING CORP. (NHK), WAS HOVERING OVER A U.S. SHIP ENTERING THE U.S. BASE AT WHITE BEACH IN KATSUREN, EASTERN OKINAWA, WHEN IT CRASHED INTO THE SEA, APPARENTLY AFTER LOSING BALANCE, AT 6:20 P.M., A WITNESS SAID.

THE HELICOPTER BELONGED TO AERO ASAHI CORP., A TOKYO-BASED HELICOPTER LEASING FIRM.

THE FOUR PEOPLE IN THE HELICOPTER WERE REPORTER TATSUO MOTO, 25, AND CAMERAMAN MAKOTO TAKAMATSU, 51, BOTH BASED IN NHK'S NAHA BUREAU, AND PILOT YUKIO SUETSUGU, 31, AND TECHNICIAN TAKAAKI OKAMURA, 32, BOTH OF AERO ASAHI OFFICIALS AT NHK AND AERO ASAHI SAID.

NHK OFFICIALS SAID MOTO AND TAKAMATSU WERE COVERING THE U.S. NAVY'S ACTIVITIES HERE IN CONNECTION WITH THE PERSIAN GULF CRISIS FOR A DOCUMENTARY.

TOKYO (AUG. 20) KYODO - WOMEN AND SENIOR CITIZENS ENTERING THE JOB MARKET BOOSTED JAPAN'S RATE OF EMPLOYMENT TURNOVER TO A 14-YEAR HIGH IN 1989, THE LABOR MINISTRY SAID IN A SURVEY RELEASED MONDAY.

THE MINISTRY SURVEY TOTALING THOSE ENTERING AND LEAVING THE JOB MARKET SHOWED A 4.8 PERCENT RISE OVER THE SAME RATE IN 1988. THE TOTAL OF 6.51 MILLION PERSONS DOES NOT INCLUDE THOSE SWITCHING JOBS.

THE SURVEY COVERED SOME 15,000 FIRMS IN AREAS RANGING FROM MANUFACTURING TO THE SERVICE SECTOR. THE TURNOVER FIGURE REPRESENTS 22.5 PERCENT OF THE TOTAL NUMBER OF THE EMPLOYED IN 1989, THE HIGHEST SHARE SINCE 1975.

CONTINUED ECONOMIC GROWTH COMBINED WITH A SHORTAGE OF LABOR CONTRIBUTED TO HIGH NUMBERS OF WOMEN AND CITIZENS OVER THE AGE OF 60 ENTERING THE JOB MARKET, THE MINISTRY SAID.

THE NUMBER OF WOMEN FINDING EMPLOYMENT JUMPED 2.4 PERCENT OVER 1988, MANY IN PART-TIME POSITIONS. THE EQUIVALENT FIGURE FOR MEN REGISTERED A SLIGHT 0.7 PERCENT DROP.

BUT SENIOR CITIZENS SHOWED THE GREATEST RISE IN EMPLOYMENT, WITH THOSE IN THEIR EARLY SIXTIES MARKING A 17 PERCENT RISE OVER THE PREVIOUS YEAR.

IN TERMS OF SECTORS, THE SERVICE INDUSTRY HAD THE LARGEST NUMBER OF NEW JOB ENTRANTS WHILE MANUFACTURING, TRANSPORTATION AND COMMUNICATIONS CORPORATIONS REGISTERED SLIGHT DROPS IN ENTRANTS OVER 1988.

The OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET releases its initial report to the President and Congress for fiscal 1991 later today.

FROM THE BULLS:

"I think conditions are starting to get very favorable," says MICHAEL METZ at OPPENHEIMER. He bases that on his belief that earnings and price-to-book ratios are as low as they are going. ("USA Today", 8/20)

FROM THE BEARS:

"The stock market was overvalued before the price of oil started rising," says ANTHONY SOSLOW, portfolio manager of the RIGHTIME GROWTH FUND. "Even if the price of oil stays where it is, the market should go down." ("USA Today", 8/20)

"I look for the market to go to 2300 [on the Dow] this year," says HOWARD COLHOUN. ("Wall Street Week", 8/19)

STOCK MARKET:

So how low will the Dow go? "It would be a totally unreliable guess," says AL GOLDMAN, research director at A.G. EDWARDS & SONS. Nevertheless, BILL RAFTERY of SMITH BARNEY, HARRIS UPHAM is among the technical analysts who say the lowest level the Dow can reach is around 2275. He bases that on figuring the likely low- points for each of the 30 stocks on the Dow and then assuming they all hit bottom at once. ("USA Today", 8/20)

"For a bottom, you need a sell-at-any-price mentality," says BYRON WIEN of MORGAN STANLEY. He now sees the Dow bottoming out at around 2400 rather than his previous forecast of about 2600. "You haven't seen fear on the tape yet. There are a lot of blocks for sale, but they pull them when they don't get bids. The key thing is that people are talking more bearish than their portfolios look." (NYT, 8/20)

"I think there is probably support somewhere down around 2550 [on the Dow] " says TED EGGERT, manager of U.S. equity research at YAMAICHI INTERNATIONAL. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 8/17)

"It's like a Chinese water torture, but maybe I should say Iraqi water torture," says TRUDE LATIMER, market analyst with JOSEPHTHAL & COMPANY. "The market really is plagued by a multitude of horrors here, ranging from the Persian Gulf, fear of recession, fear of higher interest rates and fear of inflation," says MICHAEL METZ, market strategist with OPPENHEIMER & COMPANY. "On this background, traders and investors are risk-averse. They choose to sell a bit and stay on the sidelines,' he says. "People see no inclination to get aggressive as buyers in the market." (UPI, 08/17)

JAMES AWAD of BMI CAPITAL believes the Mideast turmoil will be resolved by Christmas and is "willing to make the leap of faith that in perceived financial panics, those who have been guided by greed -- rather than fear -- made money, so I'm buying stocks." He says it's not an easy thing to do "because it's very easy to become emotionally paralyzed. ... Someday, the system may fail and I'll look back and say I wish I had a bar of gold, some dried food, a machine gun and a hut in [the] country. But I believe the world tends to fix itself and goes on." (WSJ, 8/20)

"The Iraqi invasion [of Kuwait] is the obvious reason that the market is having trouble, but people should look deeper," says RICKY HARRINGTON of MARION BASS SECURITIES. "The economy is on the brink of a recession." (Reuters, 8/18)

MARSHALL SCHIELD, a market timer who heads a group with five mutual funds, says it is "to early to tell" whether we are in a new bear market. On the other hand, he notes that "the Value Line Index has now declined from its peak by more than 15%" and says that "is the definition of the difference between a bull market correction and a bear market." ("USA Today", 8/20)

"This is probably the most difficult situation I've had to deal with in my 21 years in the business," says RAY HIRSCH, senior portfolio manager at IDA FINANCIAL SERVICES. "Investment strategy is being made in the Middle East right now," says PETER CANELO of BEAR STEARNS. "Clients aren't terribly interested in economic and interest-rate forecasts because they know $40-a-barrel oil will change all those forecasts." (WSJ, 8/20)

"There is hardly any place to hide," says SURESH BHIRUD of OPPENHEIMER. "There is weakness across the board." (NYT, 8/20)

THOMAS LUKER, an equity trader for NIKKO SECURITIES, says Japanese investors "were very bullish up until a month ago on the U.S. market. They were looking for a higher stock market. Now, it's back to reality." ("The Washington Post", 8/19)

"I'm not ready to give up the ghost yet, but it appears that the market is really forecasting a recession," says FRANK CAPPIELLO. ("Wall Street Week", 8/17)

"Until I see some attempt to define a support level more than twice in one week, I would have to say there is further weakness coming," says PHILIP RETTEW, technical analyst at MERRILL LYNCH. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 8/17)

STOCK TIPS:

W.R. GRACE & CO. is the subject of a major takeout in "Barron's" this week. The publication notes that the stock has been static for about four years because "there are a lot of things Wall Street doesn't like" about the company. But it says investors seem to have concentrated on the negatives "to the exclusion of any positives, and, as it happens, even a cursory look at the company's present circumstances and prospects reveals a decided turn for the better." ("Barron's", 8/20)

PANHANDLE EASTERN CORP., a pipeline company that took on a toxic waste problem with its acquisition of Texas Eastern Corp. last year, is on the definite sell list of ALAN GAINES, of GAINES, BERLAND INC., a New York brokerage that specializes in energy research for institutional customers. "I'd sell the stock if I owned it," says Gaines. "And aggressive investors should sell it short. It's a better short today at 16 7/8 then it was earlier in the year at close to $30." ("USA Today", 8/20)

TED EGGERT, manager of U.S. equity research at YAMAICHI INTERNATIONAL, says health and drug companies are good stocks to select in times of down markets because "health care is insulated almost completely from what is going on overseas. In other words there is no change in fundamentals for companies such as MERCK, BRISTOL-MYERS SQUIBB, HUMANA, JOHNSON & JOHNSON, for example. So these are the kinds of stocks I would be buying in this market." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 8/17)

JEFF LANDLE, a portfolio manager at STOVALL/TWENTY-FIRST ADVISERS, sees most growth for American companies to be overseas "so the idea of companies with large foreign exposure makes a lot of sense." That is why he likes GENERAL ELECTRIC, IBM and DOW CHEMICAL. (WSJ, 8/20)

PETER BENNETT, manager of the STATE STREET INVESTMENT TRUST, says the company to bet on among the long- distance telephone companies is MCI COMMUNICATIONS. ("Barron's", 8/20)

"If I were a betting man, I might bet a little bit that the decline in the dollar against the European currencies has gone too far because I think the market is not looking at the impact of the high price of energy on what happens in Eastern Europe and what this is going to cost Germany," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist for "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 8/17)

"If the [Mideast] situation drags on, it will be bearish for the dollar," says NAOYUKI MIZUGUCHI, customer dealer at MITSUBISHI BANK. "... Higher oil prices will cause further deterioration of the U. S economy." (Reuters 8/20)

"The yen should firm provided that tensions in the Middle East settle," says KERMIT SCHOENHOLTZ, a SALOMON BROTHERS economist. (Reuters, 8/20)

"Gold's reaction to the weekend events in the Gulf has been somewhat muted " says NEIL BUXTON, a precious metals analyst at LEHMANN BROTHERS INTERNATIONAL in London. "But there is a potential for New York to try and take gold higher this afternoon." (Reuters, 8/20)

"The Fed is in a tough situation, but they can't afford to stop what they are doing and combat psychological and political events," says DONALD FINE chief market analyst at CHASE MANHATTAN BANK.

"They have to help this economy. That is their job." WILLIAM GRIGGS of GRIGGS & SANTOW says the Fed may not have the right "background" to lower rates.

"If you ease policy in this environment, where the bond market is collapsing and the dollar is sliding, the reaction will be bad. But something like a weak employment report for August might allow them to do it in a credible way." (NYT, 8/20)

ROBERT GENETSKI, chief economist at THE CHICAGO CORPORATION, says that - "after all the discussions and all the meetings and the rushing in and out of the room with the charts" - the Open Market Committee will not recommend action on interest rates when it meets tomorrow.

KEM STOKES of FIRST NATIONAL BANK of Chicago predicts two moves to cut interest this year - the first one within a month. ("USA Today", 8/20)

DAVID RESLER, chief economist at NOMURA SECURITIES INTERNATIONAL, notes that the Fed normally can expect its policies to move market interest rates that are outside its direct control.

But with the Mideast crisis, he says, "Fed governors cannot have a fair level of confidence that that will happen. And if you have no feel for what the reaction will be, there is no reason to make the move." (NYT, 8/20)

"It is likely that we will see [interest] rate increases in Japan as soon as the equity market stabilizes - maybe by September," says DAVID BOARDMAN of ROWE PRICE FLEMING INTERNATIONAL in London. "West Germany will also raise rates, but they may hold off." (WSJ, 8/20)

WILLIAM GROSS says long-term bond rates would not go down "significantly" even if the Fed eased short-term interest rates now, although they would not go up because they are already at 9% and discounting 4% or 5% inflation. ("Wall Street Week", 8/17)

"With as much skittishness as there is in the market, I think bond yields will go as high as 9 1/8%," says ROBERTA OLSEN, a portfolio manager at BANC ONE ASSET MANAGEMENT CORP. in Columbus, Ohio. "That should be the high point unless something unknown happens in the Iraqi situation. And at those levels we see value in bonds." (NYT, 8/20)

"We're not saying that U.S. bond rates will increase dramatically, but high rates abroad at the very least will put a floor under the U.S. market and prevent [long-term] rates from falling" even if the Fed eases, says ANITA LAURIA of SALOMON BROTHERS. (WSJ, 8/20)

With the growing cost of the S&L bailout and the Iraq military operation, the U.S. budget deficit could balloon to more than $300 billion dollars. STEVE BELL of SALOMON BROTHERS says, "That's lots of supply if you're a bond trader. ... I'm not being facetious, that's a lot of U.S. dollar denominated securities." (CNN "Business Morning", 8/20)

"The [bond] market will be detached from economic fundamentals for as long as the politics are as wacko as they are," says one government bond trader. (NYT, 8/20)

THE ECONOMY:

BILL WOLMAN, chief economist for "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC," projects an inflation rate of between 6.5% and 7% this year. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 8/17)

"Forecasting recessions over the past eight years has been a losing game," says RICHARD BERNER of SALOMON BROTHERS. "[But] the shock of higher oil prices seems likely to be the final straw that tips the U.S. economy into recession." (NYT, 8/20)

"I see a recession with negative GNP in the fourth-quarter, I see inflation rising, I see gold prices rising, oil prices are up and I think the savior ... would be the Federal Reserve with lower interest rates," says HOWARD CALHOUN. "I think the Fed's options are reduced because with inflation moving the way I think and they think it's going to go, they can't lower interest rates without adding to that fire." ("Wall Street Week", 8/17)

"We think there won't be a recession," says JOHN CONNOLLY, chairman of the investment policy committee at DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS. "Our best guess is that we'll see 1.5% growth in an economy that should be growing almost twice that much; which means, in a sense, that a good portion of the economy will be in an actual recession - the automobile industry, for example, and home building." ("Wall Street Week", 8/17)

IN WASHINGTON:

A $50 billion reduction in the federal deficit is no longer a realistic target, says SALOMON'S STEVE BELL from Washington this morning. Post-Iraq, Bell looks for best case of $25-30 billion in reduced red ink for 1991 with perhaps $300 billion over a five-year period. (CNN "Business Morning" 8/20)

OVERLAND PARK, KS (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - TouchFax Information Systems Inc. has moved aggressively into the $250 million-a-year public facsimile industry by producing an easy-to-operate and durable public communications center for use in airports, hotels, post offices and other public places.

The TouchFax TF 1000 can do much more than send or receive facsimiles. A built-in computer allows it to make multiple facsimile transmissions; make laser copies of faxes or other documents; accept data from portable computers; and hook up to national and international electronic mail systems, electronic libraries, facsimile news services and other databases.

"The TF 1000 is a one-stop communications shop for the business person away from the office, or even one who has no office," said John Massey, creator of the TF 1000 and chairman of TouchFax Information Systems. "TouchFax keeps you in touch with the world."

The machine is easy to use. After inserting a credit card, the use selects desired services by touching buttons on the computer screen. Self-service ensures confidentiality. Costs are shown on the screen before each service is delivered, and a receipt is printed when the user is finished.

Documents are scanned on a flat glass surface, much like an office copier. A laser printer and plain paper are used to produce documents for the user. Rugged, stainless-steel construction and low maintenance requirements contribute to a reliability unmatched by any self-service public facsimile machine.

The TF 1000 was chosen by the U.S. Postal Service, in conjunction with Hotelecopy and MCI, for placement in more than 200 post offices, and by Sprint Gateways, a unit of the Sprint Services division of United Telecommunications Inc., for initial placement in test locations.

Computer programming flexibility allows new services to be added as public demand grows. Sprint Gateways expects to tie machines nationwide into a wide array of SprintFAX services, including broadcast fax distribution and other information services.

The TF 1000 can be used to make photocopies on regular paper, print business forms such as purchase orders, and even send fax greeting cards.

Of course, it also can be used to make a voice telephone call. "In a sense the TF 1000 is the next step in the evolution of the telephone booth," Massey said.

LA JOLLA, CA (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Scientists at Agouron Pharmaceuticals Inc. (NASDAQ: AGPH) announced today that they have unravelled a series of molecular puzzles surrounding the chemical interactions between one of the world's most widely used anti-cancer drugs and its molecular target. Their findings are expected to provide the basis for the rational design and development of less toxic and more potent drugs for the treatment of solid tumors.

In two back-to-back publications appearing in the Aug. 20 issue (Volume 214, No. 4) of the Journal of Molecular Biology, Agouron scientists report having solved the three-dimensional molecular structure of a key enzyme found in cancer cells. These studies have revealed in detail the atomic interactions between this enzyme called thymidylate synthase (TS) and anti-tumor drugs which inactivate it. Cancer cells cannot grow in the absence of an active TS enzyme. It has been known for many years that the body transforms the anti-cancer drug known as 5-FU (also known as fluorouracil) into a potent chemical that inactivates TS. Until the analysis by Agouron scientists, it was not known precisely how this inactivation occurred.

The analysis by the Agouron scientific team has also revealed the intermolecular interactions between the TS enzyme and a second chemical drug known to inactivate TS. Known as 10-propargyl-5,8-dideazafolate, this drug has also shown anti-cancer activity in humans. Prior to the research reported in these publications, the three-dimensional interactions between this drug and its molecular target were unknown.

Analysis of the three-dimensional molecular structure of TS and of a number of chemical compounds which interact with it have also permitted the Agouron scientists to determine the chemical mechanism by which the enzyme performs its normal biological function and has suggested new ways in which this function might be disrupted by novel drugs.

A spokesperson for Agouron Pharmaceuticals said that the publications summarize research which has been carried out by its scientists over the last three years. The resulting knowledge is being used by Agouron scientists to design new drugs for treatment of cancer.

Agouron Pharmaceuticals Inc., based in La Jolla, is developing new drugs to treat a number of major diseases including cancer and AIDS. Using an advanced technology called "three-dimensional, protein structure- based drug design," the company's scientists design drugs to interact specifically with proteins that play key roles in human disease.

HARLEYSVILLE, PA (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Harleysville Group Inc. (NASDAQ: HGIC), and its parent company, Harleysville Mutual Insurance Co., today announced that a letter of intent has been signed to acquire USLICO's property and casualty insurance operations for a consideration of $135 million.

Under the terms of the agreement, Harleysville Group and Harleysville Mutual will purchase all of the issued and outstanding shares of capital stock of the Hawkeye-Security Insurance Company, based in Des Moines, Iowa and its consolidated subsidiaries: United Security Insurance Co., also based in Des Moines, and the Western States Insurance Co., headquartered in Freeport, Ill. Completion of this transaction is subject to receipt of all required regulatory approvals, approvals of the respective boards of directors and the execution of a mutually satisfactory definitive agreement. The expected closing date of the transaction is Jan. 2, 1991, effective Jan. 1, 1991.

"This acquisition provides us with a tremendous opportunity to achieve the strategic diversification we have sought since we began pursuit of our strategic goal to build a 'national network of regional insurance companies' several years ago," commented Bradford W. Mitchell, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Harleysville Group Inc. "It extends our operating territory to 34 states from our present 19 states and, more importantly, establishes a substantial presence in the Midwest and western states which offer excellent profit and growth prospects."

The transaction price of $135 million will consist of a cash payment of $110 million, of which $93 million will be contributed by Harleysville Group Inc. and $17 million by Harleysville Mutual Insurance Co. In addition, Harleysville Mutual will issue to USLICO a $25 million, 10 percent, seven-year surplus note for the remainder of the purchase price. Hawkeye-Security will dividend 500,000 shares of USLICO common stock to its parent immediately prior to closing.

Upon completion of the transaction, Harleysville Group Inc. will own a 69 percent interest in the acquired property and casualty insurance companies while Harleysville Mutual will have 31 percent ownership. Harleysville's management will arrange a bank credit facility to provide for the majority of the cash portion of the transaction. Management will determine, prior to the closing date, whether to include the new acquisition in the intercompany pooling agreement between Harleysville Group and Harleysville Mutual.

"Harleysville Group's per share earnings may be moderately diluted by this acquisition during 1991 and 1992, but the acquisition will have an antidilutive affect on our earnings after that time," explained Mitchell.

The operations of the three acquired companies are managed from the Des Moines, Iowa, corporate headquarters. In 1989, the combined property and casualty insurance premiums of the companies totalled approximately $130 million. Representing the companies are over 1,000 independent agents located in 15 midwestern and western states. The agency plant provides a diversified mix of business, with 62 percent of its 1989 premium volume derived from personal insurance lines and 38 percent from commercial insurance lines. On a GAAP basis, year-end 1989 assets of the acquired companies totalled $201 million, while capital and surplus stood at $65 million, including the USLICO shares. All three companies are rated A- by the A.M. Best Company.

In a separate but related transaction, the Harleysville Mutual Insurance Co. will sell its wholly owned subsidiary, Harleysville Life Insurance Co. to USLICO for a consideration of $17 million. Payment will be in the form of a USLICO $17 million, 10 percent, seven-year note which would be held by Harleysville Mutual Insurance Co. as part of its investment portfolio.

Harleysville Group Inc. is a regional holding company for four property and casualty insurers whose marketing territory encompasses the entire East Coast. The companies include: Atlantic Insurance Company of Savannah, Harleysville Insurance Company of New Jersey, Huron Insurance Company and Worcester Insurance Company. Harleysville Group also manages the operations of Berkshire Mutual Insurance Group, headquartered in Pittsfield, Mass., the financial results of which are not consolidated into Harleysville Group at the present time. Last month, Harleysville Group announced an agreement in principle had been reached to acquire New York Casualty Insurance Company and Phoenix General Insurance Company from Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co. Harleysville Group's net written premiums totalled $300.8 million in 1989, while assets stood at $568.5 million at Dec. 31, 1989.

Harleysville Mutual Insurance Co., founded in 1917, together with Harleysville Group Inc., form one of America's leading regional property and casualty insurance groups. On a combined statutory accounting basis, the property and casualty operations of the Harleysville organization, including Harleysville Mutual, produced direct written premiums of $584 million in 1989, while consolidated assets stood at $1.2 billion at Dec. 31, 1989. Harleysville Mutual also has subsidiaries that specialize in insurance and insurance-related services other than direct property and casualty insurance. These subsidiaries are not part of Harleysville Group Inc.

LAFAYETTE, LA (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The Exploration Company of Louisiana, Inc. (NASDAQ: XCOL) (XCL) has tested one of three indicated productive zones in the Ruben Gonzalez No. 5-A, the first well completed under its operatorship in the Berry, R. Cox Field.

The company recently increased its working interest in the field to approximately 65 per cent. The well was completed in the Hinnant 7-A zone flowing 10,164 Mcf per day on a 16/64 inch choke with 6,399 psig flowing tubing pressure. The Hinnant 7-A zone contains 96 feet of net pay. Other indicated productive zones in the well are the Hinnant 6 and 7-B which remain behind pipe for completion in the future.

The acquisition of additional working interests in the field was completed in July for US$40,000,000. The acquired working interests include proven reserves of approximately 60 Bcf. Although still in the development stage the area presently has nine producing wells and total proven reserves of approximately 200 Bcf.

XCL financed the acquisition with the issuance of $50,000,000 of units of convertible preferred stock and warrants, underwritten by Guiness Mahon, London.

Marsden W. Miller, Jr., chairman and chief executive officer, stated: "We are very pleased with the acquisition of the additional working interest in the Cox Field and with the completion of the preferred issue. In addition to 60 Bcf of proved reserves, the Berry R. Cox Field contains substantial probable and possible reserves.

"As operator, we plan to increase the rate of development of the field. The Gonzalez well completion result is certainly an encouraging way to start."

XCL is an oil and gas exploration and production company with offices in Lafayette, Louisiana. The company's shares are traded on NASDAQ and the International Stock Exchange of the United Kingdom and Republic of Ireland Limited.

TROY, MI (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Volkswagen and Audi are expanding the creative scope of their automotive styling operations by locating a design studio in trend-setting California.

The Simi Valley near Los Angeles will be the site of the Volkswagen of America, Inc. Design Center, the VW Group's first non-European design studio.

Europe's leading auto maker and the world's fourth-largest car company, the VW Group has design centers at company headquarters in Wolfsburg, West Germany, as well as in Dusseldorf, Ingolstadt, Munich and Barcelona, Spain.

"Locating a design studio in the U.S. reflects the Group's long-term commitment to the U.S. market, as well as the worldwide styling influence of California motorists," said VWoA President and Chief Executive Officer Hans Hungerland.

"The Simi Valley design center will house a staff of 10 designers from the U.S. and abroad, including creative staff from Volkswagen AG and Audi AG," Hungerland said. "They will build full-size and scale models and will contribute design concepts for cars that the VW Group builds for North America and throughout the world."

Michael Tozer, 46, has been selected as director of the center after having served since 1987 as director of design models for Volvo's monitoring and concept center in the Los Angeles area.

A former VWoA principal engineer for styling, Tozer worked for the company from 1979-87, spending nearly 3 1/2 years of that time at company design centers in Germany. Prior to joining VWoA, Tozer was a member of the General Motors design staff from 1967-79.

VWoA's Simi Valley design center is located within close proximity to the Art Center, a prominent industrial design school with a highly regarded automotive design curriculum.

It is also within 15 miles of VW and Audi Western Zone offices in Westlake Village and within 45 miles of downtown Los Angeles.

The VWoA Design Center will occupy a free-standing building in the Simi Valley Business Center. Offices will account for about 25 percent of the studio's 16,374 square feet of space.

VW and Audi designers are expected to occupy the Simi Valley facility in November.

BENTONVILLE, AR (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Wal-Mart Stores Inc. (NYSE: WMT) today said that it expects compliance to X/Open Company Ltd.'s Protability Guide (XPG) for it's Unix-based information technology (IT) purchases. At the same time, Wal-Mart Stores said it plans to become a member of X/Open's User Council this year.

Wal-Mart Stores will invest more than $40 million in 1990 in technology that will conform to XPG3, the latest version of the portability guide. Wal-Mart anticipates that the amount of XPG3-compliant product purchases will increase in the future.

"We have long recognized the advantages of open computing environments at Wal-Mart," said Bobby Martin, senior vice president of Corporate Information Services at Wal-Mart. "To be assured we are getting the value we expect from our open systems purchases, we need solid guidlines. Using X/Open's XPG as a guide, we get that assurance."

Wal-Mart expects to become a member of X/Open's User Council this year,

Martin said. "Membership on X/Open's User Council will afford us the opportunity to be involved in the open systems process at the most intimate level. Our participation with that of other users worldwide will help to continue X/Open's role as the force in shaping the direction of technology standards," Martin said.

X/Open, founded in 1984, is an independent, non-profit organization made up of international computer systems vendors who are investing business, technical and marketing resources in the specification of the X/Open Portability Guide (XPG), a vendor-independent, open operating environment based on de facto and international standards. Specification of the XPG is achieved through close cooperation with users, independent software vendors and standards organizations worldwide.

The 27-year-old Wal-Mart chain operates 1,465 Wal-Mart Stores and will open approximately 175 stores during 1990. Also a division of Wal-Mart, are 129 Sam's Wholesale Clubs, and four Wal-Mart's HYPERMART USA stores. The company, headquartered in Bentonville, also operates 16 major distribution centers across the country.

The company reported sales of $25.811 billion for the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1990. Wal-Mart stock trades on the New York and Pacific exchanges.

NEW YORK (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The Shidler/Holman Group announced today that the Group has reached an agreement with Bankers Trust Company designed to maximize the financing potential of Grossman's Inc.'s (NASDAQ: GROS) real estate assets following the consent solicitation. Bankers Trust was one of the lead banks in Grossman's 1985 reorganization and, as a result, is particularly well qualified for this assignment. In engaging Bankers Trust, the Shidler/Holman Group removes itself as a participant in a proposed sale/leaseback or mortgage transaction involving Grossman's real estate assets, and thereby avoids any appearance of a potential conflict of interest.

Commenting on recently announced financial results for Grossman's, the spokesman for the Group stated, "We are very disappointed to see that the company's earnings in the critical second quarter dropped to $.16 per share, compared with $.40 per share for the same period last year and that year to date, the company has reported a net loss of $.04 per share. In addition, July sales were just 1.3 percent above comparable 1989 sales, in spite of an increase in inventory SKU levels per store of as much as 50 percent. We believe that these poor results clearly spotlight the failure of the company's highly publicized 'merchandise intensification' program, which if continued, will only lead to continued losses for the company."

The Shidler/Holman Group is advocating a new operating strategy which avoids direct competition with industry giants such as Home Depot in favor of a return to Grossman's historical strength as a supplier of basic building materials for the do-it-yourself customer in markets where the company can retain competitive advantage.

The spokesman stated further, "We believe there is a need for immediate change. Our proposed board, which consists of nine directors, with extensive operating backgrounds in retailing, consulting, and corporate finance, has the experience and commitment in-place to 'stabilize and rebuild' Grossman's."

INDIANAPOLIS (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Hurco Companies, Inc. (NASDAQ: HURC) today reported higher revenues for the fiscal third quarter and nine months ended July 31, 1990, but lower earnings per share for both periods.

The company earned $1,055,000 or $.19 per share on revenues of $24,676,000 in the third quarter, compared with net income of $2,246,000 or $.45 per share on revenues of $23,537,000 for the third quarter of 1989. Net income for the nine months was $5,771,000 or $1.01 per share on revenue of $72,230,000, compared with net income of $5,311,000 or $1.17 per share on revenue of $63,814,000 for the same period in 1989.

Orders for the third quarter of 1990 were $22,700,000, compared to $25,200,000 for the same period last year. Backlog at the end of the current third quarter was $10,000,000 compared with $11,100,000 at the end of the second quarter.

The decline in net income for the third quarter despite higher shipments primarily reflects planned increases in investment in Research and Development projects and expenditures associated with marketing activities. The unexpected consequences of a rapid weakening of the U.S. Dollar against British Pound also adversely affected third quarter profits.

Brian D. McLaughlin, president and chief executive officer, said the reduced order rate reflects a slower U.S. economy. "We still anticipate earnings for fiscal 1990 to be at least $1.20 per share. We are cautiously optimistic that new Hurco products we will introduce at the International Machine Tool Show in September will stimulate additional demand in our U.S. market. We believe the European market will continue to expand, in part because the significantly weaker dollar has enhanced Hurco's competitive pricing position."

NEEDHAM, MA (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Brooktrout Technology Inc. today announced the TR112T1, the first facsimile card to permit direct connection of multichannel fax systems to high-speed T1 phone lines.

Brooktrout is targeting the new T1-compatible facsimile card at regional telephone companies, long-distance carriers, and other developers of high-volume facsimile systems for such applications as facsimile message store-and-forward, broadcast distribution services and facsimile-based information delivery services. Developers of high-volume fax messaging systems are turning to high-speed T1 trunks because they offer significantly lower operating costs compared to standard phone lines.

The cost reduction stems from the TR112T1's incorporation of an interface to a new breed of T1 channel bank emulation cards that can be packaged with fax cards inside the main system unit of any computer based on IBM Corp.'s Industry Standard Architecture (ISA) bus.

Other fax cards employ standard phone system interfaces that are incompatible with T1 lines as well as with the interfaces used by internal T1 channel bank cards. Connecting a multichannel fax system based on such cards to a T1 trunk entails using an external T1 channel bank. This increases system size, complexity and cost.

A single T1 trunk, for example, can support as many as 24 facsimile channels simultaneously compared to one transmission channel per standard phone line. A single ISA-based 80386 computer can accommodate 12 TR112T1 cards, each containing two facsimile modems as well as multiple channel bank emulation cards. This permits implementation of a 24-channel facsimile T1 link in a single box. In fact, Brooktrout is the only company that can run 24 channels of facsimile in a single chassis.

Other TR112T1 features include two facsimile modems per card, an optional digitized voice playback capability, and an optional Direct Inward Dial (DID) interface that permits automatic routing of fax messages to recipients.

The board is available immediately and comes with driver software for a variety of operating systems, including UNIX, OS/2 and MS-DOS. Single-unit price on the TR112T1 is $2,495.

Brooktrout Technology is a market and technical leader in voice and facsimile messaging systems and holds a landmark patent in integrted voice and fax messaging. The company was the first to introduce multichannel fax cards, combine voice and facsimile on a single card, use Direct Inward Dialing (DID) for autorouting of facsimile messages, and provide facsimile support for UNIX platforms.

STAMFORD, CT (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Citicorp Information Resources announced today that it has contracted with Westpac Bank-PNG-Limited (89.9 percent owned by Westpac Banking Corporation), to install its international comprehensive banking system (ICBS) as the foundation for its future banking needs. ICBS operates on the IBM AS/400.

Westpac Bank-PNG-Limited, headquartered in Port Moresby, Papua New Guinea, has 15 branches and 10 sub-branches and is the largest non-government owned commercial bank in the country.

Westpac Banking Corporation, an international financial services group headquartered in Australia with nearly AUD 118B in assets, offers a full range of international banking and financial services. Westpac's operations extend to 29 countries.

Neil J. Kinney, the managing director of Westpac Bank-PNG-Limited, commented, "The ICBS system provides a basis for the bank's operations which is already proven through its use by a variety of banks in both the developing and developed world. Citicorp Information Resources' record and commitment to continually enhance ICBS, assures Westpac of long term system reliability. Our drive to maintain market leadership will be supported by that reliability."

Westpac has provided banking services in Papua New Guinea for 80 years. To capitalize on the long term potential of the marketplace, Westpac searched for an information system to meet its retail processing needs of the 1990's. Westpac concluded that the Citicorp/IBM solution provides superior features for customers, management and branch personnel. The product, commitment, service, and financial stability of the Citicorp/IBM solution weighed heavily in the decision.

Frank Martire, the chairman of Citicorp Information Resources, stated, "We are very pleased to be working with Westpac. Westpac is well regarded in the global market as a technology leader. Westpac Bank-PNG-Limited's choice of the ICBS system is representative of a model that can be duplicated throughout the world. The ICBS product can easily be used as a stand-alone or decentralized solution for retail off-shore processing requirements of large financial institutions such as Westpac."

Citicorp Information Resources, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Citicorp, is a leading provider of a full range of data processing software and services for financial institutions worldwide. Products include: the Comprehensive Banking System an in-house, integrated software system; National Service Product an on-line service bureau; Facilities Management in which Citicorp operates a bank's own data center; and Resource Manager in which Citicorp operates a bank's proprietary software at a Citicorp data center.

SALISBURY, MD (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Second National Federal Savings Bank (NASDAQ-NMS: SNFS) shareholders approved formation of a holding company, Second National Bancorporation, at a special stockholders meeting held on Friday, Aug. 17.

"Formation of the holding company will allow Second National greater flexibility in raising capital and will assist in product development and mergers and acquisitions," said Henry A. Berliner Jr., president and chief executive officer of the company.

The board of directors at its regular meeting declared a quarterly preferred stock dividend totalling $356,250, based upon preferred stock outstanding of $15 million with a 9.5 percent coupon rate. All of the preferred stock is held by Public Service Resources Corporation of New Jersey, the third largest gas and electric utility in the United States.

Company officials had previously received approval from the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) for the move. Although Second National meets all current capital requirements, it does not presently meet future risk-based capital requirements and for that reason required OTS consent.

In addition, the board of directors unanimously adopted a resolution indicating its intent to cut the common stock quarterly dividend in half from 9 cents per share, or 36 cents annually, to 4.5 cents per share, or 18 cents on an annualized basis.

"Our residential mortgage portfolio remains strong, but non-performing commercial real estate doubled during the second quarter, similar to the experience of other banks and thrifts in our region. The reduction in the dividend payout will allow the company to preserve capital and increase general loan loss provisions. While we believe that Second National's borrowers are better able to withstand the current softening in the real estate economy than those in many other financial institutions, prudence dictates that we continue to make major additions to general loan reserves whenever possible," Berliner added.

General loan loss reserves along with stockholders' equity are part of total regulatory capital which forms a cushion of safety for depositors. Specific reserves are those set aside by management against individual projects in which losses are anticipated.

Second National is a $1.77 billion publicly traded thrift with 39 offices throughout Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Virginia and the District of Columbia.

DUNDEE, MI (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Holnam Inc. (NYSE: HLN) announced that its board of directors has agreed to sell approximately 22.2 million newly issued common shares to Holdernam Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of "Holderbank" Financiere Glaris Ltd., at a price of $4.50 per share.

Proceeds from the sale will be used for the retirement of existing debt and other general corporate purposes. The board took this action at its regularly scheduled meeting in Zurich, Switzerland on Friday, Aug. 17, 1990.

At present, Holdernam owns 87.2 percent of the 112.5 million outstanding shares of Holnam common stock. After the purchase, Holdernam will own 89.3 percent of the outstanding Holnam common shares. On Aug. 16, 1990, the closing price of Holnam common stock was $4.25 per share.

At the same meeting, Holnam management presented to the board a downward revision to its earnings estimate for 1990. Management now expects the company to incur a consolidated net loss of $.10 to $.15 per share in 1990.

The company had previously forecast consolidated earnings for 1990 of $.05 to $.10 per share. The earnings revision was attributed to inflationary cost increases and to the declining sales contribution of St. Lawrence Cement Inc., Holnam's 60 percent-owned Canadian subsidiary.

The company noted that the recent revision was made prior to, and without consideration of, any possible adverse economic consequences to business arising from events in the Middle East of the past two weeks.

Holnam is one of the largest cement manufacturers in North America. "Holderbank", based in Zurich, is one of the largest cement manufacturers in the world.

DALLAS (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Harken Energy Corporation (NYSE: HEC) of Dallas today reported a $6.7 million operating loss for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, compared to an operating loss of $2.9 million for the prior year's second quarter. Harken's six-month operating losses during 1990 totalled $5.5 million compared to $2.3 million in 1989.

The major reasons for the second quarter operating loss were lower gasoline gross profits at Harken Marketing Company ("HMC"), Harken's refined products marketing subsidiary, and increases to certain HMC expense reserves.

In addition to the operating loss, $9.8 million in unusual charges were recorded by HMC, including:

-- Costs associated with the decision to discontinue certain HMC operations and provisions for non-recurring expenses associated with the consolidation of administrative activities into HMC's Houston headquarters; and

-- Decreases in the carrying value of certain HMC assets due to the renegotiation of certain notes receivable in order to accelerate principal payments due HMC and remove HMC from certain contingent obligations.

After corporate general and administrative expenses, interest expense and a provision for estimated income taxes associated with periods prior to Harken's acquisition of HMC, Harken reported a consolidated second quarter net loss of $23.2 million ($.73 per common share after accrued preferred stock dividends.) In the prior year's second quarter, Harken reported consolidated net income of $3.6 million ($.07 per common share after accrued preferred stock dividends).

When comparing second quarter, 1990 results with those of the prior year's comparable period, the following were also significant: results for the second quarter of 1989 included a gain on the sale of a subsidiary as well as equity in the earnings of an unconsolidated public company which was sold later in 1989; also, interest expense was higher in 1990 due primarily to increases in project financing at Tejas Power Corporation ("TPC"), Harken's natural gas gathering and marketing subsidiary, and in HMC's bank financing.

Harken's second quarter results bring the six-month consolidated net loss to $25.3 million, or $.86 per common share after accrued preferred stock dividends. In the prior year, Harken reported six-month consolidated net income of $2.4 million ($.02 per common share after accrued preferred stock dividends).

Despite the second quarter results, Harken reported that cash provided by operating activities had increased by $9.6 million to $5.7 million for the first six months of 1990 compared to negative cash flow from operating activities of $3.9 million for the prior year's comparable period.

Harken Energy Corporation manages and develops energy assets. HEC retails, wholesales and distributes gasoline through its subsidiary, Harken Marketing Company. Through its subsidiary, Tejas Power Corporation, HEC constructs, owns and operates natural gas gathering, storage and transmission facilities in Texas and Louisiana and markets third party gas to a variety of end-users.

HOLLYWOOD, FLA. (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - On Sept. 1, 1990, General Rent-A-Car will launch a multi-million-dollar giveaway promotion with the theme "General Has a Gift for Winning You Over."

The program, which will be introduced to consumers through a print and television advertising campaign, will run through Feb. 28, 1991. Customers renting a compact Chrysler car at a compact rate, or a larger Chrysler car, during this time will receive a General gift certificate, which is redeemable for valuable free gifts. Among the selections are a General plush puppy (free with one rental), a sporty General travel pack (free with one rental), free General rentals of Chrysler cars, free upgrades, discounts on Continental Airlines flights, and free Brookstone merchandise certificates.

"Not only will customers save money by renting at General, but now they'll earn a gift as well," said F. Paul Silicato, president and CEO of General Rent-A-Car. "We believe it's the best giveaway in the history of the car rental business."

Never before have such valuable gifts been given to customers renting cars at such low rates, said Silicato. General, which offers free unlimited mileage with every rental, will not increase its rates in order to offer the gifts.

The promotion, the largest in the company's history, is designed to encourage customers to experience the quality of the company's service and products, like the superior engineering and safety of its featured

Chrysler cars. That same quality is evident in each of General's free gifts, such as the plush Saint Bernard puppy, specially designed by the premier toy manufacturer Russ Berrie to represent General's corporate symbol and mascot.

General Rent-A-Car has more than tripled rental locations since the company was purchased by Silicato in May 1989. Headquartered in Hollywood, Fla., General now operates 100 rental offices, with a strong presence in the South, Southwest, West and Northwest regions. CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - CCAIR, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: CCAR), doing business as USAir Express, today announced that a consulting division of Coopers & Lybrand, the Company's independent auditors, and Kurth & Company, an aviation marketing and management consulting firm, have been retained to advise the Company as it develops a plan of reorganization under Chapter 11 of the United States Bankruptcy Code. Roy H. Hagerty, the Company's President, stated that the assistance of these consultants would allow him to devote substantially more attention to the managemnt of the Company's daily operations.

The Company has also taken steps to realign and consolidate its upper management. Two executive officers and several management positions have been eliminated in the realignment. The new management organization has been designed to be more responsive and operate with minimal levels of authority. The Company believes that this reduction in the size of managment is an effective cost-cutting measure.

PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Cedar Group Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: CDRG), a leading distributor of imported fasteners, headquartered here, said today it has entered into a definitive agreement to purchase privately held Gardenbolt International Corp. for $5.5 million cash.

Based in Sayerville, N.J., Gardenbolt International has operated as a distributor of imported fasteners for more than 50 years, with 1989 sales of approximately $26 million. When combined with Cedar Group's two current operating subsidiaries, M.S.W. International Inc. and Banyon Fasteners

Inc. annualized sales will be approximately $45 million, creating what management said it believes will be one of the largest importers and wholesalers of industrial fasteners in the United States. During 1989, U.S. sales of imported fasteners were in excess of $1 billion.

According to Stephen S. Simyak, Cedar Group president, "The acquisition of Gardenbolt will represent a major step forward in Cedar Group's plan to substantially expand its market share of the fastener distribution industry. Gardenbolt brings to Cedar Group more than just a dramatic expansion in customer base, product lines and distribution facilities -- it brings the most effective management team in the industry, led by Steven R. Schonholtz, Gardenbolt's president and chief executive officer."

He said, "We are delighted that Steven Schonholtz has agreed to serve as executive vice-president and chief operating officer of Cedar Group upon the closing of this transaction. In addition, Mr. Schonholtz will continue to serve as president and CEO of Gardenbolt. He leads a young, enthusiastic management team, prepared to grow rapidly and also capable of absorbing substantial new growth from future acquisitions. Thus, Cedar Group has bypassed the time and expense required to recruit and train a comparable organization to spearhead its expansion efforts."

Simyak said that Cedar Group expected to effect a closing of the transaction within 45 days of the execution of the definitive agreement and had already obtained a funding commitment to facilitate the close from "a major international bank."

BUFFALO, NY (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Integrated Waste Services, Inc. (NASDAQ: IWSI), announced today that it has acquired the assets and operations of Southwestern Environmental and Wizard Method, Inc. Both companies are based in Niagara Falls, N.Y. Terms of the acquisitions were not disclosed.

Southwestern Environmental is a demolition and asbestos abatement contractor and has been in business for over ten years. Southwestern operates primarily in southern Texas and western New York, but has completed projects throughout the country for state and local municipalities. The company recently completed demolition of the city of Buffalo's War Memorial Stadium.

Wizard Method, Inc., has provided industrial cleaning and asbestos abatement services to industrial accounts in western New York for the past 25 years. Some of Wizard's largest customers include Occidental Chemical, Dupont, Harrison Radiator and Eastman Kodak.

James H. Williams, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Integrated Waste Services, stated, "Southwestern Environmental and Wizard Method, Inc., will be merged into a new wholly owned subsidiary called Integrated Waste Special Services, Inc. The subsidiary will be headed by Jerome P. Williams, who was previously partner and founder of Southwestern Environmental and a principal shareholder of Wizard Method, Inc."

Williams also added, "These new acquisitions complement and enhance the existing operations of Integrated Waste Services. Our extension into the demolition business will provide us with an increased volume of material for disposal into the construction and demolition landfill. In addition, the strong industrial client base of Wizard Method, Inc., will give us the opportunity to expand our transportation and disposal business in that part of the market."

Integrated Waste Services, Inc., of Buffalo, is a non-hazardous waste management company which provides solid waste management services to governmental, commercial and industrial customers. The company's services include collection, transfer, disposal and recycling of solid waste, and tire shredding and slitting, including on-site remediation of tire stockpiles.

OWENSBORO, KY (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The last time W. R. Grace & Co.'s Organic Chemicals Division facility in Owensboro had a lost-time recordable accident, President Reagan was in the White House and George Bush was still vice president.

That facility has operated since Dec. 1, 1987, without a lost-time accident. More dramatically, it has operated since 1982 with only one such accident and has functioned for the past two years with only one recordable incident.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration defines a lost- time accident as an injury or illness that results in days away from work. A recordable incident is cited if medical treatment is required.

By comparison, the national average for the chemical industry for lost-time accidents is 1.6 incidents per year for every 100 employees.

The best record for this facility lasted five years and seven months beginning in 1981, a tribute, according to plant officials, to the employees themselves. "Safety can't be done on paper," according to William C. Vargason, production superintendent who coordinates the Owensboro plant's safety program. "It has to be incorporated as part of the work ethic," he said.

"We try to instruct production employees to approach their jobs with safety in mind," added Vargason. "They now do that. Employees watch themselves and they watch each other," he concluded. The facility has 48 employees.

In an effort to highlight this achievement and to show the company's concern for safety matters, senior management from the Organic Chemicals Division, headquartered in Lexington, Mass., attended a dinner in Owensboro hosted by plant manager Tony Rowe honoring the employees.

"We place a tremendous emphasis on safety and we wanted to demonstrate that," said Edward G. Najjar, president of that division. "This is a team effort that requires everyone's involvement."

company, with sales of $3.3 billion. Grace is an international specialty chemicals company with interests in energy, manufacturing and service businesses. Its sales exceed $6 billion.

MCLEAN, VA (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Vie de France Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: VDEF) announced today that a tentative agreement has been reached with Marriott Corporation's (NYSE: MHS) Host International Division, to franchise a number of Vie de France restaurants.

Richard M. Tolbert, president of Vie de France Corporation, made the announcement, stating that Vie de France had been working for some time with Marriott's Host Division in setting up this franchise arrangement and that the company was very pleased to be able to join other selected national brands at various airports and travel plaza locations managed by the Host Division.

The initial agreement calls for five franchise locations to be opened in the first year, with two locations to be established in the new Terminal 4 at the Phoenix Airport, one at Dulles International Airport in the Washington area, and two other East Coast locations. The concept of the first five units will take the form of a newly developed Vie de France Express Cafe especially designed to accommodate fast moving airport crowds and modeled after the company's own highly successful operation at National Airport in Washington. The Express Cafe will feature Vie de France's freshly prepared breads, croissants, muffins, sandwiches and salads, and will be highlighted by on-premise baking.

Depending on the locations and needs, future operations franchised by Marriott could also incorporate the Vie de France Fast & Fresh (cafeteria concept) or the Vie de France Bakery/Cafe (full-service concept). Tolbert stated that after this initial phase it is anticipated that Vie de France will have opportunities for additional franchises in Marriott's 46 airports and over 100 travel plazas operating on major highway systems.

The Express Cafe concept is ideally suited for future franchising because it provides a quick meal of high quality food with a European touch, for a much lower investment than a full-scale restaurant.

Finally, Tolbert noted that the company's stated strategy has been to grow its restaurant business through franchising with major operators. The Marriott opportunity greatly accelerates that program and further compliments the unique relationship that Vie de France enjoys with Marriott in its wholesale bakery operations as well as its new state of the art sous-vide start-up operation.

Vie de France is currently offering for sale existing restaurants with franchise opportunities outside its core areas of Washington and Chicago. Included among the areas being offered are the Los Angeles, New York, San Francisco, Dallas, Minneapolis and Southern Florida markets.

The company, based in McLean, operates 60 Vie de France restaurants and 22 Vie de France wholesale facilities in major metropolitan markets throughout the United States.

PLAINVIEW, NY (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Professional Care, Inc. (AMEX: PCE) of Plainview, today reported results of operations for the third quarter and nine months ended June 30, 1990.

Revenues for the third quarter ended June 30, 1990 decreased by $1,366,000 from the same period in 1989. For the nine months ended June 30, 1990, revenues decreased by $3,888,000 from the corresponding period last year. These decreases are primarily attributable to a lower than normal patient census in hospitals, the company's need to devote significant resources to the successful resolution of its legal actions, and its inability to, until recently, arrange adequate financing to support increased marketing and staffing activity.

Included in revenues for the three and nine months ended June 30, 1990, is approximately $50,000 and $500,000, respectively, collected from Visiting Nurse Service of New York for accounts receivable which had previously been written off.

The company reported a net loss of $5,273,000 for the three months ended June 30, 1990, as compared to net income of $335,000 for the same period in 1989. Included in the third quarter results were "one time" charges of $4,950,000 for settlement of all of its outstanding legal issues and $509,000 for disposal of computer equipment. Net income from continuing operations for the three months ended June 30, 1990, excluding the above identified "one time" charges, was $186,000 as compared to $287,000 for the same period in 1989. The net loss for the nine month period ended June 30, 1990, was $4,761,000 as compared to net income of $1,039,000 for the same period in 1989. The net income for such nine month period from continuing operations, excluding the above identified "one time" charges, was $698,000 as compared to $991,000 for the same period in 1989.

As part of its corporate redevelopment program, the company is pleased to announce the completion of a $1,250,000 "bridge financing," the proceeds from which have enabled the company to comply with the settlement terms of its civil litigation with the New York State Deputy Attorney General's office. In addition, the company has obtained a credit line of $2,000,000 based upon eligible receivables, through Ambassador Factors, a member of Fleet/Norstar Financial Corp. of New York. Part of the proceeds from this financing has enabled the company to pay off its loan of approximately $733,000 to Care Plus, Inc. of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The company is now in a much stronger financial position and is poised to pursue a number of attractive business growth and development opportunities that have been planned.

MIAMI (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Imperial Industries, Inc. today announced results of operations for the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990.

Results for the quarter ended June 30, 1990 produced a loss from continuing operations of $10,000, or $.02 per share, on sales of $2,102,000, compared to a loss from continuing operations of $121,000, or $.04 per share, on sales of $1,996,000 for the same period last year. The company derived a net loss of $10,000 compared to net income of $911,000 for the quarters ended June 30, 1990 and 1989, respectively.

In the second quarter of 1989, the company terminated operations of Adobe Home Centers, Inc. and disposed of substantially all of the assets relating to their operations. As a result, the company recognized a gain from discontinued operations of $705,000 for the second quarter ended June 30, 1989, due principally to a realized gain of $906,000 derived from the sale of real property. Also the company recognized an extraordinary gain of $327,000 in the second quarter of 1989 as a result of the settlement of an accrued liability for an amount less than the carrying value of the obligation shown on the company's accounting records.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the company derived a loss from continuing operations of $58,000, or $.04 per share, on sales of $4,057,000, compared to income from continuing operations of $388,000, or $.05 per share, on sales of $3,819,000, for the comparable period last year. The 1990 six month results included a gain of approximately $120,000 derived from the sale of surplus real property, as compared to a $638,000 gain for the same period in 1989. As a result, the company had a net loss of $58,000, or $.04 per share, for the six months ended June 30, 1990, compared to net income of $1,421,000, or $.25 per share, for 1989.

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Scientists at Ciba-Geigy Corporation have developed fertile, genetically transformed plants in commercially valuable inbred corn lines.

"The direct genetic transformation of elite breeding lines will markedly reduce time required to bring engineered hybrid seed to market," said Dr. Mary-Dell Chilton, executive director of Ciba-Geigy's agricultural biotechnology research unit.

Any genetically engineered corn Ciba-Geigy commercializes will be marketed by its Seed Division, which produces and sells Funk's G brand hybrid corn, grain sorghum, soybean and alfalfa seed to farmers.

The scientists introduced two "marker" genes into cells of three Ciba-Geigy elite corn breeding lines. Marker genes are used experimentally to determine whether new genetic material can be successfully integrated into a plant or other organism. Plants grown from the transformed corn cells were bred with non-transformed plants, and the marker genes were found to be present and functioning in the next generation of plants.

Genetic transformation of "model" corn types, which are easier to regenerate, is a more common research approach. However, model types require considerably more traditional breeding time and effort after foreign gene introduction to produce high-quality commercial hybrid seed. Previous reports of genetic transformations of corn, Dr. Chilton noted, strongly suggest the use of model types.

The Ciba-Geigy scientists introduced the new genes into the corn cells by using a technique called microprojectile bombardment. Tiny metal beads coated with the selected genetic material are shot into the plant tissue.

When the technique is successful, the new genes are integrated into the plant's genetic structure and perform their desired function.

Dr. Bruce Hunter, vice president of research for the company's Seed Division, said the accomplishment "advances Ciba-Geigy to a leading position to develop and market genetically engineered hybrid seed corn."

Ciba-Geigy may seek approval from the U.S. and North Carolina Departments of Agriculture to conduct field tests of the transformed corn next year. The company would not have engineered insect- or disease-resistant corn seed on the market before the latter part of this decade. Lengthy testing and breeding is required to assure optimum field performance.

MINNEAPOLIS (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Northern Eagle Express Shuttle announced today that it received route certification approval from the State of Minnesota's Department of Transportation to establish an express bus shuttle service for passengers and express deliveries to/from a four-city area including Austin, Albert Lea, Owatonna and Faribault to the Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport/Charter Terminal.

This new, privately held business which was established by a small group of businessmen from Minneapolis, will be based in Austin, Minn. It is scheduled to begin servicing this four-city region of Minnesota in October 1990.

Plans call for the Northern Eagle Express Shuttle Service to make multiple stops daily (Monday-Friday, Saturday and public holidays) to all four cities on the route for bus transportation to the Minneapolis- St. Paul International Airport/Charter Terminal.

Because airport express shuttle services link smaller communities with their urban counterparts, the Chambers of Commerce of each city on the route have vigorously supported the establishment of Northern Eagle Express Shuttle in order to enhance the economic/business development of this four-city area.

Northern Eagle Express Shuttle Service is the first DOT-approved express shuttle service that will transport passengers (including those with handicap disabilities) and deliveries to and from the area to the Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport/Charter Terminal.

Employment Opportunities Residents in the Austin-Albert Lea area who are interested in seeking employment with the Northern Eagle Express Shuttle should contact Larry Haugen at the Austin Chamber of Commerce for more information.

For more information about the Northern Eagle Express Shuttle, please write the firm at its Twin Cities address: 14770 Martin Drive, Eden Prairie, MN 55344.

FRESNO, CALIF. (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Gottschalks Inc. (NYSE: GOT) announced that its second quarter net income for the period ending Aug. 20 1990, improved to $79,000 compared to the year earlier quarterly net loss of $1,294,000. On a per-share basis, quarterly earnings were 1 cent compared to the year earlier net loss of 16 cents per share. Net income for the 26-week period was $335,000 or 4 cents per share compared to the prior year first-half loss of $943,000 or 12 cents per share.

"The significant improvement in earnings is due to a number of factors, " stated Robert Lawson, Gottschalks chief financial officer. "Our strong sales increases of 28 percent for the quarter were combined with improved inventory control and improved expense control which certainly added significantly to the earnings increase.

"Tighter inventories along with a number of opportunistic purchases helped to improve gross margin performance by 200 basis points. Improved earnings also resulted from a reduction in selling, general and administrative expenses to 30.8 percent of sales from 33.5 percent of sales for the prior year quarterly period. Interest expense also decreased to 3.5 percent of sales from 3.9 percent for the prior year.

"We believe our earnings improvement will continue into the third quarter. Demographics in our market area continue to improve, fueling our strong double digit same store sales increases. Our latest store opening in Capitola continues to perform ahead of plan. Our Palmdale store opens on Sept. 18 and should produce comparable results. Given our relatively immature store base we are excited about the opportunity which exists to achieve even greater operating leverage as we move into the last half of 1990," added Lawson.

Gottschalks is a regional department store chain, currently operating 22 department stores and 32 specialty apparel stores in the Central Valley and Central Coast areas of California. Gottschalks offers moderate to upper moderately priced brand-name fashion merchandise, and is in its 86th year of continuous family management.

NEW ORLEANS (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - McDermott International, Inc. (NYSE: MDR) announced that Babcock & Wilcox (B and W), leading a Canadian consortium, has been awarded a turnkey contract from Malette Inc. for a chemical recovery boiler island.

The contract, valued at approximately $44 million, is part of a major upgrade of Malette's kraft pulp mill in Smooth Rock Falls, Ontario. Completion of the turnkey project is set for the summer of 1992.

The heart of the project is a Babcock and Wilcox recovery boiler that will be designed and manufactured at B and W's Cambridge, Ontario facility. The B and W consortium includes Nicholls-Radtke, Ltd. located in Cambridge Ontario, who will act as general contractor, and H.A. Simons Ltee., of Montreal, Quebec who will provide overall plant engineering for the entire complex.

The new boiler island augments a recovery unit supplied by B and W in 1964 and will allow Malette to expand pulp production in Smooth Rock from 320 to 500 metric tons per year. Babcock and Wilcox has been building Kraft recovery boilers since 1929, when the company installed the world's first at a pulp mill in Windsor Mills, Quebec. Today, the company is also a world leader in a wide range of environmental equipment.

In Smooth Rock Falls, Malette's new B and W boiler will provide mill machinery with 217,000 pounds of steam per hour as it reclaims pulping chemicals at the rate of about 300 tons per day.

Environmental equipment on Malette's recovery facility will include a low-odor evaporator and a scrubber on the dissolving tank vent stack, which are designed to keep sulfur emissions well within regulatory limits.

Babcock and is a major operating unit of McDermott International, Inc., a leading worldwide energy services company.

The company and its subsidiaries manufacture steam-generating equipment, defense products, and tubular products. They also provide engineering and construction services for industrial and utility facilities onshore, and to the oil and gas industry offshore.

NEW YORK, (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Takara Co. Ltd., Japan's second largest toy manufacturer, will open a research facility on Aug. 30 at 568 Broadway in Soho, Manhattan. It is Takara's first research facility outside of Japan.

The research facility's purpose is to develop ideas for new products that can be marketed worldwide. The official name of the facility will be Takara Design of New York.

"There is a certain limit of creative development in Japan," said Isao Kokubun, general manager of Takara. "We cannot expand our know-how by depending only on the Japanese youth or the Japanese trading companies; we must also observe the needs and markets of youngsters in the United States."

"With the opening of this facility, Takara hopes to get a better sense for products that will appeal to both the American and Japanese people," added Tohru Tomita, chief director at Takara Design of New York.

Takara produces a variety of internationally popular products under license, such as the Transformers toy line and the Game of Life. Takara manufactured the Jenny Doll and the Licca Doll in Japan. The company employs more than 1,100 people worldwide and had total sales of approximately $275 million last year.

Takara's latest products are based on "Humatronics"(TM), an animation technology, the name of which combines the words "human" and "electronic." The products respond to external stimuli, particularly sound, with movement.

Takara's Rock'N Flower(TM), the first product in the line, has sold 3 million units in the United States since its introduction in June 1989.

Takara has now expanded the line with the introduction of the Dancing

Cans(TM).

The facility will be staffed initially by several experienced Japanese researchers. Eventually, American researchers will be added.

SAN JOSE, CA. (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - VLSI Technology Inc. (NASDAQ: VLSI) has announced the appointment of Charles E. Parr to the position of vice president and general manager of Asia-Pacific Operations and Jeffrey Winters to the position of director of U.S. Distribution Sales.

Parr will be responsible for directing VLSI's sales offices and design centers in Hong Kong, Taiwan, and Singapore, as well as sales representatives in Korea, Thailand, and Australia. Under Parr, the Asia-Pacific operation has been elevated to a market business unit reporting directly to president and chief operating officer, Dr. James R. Fiebiger.

Commenting on the announcement, Fiebiger, said, "Charlie Parr's appointment demonstrates our increased emphasis on organizational effectiveness and the strategic areas necessary for our continued growth. As a key region for our highly successful PC-compatible chip sets and an emerging ASIC market, Asia-Pacific will receive increased support as we expand our presence in this region under the new company reporting structure. Charlie Parr's background as one of the original members of our Logic Products Division and his experience in the Far East PC market make him an excellent choice to head our Asia-Pacific operations."

Prior to his promotion, Parr was director of marketing for the Logic Products Division. Leon Humble, vice president and general manager of the Logic Products Division, will act as director of marketing until a replacement is announced.

Winters will be responsible for managing sales through distribution in the United States and Canada. A five-year company veteran, Winters will report to David Chavoustie, vice president, Sales and Marketing. Winters is returning to the United States from VLSI's Asia-Pacific operations, where he was director of Asia-Pacific Sales.

Fiebiger said, "Jeff Winters will bring his broad experience in sales to the distribution function at VLSI and will be able to provide the leadership needed as we strengthen our sales through this valuable channel."

VLSI Technology Inc. designs, manufactures and markets application-specific integrated circuits, and application-specific memories and logic products. VLSI Technology, which has approximately 2,000 employees worldwide, had 1989 revenues of $288.5 million.

HOUSTON (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Chiles Offshore Corp. (AMEX: CHC) a provider of contract offshore drilling and workover services to major and independent oil and gas companies, today announced an agreement with Energy Service Company Inc. (ENSCO) and R.D. Smith and Company Inc. (R.D. Smith) to purchase six jackup drilling rigs and one semi- submersible rig from Penrod Drilling Corp. The six jackup rigs, the Penrod 53, 59, 60, 62 65 and 66, and the semi-submersible, will be sold by Penrod for $54 million. All of the rigs will be delivered to Chiles Offshore Corp. in the Gulf of Mexico.

The purchase will increase the number of rigs under Chiles Offshore Corp. management by 50 percent, from 14 to 21. These will include 16 owned mobile offshore jackup rigs, three other jackup rigs under bareboat charter, one owned semi-submersible rig, and a self contained platform rig managed for and owned by Conoco Inc.

The addition of these rigs is not only consistent with the strategic direction of Chiles Offshore Corp. to diversify its operating base from the Gulf of Mexico to other markets in the world, but it also places the company second in the number of jackup rigs operating in the Gulf of Mexico.

The sale of the rigs to Chiles Offshore Corp. is conditioned upon approval by the Federal Trade Commission, completion of the acquisition of the remaining 31.3 percent of Penrod's senior debt and equity securities that are not already owned by ENSCO and its affiliated group of investors and the affiliates of R.D. Smith, and certain other conditions. The ENSCO Group and affiliates of R.D. Smith expect to complete the acquisition of the remaining Penrod interest on or before Oct. 31, 1990.

With headquarters in Houston and additional offices in Lafayette, La., Chiles Offshore Corp. is engaged in drilling and workover of offshore oil and gas wells on a contract basis for major and independent oil and gas companies. Its drilling fleet consists of rigs with maximum water depth of between 200 and 300 feet. Through the first six months of 1990, Chiles Offshore Corp. equipment had a 92 percent overall utilization rate.

PITTSBURGH (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Cyclops Industries Inc. (NYSE: CYC) announced today that it will close its Detroit Strip steel operation during the fourth quarter of 1990.

The closing will affect approximately 100 workers at the division's plant in Detroit, which produces close tolerance cold-rolled carbon strip steel, primarily for automotive, steel distributor and industrial markets.

Joseph J. Nowak, executive vice president of operations, said the closing came despite a number of steps taken by the company over the past several years in an effort to make the division profitable. "Nonetheless, the overall cost efficiency of the facility combined with declining market share have resulted in continuing losses," said Nowak.

Nowak said that layoffs would begin in mid-October and should be completed by the end of the year. He said Cyclops has already provided for the costs of the shutdown and does not expect the closing to adversely impact earnings.

Cyclops Industries Inc. is a producer of flat-rolled stainless and carbon steel, high performance alloy and tubular products, and also manufactures and erects metal panels and curtain wall for nonresidential buildings.

SAN DIEGO (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Mail Boxes Etc. (NASDAQ: MAIL) announced today that it received $400,000 under a settlement agreement with American Casualty Insurance Co. to settle claims under a directors and officers liability insurance policy.

The money was obtained by Mail Boxes Etc. under a $1 million directors and officers liability insurance policy as a partial recovery of funds paid by the company in February of this year in connection with the $2.8 million settlement payment of the lawsuit against the company and certain of its officers. That lawsuit was brought by Nancy Tash, the daughter of one of the original founders of the company, who alleged that the company and its officers failed to disclose certain information in connection with a 1983 purchase of her stock associated with the reorganization of the company.

Since the entire amount of the settlement had previously been written off, the $400,000 payment received by the company will result in an approximately $240,000 after-tax gain and it will be recorded by the company in its second quarter ending Oct. 31, 1990.

Mail Boxes Etc. is a San Diego-based holding company whose sole operating subsidiary, Mail Boxes Etc. USA Inc. (also known as The Post Office Alternative), is the nation's largest franchisor of neighborhood service centers specializing in postal, business and communications services centers with more than 1,200 MBE Centers sold in the United States, Puerto Rico, Canada, Japan and Mexico.

At the close of business on April 30, 1990, Mail Boxes Etc. had 1,130 Service Centers operating in 45 states, plus the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Canada, Mexico and Japan.

EUGENE, ORE. (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Bohemia Inc. (NASDAQ: BOHM) today reported a net loss of $476,000 or $.09 per share, for the first fiscal quarter ended July 31, 1990. In the corresponding prior year period, the company had net income of $7,498,000 or $1.44 a share. Sales for the current first quarter declined to $78,114,000 from $93,268,000 in the year earlier period.

Earnings per share for last's year's quarter have been adjusted for a 3 percent stock dividend distributed Jan. 3, 1990.

In announcing the results, Richard D. Tinney, president and chief executive officer, said, "Our operating performance reflects the impact of higher raw material costs compounded by an erosion in market prices for most of our forest product categories. While the inflation in log prices appears to be lessening, prices for manufactured products continue to be affected by a spreading recession in a number of our major markets." Tinney stated that, contrary to recent speculative comments, Bohemia continues to have sufficient supplies of logs to meet its requirements. Tinney noted, in his remarks before the Seattle Society of Financial Analysts in January 1990, "Bohemia's timber supply, supplemented with purchases in the open market, is sufficient for nearly two years' production in Oregon and over three years in California." Nothing has materially changed since that statement was made. Tinney further noted, "I am encouraged that our raw material supply has actually increased in the last three months."

STERLING, VA. (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Radiation Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: RADS) today reported fourth quarter and fiscal 1990 results. Sales, net income and earnings per share all set new quarterly and annual records for the company. The company reported net income of $2,118,000 (39 cents per share) on sales of $30.9 million for the three months ended June 30, 1990. For the same period in the prior year, net income was $577,000 (11 cents per share) on sales of $17.3 million. For the year ended June 30, 1990, sales and net income were up 55 percent and 70 percent respectively over the prior fiscal year. Net income was $5,644,000 ($1.04 per share) on sales of $85.2 million, as compared with $3,317,000 (63 cents per share) on sales of $54.9 million for the corresponding period last year.

Total backlog of unfilled orders on June 30, 1990, was $108 million compared to a backlog of $98.4 million for the corresponding period last year.

Richard E. Thomas, chairman and chief executive officer of Radiation Systems, said that the record performance reflects steady growth in radar, navigation and terrestrial microwave product lines, as well as significant long-awaited growth in the commercial satellite communications segment fueled by the success of the Channel One Program.

Radiation Systems, Inc., designs, manufactures and installs a broad range of antenna systems for radar, air traffic control, tactical military, satellite earth stations, terrestrial microwave and other specialized uses throughout the world.

PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Beginning today, advances in telephone technology will permit customers in approximately 80 southeastern Pennsylvania communities to use their telephones in ways that will add convenience and security to their lives.

New optional services from Bell of Pennsylvania let customers automatically redial a busy number, trace a call, block numbers from which they do not wish to receive calls, assign a special ring to selected numbers, automatically return the last call received and forward only selected calls.

These personal call management features are being made available by Bell of Pennsylvania through the Bell Atlantic (NYSE: BEL) family of I.Q. Services (A). Customers may use the services whenever they are needed, or heavy users may save money by subscribing to their favorite ones.

Among the services, the most popular is likely to be Return Call. Return Call lets you automatically return the last call you received by simply pushing asterisk 6 9. If the called party is busy, your phone will signal you with a special ring when the called party's line is available.

Customers can use another of the services, Repeat Call, to get through to any busy number. Push asterisk 6 6, and Repeat Call automatically redials the last telephone number you dialed...and keeps on trying for 30 minutes to make the connection if the line is busy.

"The I.Q. Services put the brains of the telephone network at customers' fingertips," said Bell of Pennsylvania Vice President and Chief Operating Officer Ethan Stenger. "These new features make phones smarter and add an element of security to consumers' lives. They are ideal for families with young children, seniors, and people who work at home," Stenger added.

A $5 installation charge ($10 for business) will be waived for residence customers who order any of the new services before Oct. 13. An explanation of the I.Q. Services is provided on the Bell Atlantic Information Line, 800-365-5810.

MINNEAPOLIS (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Ciatti's, Inc. (NASDAQ: CIATU) today announced net earnings of $715,929, or $.19 per share, on sales of $16,480,219 for its fiscal year ended July 1, 1990. This compares with net earnings of $505,543, or $.15 per share, on sales of $11,191,995 last year.

For the fourth quarter net earnings were $118,388, or $.03 per share, on sales of $4,407,660. This compares with net earnings of $139,937, or $.04 per share, on sales of $3,269,060 for the fourth quarter last year.

William C. Ferril, Ciatti's president and chief executive officer, said: "We are very pleased with our results for the year. Sales improved 47 percent and earnings were up 41 percent. Comparable unit sales were up substantially for the third consecutive year."

Ferril said that while fourth quarter sales were up 35 percent from last year, "pre-opening costs related to three new restaurants, in Burnsville and Maplewood, Minn., and Milwaukee, and an aggressive repair and maintenance program, reduced earnings in the quarter."

Ferril said that plans call for Ciatti's to open four new units in the current fiscal year. "Leases are signed for construction of restaurants in St. Cloud, Minn., and Brookfield, Wis., a Milwaukee suburb." Ferril added that negotiations are underway at other potential locations."

Plans for a unit in the Carlson Centre in Minnetonka, Minn., have been canceled due to financing difficulties encountered by the developer, Ferril said.

Ciatti's currently operates nine Italian restaurants in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The company plans to relocate its headquarters offices to the Dewey Hill Business Center in Edina, Minn., in September of this year.

CAMDEN, N.J. (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Campbell Soup Co. (NYSE: CPB) announced today that John W. Argabright, senior vice president of Campbell Soup Co. and president of Campbell International, has elected to take early retirement.

Argabright, who turns 55 in October, said his retirement will become effective when a successor is named.

"After 35 intensive years of corporate management, with much of the past 15 spent in various stages of jet lag, I'm looking forward to a more balanced lifestyle," Argabright said.

"I plan to spend more time with my family and, in my working hours, I expect to return to my first love -- consumer marketing and advertising. I'm excited about my own plans, but also the prospects for Campbell and, specifically, Campbell International."

Campbell Chief Executive Officer David W. Johnson noted that Argabright, when he joined the company four years ago, "was charged with rapidly globalizing the company. In fiscal 1991, the company's business outside North America will have grown 2-1/2 times in both sales and operating profits since Jack's arrival."

Johnson added: "The problems of Freshbake Foods and Lazzaroni have marred division performance in recent months, but with plans already implemented under Jack's guidance, Campbell International's business is well-positioned for sustained profit growth."

Argabright joined Campbell in 1986 as vice president of Campbell Soup Co. and president of the International Division. In 1988 he became a senior vice president of Campbell.

Before joining Campbell he was president of Del Monte Franchise Beverages ("Canada Dry," "Sunkist" and "Hawaiian Punch" soft drinks). From 1982 to 1984 he was group vice president, corporate development and planning for Del Monte. He was previously group vice president, International Division, for the Clorox Co., and spent 14 years with the Procter & Gamble Co. in marketing positions.

He and his wife, Betty, live in Bryn Mawr, Pa.

ST. LOUIS (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - INTERCO Inc. (NYSE: ISS) announced today that it has reached an agreement in principle with the steering committees for its bank lenders, medium-term noteholders and subordinated debentureholders on a financial restructuring of its outstanding debt.

In the restructuring: INTERCO would issue approximately 98 million shares of INTERCO common stock, warrants to purchase 75 million shares of INTERCO common stock at a purchase price of $2 per share (after adjustment for the one-for-23.5 reverse stock split described below), warrants to purchase 25 million shares of INTERCO common stock at a purchase price of $4 per share (after adjustment for the one-for-23.5 reverse stock split) and approximately $202 million aggregate principal amount of a new issue of 8.72 percent senior subordinated debentures due 2000. INTERCO would have approximately 100 million shares of common stock outstanding following the restructuring. All share figures have been adjusted to reflect the proposed one-for-23.5 reverse stock split.

As a result of the restructuring, holders of INTERCO's Senior Subordinated Debentures, Subordinated Discount Debentures, Junior Pay-In-Kind Subordinated Debentures, preferred stock and common stock would own approximately 44.3 percent; 34.9 percent; 15.8 percent; 3.3 percent; and 1.7 percent, respectively, of INTERCO's common stock. If all warrants were exercised, such persons would own approximately 46.2 percent; 30.9 percent; 7.9 percent; 10.0 percent; and 5.0 percent, respectively, of INTERCO's common stock.

Holders of INTERCO's 13 3/4 percent Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2000 would receive the new 8.72 percent debentures, an aggregate of 44.2 million shares of INTERCO common stock and 48 million of the $2 warrants. Each holder would be entitled to exchange each $1,000 principal amount for: $500 principal amount of the 8.72 percent debentures; approximately 109.4 shares of INTERCO common stock; and 118.7 of the $2 warrants.

INTERCO is a major manufacturer of furniture and a manufacturer and retailer of footwear through its four core companies: Broyhill Furniture Industries Inc., The Lane Company Inc., Converse Inc., and The Florsheim Shoe Co..

This announcement does not constitute an offer to sell or to buy any security or the solicitation of any consents or approvals. Offers and solicitations shall be made only by means of a proxy statement/prospectus to be filed by INTERCO with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

ATLANTA (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Flexel Inc., the world's leading producer of cellulose film (cellophane), today named Sawyer Riley Compton Inc., Atlanta, as its full service advertising agency of record.

"Selecting Sawyer Riley Compton as our agency indicates our focus on growth, and increased emphasis on service to our customers," said W. Lindsey Walters, chairman and chief executive officer.

Flexel was formed in late 1985 when it acquired the cellophane division of Olin Chemical. Du Pont's cellophane division was added six months later.

Flexel markets cellophane and coated polyester films throughout North America, and in Central America, South America, Europe, the Middle East, Australia, and New Zealand. Flexel products are used by manufacturers and packagers to produce a crisp, clear product wrapping.

"Flexel is a global company," said Franklin C. Compton, president of Sawyer Riley Compton. "Representing a client with important international markets is indicative of the service we offer.

"Cellophane is a familiar name and millions of people use products wrapped in it. Nevertheless, Flexel competes with other packaging products and our objective is to help Flexel sell its production capacity."

Sawyer Riley Compton is a full service marketing communications agency. It specializes in advertising and public relations for companies that market to other businesses. Capitalized billings exceed $27 million annually, placing Sawyer Riley Compton as one of the largest business-to-business agencies in the United States.

WALL, NJ (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - New Jersey Natural Resources Company, a wholly owned subsidiary of NJR Energy Corporation, has announced the purchase of working interests in 188 natural gas producing properties located primarily in the Arkoma Basin of southeastern Oklahoma and western Arkansas. The purchase, which also included compression equipment, was completed at a price of $10.4 million.

NJR Energy is the natural gas and oil exploration and production subsidiary of New Jersey Resources Corporation (NYSE: NJR).

The purchase price for the producing properties was $8.2 million, and includes proved developed gas reserves of about 16 billion cubic feet (BCF). The acquisition cost per thousand cubic feet (MCF) was approximately 55 cents. Also included in the transaction were about 30,000 acres, held by production, which will provide additional future developmental drilling opportunities.

The purchase also included 45 compressors and nine dehydrators that will be used to enhance production from a number of the wells included in the acquisition. This equipment will be owned by Natural Resources Compressor Company, a newly formed subsidiary of NJR Energy.

"Our corporate strategy is to complete reserve acquisitions that offer the potential for future developmental drilling as well as providing an attractive current return on investment through cash flow from production " said Thomas J. Concannon, NJR Energy president and chief executive officer. "We believe that the acquisition costs for the natural gas reserves associated with this acquisition are extremely attractive under current market conditions."

Concannon also noted that the company expects to achieve higher levels of proved oil and natural gas reserves for the fifth consecutive year.

In July, New Jersey Natural Resources Company completed the acquisition of 320,000 barrels of proved, developed oil reserves and 5,100 undeveloped acres in the Uinta Basin, Duchesne County, Utah, for approximately $1.7 million, or about $5.40 per barrel. This acquisition increased the company's proved oil reserves to more than 1 million barrels.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of First Interstate Bancorp (NYSE: I) today declared quarterly cash dividends on the company's common stock, Series A Preferred Stock and Adjustable Rate Cumulative Preferred Stock, Series B.

A quarter cash dividend of $0.75 per share on the company's common stock is payable Sept. 28, 1990, to stockholders of record on Sept. 7, 1990. This is the 129th consecutive quarterly dividend paid by the Los Angeles-based multistate banking and financial services company since it began operations in 1958.

The September dividend payment, totaling $45.8 million, will be paid to the approximately 40,000 shareholders of record who hold First Interstate's 61 million common shares outstanding. On an annual basis, the common dividend equals $3.00 a share.

A quarterly cash dividend of $0.59-3/8 a share on First Interstate's Series A Preferred Stock is payable Sept. 28, 1990, to stockholders of record on Sept. 17, 1990. On an annual basis, the preferred dividend equals $2.37-1/2 a share, or 9.5 percent of the stated value of $25 a share.

A dividend of $0.89 will be paid on Oct. 15, 1990, to shareholders of record on Sept. 30, 1990, who hold the corporation's Adjustable Rate Cumulative Preferred Stock, Series B. The stock was issued in conjunction with the purchase of Allied Bancshares Inc. of Texas in 1988.

First Interstate provides the largest geographical coverage of any retail and business banking system in the United States. Including licensees, First Interstate Banks operate more than 1,100 full-service offices in 20 states. These offices serve five million households in more than 650 communities, including seven of the 10 fastest growing metropolitan markets in the United States. Other offices serve U.S. and international customers in 19 countries.

WILSON, NC (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - BB&T Financial Corporation (NASDAQ: BBTF) has completed its acquisition of Carolina Bancorp Inc., the High Point-based parent company of First Federal of the Carolinas, F.A.

The four former offices of First Federal of the Carolinas opened for business Monday morning as BB&T Federal Savings Bank of High Point, a subsidiary of BB&T Financial Corporation. In addition to High Point, offices of BB&T Federal Savings Bank of High Point are located in Greensboro, Jamestown and Thomasville.

"The only changes customers will notice are positive ones," John A. Allison, chairman and chief executive officer of BB&T Financial Corporation, said. "BB&T Federal Savings Bank of High Point will feature the same employees and the same attention to quality service as First Federal of the Carolinas while offering an even wider choice of products and services."

J.D. Dobbins, former president and CEO of Carolina Bancorp, agreed. "We're extremely pleased to become a part of an organization that shares our commitment to the customer," he said. "We're excited about the new opportunities this partnership will provide our customers, our employees and our shareholders."

The transaction was achieved through an exchange of 0.816 shares of BB&T Financial Corporation common stock for each outstanding share of Carolina Bancorp common stock. BB&T Financial Corporation issued 1,386,306 shares and now has approximately 20,857,000 shares of common stock outstanding. As of June 30, 1990, Carolina Bancorp had total assets in excess of $301 million.

BB& Financial Corporation is the parent company of Branch Banking and Trust Company, the oldest bank in North Carolina and the state's fourth largest, and BB&T of South Carolina with 15 offices in the Palmetto State. Through its subsidiaries, BB&T Financial Corporation now operates 195 offices in 108 cities and towns in North and South Carolina and has assets in excess of $5.1 billion.

The Wilson-based corporation also has announced agreements to acquire four other healthy thrift organizations: Albemarle Savings & Loan Association, Elizabeth City; First Federal Savings Bank of Pitt County, Greenville; Gate City Federal Savings and Loan Association, Greensboro; and Home Savings and Loan Association, Durham. The acquisition of First Federal Savings Bank of Pitt County is expected to be completed in early September.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - ARCO (NYSE: ARC) said today it will maintain its freeze on gasoline prices but is raising the price it charges its customers for diesel and jet fuel.

The decision to continue ARCO's gasoline price freeze, begun 12 days ago, is being reviewed on a day-to-day basis, said George H. Babikian, president of ARCO Products Co., the marketing and refining division of ARCO.

"ARCO is doing all it can to hold the line, but we cannot continue the freeze on diesel and jet fuel prices in the face of sharp differences in marketplace prices between ARCO and its competitors," Babikian added. "In addition, we have been forced to augment our jet fuel supplies by buying on the spot market at high prices."

ARCO will continue to encourage its dealers to show restraint in setting prices. The company is also urging motorists to reduce gasoline consumption during the current emergency.

DALLAS (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - National Realty L.P. (AMEX: NLP) today announced operating results for the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990.

For the three months ended June 30, 1990, net income was $9.7 million, or $1.11 per share, on revenues of $24.2 million, compared with a net loss of $5.3 million, or 58 cents per share, on revenues of $23.8 million in the second quarter of the prior year.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, net income was $10.3 million, or $1.17 per share, on revenues of $49 million, compared with net loss of $4.2 million, or 46 cents per share, on revenues of $47.8 million in the first half of 1989.

Rental income increased $1.1 million to $45.6 million in the first half of 1990, compared with $44.5 million recorded in 1989's first six months because of higher occupancy rates at the properties. The partnership sold one property during 1990's second quarter for $7.8 million, resulting in a gain of $4.8 million. In addition, deferred gains of $10.6 million relating to the previously-announced sale of two properties in the first quarter of 1990 were recognized in the second quarter.

National Realty L.P. is a national real estate investment partnership engaged in the acquisition, financing, operation, and sale of real estate and real estate assets. The limited partners' ownership represents 98 percent of the total partnership.

WOODBURY, NY (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Millfeld Trading Company, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: SHOE; NASDAQ: SHOEW) today announced operating results for the quarter and six months ended July 31, 1990. Net income for the three months ended July 31 increased 110 percent to $860,643 compared to $410,724 for the same period last year. Net income for the six months ended July 31 increased 116 percent to $1,101,175 compared to $510,018 for the 1989 period.

Millfeld also reported increases in sales of 65 percent for the quarter and 43 percent for the six months compared to the 1989 periods. Millfeld's new Team Sport Footwear line introduced in the second half of last year accounted for sales of $3,380,133 for the quarter and $4,236,607 for the six months compared to no sales for the comparable periods last year. Millfeld's recently acquired subsidiary, Bright Star Footwear, Inc., generated 10 percent of the total revenues for the quarter, but results include Bright Star only from June 1 through July 31, 1990.

Commenting on the results, Barry Feldstein, chairman and chief executive officer, said, "The momentum of the Team Sport Footwear line continues to build. Together with our newly added Bright Star line and continued growth in our traditional lines, we believe this will be a banner year for Millfeld."

Primary earnings per share were 22 cents for the quarter on 3,835,371 weighted average shares outstanding and 32 cents for the six months on 3,482,605 weighted average shares outstanding after the company's initial public offering in January and its acquisition of Bright Star in July.

Primary earnings per share for the prior year were 22 cents in the three months and 28 cents in the six months ended July 31, 1989. In both 1989 periods, when the company was privately held, there were 1,850,000 shares outstanding.

Millfeld also announced that it was extending the period of its recent warrant exchange offer to Sept. 30, 1990. Under this offer, warrantholders who exercise their $6 warrants expiring Jan. 31, 1994, before Sept. 30, 1990, will receive one new common share plus one new warrant exercisable at $12.50 per share until July 22, 1992.

Millfeld Trading Company, Inc. designs, markets and distributes a wide variety of footwear including a product line bearing the "No Excuses" label and the recently introduced Team Sport Footwear line bearing the logos of various professional and college sports teams.

Bright Star Footwear, Inc. designs, markets and distributes a wide variety of workboots, hiking shoes and men's leisure shoes.

MINNEAPOLIS (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Honeywell Inc. (NYSE: HON) announced today that Steven G. Rothmeier, president, IAI Capital Group, will serve as chairman of the board of Alliant Techsystems Inc., the company being created to operate Honeywell's Defense and Marine Systems Business. Honeywell expects to obtain final board approval for the spin-off of Alliant in late third quarter 1990. Rothmeier will be a non-executive (non-employee) chairman, whose experience as chairman of a major publicly held company will complement the industry experience of president and chief executive officer Toby Warson and the rest of Alliant Techsystems' management team.

"Steve Rothmeier has a wealth of experience in corporate financial management that will serve Alliant Techsystems well in its launch as an independent, publicly held company," said James J. Renier, Honeywell chairman and chief executive officer. "Toby Warson and his staff have outstanding industry and general management experience. Their access to Steve Rothmeier and the rest of the board that will be selected will assure a smooth transition from operating as a division to operating as a Fortune 300 company."

Rothmeier served as chairman and chief executive officer of NWA, Inc. and Northwest Airlines, Inc. from 1985 to 1989. He joined IAI Capital Group as president in 1989. In addition, Rothmeier serves as a director of Minnesota Mutual Life Insurance Company and a director of Honeywell Inc. He is a trustee of the University of Chicago; an advisor to the Metropolitan Economic Development Association; member of the council on the Graduate School of Business, University of Chicago; director of the United Way of St. Paul; and chairman of the St. Agnes Foundation in St. Paul.

After completion of the spin-off, Alliant Techsystems will be the 17th largest direct supplier to the U.S. Department of Defense and the eighth largest publicly held industrial corporation in Minnesota, employing approximately 8,300 people located principally in Minnesota, Illinois, Washington, Colorado, Maryland, California and Hawaii.

NEW YORK (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Turner Construction Company has begun construction of a new newspaper production facility in Worcester, Mass., for the Chronicle Publishing Company, the Turner Corporation (AMEX: TUR), America's leading general builder, announced today.

Turner's Boston office started construction today on the two-story newspaper facility. The 71,000-square-foot building will house new start-of-the-art presses and production equipment and includes renovation of an existing, adjoining warehouse building. Turner has also managed pre-construction services for the project.

"We are particularly pleased to be handling this project for The Chronicle Publishing Company," commented Donald R. Kerstetter, group vice president in charge of Turner's East Coast operations. "It is directly in keeping with our strategic goals to continue serving the important industrial market segment."

Based in New York City, The Turner Corporation, through Turner Construction Company and other construction subsidiaries, is the nation's largest builder of commercial, industrial, hospital and healthcare, institutional, government building and multi-unit housing projects. Operating through more than 35 offices, Turner has construction projects underway throughout the United States and abroad.

During 1989, The Turner Corporation completed $3.6 billion of construction.

WILLOW GROVE, PA (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - After a period of careful evaluation, Nutri/System Inc. today announced the selection of Manning, Selvage & Lee as its agency to handle marketing public relations programs on a national basis.

Lesnik Public Relations in Chicago will continue to handle all public affairs and other public relations-related activities.

An extensive agency search began with an analysis of top agencies and ended with the review of Manning, Selvage & Lee and Ogilvy & Mather, both of New York; Golin/Harris and Lesnik Public Relations of Chicago, and the Tierney Group of Philadelphia.

According to James Kemper Millard, vice president of communications for Nutri/System Inc., "The fact that five excellent agencies presented their business and brought many fine ideas made our choice very difficult."

Added Millard, "Manning, Selvage & Lee best understood the weight loss industry and brought creative ideas that closely matched our objectives. Coupled with a top-notch staff, we believe Manning can give us unsurpassed service."

Under the direction of Monita Buchwald, senior vice president and director of the Manning, Selvage & Lee Health Care Division, the agency will be responsible for the creation and implementation of public relations programs in conjunction with the Nutri/System corporate public relations staff. The agency will be managed by Delphine Carroll, director of public relations for Nutri/System, under the direction of Thym Smith, Nutri/System's newly appointed vice president of public affairs.

Nutri/System Inc. operates or franchises more than 1,750 weight-loss centers in the United States, Canada, Australia and the United Kingdom.

ST. PAUL, MN (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The Board of Directors of Green Tree Acceptance, Inc. (NYSE PSE: GNT), on Aug. 16, 1990, approved amendments to the Company's Shareholder Rights Plan originally adopted on Oct. 9, 1985. The amendments to the Rights Plan modify the conditions under which the Rights become exercisable.

According to Lawrence M. Coss, Green Tree's Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer, the amendments strengthen the ability of the Board of Directors to protect the interest of Green Tree's shareholders in the event of a takeover, and provide additional incentives to anyone seeking to acquire the Company to negotiate with the Board of Directors prior to attempting a takeover.

As amended, the Rights Plan provides that if any person or group acquires 20 percent or more of Green Tree common stock, each Right not owned by such person or group will entitle its holder to purchase, at the Right's then-current purchase price, Green Tree common stock having a value of twice the Right's purchase price. The Rights would not be triggered, however, if the acquisition of 20 percent or more of Green Tree common stock is pursuant to a tender or exchange offer for all outstanding shares of Green Tree common stock determined by the independent members of the Board of Directors to be fair and in the best interests of the Company and its shareholders. In addition, the Rights may become exercisable if the independent members of the Board of Directors determine that a 10 percent shareholder's interest is likely to have an adverse effect on the long-term interests of the Company and its shareholders. The independent members of the Board of Directors of Green Tree may redeem the Rights at 10 cents per Right at any time prior to the time that the Rights become exercisable.

Green Tree Acceptance purchases, pools, sells and services conditional sales contracts for manufactured homes and home improvements through 42 regional offices. Green Tree's common stock is traded on the New York and Pacific Stock Exchanges under the symbol "GNT".

ATLANTA (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - "It's finally dawning on today's leaders that this country's competitive strategy is lopsided. Working up a sweat trying to gain the technological edge over other world powers, we've all but forgotten the potential of the human side of our business," said Dr. J. Clayton Lafferty, CEO of Human Synergistics, Inc., an international consulting firm.

Speaking at the recent National Speaker's Association convention, held in Atlanta, Dr. Lafferty, founder of Human Synergistics, Inc., said: "It's ironic that we've got robots manufacturing everything from toasters to tanks, yet get four American businesspeople together to solve a problem and we're back in the Dark Ages. If we invested as much time and money in improving the performance of our people as we do in building a better mouse trap, we'd become a force to reckon with."

Citing the following as evidence, Lafferty said that American companies are only now discovering what the Japanese learned long ago: that people -- not technology alone or marketing ploys -- are the keys to success in global competition.

Human Synergistics creates and develops training materials and programs which enable individuals and organizational groups to maintain high levels of performance and healthy lifestyles. The latest addition to the company's product line is the Group Styles Inventory, a tool to help members of work teams analyze, understand and improve the way they work together.

INDIANAPOLIS (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Mid-America Energy Resources Inc., a new subsidiary of Indianapolis-based IPALCO Enterprises Inc. (NYSE: IPL), today announced its plans to construct and operate a multi- phase district cooling system, with $20 million committed to the first two construction phases.

The system will offer buildings in downtown Indianapolis a reliable, centralized source of low-cost air conditioning. Construction of Mid-America Energy Resources' district cooling plant is now under way. Mid-America Energy Resources plans to begin service to its first district cooling customer, the State Office Building I, by spring 1991.

The district cooling system will use steam purchased from Indianapolis Power & Light Co. to power its chillers. Some of this steam will originate from the Indianapolis Resource Recovery Facility (IRRF), which recycles trash into steam, and in effect, will result in increased revenues to the city of Indianapolis. IPL currently holds a 20-year contract to purchase steam from the IRRF.

In early August this year, Mid-America Energy Resources obtained a 25-year franchise from the city to sell district cooling for air conditioning to downtown buildings. The city is expected to receive approximately $17.5 million in franchise fees from Mid-America Energy Resources over the term of the franchise agreement.

The technology for district cooling has been successfully employed in several U.S. cities including Minneapolis, Minn. and Hartford, Conn.

Officials of IPALCO Enterprises formed Mid-America Energy Resources Inc. in November 1989 after determining a strong potential market for a district cooling business in downtown Indianapolis.

Mid-America Energy Resources' district cooling system will use steam-turbine-driven chillers to produce chilled water at a central plant. The chilled water will then be distributed to customers' downtown buildings through a system of underground pipes. From the supply pipe, the water will be circulated through each building's cooling system, then returned to the central cooling plant to be rechilled and recirculated.

Mid-America Energy Resources Inc. is a division of Mid-America Capital Resources Inc. -- a subsidiary of IPALCO Enterprises Inc. Other holdings of IPALCO Enterprises Inc. include Indianapolis Power & Light Co., serving commercial, industrial and residential electric customers primarily in Indianapolis.

STAMFORD, CT. (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - VIMRx Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (NASDAQ: VMRX) today announced that the NIH, through the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID), has agreed to sponsor and administer the Phase I human clinical trials of Hypericin in AIDS patients. The Phase I trials, which are anticipated to commence in the fall will be conducted on patients infected with the AIDS virus to determine the maximum tolerated dose and any side effects of Hypericin, an innovative and promising anti-viral drug.

Hypericin has demonstrated anti-viral and anti-retroviral properties in laboratory studies. In these studies, Hypericin has interrupted the infectious cycle of HIV, the retrovirus responsible for AIDS, by inhibiting HIV replication and infection of normal cells.

The company's president, Richard F. Maradie, said the trials will be conducted by the AIDS Clinical Trials Group (ACTG) of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases. The NIAID will fund the ACTG clinical sites for the planning, management, and analysis of these trials. VIMRx will be responsible for the supply of the drug.

VIMRx Pharmaceuticals, Inc. is a company engaged in the research and development of therapeutic compounds derived from natural substances and specializes in therapeutics for viral and retroviral diseases. The company's immediate focus is on the development and commercialization of Hypericin for AIDS and anti-viral therapy.

HOUSTON (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Baroid Corporation (NYSE: BRC) announced today that its board of directors unanimously approved a plan of restructuring whereby the company will separate its petroleum services businesses and titanium metals and bentonite mining businesses into two publicly traded companies.

The company stated that the restructuring will be accomplished through the distribution to its stockholders of all of the outstanding shares of the common stock of the company's wholly-owned subsidiary, New Baroid Corporation. New Baroid Corporation includes Baroid Drilling Fluids, Inc., Sperry-Sun Drilling Services, Inc., Atlas Bradford Corporation and Shaffer, Inc. The distribution will be made on the basis of one share of New Baroid Corporation common stock for each share of the company's common stock held on the record date established for the distribution and is intended to be tax-free. In accordance with the plan, the company will adopt a new name and New Baroid Corporation will change its name to Baroid Corporation.

The company further stated that, as of June 30, 1990, the total assets, long-term debt and stockholders' equity attributable to the petroleum services businesses (New Baroid Corporation) on a pro-forma basis approximated $566 million, $154 million and $252 million, respectively. In connection with the restructuring, New Baroid Corporation is negotiating with a group of commercial banks for a new $200 million credit facility. Pursuant to the plan, New Baroid Corporation will distribute $100 million of the proceeds of the credit facility to the company prior to the distribution of New Baroid stock and will use approximately $50 million of the remaining proceeds to repay outstanding indebtedness under its prior bank credit agreements.

After the restructuring, the company's operations will consist primarily of its titanium metals business, which will be owned and operated by the company's indirectly wholly-owned subsidiary, Titanium Metals Corporation, and its bentonite mining business, which will be owned and operated by a new wholly-owned subsidiary, Bentonite Corporation. According to the company, as of June 30, 1990, the total assets, long-term debt and stockholders' equity attributable to the company's retained operations on a pro-forma basis approximated $289 million, $15 million and $215 million, respectively.

The company stated that the plan is subject to several conditions, including New Baroid's ability to finalize the credit facility described above, completion of satisfactory documentation and legal compliance. The plan, which is not subject to approval by the company's stockholders, is expected to be completed by early October.

It is anticipated that both the new Baroid Corporation and the company common stock will be listed on the New York Stock Exchange. On the distribution date the company will deliver to stockholders an information statement and stock certificates of New Baroid representing a number of shares equal to the number of shares of company common stock which is currently held.

PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - After selling out stadiums in Australia, New Zealand, Japan and Europe, rock star and Grammy nominee Richard Marx continues the United States leg of his "Repeat Offender" world tour Tuesday, Aug. 21, in Philadelphia.

The nine-month, 120-concert tour will bring Marx to major arenas in more than 80 cities and on college campuses across the country. The tour includes a sweepstakes contest, with the grand prize winner joining Marx in Hawaii for the concert finale, Aug. 31.

AT&T will sponsor the "Repeat Offender" tour, the first such promotion for the telecommunications company.

"Our objective is clear and simple," said Donna Alexander, AT&T public relations manager. "We want to develop a contemporary image for AT&T.

"We selected Richard Marx because of his charismatic rock 'n roll image. The majority of his fans are in the 18- to 24-year-old age bracket, but his music is enjoyed by a broad range of listeners -- from pre-teens to 40-somethings."

"AT&T is the symbol of communication no matter where you are in the world " said Marx. "Since I look at music as a major form of communication, it became obvious that we would be a good team."

Marx's success continues to escalate as he moves into a new year and new decade. On the charts for 34 weeks since its release last May, the "Repeat Offender" album has sold more than 5 million copies and has remained in the Top 20 of the Billboard chart. In addition, the album has thus far yielded two No. 1 hit singles, "Satisfied" and "Right Here Waiting," and a Top 5 single, "Angelia."

A fourth single, "Too Late to Say Goodbye," from "Repeat Offender" has just been released. Following his concert in Philadelphia, Marx will take the "Repeat Offender" tour to Merrillville, Ind., Thursday, Aug. 23.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - LSB Industries Inc. (AMEX: LSB) today reported operating results for the three months and six months ended June 30, 1990.

Total revenues, including interest income and sales for the three months ended June 30, 1990 were $69,339,000 compared to $69,734,000 for the same period in 1989.

Net loss for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, was $1,365,000 as a result of the company's Financial Services Business recording a $3,200,000 increase to reserves for losses on loans and real estate. In the comparable quarter ended June 30, 1989 the company reported net income of $1,298,000.

After adjustment for dividends on outstanding preferred stocks of the company, net loss applicable to common stock was $1,866,000 or 34 cents per share for the 1990 quarter compared to net income applicable to common stock of $803,000 or $.11 per share for the 1989 quarter.

Total revenues, including interest income and sales for the six months ended June 30, 1990 were $130,800,000 compared to $135,222,000 for the same period in 1989.

Net loss for the six months ended June 30, 1990, was $3,151,000. The loss is attributable primarily to the company's Financial Services Business recording a $3,200,000 increase to the reserve for losses on loans and real estate and a net loss of $2,035,000 realized on certain mortgage-backed securities. In the comparable six months ended June 30, 1989 the company reported net income of $2,767,000.

LSB is a diversified company engaged in a variety of manufacturing, engineering, marketing and financial service activities on a world wide basis. LSB's principal business activities consist of the manufacture and sale of chemical products, commercial air conditioning products, automotive and industrial products and more recently the financial services business which was formed through acquisitions in 1988. JACKSON, MICH. (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Jacobson Stores Inc. (OTC: JCBS) today reported sales for the second quarter ended July 28, 1990, increased from $85,850,000 to $88,285,000, up 3 percent. Net loss for the quarter was $2,856,000 or 49 cents per share compared to a net loss of $632,000 or 11 cents per share in the prior year.

Sales for the 26 weeks ended July 28 increased from $172,273,000 to $178,227,000, up 3-1/2 percent. Net loss for the six months was $1,725,000 or 30 cents per share compared to net earnings of $1,445,000 or 25 cents per share for the same period last year.

"We planned all along for the first-year impact of new-store start-up and tenancy costs, as well as some one-time charges for system improvements, which we absorbed during the first half of this year. And while our operating expenses were well controlled and inventories on plan, we did not anticipate a softening of sales to the extent we have seen in the first half, with its impact on operating results," said J.R. Fowler, chairman and CEO.

Jacobson's operates specialty department stores in 24 cities in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Florida.

JACKSON, MI (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Jacobson Stores Inc. (OTC: JCBS) today reported sales for the second quarter ended July 28, 1990, increased from $85,850,000 to $88,285,000, up 3 percent. Net loss for the quarter was $2,856,000 or 49 cents per share compared to a net loss of $632,000 or 11 cents per share in the prior year.

Sales for the 26 weeks ended July 28 increased from $172,273,000 to $178,227,000, up 3-1/2 percent. Net loss for the six months was $1,725,000 or 30 cents per share compared to net earnings of $1,445,000 or 25 cents per share for the same period last year.

"We planned all along for the first-year impact of new-store start-up and tenancy costs, as well as some one-time charges for system improvements, which we absorbed during the first half of this year. And while our operating expenses were well controlled and inventories on plan, we did not anticipate a softening of sales to the extent we have seen in the first half, with its impact on operating results," said J.R. Fowler, chairman and CEO.

Jacobson's operates specialty department stores in 24 cities in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Florida.

REDMOND, WA (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Bio Technique Laboratories Inc. announced today that it has received U.S. Patent No. 4,946,791 for a unique strain of Lactobacillus acidophilus for use in its Cobactin(R) microbial additive product. The patented strain, BT1386, is the active ingredient in Cobactin which has been sold nationwide since 1985 to the livestock and cattle feedlot industry.

BT1386 was selected by the company for its ability to adhere to gut epithelial tissue and to survive in ruminants digestive systems. In developing the microbial feed additive product, Bio Techniques conducted extensive University and feedlot trials that demonstrated significant increases in live weight gain and overall feed conversion efficiency.

"This patent represents a milestone in Cobactin history," said Bill St. John, president of Bio Techiques. "Cobactin microbial feed additive is currently used in the daily feed rations of over 15 percent of the major U.S. feedlots, and we look forward to increased sales with the patented formula."

Bio Techniques, founded in 1983, researches, develops, manufactures and markets advanced products for the agricultural industry.

BOSTON (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - S. James Coppersmith, vice president and general manager of WCVB-TV, Channel 5 in Boston, has been named president of WCVB-TV, it was announced today by John G. Conomikes, a vice president of The Hearst Corporation and general manager of Hearst Broadcasting. Coppersmith will continue his responsibilities as general manager.

"This new title is well-deserved acknowledgement of the leadership Jim Coppersmith has provided in making WCVB-TV the most honored television station in the nation," Conomikes said. "Under Jim's direction, WCVB-TV has, among many other achievements, produced major dramas for national broadcast, created a national version of its award-winning 'Chronicle' newsmagazine program for the Arts & Entertainment Network, expanded local news programming to 26 hours per week, and won more than 120 local Emmys along with many Peabodys, Gabriels, and a host of other awards. All the while, he has managed to be personally involved in important community and national organizations, such as Muscular Dystrophy and The United Way.

"This title is also intended to recognize the personal commitment to excellence that Jim has inspired in his staff." Conomikes added, "Because of that commitment, excellence and WCVB are synonymous."

During Coppersmith's tenure as general manager at WCVB-TV, the station has pioneered extensive public service campaigns focusing on individual social problems. Several years ago, WCVB created "A World of Difference," a three-year examination of prejudice that incorporated extensive original programming and numerous special events. "A World of Difference" has subsequently been adapted by TV stations across the country.

Coppersmith joined WCVB-TV as general manager in 1982, when it was owned by Metromedia. The station was acquired by Hearst in March 1986. His career in television extends back to 1965 when he joined the Metromedia station in Washington, D.C., WTTG-TV. He has also worked as general sales manager at KTTV Los Angeles, and at WNEW-TV, New York, and and general manager of WNAC-TV, Boston, and WTOG-TV, Tampa, Fla. He is the recipient of many industry awards including the Massachusetts Broadcasters Association "Broadcaster of the Year." Coppersmith and his wife, Jan, have two children, Scott and Cathy. They reside in Marblehead, Mass.

ALLENTOWN, PA. (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Hess's Department Stores and Crown American Corp., Hess's parent company, announced that Irwin Greenberg has decided to retire as president of the retail chain.

His retirement, which is effective immediately, concludes a distinguished career in retailing that has spanned 34 years. For the past 14 years, Greenberg has been president of Hess's. Although he will no longer direct the company's daily operations, Greenberg will continue to serve Hess's as a consultant. He will be a member of the search committee that will select his successor.

Walter K. Levy and Robert E. Kerson Associates Inc. of New York City has been selected to conduct the search.

Frank J. Pasquerilla, chairman and chief executive officer of Crown American Corp., announced that Stephen Furst has been appointed acting president of Hess's.

In announcing his retirement, Greenberg said he has achieved all of the goals he set for himself over his career and felt it was time to step aside. He said Hess's is primed to step into the new decade with tremendous vim and vigor and that its aggressive retail philosophy will enable Hess's to succeed in the highly competitive retail marketplace.

"For the past 10 years, Irwin Greenberg has guided Hess's growth from a regional department store chain to one of the nation's leading retailers. He has been a valuable member of Crown's board of directors and has played an instrumental role in Crown American's growth to a $1.3 billion corporation," Pasquerilla said.

Hess's currently operates 75 stores in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, Georgia, Kentucky, Indiana and North Carolina.

Hess's is a wholly owned subsidiary of Crown American Corp., which is currently recognized as one of the nation's leading shopping mall developers. Crown American is headquartered in Johnstown, Pa.

DENVER, CO (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Coral Companies, Inc. (NASDAQ: COCI) today reported results for the first quarter ended June 30, 1990.

The company had a net loss of $870,166 or five cents per share on revenues of $1,014,738 compared to net income of $314,564 or 2 cents per share on revenues of $2,568,502 for the same period last year. Earnings for the prior year's first quarter included an extraordinary gain of $116,389 or 1 cent per share from utilization of net operating loss carryover.

"Software sales were comparable during the two periods. However, hardware sales declined to about $455,000 from $2,145,000 in the prior year's quarter although each period had only one significant hardware sale " Paul M. Lionti, president and chief executive officer, said. "In addition, we anticipated installing $1 million in hardware for an existing customer during the quarter, but it now seems likely that the equipment will be accepted during the second quarter," he noted.

"Operating expenses climbed to $1,153,000 from $591,000, reflecting continuing investments in product development and increasingly aggressive marketing efforts. We established new sales and technical support offices in Dallas and Philadelphia, hired and trained additional technical personnel for existing offices and initiated activities at our newly established Coral Pacific division that will market UNIX-based off-the-shelf software," Lionti explained.

"We believe we now are well positioned to generate profitable growth in the future," he concluded.

WINSTON-SALEM, NC (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Integon announced today that James R. Ridley has resigned from the company, effective September 28. Ridley had served as the company's chairman, president and chief executive officer. He joined the company in 1976. The company also announced the election of a new slate of senior officers.

Ridley, who is 62, noted in his announcement to officers and employees that with the completion of the sale, Integon closes the chapter on a very challenging decade and prepares to open a new one as it launches plans for the decade of the 1990s and beyond.

Earlier this month, substantially all of the assets of Integon Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: ITGN) were acquired by investors Jupiter Industries, Inc. and Head Insurance Investors L.P.

James T. Lambie has been elected a director and executive vice president of Integon Corporation, responsible for property and casualty insurance and legal operations, and Joe D. Heusi has joined Integon as a director and executive vice president, responsible for life insurance, finance and administrative operations and for Integon's west coast life insurance and annuity marketing subsidiary, Marketing One, Inc.

Lambie had been a senior vice president of the corporation since 1983 and will continue to serve as president and chief executive officer of Integon's property and casualty insurance companies and as general counsel to the corporation.

Heusi has more than 20 years' experience in insurance sales and management, including service as president and chief executive officer of Maryland Casualty Company in Baltimore and the Variable Annuity Life Insurance Company in Houston.

Lambie and Heusi will join Integon's eight person Board of Directors, which includes six member representatives from the purchasers. Edward W. Ross of Jupiter Industries, Inc. and Candace L. straight of Head Insurance Investors L.P. will serve as Integon's board chairman and president, respectively.

Jerry C. Stovall has been named senior vice president of the holding company and chief executive officer of the company's Integon Life Insurance Corporation and Georgia International Life Insurance Company subsidiaries. Stovall continues as president of both life insurance subsidiaries. Stovall has a 35-year background in life insurance and a 12-year association with Integon.

Michael W. Cunningham has been elected senior vice president and chief financial officer of the holding company and continues his responsibilities for finance and administrative services. Cunningham joined the company in 1983 as vice president and corporate controller.

Stovall, Cunningham and C. Paul Patsis who will continue as chairman, president and chief executive officer of Marketing One., Inc. will report to Heusi.

Integon markets a diversified line of life insurance, annuities and property and casualty insurance in 46 states and the District of Columbia. All of Integon's insurance companies are rated "A Excellent" by A. M. Best Company, the insurance industry's independent financial analysts.

ALLENTOWN, PA (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Frank J. Pasquerilla, chairman and chief executive officer of Crown American Corp., Hess's parent company, announced the appointment of Stephen J. Furst as acting president of Hess's Department Stores.

Furst replaces Irwin Greenberg, who announced his retirement today. Pasquerilla also announced the appointment of Kenneth A. Hinkle II as acting chief financial officer. Furst and Hinkle will lead a transition that will manage Hess's until a search committee makes its recommendation for a new senior management structure.

Commenting on Hess's overall strength, Pasquerilla said the department store chain is well positioned to compete in a highly competitive and contracting retail marketplace.

Crown American retained the services of an outside consultant to review all of Hess's operations and prepare the chain to face the challenges of the '90s. One of the recommendations that will be implemented immediately is an increase in the size of its management team. The company is establishing a strategic research and marketing group, and an internal legal department. It will also enhance the real estate department so that it can take advantage of opportunities in the marketplace and expand its merchandising capabilities.

Furst and Hinkle will assume their respective responsibilities immediately.

Furst has been with Hess's for nearly 30 years. He joined the retailer in 1961 and was named divisional merchandise manager of fashion accessories in 1964. In 1966, he was appointed director of customer service. Furst was named assistant vice president and director of personnel in 1969 and three years later senior vice president of consumer and co-worker relations. In 1976, he was appointed assistant secretary and treasurer. Furst was named senior vice president of operation and appointed to the Crown American board of directors in 1982.

Founded in 1950 as a small masonry contractor, Crown American has grown to become one of the largest shopping mall developers in the nation with assets in excess of $1.3 billion. In its January 1990 issue, Monitor magazine for the second consecutive year listed Crown American as the most active mall developer over the past three years.

Crown American properties include 33 shopping malls, 13 community shopping centers, 21 hotels, five office buildings and 75 Hess's department stores. They span the states of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Kentucky, Indiana and Tennessee.

NEW YORK (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Merrill Lynch & Co., Inc. (NYSE: MER) today said that Senior Vice President William W. Moore, at his request, will relinquish, effective Jan. 1, 1991, his responsibilities as director municipal markets. This will permit Moore to focus his efforts in his desired role of maintaining key client relationships in a senior banker capacity.

Moore will be succeeded by John D. Miller, currently manager of the public finance group within municipal markets. Miller has specialized in municipal finance since he joined the firm in 1971. He previously served as a manager of Merrill Lynch's municipal finance department and the municipal utilities department.

Moore came to Merrill Lynch in 1972 as a vice president of what is now Merrill Lynch Hubbard where he headed the Ginnie Mae, health care and mortgage banking departments. He became a managing director of Merrill Lynch Investment Banking, managing the federal finance and municipal finance departments. In 1982, he was promoted to manager of the public finance group, and in March 1986 he assumed his present position as director of Municipal Markets. Moore, a 12-year veteran of the municipal bond industry, has been a chief architect of Merrill Lynch's leadership position in the municipal finance business over the past decade.

Said global debt markets division Senior Vice President Roger M. Vasey: "We are delighted that Bill is going to continue with us in a senior banker capacity where he can devote his full attention to the needs of our key clients."

Added William A. Schreyer, chairman and chief executive officer: "Ten years ago Bill Moore told me that Merrill Lynch could become a dominant factor in the municipal business, and he was right."

Prior to joining Merrill Lynch in 1971, Miller served two years with the United States Army in active military duty in Vietnam. He graduated as a Fels Scholar from the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce with a Master's degree in state and local government administration and finance.

Succeeding Miller as manager of the public finance group will be Marsha Eisenberg, a managing director who has recently served as manager of the southern region. Eisenberg has been a member of the public finance group since she joined Merrill Lynch in 1980. Eisenberg has a bachelor's degree from Emerson College and a master's degree in public and private management from Yale University.

TAMPA, FLA. (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The American Ship Building Company (NYSE: ABG) today announced its operating results for the third quarter and nine months ended June 30, 1990. As anticipated, the third quarter was not strong as a result of continuing start up work on the two TAO class oiler ships for the Naval Sea Systems command of the U.S. Navy. In the third quarter of the current fiscal year, the operating loss was $2.5 million, compared to an operating loss of $1.8 million in the same quarter last year. Revenues in the current quarter totaled $16.1 million, compared to $13.8 million in the third quarter of fiscal 1989. The net loss in the three months ended June 30, 1990 was $2.2 million, or 33 cents per share. In the same quarter of fiscal 1989, the net loss was $2.0 million or 30 cents per share.

For the fiscal year to date, the company's operating loss was $3.3 million compared to an operating loss of $7.3 million in the same period last year. Revenues for the nine months of this year totaled $51.6 million and revenues for the same period of fiscal 1989 were $50.4 million. The net loss for the nine months of the current year was $3.2 million, or 48 cents per share, while the net loss in the same period of fiscal 1989 was $6.4 million, or $1.02 per share.

The company's subsidiary, Tampa Shipyards Incorporated, was awarded a Navy contract in November 1989 to complete construction, outfitting and testing of two TAO Navy Oilers. Both ships are under construction at the Tampa yard and the company continues to increase its labor force in connection with this contract. Improved operating results are expected in the fourth quarter when revenues on this contract increase. As a part of the nation's military industrial base, the company is aggressively pursuing additional U.S. Navy contracts, submitting bids on two major Navy projects in the past several months.

The American Ship Building Company is a major independent ship construction, conversion and repair business. It has the largest ship repair and construction facilities in Florida and is one of the major barge builders on the inland waterways.

WICHITA, KN (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Kansas Gas and Electric Company (NYSE: KGE) today asked the Kansas Corporation Commission (KCC) to require Kansas City Power & Light Company (NYSE: KLT) to pay all the costs, now estimated at near $15 million, in connection with KCP&L's unprecedented July 23, 1990, unsolicited tender offer for all KG&E's common and preferred stock.

KG&E said it believes KCP&L alone has "incurred or committed to costs and expenses of over $10 million" on its takeover effort. And, KG&E will be forced to spend at least $4.5 million in connection with the tender offer.

KCP&L has asked the KCC to approve its unsolicited tender offer for KG&E capital stock and the proposed merger of the utilities. KG&E has petitioned to intervene to help determine whether KCP&L's takeover would be in the public interest.

If for any reason the merger does not take place, "Neither KG&E's customers nor its shareholders should be required to pay the cost incurred by KG&E to evaluate and respond to KCP&L's attack not only on KG&E but also, by implication, on the public interest," KG&E said.

Without commission assessment of costs to KCP&L, KG&E said its "Customers or shareholders would be required to pay enormous amounts to have successfully protected the public interest against the unilateral and hostile attack by KCP&L. Such a result would be inequitable."

KG&E said that if the takeover were to succeed, KCP&L would pay all costs, "directly or indirectly." As part of its decision to attack KG&E, "KCP&L has to have recognized and accepted that fact," the petition states.

LAS VEGAS, NV (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - On Friday, Aug. 17, Moody's Investors Service lowered Nevada Power Company's (NYSE: NVP) bond rating from A2 to Baa1. Moody's said the lower ratings are a direct result of the company's rapidly rising construction budget. Also cited was lower internal cash flows due to recent rate decreases.

According to Nevada Power Company Vice President and Chief Financial Officer Richard Hyte, explosive customer growth is placing a significant need on the company for increased cash flows. Hyte said, "Funding for heavy construction requirements and increasing customer service costs will need to come, in part, from future rate increases. With understanding and support from customers and regulators, the company will be able to maintain its financial integrity through these critical years of high growth."

Capital outlays increased from $50 million in 1987 to $120 million in 1989. The company's capital budget is expected to increase by 38 percent in 1990, and average $200 million for the next several years. The lower ratings will most likely increase financing costs for the company.

MINNEAPOLIS (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Dimensional Medicine, Inc. (DMI) (NASDAQ: DMED), a Minneapolis-based developer and marketer of radiology-related systems, today reported operating revenues for the first quarter ended June 30, 1990, of $1,644,826 compared to $1,079,873 in the comparable quarter of 1989.

DMI reported an operating loss of $196,632 for the first quarter compared to $140,197 for the prior year, net loss for the period was $294,174, or $.05 per share compared with a net loss of $168,287, or $.03 per share for the same period last year.

David H. Littlefield, president and CEO, commented, "While the results were below plan, the primary cause was product mix and timing. first quarter activities were heavily driven by hardware upgrades with lower-margin potential and with delays in signing key contracts, particularly in the imaging area, results were disappointing. Although quarter-to-quarter business will remain volatile, we are confident that we have selected the correct strategic direction and that full-year results will demonstrate our growth and profit potential."

This compares to net income of $26,000, or $.01 per share, for the same period of 1989. For the first nine months ended June 30, 1990, Mid-State Federal reported a loss of $1,471,000, or $.69 per share, compared to net income of $899,000, or $.43 per share, for the same period of 1989.

Results for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, were negatively impacted by a $2,873,000 (pretax) increase in the allowance for possible loan losses and a $572,000 (pretax) charge to earnings to reflect a decrease in the carrying value of real estate owned and real estate in judgment.

Results for the current quarter were positively impacted by an $831,000 (pretax) increase in interest income as a result of an increase in the carrying value of a derivative mortgage security to reflect the recently announced current accounting treatment for such securities. This increase in interest income related to the derivative mortgage security offsets a decrease in interest income of $681,000 during the second quarter which resulted from a change in the estimated prepayment assumption on the mortgage loans underlying the security.

Charles E. Harris, chairman of the board of Mid-State Federal, said the results for the quarter reflected "current weaknesses in the Central Florida real estate market as well as recent regulatory trends encouraging banks and thrifts to maintain stronger loss reserves in light of current economic conditions." Harris said the increased reserves resulted from a management decision to use more stringent criteria in establishing Mid-State Federal's general loss reserves, as well as financial problems experienced by some of the bank's loan customers.

Harris emphasized that Mid-State Federal continues to meet or exceed all of its applicable capital requirements, despite increasing its loss reserves and incurring the reported loss for the quarter.

Noting that the loss reserves maintained by thrift institutions have historically tended to be lower than the reserves maintained by commercial banks, Harris said that Mid-State Federal is attempting to move toward the more conservative reserve methodologies used in the commercial banking industry. However, Harris said that Mid-State Federal's loss reserves do not yet total the levels that would be required by the regulatory standards applied to national banks by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC). At June 30, 1990, Mid-State Federal's allowances for loan and real estate owned losses totaled $4.1 million as compared to $1.7 million at March 31, 1990. Mid-State Federal increased the allowance for loan losses and reduced the carrying values of certain real estate assets during the quarter ended June 30, 1990, by approximately $3.4 million.

Harris said that the additional loss reserves and more stringent reserve methodologies were established following a detailed review of Mid-State Federal's loans and real estate owned which was recently completed by management. Harris noted that the additional reserves related to "customer relationships in Mid-State Federal's primary Florida markets." Harris said that Mid-State Federal does not have any significant out-of-state lending relationships.

As a result of the proposed acquisition of Mid-State Federal by First Florida Banks, Inc. (NASDAQ: FFBK), the OCC recently conducted an examination of Mid-State Federal, as of March 31, 1990, as part of the OCC's consideration of First Florida's application to acquire Mid-State Federal by merging it into First Florida's national bank subsidiary. As a thrift institution, Mid-State Federal is regulated by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) and the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) rather than the OCC, which regulates national banks.

Although Mid-State Federal believes that the results of the OCC examination have not been finalized and will not be binding upon Mid-State Federal as an independent thrift institution, the OCC examiners indicated to the management of Mid-State Federal that they believe First Florida, upon acquisition of Mid-State Federal, would require an allowance for loan and real estate owned losses relating to Mid-State Federal's assets of from $5.3 million to $8.6 million as of March 31, 1990. Based upon applying the assumptions and standards believed to have been used in the OCC examination to the loan and real estate owned portfolios of Mid-State Federal as of June 30, 1990, Mid-State Federal believes that the OCC would require First Florida, upon acquisition of Mid-State Federal, to have an allowance for loan and real estate owned losses relating to Mid-State Federal's assets of from $5.1 million to $8.5 million.

If Mid-State Federal were required to maintain the reserves recommended by the OCC, based upon the OCC standards applicable to national banks, Mid-State Federal's allowance for loan and real estate owned losses as of June 30, 1990, would have to be increased by an amount ranging from $1.0 million to $4.4 million. Since the reserves recommended by the OCC were determined under the guidelines of the OCC applicable to national banks which Mid-State Federal believes are not consistent with reserve guidelines generally used in the thrift industry, those additional allowances have not been recorded as of June 30, 1990. Although the OCC does not have the authority to require Mid-State Federal to increase its provisions or allowances for loan and real estate owned losses, the results of the OCC examination could influence the FDIC and OTS and any determination by them as to whether any increases would be required by Mid-State Federal. The FDIC and OTS could also require additional provisions or allowances as a result of any examination of Mid-State Federal by them.

Results for the nine months ended June 30, 1990, included $1,115,000 in income attributable to the receipt and contribution to the bank's employee stock ownership plan (ESOP) of the excess assets from the 1988 termination of the bank's pension plan. The bank will incur an expense, which will be nondeductible for federal income tax purposes, when the excess assets contributed to the ESOP are allocated to the accounts of eligible employees during future periods.

Mid-State Federal is a publicly held, federally insured and federally chartered stock savings bank with its common stock traded over-the-counter and quoted on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol "MSSB." With its home office in Ocala, Fla., the thrift has assets of just under $1 billion and operates 26 branch offices within a five county area in west central Florida.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, CALIF. (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - McDonnell Douglas Space Systems Company, Huntington Beach, ALCOA/Goldsworthy Engineering, Torrance Calif., and the Space Studies Institute, Princeton, N.J., have completed the initial phase of a project to develop solar energy applications on the lunar surface.

This joint research project effort aimed at supporting President Bush's Space Exploration Initiative (SEI) used reflected sunlight to melt simulated lunar soil (simulant) into glass and glass fibers. During the tests the simulant, which consists of crushed grey basalt, melted into a black liquid at 2200 to 2400 degrees Fahrenheit. Upon cooling, it formed into shiny black glass, and in some cases, flexible fibers.

With additional processing, such strands could be used to create composite materials with eventual use for construction of structures on the Moon. This process could reduce a lunar base's dependence on supplies from Earth and give future explorers greater flexibility as they learn to live on another planetary body.

McDonnell Douglas (NYSE: MD) developed the solar concentrator mirror in the early 1980s to produce electricity for applications on Earth. Now used for the simulant processing project, the mirror can focus 75 kilowatts of the Sun's energy to over 10,000 times its normal intensity. ALCOA is providing several crucibles for containing the simulant while the third project partner, Space Studies Institute, is responsible for obtaining the lunar soil simulant and supplying relevant technical information.

Crucibles must be able to withstand the extremely high temperatures needed to melt the simulant while maintaining purity of the resulting products. In recent experiments, crucible temperatures of over 3000 degrees Fahrenheit have been achieved. Higher levels are possible, but the crucible would then undergo much faster degradation.

MT. KISCO, N.Y. (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - New low-cost weekend packages are featured in the TWA Getaway Program.

TWA Getaway's Fall-Winter-Spring Europe 1990/91 brochure, out since early August, introduces four new vacations to last year's highly successful program. Among them are weekend breaks to London and Paris that include roundtrip TWA air, a winter-season U.K. tour that debuted in summer 1990, and a nine-day combination tour of Madrid and Lisbon.

Newly introduced are two five-day, three-night weekend breaks in Paris and London. Available from November through March, the long- weekend, city stays are terrific for shopping, theater-going and fine dining.

Director of Getaway International Lene Hildebrand said "We had expected a strong response to the weekend packages but we did not foresee the overwhelming demand as indicated by early booking levels. The weekend packages are especially popular with group bookings and we have already begun securing additional room inventory."

For the first time, the package price includes roundtrip air fare, and with lead prices of $498 for London and $569 for Paris, they're a remarkable value for the money. Also part of the package: three nights hotel accommodations, roundtrip airport transfers with baggage handling, continental breakfast with juice daily and a half-day guided sightseeing in each city. Two-for-one offers at sightseeing attractions and many restaurants, "Countdown" membership, half-price savings on car rental, and the services of a local hostess round out the weekend package offerings, which should appeal to any traveler looking for a sophisticated short break in Europe.

Another new city break concentrates on the Iberian capitals, offering a nine-day vacation to Libson and Madrid for as little as $399 plus air fare. Clients begin with four nights in the Spanish capital, then fly to Portugal for three nights in Libson. The price includes first class accommodations in both cities, guided sightseeing tours, the services of a Travellers hostess, transfers and "Countdown" discounts, plus half-day excursions to Toledo and Sintra. These cities enjoy a high proportion of mild, sunny days in fall and spring, and rarely see snow in winter -- a definite plus for Americans looking to escape harsh winter climates.

The fourth new vacation is the British Explorer. Introduced in the summer 1990 program, it offers vacationers a choice of escorted tour or escorted tour and a freestyle stay in Great Britain. The complete, 10-day itinerary (starting from just $519 plus air fare) begins with two nights accommodations with continental breakfast in London and includes round-trip airport transfers, half-day guided sightseeing and hostess service before beginning a six-day tour of England and Scotland. The six-day itinerary (starting from $368 plus air fare) does not include a London stay, thereby allowing visitors to make their own arrangements before or after the tour. While on tour, clients travel by private, luxury motorcoach, accompanied by an experienced tour director, and enjoy full English breakfast daily plus dinners in Bath, Chester, Glasgow and York. There is also a free evening in Edinburgh. Sightseeing stops at Stonehenge, Stratford-upon-Avon, Durham and Cambridge, plus a visit to Holyroodhouse Palace in Edinburgh, are included.

PALO ALTO, CA (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Emery Worldwide has informed its customers that it will implement a fuel cost index fee on Sept. 4 to offset the dramatic rise in aviation fuel since the recent Middle East crisis.

Emery Worldwide President Donald G. Berger said the fee will be based on the U.S. Gulf Coast Jet Fuel Index as published on the third Monday of each month. The initial fee will be 4.7 percent of all invoiced transportation charges.

The fee will be adjusted monthly, either up or down, in accordance with the price of jet fuel. It will apply to shipments moving within and between the United States, Canada, and Puerto Rico. The fee will not be applied in months when the cost of jet fuel falls to within 5 percent of the price on July 31, 1990.

Rates applicable to the company's urgent envelope and Emery pak shipments are not affected by the fuel index fee.

"This is a temporary fee that is strictly a pass-through of the rapidly rising costs of jet fuel," said Berger. "We are all victims of the Middle East crisis and because of that Emery will make no profit from this fee.

"It is regrettable that the fee is necessary, but our fuel costs have risen 45 percent as compared to the average cost of jet fuel in July," Berger said.

Emery Worldwide is a diversified air freight company specializing in the delivery of urgent envelopes, parcels and heavy freight. It has headquarters in Palo Alto, and freight facilities in 90 countries around the world.

NEW YORK (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The Image Bank, Inc. (NASDAQ: TIBI) today announced results for the third quarter and nine months ended June 30, 1990.

Operating results for the fiscal 1989 reporting periods were stated on a pro forma basis to reflect adjustments reducing officers' compensation to amounts prescribed in employment agreements, effective August 1989, and to provide for federal and state income taxes as if the company had not been an S corporation prior to August 1989. Operating results for the fiscal 1989 reporting periods were also restated to reflect the discontinuance of

Revenues for the third quarter and nine months were $13,415,000 and $38,318,000, respectively, increases of 34 percent and 46 percent from the same periods in fiscal 1989. Income from continuing operations before income taxes decreased to $197,000 from $476,000 in the third quarter and $821,000 from $937,000 in the nine-month period.

A write-off of $700,000 during the fiscal 1990 third quarter and nine months due to currently non-utilized foreign tax credits resulted in a net loss of $584,000, or $.16 per share, and $188,000, or $.05 per share, respectively, for the reporting periods. This compares with pro forma net income of $151,000, or $.07 per share, and $406,000, or $.18 per share, for the 1989 periods. Weighted average number of shares outstanding for the reported periods were 3,695,000 and 2,246,545, respectively. Although the write-off was required by the generally accepted accounting principles for federal income tax purposes the foreign tax credits may be carried forward for a five-year period.

The Image Bank, a diversified communications company, is the world's leading stock image agency, licensing reproduction rights to professional photographs, illustrations and cinematography for advertising, programming promotional and editorial purposes through its international network of more than 50 offices.

ST. LOUIS (AUG. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Comprehensive Care Corp. (NYSE: CMP) today announced that the Shareholders Committee to Rejuvenate CompCare had tendered written consents to remove the company's current directors and to replace the directors with its nominees. The tendered consents were effective as of 4:30 p.m., EDT, Aug. 19, 1990.

The company has appointed The Corporation Trust Co. as the inspector of election and is in the process of delivering the consents, as well as the revocations and proxies solicited by the company, to the inspector.

The company believes, based upon its preliminary review, that the Shareholders Committee has tendered sufficient consents to remove the current directors and to elect at least a majority of the new directors. The inspector has advised the company that it expects to complete its review by the close of business on Aug. 22, 1990.

The company also announced that prior to the effectiveness of the tendering of the Shareholders Committee's consents, the company's Board of Directors approved the nomination of the Shareholders Committee nominees and their election by the company's stockholders, subject to the delivery of a sufficient number of effective consents by the Shareholders Committee. The Board has also directed that the proxies solicited by the company be voted in favor of the election of W. James Nicol as a director.

Comprehensive Care Corp., based in St. Louis, is a national provider of chemical dependency treatment programs under the service mark "CareUnit" and physical rehabilitation programs under the service mark "RehabCare."

RADNOR, PA (AUG. 20) UPI - Despite a crooked nose, talk show hostess Kathie Lee Gifford has taken the cake in TV Guide's ''Most Beautiful Woman on TV'' survey.

Nealy 18,000 television viewers voted for the co-host of ''Live With Regis and Kathie Lee,'' who made no bones about stumping on her own behalf in a week-long campaign on her show, the magazine reported Sunday.

The campaign apparently paid off handsomely, as Gifford trounced all other contenders.

The two closest beauties - Jaclyn Smith and Nicollette Sheridan - each got fewer than 4,000 votes, according to the TV Guide telephone survey results printed in the magazine's Aug. 25 issue.

During her push for votes, Gifford appeared with an apple pie topped by an American flag, did cheers for herself, and even brought on her husband, sportscaster Frank Gifford, and their baby son, Cody, the magazine said.

''There is no accounting for my behavior,'' Kathie Lee Gifford told TV Guide. ''I didn't do anything illegal, though.''

Nevertheless, Gifford said she was aghast over her victory.

''Jaclyn, Nicollette Sheridan, Connie Sellecca - these are drop-dead beautiful women,'' she said. ''I have a crooked nose. I have a crooked everything.''

She said her husband didn't even vote for her. Instead, she said, Frank chose Connie Chung.

TV Guide editors said they had no rules prohibiting campaigning.

''Too bad I don't have a TV talk show to wage a campaign,'' a disgruntled Holly Robinson told the magazine. Robinson, who appears on ''21 Jump Street,'' received a scant 674 votes.

(AUG. 20) UPI - U-S officials have asked the U-N Security Council to approve a draft resolution that that would O-K American and other naval forces in the Persian Gulf region to use enforce the Iraqi embargo. The proposed measure would allow armed forces in the region to use what it termed- ''such minimum force as may be necessary'' to ensure that economic sanctions against Iraq are NOT evaded.

The draft resolution came about after earlier talks among the Security Council's five permanent members. America's Ambassador to the United Nations, Thomas Pickering, said Washington-in his words- ''would like to see the council continue to speak with one voice.'' The U-S-backed proposal states that the council is- ''gravely alarmed'' that Baghdad has ignored four previous Security Council resolutions regarding iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

A federal judge in Los Angeles Monday said- ''It's time to pay the piper '' as he sentenced a former securities broker who bilked banks and thrifts out of nearly 150-Million dollars. David Feldman received a 15-year prison term and was ordered to pay 70-Millionthousand dollars in restitution. Prosecutors say Feldman oversaw a complex scheme in which some 144-Million dollars in mostly defaulted loans were sold to banks and thrifts.

The Operation PUSH civil rights group met with little success Monday as the group continued its call for a nationwide boycott of the Nike shoe company. PUSH leader Reverend Tyrone Crider led about four-dozen supporters in a protest at the shoe company's headquarters outside Portland. The protesters tried to enter the building, but were turned away by a security guard who said written requests were needed to arrange meetings.

(AUG. 20) UPI - The shortstop had never hit a home run, the first baseman hadn't hit one in a year and the pitcher hadn't won in two months, so the law of averages was on the side of the Cardinals.

Tim Jones belted his first major-league homer Sunday and utility man Denny Walling added his first homer since Aug. 18, 1989 to power St. Louis to a 7-3 victory over the Houston Astros.

''What are the odds of me and Timmy hitting a home run in the same game?'' said Walling after helping starter Jose DeLeon earn his first win since June 17.

The Cardinals right-hander scattered eight hits over six innings, striking out seven and walking one, to raise his record to 7-12. DeLeon had gone 10 starts without a win, losing seven and posting three no-decisions during the span.

Walling, who has had to scrap for a place in the starting lineup, got the nod at first base after Pedro Guerrero, possibly feeling the effects of Thursday's fight with Astros' pitcher Danny Darwin, checked into a hospital with back pain Sunday morning.

Walling's home run capped a three-run first inning off Houston starter Mike Scott, 9-12. Vince Coleman walked, stole second and went to third on Terry Pendleton's groundout. Willie McGee's infield single scored Coleman before Walling homered.

''I've been playing more lately and getting rid of the rust,'' Walling said. ''I haven't felt comfortable. I'm still looking for a certain pitch. When you play more you don't have to do that.''

Tim Jones' eighth-inning blast off Houston reliever Brian Fisher padded the lead.

''(Fisher) got behind me 2-0 and I was looking for the fastball,'' Jones said. ''He got it inside and I hit it hard.''

Scott would probably like to forget this latest outing, one in which he was tagged for six runs and 10 hits in five innings.

Scott has surrendered 24 round-trippers this season. The right-hander, a 20-game winner last season, hasn't finished under .500 since 1984.

--- AROUND THE NL ---

Elsewhere in the National League: Pittsburgh dumped Cincinnati 6-3, Chicago tripped Atlanta 5-4, Montreal edged Los Angeles 2-1, Philadelphia nipped San Diego 3-2, and New York outlasted San Francisco 10-9.

Pirates 6, Reds 3

At Cincinnati, Bobby Bonilla delivered a three-run home run and Doug Drabek recorded his 16th victory, allowing Pittsburgh to post a four-game sweep of the Reds. Cincinnati was outscored 20-8 in the series. Jack Armstrong dropped to 12-9, giving up five runs on eight hits in six innings.

Cubs 5, Braves 4

At Chicago, pinch hitter Hector Villanueva smacked a two-run homer with two out in the eighth inning, lifting the Cubs to their 22nd win in their last 32 games. They are 16-6 at Wrigley Field during that span. Greg Maddux, 11-10, won for the seventh time in his last eight games. Villanueva's blast, his seventh, allowed Chicago to erase a 4-3 deficit.

Expos 2, Dodgers 1

At Los Angeles, pinch hitter Mike Aldrete singled home Dave Martinez with two out in the ninth, to hand Ramon Martinez, 15-6, his second straight loss. Aldrete now has eight hits and four RBI in 27 pinch-hit at-bats. The Dodgers remain 6 1-2 games behind the Reds in the NL West.

Phillies 3, Padres 2

At San Diego, Sil Campusano, batting .192 going into the game, drove in two runs with a pinch-hit single in the seventh inning to lift Philadelphia. Dennis Rasmussen, 8-12, was victimized by two Padres errors in the inning as both runs were unearned.

Mets 10, Giants 9

At San Francisco, Kevin McReynolds drove in six runs with two homers and a single, helping Dwight Gooden raise his record to 13-6. John Franco gained his 28th save. Mike Lacoss, 3-2, lasted 4 1-3 innings, allowing seven runs nine hits and walking three.

MANAMA, BAHRAIN (AUG. 20) UPI - President Bush's interdiction program against Iraq faced its first challenge when two Iraqi oil tankers that had already ignored U.S. warning shots headed south through the Persian Gulf, shadowed by American warships.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, in the region to visit U.S. forces and Persian Gulf leaders, monitored the situation Sunday and talked to Washington by telephone during his trip.

He became less talkative about the two Iraqi tankers during the day and refused to say what action, if any, would be taken to stop the vessels.

But it was believed the United States was delaying military action to avoid influencing a pending U.N. Security Council vote on a resolution to enforce economic sanctions against Iraq. The council adopted the economic embargo in response to Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion and occupation of Kuwait.

''We note that the United Nations is continuing to isolate Iraq by condemning its treatment of foreign nationals,'' a Bush administration official said, speaking on the condition of anonymity. ''We further note that the U.N. is considering further actions on enforcement of the sanctions.''

The administration official said the Navy would continue its interdiction operation and keep monitoring the two Iraqi tankers, noting they are not near any port or harbor.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, traveling with Bush from the president's summer home in Maine to Washington for briefings on the crisis added, ''We intend to enforce the sanctions, but we want to give them every opportunity to turn around and change course.''

In a related development, officials disclosed that the Navy Saturday boarded a Chinese vessel, the Heng Chun Hai, which was carrying fertilizer from Iraq south through the Persian Gulf. It was boarded and searched by personnel from the USS England, and told to return to its port of origin. Officials said the vessel was currently at anchor in the gulf.

Asked if Bush had backed away from his intention of using force against Iraqi ships since they apparently were still under way, Cheney answered with a curt, ''No.''

Cheney made the comments in the Persian Gulf state island of Bahrain after meeting with officers and crew of the USS LaSalle, the command ship of the U.S. Joint Task Force-Middle East, which has eight warships in the gulf, including the ships that fired the warning shots.

On the first day of Cheney's four-day trip to the region, Navy officials in the Red Sea said U.S. ships in the gulf had gone to battle stations Saturday after the frigate USS Reid had fired at least six warning shots from its 76mm cannon across the bow of an Iraqi tanker, but the vessel would not stop.

Another ship, the USS Bradley, fired three warning shots at another Iraqi vessel, officials said.

Cheney, who had been visiting sailors Saturday aboard the aircraft carrier USS Eisenhower in the Red Sea, confirmed the firing when he arrived at a Saudi air base Sunday to visit with U.S. ground and air forces.

''I am aware that in the Persian Gulf yesterday, as part of our interception operations, one of our vessels did fire warning shots near an Iraqi vessel,'' Cheney told reporters, apparently mentioning only one of the incidents.

''At this point, the Iraqi vessels are still under surveillance. They are not close to any port or any harbor at this point. Our vessels continue to maintain that surveillance.

''I wouldn't want to speculate what happens next,'' Cheney said. ''We obviously are prepared to see to it that the sanctions that the United Nations voted and the actions that the officers of the legitimate government asked us to undertake are carried out.

The tankers are believed to be loaded with oil since they are moving south away from Iraq.

Bush ordered U.S. forces late Thursday to interdict commercial vessels with goods that are either leaving or bound for Iraq or Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

In his comments to reporters in Bahrain, Cheney said the United States was working diplomatically to seek cooperation from all nations on the sanctions and militarily to intercept ships that may be trying to break the embargo.

In his later remarks, Cheney declined to discuss specifics about the Iraqi tankers, such as their location in the Persian Gulf or whether they were loaded.

''We have under surveillance a number of vessels in the gulf and the Red Sea that may or may not be trying to get around the sanctions,'' he said.

Cheney is on his first visit to the region since Bush Aug. 7 ordered U.S. forces to Saudi Arabia to deter a possible Iraqi attack, following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

The United States has some 30 warships in the region, including three aircraft carriers and a battleship, and more than 140 Air Force fighters and bombers in the largest military buildup since the Vietnam War.

More than 45,000 U.S. troops are believed to have arrived in northeastern Saudi Arabia, near Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, as part of Operation Desert Shield. More than 100,000 are expected to be sent overall.

(AUG. 20) UPI - Around the world, around the clock... U-P-I brings you the latest news.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater takes a dim view of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's latest offer to free foreigners in return for a speedy U-S pullout from Saudi Arabia. He says it's another example of what he termed the ''daily seminar of Iraqi ridicule.'' Fitzwater says ''it doesN'T improve the prospects for resolving the crisis'' in the Middle East.

The United States is sending another squadron of radar-evading FA stealth fighters to the Middle East. The second squadron leaves today for Saudi Arabia, and the mission has been well-publicized to act as a deterrent to Iraqi aggression.

President Bush is interrupting his vacation in Maine again. He's consulting with his top advisers in Washington today on the dangerous war of nerves in the Persian Gulf. He's also to address the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Baltimore later today.

Battles in South Africa between Zulu supporters of the Inkatha movement and members of the anti-apartheid African National Congress have now claimed nearly 300 lives. Authorities say at least 11-hundred people have been wounded in seven days of slaughter in black townships near Johannesburg, with the worst violence in Soweto.

The Coast Guard says a 152-thousand-gallon gasoline spill in Delaware Bay probably will dissipate. The spill occurred yesterday when a Panamanian tanker collided with a barge carrying more than seven-Million gallons of gas and heating oil. The spill left a sheen of gasoline over a two and one-half-mile area.

NEW YORK (AUG. 20) UPI - A man driving a gypsy cab in Harlem was shot and critically injured during a robbery attempt, the latest in a series of attacks on cab drivers in the city, police said.

The 32-year-old driver, who was not identified, was shot in the back by a passenger Sunday evening near Madison Avenue, said Sgt. Ed Burns, a police spokesman.

The wounded driver fled his vehicle and the gunman jumped into the front seat and drove the car away, Burns said. The driver was in critical condition Sunday at Harlem Hospital, authorities said.

The shooting was the latest in a string of attacks on cab drivers. Twenty drivers have been killed in New York City since the beginning of the year, according to police figures.

CAMBRIDGE, MA (AUG. 20) UPI - B.F. Skinner, the behavioral psychologist who died of leukemia complications at age 86, was remembered as ''a legend in his own time'' despite the controversial nature of his theories.

Skinner's death Saturday at Mt. Auburn Hospital came just eight days after he had received an award from the American Psychological Association and presented what he called a final defense of his work.

Hospital spokeswoman Lois Hunter said Skinner died at 2:45 p.m. Saturday from complications of leukemia. A secretary was by his side and his wife, Eve, also was at the hospital, Hunter said.

''He went very fast. I don't even think his family expected it,'' she said.

Skinner spent the last years of his life trying to improve his image.

''Many people regard me as some cold taskmaster who wants to manipulate everybody,'' the longtime Harvard University professor once said. ''I have worked toward behavior modification for the general welfare all my life. But now I'm getting old and I'm a little concerned about my image.''

During a psychologists' convention in Washington in August 1982, Skinner said aging men and women can best cope with their intellectual decline by relaxing the brain. He suggested giving up such hobbies as working complicated crossword puzzles and playing chess. Instead, he recommended reading mystery novels and watching situation comedies on television.

Skinner's theories held that human behavior is a byproduct of the environment; that organisms are capable of little or no ''free will'' but rather react to rewards and punishments. His principles of conditioning, first applied to rats and pigeons, are now commonly used to help people deal with such problems as phobias, drug addiction and smoking.

Skinner also was a prolific author who wrote short stories and poetry, published many books on psychology and compiled a set of lengthy memoirs.

Among his works were ''Walden Two,'' a Utopian novel published in 1948 in which he invented a new society, and books on psychology such as ''Beyond Freedom and Dignity'' and ''About Behaviorism.''

On Aug. 10, Skinner was given a lifetime contribution citation by the American Psychological Association. In a retrospective on his theories and their future, he said, ''I'm very optimistic for certain kinds of psychology; the kind of behaviorism I practice. I'm attacking cognitive psychology. That's the usual thing.''

Robert Epstein, a former student of Skinner who now runs the Cambridge Center for Behavioral Studies, said, ''I think he will probably be remembered most as a pioneering scientist.

''A lot of what he has done has been controversial, but he was one of the greatest, if not the greatest, behavioral scientists that ever lived,'' Epstein said. ''I think it's safe to say he was a legend in his own time.''

Nathan Azrin, professor of psychology at Nova University in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., also a former student of Skinner, said despite the controversy surrounding Skinner's theories, they spawned an entirely new approach to psychology and behavior research. ''He was called a legend in his own time. I think that description is quite accurate,'' Azrin said.

Born in Susquehanna, Pa., on March 20, 1904, Skinner was the son of a striving lawyer whose family worked hard to better itself. His mother was a strict woman concerned with proper behavior.

After graduating from Hamilton College in Clinton, N.Y., in 1926, Skinner received his M.A. and Ph.D from Harvard in 1931. In 1936, he joined the psychology department at the University of Minnesota, where he remained for nine years. In 1942 and 1943, he conducted war research for General Mills Inc.

For two years before joining the Harvard faculty in 1947, he was chairman of the psychology department at Indiana University.

Skinner began experimenting with rats early in his career. During World War II, he took part in the Air Force's proposed ''Project Pigeon,'' designed to train pigeons to guide missiles. The project never got off the ground.

A devoted family man, Skinner married Eve Blue, an English major at the University of Chicago, in 1936. Their daughter, Julie, was born in 1938, and another daughter, Deborah, arrived in 1944.

It was perhaps Skinner's experiments with Deborah's so-called ''baby box'' that brought the professor into the national spotlight. The box was a crib-sized, climatically controlled living space with a large picture window, designed to simulate a natural environment for the child.

The baby, wearing only a diaper, remained in the box most of the time, but was handled at feedings and play times. Skinner claimed the child was happy, healthy and well-adjusted.

WARSAW, POLAND (AUG. 20) UPI - A passenger train headed from Prague, Czechoslovakia, to Warsaw rammed into a commuter train near the Polish capital Monday morning, killing at least 13 people and injuring 35, the Polish news agency PAP reported.

Preliminary findings suggested the crash occurred after the Prague-to-Warsaw train ignored a stop signal, said Jacek Wnukowski, spokesman for Polish Rail.

Rescue teams found 13 bodies in the last car of the local train after the Prague-to-Warsaw train slammed into it shortly before 6:30 a.m., said PAP.

Ambulances arriving on the scene, near the southwestern Warsaw suburb of Ursus, took 35 people to hospitals in the capital, PAP said.

The Prague-Warsaw train was not damaged and no one on board was hurt in the collision, Wnukowski said.

(AUG. 20) UPI - Thunderstorms saturated the Midwest and mid-Atlantic states Monday, triggering floods from Iowa to Pennsylvania, while the South sweltered in steamy heat and scattered showers dotted the West Coast.

A cool autumn-like air mass pushed across the mid-Atlantic states, bringing heavy storms early Monday. Thunderstorms rumbled through Washington, D.C., illuminating the morning darkness as heavy rain soaked the nation's capital.

Flash flood watches covered 18 western Pennsylvania counties and four counties in West Virginia's panhandle. A round of heavy thunderstorms soaked the area with heavy rain early Monday, and storms sweeping across the Ohio border increased the threat of flooding in low-lying areas.

Flash flood watches also were in effect for parts of Iowa and northern Illinois, but rainstorms diminished in rain-soaked Minnesota. Scattered storms rolled over the northern third of Indiana, prompting flood watches.

In Rochester, Ind., the Fulton County Sheriff's Department evacuated 28 patients from a hospital and about 50 residents from a senior citizens center Sunday out of concern a dam at Lake Manitou might break.

Water was spilling from the lake, and if the dam does not hold, officials in the north-central Indiana town estimated 6-foot floodwaters could race through the area within about 30 minutes after the dam's failure.

''We're just hoping it doesn't rain any more,'' said sheriff's dispatcher Stephanie Nafziger. ''We got a lot of water and we don't need any more.''

But in western Wisconsin, about 1,500 people returned to their homes in the town of Tomah, where a threat of dam breakage forced them to flee Saturday. Flash flood watches were activated Monday in southern Wisconsin, which was inundated with heavy rain that bloated tributaries over the weekend.

Showers and thunderstorms, some of them dumping heavy rain, swept through the Texas and Oklahoma panhandles and northeast New Mexico. Lighter showers also dampened areas of western Arkansas and eastern Oklahoma.

The Oklahoma Highway Patrol said it closed a stretch of Highway 56 west of Felt, Okla., Monday after 4 inches of rain doused the area.

Urban and small-stream flood warnings covered central Montana's Golden Valley, where torrential rains washed out a bridge near Musselshell, as heavy storm runoff coursed through waterways.

Hot, humid weather blanketed the South, with temperatures climbing into the 90s Monday after morning lows ranging in the mid 70s. In Atlanta, temperatures topped out at 97 degrees Sunday.

In the West, scattered showers and thunderstorms were expected to continue flaring up through Tuesday in California and near the northern mountains and Sierra Nevada, with snow dusting some higher mountain peaks. Fair skies and morning fog covered inland areas along the coast.

(AUG. 20) UPI - The United Arab Emirates have agreed to host U-S military cargo planes and hundreds of Air Force personnel as part of the effort to defend the region against a possible Iraqi attack. Defense Secretary Cheney made the announcement today in Abu Dhabi, one of the seven member states in the U-A-E... after meeting with the ruler of Abu Dhabi on the south coast of the Persian Gulf.

Dozens of Americans reportedly have been moved to strategic installations in Iraq, forming a ''human shield'' against any possible U-S offensive. NEVERtheless, the United States says it's determined to enforce U-N economic sanctions against Baghdad. As part of that effort, U-S warships are tracking two Iraqi oil tankers that are heading south through the Persian Gulf, in defiance of orders to stop.

Forces are being mobilized for an appeal of Saturday's conviction of three teen-agers in the Central Park jogger rape case. Black activist attorney Vernon Mason says he would represent one and possibly two of the youths in an appeal. He also says the Reverend Al Sharpton plans to meet today in Chicago with Nation of Islam Minister Louis Farrakhan to plan a fund-raising campaign.

A Soviet passenger jet landed in Karachi, Pakistan, today after being hijacked by a group of Soviet prisoners who were being transported aboard the plane. A spokesman for the Soviet Interior Ministry says 15 convicts were being moved from a prison in eastern Siberia when they disarmed their three guards and commandeered the plane. 29 passengers were aboard the jet during the hijacking.

NEW YORK (AUG. 20) UPI - A jogger raped and beaten in a highly publicized Central Park ''wilding'' rampage was thrilled over the conviction of three youths in the crime, a published report said Monday.

The New York Post quoted a ''knowledgeable source'' as saying the jogger remarked, ''Thank God it's over'' when she heard the verdict and called the jury of 10 men and two women ''wonderful people.''

The 30-year-old investment banker ''was getting on with her life'' and was not at home Saturday when a prosecutor called to report that Antron McCray 16, Yusef Salaam, 16, and Raymond Santana, 15, had been found guilty of rape and assault, the source told the newspaper.

The three were acquitted of attempted murder, the most serious charge against them.

Although prosecutors have maintained there was no racial motive in the attack, the trial did contribute to racial tensions in the city. The defendants are black and their supporters denounced the widespread media attention given the victim, who is white.

The woman, who was attacked as she jogged in Central Park on the moonlit night of April 19, 1989, testified briefly during the trial. Prosecuting attorney Elizabeth Lederer questioned the jogger about her injuries and established that she had no memory of the attack itself. Defense attorneys did not cross-examine her.

The source said the woman did not want to think about the forthcoming trial of three more youths accused in the attack. Supporters of the convicted youths who prepared to appeal the decision criticized defense attorneys for not questioning the jogger.

Black activist attorney C. Vernon Mason said the woman, who made what doctors called a miraculous recovery from the attack, would not be spared cross-examination if she appeared at the second trial.

Mason said he would represent McCray, and possibly Salaam, in an appeal and said he would file a motion to set aside the verdict, claiming the youths received ineffective representation from their attorneys. He criticized the lawyers for not presenting expert testimony about the psychological and physical effects of the attack on the jogger and her memory and for not cross-examining her.

Most of the media has withheld the woman's name because of the nature of the crime, but some of the city's black press has published her name.

Salaam, McCray and Santana face five to 10 years in prison when they are sentenced Sept. 11.

The woman was attacked by part of a gang of about 30 teenagers who rampaged through the moonlit park, randomly beating and mugging passersby.

During the two-hour rampage, the gang attacked a homeless man, a couple on a tandem bicycle and a male bicyclist before attacking the woman jogger, who was beaten, raped and left for dead.

GDANSK, POLAND (AUG. 20) UPI - Solidarity leader Lech Walesa affirmed Monday he will run for president of Poland and said the administration of Solidarity Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki has distorted some of the ideals of the movement.

In the first of a series of interviews to commemorate the 10th anniversary of the founding of Solidarity Aug. 31, 1980, Walesa said he will seek to replace Wojciech Jaruzelski, the former Communist Party leader, as president, setting up a possible confrontation with Mazowiecki.

''I am the moral president now,'' he declared, saying it was he who brokered the process last year that installed Jaruzelski and Mazowiecki, as well as putting his former advisers, Adam Michnik and Bronislaw Geremek in prominent positions in Parliament.

''All of them were installed by me,'' he said. ''I gave them too much and now I am being overthrown.''

Previously Walesa had said he would run ''if the circumstances required it.'' Aides now say he will begin his campaign in earnest in September.

Jaruzelski's presidential term expires in 1994 but he has suggested he would step down next year because of the changing political circumstances.

However, Mazowiecki, a former Walesa adviser who openly split with Walesa last spring, and his supporters are reluctant to see the strong-willed union leader in a position that could influence the operations of the Parliament and the army as well as the government.

Walesa said that when Solidarity was founded 10 years ago, he had two goals: to overthrow communism and to build a new political system.

''The first goal was achieved and the second is being implemented,'' he said. ''I swore to achieve these goals. These are the reasons for my moral right to struggle for these reforms.''

Asked whether he felt Mazowiecki and his supporters had betrayed him, he said, ''I will show these elements during the election campaign,'' adding he would not give details now.

''The government of Mazowiecki needs to be needled and I am doing it,'' he said.

Walesa and Mazowiecki broke ranks over the pace of political reform and specifically over the continuing presence in the state bureaucracy of thousands of former communist ''apparatchiks'' who hold managerial jobs and block attempted reforms.

The split has not only divided Solidarity into two warring camps but threatens the administration's tough economic stabilization plan, which has slashed inflation but brought unemployment near to the 1 million mark in this country of 39 million people.

BONN, WEST GERMANY (AUG. 20) UPI - The two German governments began a final round of negotiations on a unification treaty Monday, one day after East Germany's government coalition collapsed, raising uncertainty over the timing and mechanics of the merger.

The opening of the talks coincided with renewed calls for immediate unification in view of the economic and political crisis in East Germany.

The negotiations, expected to last until Friday, are aimed at establishing a unification treaty that will set down the technical, financial and legal aspects of unification.

It was uncertain whether East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere would manage to obtain the two-thirds parliamentary majority that would be needed for ratification of the document.

The East German Social Democratic Party broke with de Maiziere's ruling coalition Sunday following the dismissal of two SPD cabinet ministers, leaving what is now a conservative government with 192 parliamentary mandates, nine short of a simple majority.

SPD spokesmen said the party would not support the draft unification treaty in its present form because it does not offer East Germans sufficient guarantees of social security.

If the document is not ratified by a two-thirds vote, the West German Parliament is likely to unilaterally adopt a transitional law after the German Parliament - by majority vote - declares its wish to join the West German federal republic.

The law would contain some of the elements of the treaty.

Officials of the West German opposition SPD and its East German sister party said they would not reject this option, which was first raised by government officials in Bonn.

Oskar Lafontaine, the West German SPD member due to challenge Kohl in Dec. 2 elections, Monday reiterated a call for immediate unification, which is also supported by the Christian Social Union, Kohl's Bavarian partners.

He said the main task ahead was to end the current ''chaos'' in East Germany and that it did not matter much whether a unification treaty or a transitional law is adopted.

Government officials had warned earlier that, because it would only be passed by the West German government, the transitional law would afford East Germans little possibility to influence their own future.

Kohl and de Maiziere said they would be prepared to support the law if necessary, but said they would prefer a unification treaty.

The two German leaders also said they wanted unification on Oct. 14, although they indicated the merger might take place earlier if a transitional law is adopted.

Meanwhile, de Maiziere said that he had also taken on the duties of foreign minister after the post was vacated by SPD member Markus Meckel Monday morning.

Some SPD officials in East and West Germany said they still favored unification immediately after Sept. 12, when the four World War II victors - Britain, France, the Soviet Union, the United States - and the two Germanys meet in Moscow to formalize agreements on the external aspects of unification.

(AUG. 20) UPI - President Bush spoke to the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Baltimore today, saying Americans being held in Iraq are hostages. Bush earlier held meetings on the economic and energy implications of the Middle East crisis. Bush flew to Washington last night in another interruption of his vacation in Maine.

The fate of thousands of Westerners in Kuwait and Iraq remains cloudy. Iraq's ambassador to France told T-V interviewers that Westerners in Iraq were moved to key military bases to be used human shields against attack. State Department officials say they can NOT confirm NOR deny the report.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl invited the opposition Social Democratic Party to begin talks on possible German participation in an international military force in the Persian Gulf. The talks are in advance of meetings tomorrow in Paris of the nine members of the Western European Union. The union's expected to discuss joint action in the gulf.

At least four countries- Italy, Belgium, Holland and West Germany- have expressed willingness to join a European naval task force. Britain and France already have ships in the Persian Gulf. Plans for the Western European Union meeting come amid criticism Europe has been slow to adopt a unified military position after the August 2nd Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Clerics, community leaders and politicians in South Africa are pressuring the leaders of rival black factions to stop the violence by their followers. NEW YORK (AUG. 20) UPI - Donald Trump has a few more weeks before his alleged relationship with model Marla Maples could come under the spotlight in court.

Trump had been scheduled to appear in court Monday for a hearing on a complaint filed by the developer's estranged wife, Ivana, but his lawyers reported the Manhattan state Supreme Court judge in the case had agreed to an indefinite postponement.

Trump's lawyers said no new date had been set and they were still preparing their case. They said the next court date probably would be in the autumn.

Justice Phyllis Gangel-Jacobs recently ruled the real estate mogul could be questioned by Ivana's attorneys about Maples.

The judge even said there were possible Trump ''concealments'' - or hidden assets - that should be considered at trial.

Ivana Trump brought her husband to court over an agreement they signed on Christmas Eve 1987 that would award her $25 million and certain properties should the couple separate.

Ivana's lawyers say she is entitled to a larger share of her husband's fortune, even though Trump's attorney, Jay Goldberg, calls the agreement rock solid.

Ivana Trump's attorney, Michael Kennedy, claims the deal was fraudulently obtained.

The lawyer said the document was obtained by Trump as he pledged his love under false pretenses - while he was dating Maples on the side.

Kennedy said that if his client knew of any extramarital affair she would not have signed the agreement.

Since the couple's separation earlier this year, Trump's fortunes have taken a few turns for the worse, as he failed to meet a deadline to make interest payments on bonds that financed one of his New Jersey casinos.

The New Jersey Casino Control Commission said it will rule Tuesday on Trump's plan plan to meet interest payments on more than $1 billion of his debt with a $65 million emergency loan.

If the plan is rejected he would have to surrender his interest in his three casinos and, according to his attorneys, be forced into bankruptcy.

He previously made a deal with 70 banks to handle delayed debt deadlines to help him through his cash flow crunch, which hit just prior to the unveiling of his latest prize, the Taj Mahal casino in Atlantic City.

CHICAGO (AUG. 20) UPI - A survey of agricultural bankers in the Seventh Federal Reserve District indicates conditions in rural credit markets were fairly steady during the second quarter, the bank reported Monday.

Loan demand was strong and banks had ample money available for lending to farmers in the five-state area of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

Economist Peter Heffernan, writing in the bank's Agricultural Letter, said interest rates charged on farm loans stabilized following earlier declines while the measure of repayment rates on loans to farmers dropped slightly from the high levels of earlier surveys.

"Nevertheless, further improvements in the overall conditions of farm loan portfolios at banks in the district were noted," he said. "Those who responded to the survey expect farm lending at their institutions to continue expanding during the summer months, especially for operating funds and farm machinery purchases."

Thirty-six percent of the bankers reported an increase in farm-loan demand during the spring quarter, 18 percent reported a decline and the remainder said there was no change from year-ago levels.

Farm loan demand was greatest in Iowa and Indiana, Heffernan said, Wisconsin was average and Illinois and Michigan bankers reported somewhat lower than average demand.

"The strengthening trend in farm loan demand that has been apparent from the survey during the last few years has coincided with rising loan-to-deposit ratios at the district's agricultural banks," he said. "At the end of the second quarter, the ratio of 56.5 percent was more than one percentage point higher than the previous three months."

Interest rates charged on loans to farmers were virtually unchanged from April through June. The average rates charged on feeder cattle and operating loans held at about 11.9 percent at the end of June and 11.1 percent on farm real estate loans.

"Agricultural banks in Iowa continued to report the lowest mortgage rates, averaging 10.9 percent," Heffernan said. "The rate was 11.3 percent in Indiana and 11.6 percent in Michigan, while Illinois and Wisconsin rates were near the average."

He said the continuing improvement also was evident in the bankers' evaluations of the condition of their loan portfolios. The average proportion of farm portfolios with little or no repayment problems was just over 95 percent, up from 94 percent one year ago. Consequently, the proportion falling into more severe repayment categories continued to decline.

"Since the mid 1980s, higher levels of guaranteed lending have offset a portion of the declines in direct lending to farmers by the Farmers Home Administration," Heffernan said. "The survey indicates almost 70 percent of the respondents have farm loans secured by an FmHA guarantee with the proportion ranging from under 50 percent in Indiana to just over 90 percent in Iowa."

Bankers said the volume of farm lending, which has been trending upward the past few years, will likely show additional growth during the third quarter of 1990.

"More than one-fourth of the bankers expect operating loan volume to be above year-ago levels during the third quarter, while fewer than 17 percent forsee a decline," Heffernan said.

DETROIT (AUG. 20) UPI - The United Auto Workers will announce Aug. 28 which of the nation's Big Three automakers it will choose as its strike target, a union spokeswoman said Monday.

The UAW's International Executive Board will meet Aug. 27 to review the bargaining that began with General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler in late July to replace existing agreements covering over 500,000 auto workers that expire Sept. 14.

Traditionally, the UAW selects one of the Big Three automakers where it concentrates its efforts, hoping the other two will sign a similar, or "pattern" agreement.

UAW President Owen Bieber spent Monday morning at industry leader GM, telling negotiators to pick up the pace of the talks, with only 25 days left until the expiration date.

"He indicated to bargainers that while the pace has been slow, an agreement might still be possible if the company were to come to the table with a substantial proposal," UAW spokesman Reg McGhee said. Bieber is scheduled to briefly visit Ford on Wednesday and Chrysler on Thursday, McGhee said.

The union is widely expected to select industry giant GM as its target because that's where the issue of job security seems to most seriously challenged, experts say.

"GM is where the issues are," said one UAW official who asked not to be named, adding that Ford, picked as the target during the last round of bargaining in 1987, hasn't closed plants during the past three years while GM has, using the term "indefinite idlings" instead of closures to do so.

Also bolstering observers' expectations that GM will be this year's target is UAW Vice President Stephen Yokich, who is heading the union's efforts at the No. 1 carmaker. Yokich, who led the UAW's talks with Ford in 1987, is the union's most experienced top bargainer and heir apparent to Bieber. In 1987, the UAW and Ford agreed to extended talks nearly two days past the strike deadline to reach a settlement.

CHICAGO (AUG. 20) UPI - The grain market recovered from its opening weakness and was mostly higher at midmorning Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

A wave of selling pressured prices to session lows, but the market recovered on a pick-up in buying interest. Some of the demand was said to be short-covering.

Follow-through buying was evident in corn and soybeans in a continuation of Friday's late rally.

The lack of rain in southern sections of the Soybean Belt contributed to the gains in soybeans, while corn prices turned higher on the possibility of damage to the crop from substantial rain during the weekend.

November soybeans rallied to $6.32 1/2 per bushel, then gave up some of the gains to profit-taking.

Wheat futures were narrowly mixed in choppy trading. The lack of export business continued to pressure the wheat.

Country movement was light and basis levels were mixed.

The midmorning prices:

Corn Sep 2.53 up 2 1/4; Dec 2.46 3/4 up 1 1/4; Mar 2.55 1/4 up 1 1/4.

Soybeans Aug 6.16 1/2 up 1 1/2; Sep 6.18 up 1; Nov 6.30 1/2 up 1 3/4; Jan 6.43 up 1 3/4.

The president also told a Veterans of Foreign Wars convention in Baltimore today that leaders who use citizens as pawns will receive- what he termed- ''the scorn and condemnation of the entire world.''

An unconfirmed French television report today says Iraq is holding a group of Americans near an electrical plant outside of Baghdad. The report says an UNdetrmined number of U-S citizens are being held in mobile homes outside the Iraqi capital to form a human shield around the plant. Political analysts in Paris say Iraq may have fed the information as part of propaganda to prevent U-S attacks on the plant.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 20) UPI - The Army provided a set of APO numbers Monday to make it easier for relatives and friends of soldiers sent to Saudi Arabia to get mail to those posted to the desert kingdom.

The special Army Postal Office numbers for use during Operation Desert Shield will speed delivery of personal mail by reducing the sorting needed to get items delivered, the service said.

Despite the new numbers, items addressed to soldiers' home stations will be sent on to Saudi Arabia but could be delayed. Generally, it will take about 10 days for a letter to reach Saudi Arabia from the United States, the Army said.

There are some temporary restrictions on mail to aid delivery. The major limit is that personal mail is limited to first class, but can be up to 12 ounces and include audio cassettes. Local Postal Service offices can provide details on other restrictions.

The numbers, units and military postal abbreviations:

SEATTLE (AUG. 20) UPI - The Boeing Co. unveiled its production plant for the B-2 Stealth bomber in Seattle in a blatant bid to save the controversial aircraft.

"We need to spread the other side of the story," Boeing's B-2 program manager, Dale Shellorn, told reporters Sunday after members of the news media and hundreds of Boeing employees trooped through the two massive B-2 production buildings at Boeing's south Seattle compound.

Shellhorn said Boeing employs about 10,000 workers on the Stealth. Several thousand of them in the Puget Sound area will lose their jobs within two years if a House proposal succeeds in limiting the number of the bat-wing aircraft to 15, he said. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney has already cut the government's order to 75 planes from the original 132.

But Shellhorn said Boeing would likely shift some of those laid off in further B-2 cutbacks to its newest commercial project, the still-to-be-launched 777 twinjet.

The program began ten years ago. "For eight of those ten years," said Boeing spokesman John Kvasnosky, "people who worked here couldn't even say what they were doing."

Boeing's military airplane division makes more than half the parts of the B-2, including the wings, the rear part of the fuselage, the landing gear, the bomb bay and the fuel tanks. Finished parts are flown from Seattle to Palmdale, Calif., where they are assembled by the program's prime contractor, Northrop Corp.

During Sunday's tour, only part of the B-2 production operation was shown and Boeing kept finished components of the aircraft shrouded under tarpaulins distorted to hide their shape.

Boeing officials also declined to discuss the plane's paint finish, designed to absorb rather than reflect radar beams. The completed stealth made its first public appearance this year at Northrop's Palmdale plant.

Shellhorn said the B-2's 172-foot wingspan is the most difficult part of the plane to construct. The wings are built up from layers of six-foot-wide carbon-based graphite tape laid on a frame. The tape, chilled to keep it malleable, is eventually cooked under pressure at 350 to 450 degree Fahrenheit in two 90-foot-long ovens at the plant.

The graphite composite is lighter and stronger than conventional aircraft construction materials such as aluminum and titanium, Shellhorn said. The composite is also more difficult to spot on radar. Shellhorn said Boeing is studying how to adapt some of the stealth technology to the 777.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (AUG. 20) UPI - President Corazon Aquino ruled out Monday the declaration of a state of emergency to deal with rebel soldiers saying the right-wing renegades do not have the capability to oust her.

Aquino said she would not seek emergency power after a weekend in which four bombs rocked metropolitan Manila. The bomb attacks apparently were launched to embarrass military officials who on Friday placed the 159,000-member Armed Forces of the Philippines on red alert - the maximum state of military preparedness.

Right-wing rebels were suspected of spraying a police substation with gunfire early Monday in the suburban town of Mandaluyong, wounding a 12-year-old boy, police said.

''As of now there is no necessity'' of declaring a state of emergency, Aquino said during a regular news conference. She was asked if she planned to seek special emergency powers to deal with threats from Honason and right-wing rebels.

''The military rebels do not have any capability of mounting a coup (attempt). ... What we are up against are terrorists,'' Aquino said.

Aquino also said she was proceeding with her plan to attend the coronation in November of Japanese Emperor Akihito.

The bomb explosions over the weekend caused minor damage to a food company a police station near the presidential palace, a shopping mall and the Justice Department building. A security guard at the RFM food company was injured.

Officials said they were taking seriously threats by Honosan to resume hostilities against Aquino. The renegade colonel led an uprising last Dec. 1 to 9 in which 119 people were killed and more than 500 were wounded.

The 41-year-old Honasan said ''tactical operations'' would be undertaken after Aquino ignored his proposals for a cease fire in the face of the devastation caused by the July 16 earthquake and the crippling economic impact of the Persian Gulf conflict.

''Were trying our best to stop them,'' said Maj. Gen. Rodolfo Biazon, chief of the military capital command. But he said it was difficult to stop one or two ''terrorists'' from throwing bombs at no specific targets.

Aquino's government has crushed six insurrections since she took power in a civilian-backed military revolt in 1986.

NEW YORK (AUG. 20) UPI - Rep. Floyd Flake, D-N.Y., and his wife, Margarett, pleaded innocent Monday to federal embezzlement charges and were released without bail pending an Oct. 2 court hearing.

About 250 supporters of the Queens congressman gathered at U.S. District Court in downtown Brooklyn as Flake was arraigned on the indictment, which was handed up Aug. 2.

The indictment charges that Flake and his wife skimmed money for their own use from the church-sponsored senior citizens housing project in Queens.

''We'll find out at the trial that we're not guilty,'' Flake said. ''I am not guilty. I am not an embezzler. My record speaks for itself.''

Asked by reporters if he thought black politicians were being harrassed, Flake, a popular black congressman, responded, ''I don't want to get into all that. I don't want the press to paint me into the corner of ethnicity.''

The indictment accuses the couple of conspiracy to defraud the Internal Revenue Service, embezzling funds, tax evasion and filing false tax returns and false certified financial statments for a non-profit corporation.

Assistant U.S. Attorney William Muller told Judge Eugene Nickerson during the arraignment that ''there is quite a bit of documentary evidence'' supporting the charges against Flake.

The charges, stemming from a two-year investigation into the alleged misapproriation of a $10 million federal House and Urban Development loan award in 1982 to the church for the housing project, were apparently unrelated to Flake's work as a congressman.

Flake was indicted on 17 separate counts, nine of which also charge his wife.

If convicted, each could face up to 10 years in prison and a $250,000 fine on the two most serious charges, defrauding HUD.

The 45-year-old Flake, an ordained minister who heads the Allen African Mehtodist Church in Jamaica, Queens, was first elected to represent the 6th District in southeast Queens in 1986.

PITTSBURGH (AUG. 20) UPI - The steel beverage can recycling rate shot up more than 39 pecent for the first half of 1990 to total more than 700 million cans, the Steel Can Recycling Institute of Pittsburgh reported Monday. The institution said the recycling rate for the first six months of the year was 30.1 percent, up 39.3 percent over the 1989 beverage can recycling rate.

"While it is unusual to announce a recycling rate for the first half of a year, we're proud of this tremendous progress," said Kurt Smalberg, president of the institute. "As more and more beverage producers convert to steel, we're moving rapidly to develop the necessary beverage can recycling infrastructure in the new market areas."

Steel beverage cans are constructed with a steel body and an aluminum lid and often are referred to as bimetal cans. The entire can is directly recyclable by steel mills. The aluminum end on the can enhances the steelmaking process by providing additional energy to the process, institute officials said. Steel beverage cans also may be shredded and detinned prior to being recycled at the mills.

Steel beverage cans are considered easily recyclable because they can be sorted by using magnets. The cans also are recycled through Coinbak reverse vending machines that have been placed in Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania and North and South Carolina, officials said.

The Steel Can Recycling Institute is the primary information and technical resource for legislators, municipalities, recyclers, businesses and other entities interested in steel can recycling.

ABU DHABI, UNITED ARAB EMIRATES (AUG. 20) UPI - The United Arab Emirates has agreed to host U.S. military cargo planes and hundreds of Air Force personnel as part of the effort to defend the region against a potential Iraqi attack, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney announced Monday.

Cheney met with crew members of Air Force C-130 cargo planes, which were already visible at the Bateen Air Base.

The defense chief made the announcement after meeting with the ruler of Abu Dhabi, Sheik Zayed Bin Sultan al-Nahyan, and a day after the gulf nation announced it had agreed to allow forces ''from some Arab and friendly countries to participate in Arab and international efforts aimed at the defense of the area.''

The United States has moved into the UAE 16 C-130 cargo planes and a squadron from the 314th Tactical Airlift Wing from Little Rock Air Force Base, Ark., which includes more than 500 Air Force personnel, said Col. Dave Mason, commander of the 314th.

Mason said the task in the UAE was to pick up food, ammunition and weapons from other parts of the region and fly them to U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia the focal point of Operation Desert Shield - the U.S. military mission aimed at deterring Iraqi aggression.

The UAE has built more than 50 air-conditioned trailers at the Bateen Air Base to house its American military guests, said Mason, who added his squadron would remain at the base for an indefinite period.

The United Arab Emirates sits at the southen end of the Persian Gulf and borders Saudi Arabia to the east.

Cheney said Sunday that U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf region are now strong enough to make Baghdad ''pay a price'' if Iraqi President Saddam Hussein is ''foolish enough'' to invade Saudi Arabia.

Cheney, on a four-day trip to assess Washington's response to the Gulf crisis, added a stop in Doho, Qatar, Pentagon aides said Monday, putting his journey even further behind the initial schedule.

Cheney said the United States had no immediate plans of significantly upgrading its current troop deployment schedule.

''The total size of the final deployment will depend on future developments,'' Cheney said. ''We have got sufficient forces in the country that, should Saddam Hussein be foolish enough to launch an attack on Saudi Arabia, we would do an effective job of making him pay a price.''

Cheney said on his flight from the United States that he could not predict how long U.S. troops might remain in Saudi Arabia, but added the commitment was ''longterm'' and he could not speculate on the size of the force ''one or two years from now.''

U.S. sources said the Pentagon intends to deploy three brigades of Marines - about 45,000 troops - with full armor and artillery as a deterrent against more than 170,000 Iraqi troops based in Kuwait and in position to threaten Saudi Arabia.

At least one brigade has arrived and is stationed near the border about 170 miles north of Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, with troops of the Army's 82nd and 101st airborne divisions.

The sources said the other two brigades were en route by land and sea to bolster the 95,000-strong Saudi military, which is also being supported by ground forces from Britain, Egypt, Morocco, Syria and soon Pakistan and Bangladesh.

In addition, the Air Force Sunday deployed a second squadron of 22 F-117A stealth fighters to the Middle East. The planes flew from Nevada to Langley Air Forcae Base, Va., Sunday and were due to leave Monday afternoon for Saudi Arabia. The first squadron, also 22 planes, was sent earlier to Incirlik Air Base in southern Turkey, which borders Iraq to the north.

Asked whether Saudis or Americans control the military force, he said an agreement had been reached with Riyadh under which American constitutional requirements that the president remain supreme commander were satisfied, and Saudi concerns about sovereignty were also respected.

Cheney met troops Sunday in 104-degree heat. He was taken to see an Apache attack helicopter and a Patriot ground-to-air missile site. The missiles are designed to hit planes and incoming missiles and are thought to be the best defense against a possible Iraqi attack with Soviet-supplied Scud missiles, potentially tipped with chemical warheads.

During the tour, he met with U.S. paratroopers from the 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, N.C., F-15 pilots from Langley and members of an air-defense Patriot missile battery from Fort Bliss, Texas.

While Cheney viewed the base, F-15 fighters took off, ripping across the sky to join a 24-hour patrol along the Saudi-Kuwaiti border.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 20) UPI - President Bush signed legislation Monday that makes permanent the 7-year-old Caribbean Basin Initiative and brings U.S. customs fees into compliance with world trade rules.

In a written statement, Bush said the Customs and Trade Act of 1990 should help promote expanded trade with hemispheric neighbors and the countries of Eastern Europe.

In particular, he applauded its extension of the range of products eligible for preferential duty treatment under the Caribbean Basin Initiative and its amendment of procedures affecting pending trade agreements with the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia.

Bush also said a newly enacted structure for U.S. customs user fees, following a finding in 1988 that the old system violated the multilateral General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, underscored the U.S. commitment to GATT rules ''at a critical point'' in negotiations on new world trade regulations.

The law also makes permanent a ban on the export of unprocessed logs taken from federal lands in some Western states, which Bush welcomed as a move to preserve the ''critical habitat'' of the endangered northern spotted owl.

VIENNA (AUG. 20) UPI - OPEC Monday rejected Saudi Arabia's request for a special meeting to raise the oil cartel's output to compensate for oil lost in the embargo of exports from Iraq and Kuwait.

In a statement, OPEC President Sadek Boussena said a special meeting of the 13-member cartel would not be held since the Saudi proposal had "not been able to secure the necessary support." He said approval by a simple majority of seven members was required before such a meeting could be held.

But because of the situation in world oil markets, where prices have rocketed about $8 a barrel, or 40 percent, since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, Boussena said he had taken the "initiative to meet some OPEC oil ministers for consultations before the end of the month."

Saudi Oil Minister Hisham Nazer told a news conference Saturday said his country would raise its daily output by two million barrels even if the other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries refused to up production. Saudi Arabia is currently limited to 5.4 million barrels a day under its OPEC quota.

"We do not necessarily say (to the members) that we want to take unilateral action, but if they refuse they leave us no alternative," Nazer said.

The United Arab Emirates and Venezuela are other OPEC members with excess capacity. Each had been expected to raise output by about 500,000 barrels a day to help offset the world shortfall created by the embargo. Iraq and Kuwait had been exporting a total of about four million barrels of crude daily prior to the invasion.

Venezuela has said, however, that it would not raise output without approval by the cartel. Whether a consultative meeting of only some members would be sufficient approval for Venezuela remains to be seen.

In addition to Iraq, it is believed Indonesia, Nigeria, Libya, Iran and Algeria are OPEC members opposed to the special meeting of the cartel. Occupied Kuwait's status in the cartel appears uncertain at this time.

Brazil and some Pacific Rim countries as well as the Kuwaiti-owned refineries in Europe are being particularly hard hit by the embargo of Iraqi and Kuwaiti crude.

Saudi Arabia last week informed large U.S. and Japanese oil companies that it was reallocating its exports to meet the needs of those hit hardest by the embargo.

But the order was quickly rescinded after strong protests by the customers hurt by the reallocation. The Saudis then announced Saturday they would raise output unilaterally if OPEC approval could not be obtained. "We will not let the countries of the third world go down the drain," Nazer said.

An alternative for making up for the oil lost from the embargo would be to take oil from the emergency reserves built up by the industrialized nations since the oil crises of the 1970s.

But 11 days ago in a meeting in Paris, representatives of 21 industrialized nations of the International Energy Agency decided that the situation created by the Iraqi invasion was not severe enough to warrant dipping into the reserves. "We're not in a crisis situation," said John Easton, assistant secretary of the U.S. Energy Department, following the IEA meeting.

In a Tehran dispatch Monday, the OPEC cartel's Opecna news agency reported Iranian Oil Minister Gholamreza Aghazadeh as saying consumer countries were in a position to meet their oil requirements for at least 90 days by drawing down their strategic reserves. In addition, he said these countries had an estimated surplus of 180 million barrels of oil in private floating stock.

In a dispatch from Riyadh, Opecna also quoted "an official source" at the Saudi oil ministry as denying Nazer had said the kingdom would produce two million barrels more of oil with or without OPEC approval.

(AUG. 20) UPI - President Bush says Americans in Iraq and occupied Kuwait are ''hostages'' and he warns that Baghdad is responsible for their safety. Speaking in Baltimore to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Bush warned Iraq's Saddam Hussein- quote- ''leaders who use citizens as pawns deserve and will receive the scorn and condemnation of the entire world.'' Bush says Saddam's offer to trade Americans for concessions means that- ''they are in fact hostages.''

Saudi Arabia has failed in its attempt to get fellow OPEC nations to discuss raising the oil cartel's output. OPEC today rejected a Saudi request to hold a special meeting because of a lack of support among its 13 members. Saudi Arabia wanted to boost the cartel's output to compensate for oil lost by the embargo of exports from Iraq and Kuwait.

French television says an UNdetermined number of Americans trapped in Iraq are being held in mobile homes near an electical plant in Baghdad. There was NO immediate confirmation of the report. It also cites an UNnamed official at Iraq's Information Ministry as saying U-S pilots shot down will- quote- ''be immediately eaten'' by Iraqis, facing death by cannibalism.

Three former Northwest Airlines pilots were found guilty today of flying a jetliner while under the influence of alcohol. A U-S District Court jury in Minneapolis returned the verdict today after deliberating nearly 10 hours during a period of three days. Sentencing has been postponed until after completion of a pre-sentence investigation. The pilots drank heavily the night before their flight from Fargo, North Dakota, to Minneapolis.

NEW BEDFORD, MA (AUG. 20) UPI - A former lawyer pleaded innocent to murder charges Monday in the death of one of nine women believed to be victims of a serial killer.

Kenneth Ponte, 40, of New Bedford was ordered held on $500,000 surety, or $50,000 cash bail, on an indictment charging him with the 1988 assault and beating death of 28-year-old Rochelle C. Dopierla of Falmouth.

The indictment, returned Friday and unsealed Monday, charged Ponte with one count of first-degree murder.

Ponte, who has long acknowledged he is the prime suspect in the slayings but denied any involvement, entered a plea of ''Absolutely not guilty, your honor,'' at his arraignment in Bristol County Superior Court.

Dopierla was one of nine women killed. Their bodies were found along highways in southeastern Massachusetts between July 1988 and April 1989.

Most of the victims were linked to New Bedford's Weld Square, an area known for drugs and prostitution. Authorities fear two other women reported missing also have been killed.

The slayings have haunted the working class city, one a renowned whaling port, for two years, and triggered the most complex murder investigation since the Boston Strangler case of the 1960s.

Dopierla's body was found off Interstate 195. According to court documents filed by the office Bristol County District Attorney Ronald Pina, Ponte may have been the last person to see Dopierla alive before she disappeared in April 1988.

The indictment ended months of speculation that the former New Bedford lawyer, who knew several of the victims, would be charged in the serial killings.

Ponte has repeatedly insisted he was not involved in the killings, but told a Rhode Island radio station Friday night he was ready to face any charges.

''If, in fact, it has been me that has been indicted, I'm prepared to face this in court, and I am positive that justice will triumph in the end,'' he said.

The special grand jury empaneled to probe the slayings has met at irregular intervals since March 1989 and met for five consecutive days last week - fueling speculation that an indictment was imminent. When the grand jury finally returned a document late Friday afternoon, it was immediately sealed at Pina's request.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 20) UPI - President Bush believes the U.S. oil supply is ''reasonably stable,'' but urges Americans to use self-restraint in energy consumption, a White House spokesman said Monday.

Press secretary Marlin Fitzwater also told reporters that Bush ''is pleased'' that Saudi Arabia has decided to increase its daily oil production by 2 million barrels to help compensate for any shortfall created by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

Fitzwater made the remarks in a brief reprise following Bush's meeting with his advisers, including Deputy Energy Secretary Henson Moore, on forthcoming budget negotiations and energy supplies before the president headed for Baltimore to address the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention.

''Overall, we believe we've reached a resonably stable situation with regard to oil supplies,'' he said. ''We do urge people to use self-restraint, however, in their energy use.''

With an Oct. 1 deadline looming, Bush reviewed with key advisers administration efforts to reduce the deficit. Crucial budget summit talks with congressional leaders resume Sept. 6 and 7 in the seclusion of suburban Andrews Air Force Base.

After the Oval Office meeting, Fitzwater said ''the president feels the negotiations are on track. We're getting ready to work with Congress. We will have a significant package to put on the table when they negotiations resume.''

The budget deficit is now estimated to be $169 billion. The Gramm-Rudman reduction target is $64 billion in fiscal 1991 which begins Oct. 1.

Bush then flew to Baltimore to address the Veterans of Foreign Wars where he flailed ''budget slashers who are out of tune'' with defense needs in view of the crisis in the Persian Gulf and the need to deter Iraq from further aggression.

''Everyone realizes that the deficit is too large, that it's got to be brought down and that Congress has to act courageously and immediately when it returns from recess,'' he told the veterans.

''But we cannot attack the deficit by attacking the very heart of our armed forces,'' he added. ''I've asked Congress to do what we have done - produce a budget proposal, including defense that is both responsive and responsible and most of all, fair. And when they do, I will listen but not break faith with the troops who are defending our nation.''

''To keep America militarily strong, I will oppose the defense budget slashers who are out of tune with what America needs to keep freedom secure and safe,'' he declared.

He said that in the last 18 days Operation Desert Shield has been a classic case of America's military at its best, referring to the decision to send as many as 100,000 troops to Saudi Arabia to defend U.S. interests safeguard the Persian Gulf oil supplies and protect Americans.

''Desert Shield has shown is that America can ensure the peace by remaining militarily strong,'' he said.

''Most Americans know that when it comes to national defense, finishing second means finishing last,'' he said. ''So they oppose what the House Armed Services Committee suggested: unacceptable cuts from our defense budget for fiscal year 1991.

He cited such missiles as the Peacemaker and the Midgetman as well as the B-2 stealth bomber and the ''Star Wars'' space defense initiative as needed for the nation's security.

#90232u1326 08/20/1990 ~United Press International
WASHINGTON (AUG. 20) UPI - If White House and congressional budget negotiators fail to agree on a deficit reduction plan by Oct. 1, automatic cuts of $105.7 billion in defense and other programs would be triggered, the administration said Monday.

In its initial report on the potential spending cuts, called sequestration the administration's Office of Management and Budget said that under current law the cuts would total $85.4 billion.

But assuming some likely legislative action before Oct. 1, such as reauthorization of the Food Stamp program and more money to bail out failed savings and loans, ''the final sequester report would rise to $105.7 billion if no deficit reducing legislation were enated,'' the OMB said.

If automatic cuts occur, the agency said, $52.8 billion would be cut from non-exempt defense programs. That is 43.6 percent of the $121.1 billion in defense spending that is not exempt from the cuts. Another $185.4 billion in Pentagon spending would be exempt from the cuts.

President Bush announced earlier this month he would exempt all military personnel accounts from the cuts. Doing so prevents cutbacks in uniformed personnel at a time of the Persian Gulf crisis, the heaviest U.S. military deployment since Vietnam. But the move hits harder on civilian Pentagon personnel and on weapons systems.

A similar $52.8 billion also would be trimmed from non-exempt domestic spending programs. That represents 40.7 percent of the $125.1 billion that would not be exempt from the cuts on Oct. 1.

While Social Security benefits are exempt from the cuts, Medicare benefits are not. But, under the law, cuts in Medicare cannot be reduced by more than 2 percent.

The OMB said 72 percent of the government's spending would be exempt from the cuts, including programs that help poor Americans. That means the remaining 28 percent of all federal programs would feel the full brunt of sequestration.

The new numbers are little changed from the administration's mid-year economic review in July, which put the estimated deficit for fiscal year 1991, which begins Oct. 1, at $168.8 billion.

Since the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law requires that the fiscal 1991 deficit be reduced to $64 billion, the projected deficit for next year was $104.8 billion over the deficit reduction target. So the OMB's latest projection of $105.7 billion is only slightly higher than the level of possible spending cuts released in July.

Congressional and administration officials both have said that they want to avoid the steep automatic cuts, designed as the discipline to ensure that the deficit reduction targets in the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law are observed.

They have warned that if the cuts are triggered, thousands of federal workers would have to be furloughed and that essential government services such as air traffic controllers, would be seriously cut back. Air traffic control cutbacks, they said, could produce long airport delays for takeoff or landing clearance or could lead to cancellation of hundreds of flights.

White House and congressional budget negotiators have been meeting since May 15 to try to work out a deficit reduction package of about $50 billion in fiscal 1991 and about $500 billion over the next five fiscal years.

As Congress left on its month-long summer recess in early August, the talks were stalled. Negotiators are scheduled to meet again on about Sept. 6 and have given themselves an unofficial deadline of Sept. 10 to reach agreement.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Monday that ''the president feels the negotiations are track. We're getting ready to work with Congress. We will have a significant (deficit reduction) package to put on the table when they negotiations resume.''

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA (AUG. 20) UPI - Nicaragua's army - the largest in Central America - will be cut to 35,000 troops by 1992, a military spokeswoman said Monday.

Spokeswoman Lt. Col. Rosa Pasos said the Sandinista Popular Army has already been reduced to 40,000 troops from 96,600 since Sandinista rule ended April 25.

President Violeta Chamorro, of the National Opposition Union coalition, is constitutional head of the army. But the military is still controlled by the Sandinistas, who had governed Nicaragua since 1979.

In addition to the troop cuts, Pasos said the Nicaraguan army will be completely restructured by 1992.

A military analyst, who asked not to be identified, said even 35,000 troops would make a big army for Nicaragua.

''Even 35,000 soldiers are too much for Nicaragua, which is not engaged in war and has a population of only 3.5 million,'' the military analyst said. ''Ten thousand soldiers plus police are enough.''

Since Chamorro was elected in February elections, the United States has withdrawn economic sanctions and approved a $300 million aid package, $47 million of it for the disbanding of anti-Sandinista Contra rebels.

TORONTO (AUG. 20) UPI - Talks aimed at ending a three-week-old strike by more than 15,000 Canadian steelworkers at Stelco Inc. and Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd. were restarted Monday, officials said.

The workers, members of the United SteelWorkers of America, went on strike Aug. 1 after their contracts expired and talks aimed at averting a strike broke down.

Paul Gardner, assistant director of the Office of Mediation, an agency of Ontario's Labor Ministry, said ''full-blown mediation'' between the steel workers and Algoma and a provincial mediator got underway Monday.

Gardner also said ''direct negotiations'' between one steelworkers' local and Stelco have begun.

Gardner, however, refused to comment on the mood of the talks saying only that the role of the Office of Mediation was to ''facilitate discussions'' between the various parties.

Leo Gerard, Ontario director of the USWA, was participating in the Stelco negotiations and could not be reached for comment.

The union is seeking a ''significant'' wage hike, pension improvements and job security guarantees against contracting out in new contracts for its 10,000 Stelco and 5,400 Algoma members.

Talks on a new contract between the USWA and Toronto-based Stelco and Algoma of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario began in May.

Last Wednesday, Gerard announced strike pay totalling about $1.05 million - $635,945 to Stelco workers and $412,764 to Algoma workers - would be paid every week until settlements are reached with the companies.

''The Steelworkers' healthy strike fund is a measure of the solidarity and support that is possible from the entire union to each and every struggle we face,'' Gerard said.

LANGLEY AIR FORCE BASE, VA (AUG. 20) UPI - A squadron of the radar-elusive F-117A stealth fighters made a cross-country dash as part of a well-publicized deployment to Saudi Arabia.

The squadron of 22 planes was to leave Monday afternoon on the 12- to 15-hour flight to Saudi Arabia. Defense sources said a reported second squadron of stealth fighters in Turkey was in fact a squadron of the F-111 fighter-bombers.

In sharp contrast to previous stealth secrecy, reporters were invited to accompany the refueling tankers that helped the planes across the country Sunday. Still more reporters were on hand at Langley near Norfolk to watch the jets land and to interview a former stealth pilot.

It was clear the publicity was aimed at impressing an audience of one - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

''The role of the aircraft is to act as a deterrent (to aggression) against Saudi Arabia,'' said Sgt. Bobby Shelton, a spokesman for the 37th Tactical Fighter Wing in Navada, where the squadron is based. ''Should that deterrent fail, the aircraft will be used in any way the United States sees fit to deploy them.''

Although billed as a fighter, the F-117's prime mission is to slip through enemy radar to bomb a variety of targets.

Col. Tony Tolin, a former F-117 wing commander and stealth pilot who was on hand at Langley, said: ''The mission of the airplane ... would be tough to say,'' adding that it could not be considered purely a defensive weapon.

The squadron of F-117A fighters left their base at the Tonopah Test Range Airfield in Nevada, about 140 miles northwest of Las Vegas, for the cross-country trip to Langley Air Force Base, Va., about 11 a.m. EDT. They began arriving at Langley about 4 1/2 hours later.

The Air Force sent a dozen KC-135 Stratotankers, the Air Force's flying gas stations, from Beale Air Force Base in Northern California to refuel the stealth fighters in mid-flight as they winged across the continent.

It is the second time the sleek, arrowhead-shaped stealth fighters have been sent into a combat zone. Two of the aircraft were used when the United States invaded Panama last December.

In a midnight assault on Panama City, the two jets dropped two 2,000-pound bombs near a Panamanian Defense Forces barracks to stun and disorient the Panamanian forces before Army rangers parachuted into the area.

The plane's unusual angular shape and its coating of exotic composite materials are designed to make it difficult for enemy radar systems to detect it. The single-seat fighter is capable of carrying a variety of weapons, including laser-guided bombs and air-to-ground missiles. Officials would not say if the aircraft is capable of carrying nuclear weapons.

Although military analysts describe the largely Soviet-supplied Iraqi air defense system as third-rate because it has seen little use in the past decade, Tolin said he would not ''sign off the Iraqi defenses as being a second-rate or third-rate defense.''

The Air Force bought 59 of the twin-engine aircraft, and three have crashed since it first started flying in 1981. The last is now rolling down the Lockheed assembly line. They cost $42.6 million each, but when research and development costs are thrown in, the price tag rises to $106 million a copy.

The elder cousin of the B-2 stealth bomber has been such a closely guarded military secret that the Air Force did not even acknowledge its existence until 1988.

The landing at Langley nearly turned into an embarrassment for the Air Force. The fighters use parachutes to help them slow down on landing, but the chute on the last of the planes to land didn't open properly. The jet was stopped by a tail hook that snagged a cable at the end of the runway. The cable was attached to lengths of battleship anchor chain.

The air tankers that took off from Beale also will be flown to southwestern Asia to support the ''Desert Shield'' operation, officials said. The tankers can fly at near sonic speed and at altitudes of up to 50,000 feet, refueling several U.S. and NATO aircraft without slowing down or descending, where jet engines burn fuel more rapidly. The tankers carry 150,000 pounds of fuel; there are 6 1/2 pounds of fuel per gallon.

Col. Thomas Keck, commander for the 9th Strategic Reconnaissance Wing at Beale, said morale is very high among airmen at the base.

''We've built a tanker bridge to get our fighter aircraft over there (to Saudi Arabia),'' Keck said. ''We have never seen higher morale. It's great to see the world on your side.''

NEW YORK (AUG. 20) UPI - The American Stock Exchange reported Monday a membership seat sold on the exchange for $107,500, down $10,000 from the last sale Aug. 3 and its lowest in more than 10 years.

The Amex, which can trace its beginnings to just after the Revolutionary War, said the current bid for a seat on the exchange is $105,000, while the offering price is $115,000.

A spokesman for the Amex said the last time a membership changed hands at its current level was on Jan. 8, 1980 when a seat sold for only $95,000.

Meanwhile, over on the New York Stock Exchange, the NYSE reported a membership seat changed hands at $310,000, down $10,000 from the last sale on Aug. 15.

A spokeswoman for the NYSE said the current bid for a seat is $301,000, while the offering price is $330,000.

(AUG. 20) UPI - President Bush says he will hold Iraq responsible for the safety of Americans it is holding. Bush demanded they be released now. Bush finally used the word ''hostages'' in referring to the Americans who had been called ''detainees'' or ''restrictees.'' He said they are being held against their will.

Diplomatic sources say the five permanent members of the U-N Security Council are considering a resolution to let a multi-national group enforce the sanctions against Iraq. The United States is now acting alone. The sources say China has reservations about using military force to stop, and possibly attack, Iraqi shipping.

OPEC says Saudi Arabia's request for a special meeting to raise oil output has been turned down. OPEC's president said NOT enough nations support the meeting. Saudi Arabia wants more oil pumped to make up for the shortfall caused by the embargo against Iraqi and Kuwaiti petroleum.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says President Bush believes the nation's oil supply is ''reasonably stable.'' But Fitzwater couples the report by saying that Bush also believes Americans should use self-restraint in energy consumption as a result of the current situation in the Middle East.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (AUG. 20) UPI - The United States said it would not allow the Philippines to break the economic embargo and send a shipment of food and medicine to Filipinos trapped in occupied Kuwait, officials said Monday.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Manuel Yan said the Philippines wanted to send the shipment through the Red Sea port of Aqaba in Jordan, but that U.S. charge d'affaires Thomas Hubbard nixed the idea, saying ''there is enough foodstuff in Kuwait.''

U.S. Embassy spokesman Stanley Schrager said the United States was doing its best to assist Filipinos in procuring food in Iraq and Kuwait. There are about 60,000 Filipinos in Kuwait and 5,000 in Iraq.

The Philippines earlier lodged a protest with Iraq over reports women from the Philippines had been raped by Iraqi soldiers in the occupied emirate.

Foreign Minister David Levy Monday defended his call for the immediate distribution of gas masks to the public despite reassurances by the military that there was no need for such action.

Political analysts said Levy's statement revealed disagreement within the government over whether to pass out the masks. With the deepening of the gulf crisis, Israelis have become increasingly worried about the possibility of an Iraqi chemicals weapons attack.

Levy told Israel radio that government had stockpiled masks for situations like the current one. The foreign minister said the public's uncertainity was increased by the fear of not knowing how to use gas masks.

Security sources, cited by Army Radio, said the defense establishment stood by its assessment that there was no need for passing out the gas masks at present and expressed anger that Levy had initiated a public debate on the issue.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl and senior Cabinet ministers reportedly agreed Monday that the constitution does not allow the deployment of West German forces in the gulf.

Observers in Bonn said Kohl may seek constitutional amendments so West Germany could join other Western nations moving to enforce an economic embargo against Iraq imposed by the United Nations after the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Experts said the current constitutions say West Germany can only employ troops within the area supervised by NATO, which excludes the gulf.

Five West German minesweepers and two transport ships are on their way to the eastern Mediterranean, which is within the alliance's domain.

Military experts said West Germany may also loan the vessels to U.S. forces.

Greece said it had decided in principle to send ships to the gulf to help enforce an economic embargo against Iraq, but would wait for orders from the United Nations and the European Council.

The two international organizations were meeting Monday to decide whether to order the enforcement of the sanctions, imposed by the United Nations a week after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of tiny, oil-rich Kuwait.

Prime Minister Constantine Mitsotakis said Greece was prepared to send its frigate ''Limnos'' to the gulf.

Socialist opposition leader Andreas Papandreou argued against the establishment of a military blockade, saying it would be illegal.

Two more Italian warships, a frigate and a supply ship, left the southern port of Taranto Monday to join three others already in the eastern Mediterranean, officials said.

The five Italian vessels will initially replace ships from the U.S. Sixth Fleet which normally patrol the Mediterranean and have already moved to the Gulf.

Officials said the crews had been trained to defend themselves against chemical and bacteriological attack and would be given advice by a team of consultant psychologists.

Sources said Bangladesh will fly about 1,200 troops to Saudi Arabia in the next few days to join the multinational force defending the kingdom from possible aggression by Iraqi troops in occupied Kuwait.

Meanwhile, scores of youths gathered in front of the Iraqi Embassy in Dhaka to ask for permission to volunteer in the Iraqi army. A smaller group demonstrated outside of the U.S. Embassy to protest U.S. intervention in the gulf crisis.

Officials said Bangladesh will also dispatch several planes to Saudi Arabia to pick up an estimated 6,400 Bangladesh nationals who fled across the border from Kuwait. Another 450 nationals moved by the Iraqis from Kuwait to Baghdad will be allowed to leave the country, officials said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 20) UPI - Richard L. Strout, former Washington bureau chief for The Christian Science Monitor and a Pulitzer Prize winnner, died at the age of 92, the newspaper's office announced Monday.

Strout, who had suffered a stroke, was considered by many to be a legend in American journalism whose reporting career spanned more than 60 years. He died Sunday night.

Born in Cohoes, N.Y, Strout began his journalism career after graduating from Harvard University in 1919 and joined the Monitor in 1921, when he went to work in the newspaper's Boston office.

In 1923, he was assigned to the Washington bureau of the Christian Scientist newspaper and from then on covered 12 presidents during his years in Washington, from Warren G. Harding to Ronald Reagan.

In 1943, he began writing TRB, the anonymous Washington liberal column for New Republic Magazine, a stint he continued for 40 years,

Among many other awards, Strout won the Pulitzer Prize in 1978 for his many years of dedication to journalism.

''The hard question is 'why,''' he said. ''Any reporter can ask who, what, where, why and how. 'Why' is what readers of a thoughtful paper like the Monitor are looking for.''

Strout once said that his advice to fellow journalists was to ''stay committed.''

''I hope they will retain their curiousity, their interest, yes and at their heart, a touch of anger. When the little flame of anger flickers out I think it is time for the reporter to think about going into some more renumerative form of work,'' he said.

Strout is survived by his wife, the former Ernestine Wilke and their two daughters, Elizabeth Zimmermann of Minneapolish, Minn., and Mary Rubeiz of Geneva, Switzerland.

In addition the survivors are three children from his first marriage: Allen Mayne Strout, Weston, Mass.; Phyllis Norris, Santa Cruz, Calif.; and Nancy Dulaney of Washington, D.C.; and 11 grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Strout's first wife, Edith Mayne, died in 1932.

JABAIL, SAUDI ARABIA (AUG. 20) UPI - Saudi Arabia may spend between $8 billion and $11 billion in the next three months to bankroll a response to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait that ranges from increased military costs to helping some 200,000 refugees, an official said Monday.

The senior Saudi official, who asked not to be identified, said one immediate result of Baghdad's action was that Saudi Arabia would have to cope with the postponement of $10 billion in foreign investment in the kingdom.

The comments came during a visit by reporters to the region's largest petrochemical complex in Jabail, about 130 miles south of Iraqi-occupied Kuwait. Industry officials said they had taken precautions to deactivate the facilities should President Saddam Hussein invade - a prospect they deemed unlilely now that U.S. and other troops have started to pour into the area.

In other areas, thousands of U.S. troops were landing aboard requisitioned U.S. aircraft. The soldiers at one air base filed off Boeing 747s provided by United Parcel Services, PanAm, Continental and United airlines.

Making the first cost assessment of the Aug. 2 invasion, the Saudi official said, ''It should cost between 30 and 40 billion riyals ($8 billion to $11 billion) if you calculate what the costs are, including the opportunity losses, the refugees, the munitions, the military response, the gas masks.''

''Most of it will be spent over the next 2 to 3 months, and it should use up much of our liquid reserves,'' the high-ranking official said.

The invasion prompted more than 200,000 people to stream across the Kuwaiti border and the calling of a full military alert by Riyadh.

Families of arriving refugees are given about $800 and food and shelter. Foreign nationals who had worked in Kuwait, many from south Asia and the Philippines, were given air tickets home.

The official would not specify if Saudi Arabia was paying for any of the expenses of the U.S. military commitment, reportedly costing about $28 million a day for deploying some 45,000 troops and about 50 warships in the region.

He said 10 of 12 major investers from the United States, Japan, and Taiwan had postponed for one year industrial joint ventures in Saudi Arabia that were worth $10 billion and had been scheduled to be completed by 1993.

But analysts estimate the kingdom is earning $20 million a day beyond its usual income from an oil price surge caused by the crisis.

The figure could reach $70 million if Riyahd proceeds with plans to pump an extra 2 million barrels a day to meet shortfalls caused by the removal if Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil from the world market as a result of a U.N.-ordered embargo against Baghdad, they say.

Saudi Arabia last year earned more than $30 billion in oil revenues and its current output is about 5.38 million barrels a day.

The kingdom, which has 10 percent of the world's known oil reserves, has warned it will proceed unilaterally if other members of the 13-nation OPEC group do not agree to help in meeting an estimated daily oil shortage of 4 million barrels. OPEC officials said Monday a Saudi request for an emergency meeting was rejected because an insufficent number of member nations had agreed.

''High oil prices mean reduced growth in the industrial democracies, which means reduced demand for petrochemicals,'' the official said.

Jabail is the site of the largest petrochemical plant in the Middle East, and the vast complexes including houses and port facilities have been created in the desert at a cost of about $40 billion. The sprawling factories that produce various substances required to create plastics and other materials sit amid sand dunes beside the pristine gulf waters.

Housing complexes have been built along streets lined with trees kept alive with automatic water sprinklers. Industry officials said they had reduced inventories of dangerous chemicals, cleared dirt roads as emergency evacuation routes and tightened up fire and medical services in response to the Iraqi threat.

''We are basically preparing for the worst and hoping for the best,'' said Prince Abdulah bin Faisal, the general secretary of the royal commission overseeing the complex. ''Saddam now will not have the time or the scope to do much damage.''

Saudi officials could not confirm if U.S. forces were deployed in the vicinity. But several convoys passed carrying American marines and munitions on trucks and armored personnel carriers in the direction of the frontier.

Washington's army apparently is not taking positions right on the border, but is staying near enough to take action should Iraq invade. It apparently is deployed further to the rear to guard vital facilities and to stay close to water and supplies.

''Jabail would have been a good target to fire a few missiles at, but not to invade,'' Prince Abdulah said, explaining that air power would hammer any overstretched thrusts by Iraqi armor. ''All our potential targets for hit and run attacks ... but now the threat is much less.''

DETROIT (AUG. 20) UPI - General Motors Corp. has delayed the redesign of its smallest Chevrolet and Pontiac cars by about one year, with plans now to introduce them as 1995 models, MetalWorking News said Monday.

Meanwhile, industry sources said in conmfirming the delay that the giant automaker is also running behind the redesign schedule on its larger Chevrolet Beretta and Corsica cars for 1992 because of supplier problems. GM's Lansing Automotive Division, which has responsibility for those programs, declined comment on the reports.

But MetalWorking News, which tracks tooling and equipment orders from steel-intensive manufacturers like automakers, said the delay of the Chevrolet Cavalier and Pontiac Sunbird models, known within GM as its "J-body" cars, reflects budget limitations, higher-priority programs and market considerations.

The outcome of the labor negotiations now going on between GM and the United Auto Workers union could also affect the timing of the automaker's new vehicle programs, the publication said. The current three-year contract covering about 330,000 GM workers expires Sept. 14.

The J-car delay is the latest of several postponements of new products by GM - and bad news for companies that supply tooling for the project. However, sources said GM's Lordstown, Ohio, plant is slated to continue building the J-cars after they are redesigned.

"Lordstown will become the sole source of Cavalier and Sunbird cars later this year, when our Janesville plant is converted to all-truck production " company spokeswoman Linda Cook said.

GM has already delayed the next generation of Chevrolet Corvette from 1993 to at least 1995, while the Chevrolet Camaro and Pontiac Firebird coupes have been delayed by about 18 months, to mid-1993. GM also put off the redesign of full-sized Chevrolet/ GMC vans from 1994 to 1996.

The delays enable GM to concentrate on programs that are more vital to its quest to regain U.S. market share while spreading out capital spending over a longer period in a brutally competitive market.

Despite those delays, GM still has several substantial new-car programs in the works during the next several years, including a host to debut in 1991. These include new full-sized models from Buick, Oldsmobile and Chevrolet, as well as the much-anticipated Saturn cars set to bow this fall.

Also new this fall will be a 3.4 liter 24-valve V6 motor powering some of GM's mid-sized, front-drive coupes. It will be the automaker's first multi-valve V6.

COLUMBUS, OH (AUG. 20) UPI - The U.S. attorney's office filed a civil complaint Monday to collect more than $1.6 million in unpaid federal tax assessments against imprisoned country music singer Johnny Paycheck.

The government's complaint alleges unpaid tax assessments, including accrued penalties and interest, for the years 1980, 1981 and 1982.

Paycheck, 52, whose real name is Donald Lytle, was convicted last year in Highland County of aggravated assault and tampering with evidence in connection with a barroom shooting.

Best known for his hit song ''Take This Job and Shove It,'' Paycheck is serving a 7- to 9 1/2-year sentence at the Madison Correctional Institution in London, Ohio.

SIMI VALLEY, CA (AUG. 20) UPI - Volkswagen of America Inc., following the lead of other major automakers, said Monday that it will open a design studio in Southern California in November.

"Our move into Southern California is a recognition of the importance of the California market," said spokesman Pat Fitzgerald. "Southern California is really the cutting edge for new designs, because motorists there are more open to fresh ideas."

The center, which will build full-size and scale models and be staffed by ten designers, is the fifth such facility that Volkswagen has opened. Three others are in West Germany and one in Spain.

The Simi Valley facility is about 45 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles. The Big 3 American automakers, along with Honda, Mazda, Nissan and Toyota, already operate design centers in Southern California, Fitzgerald said.

Hans Hungerland, peresident and chief executive officer of Volkswagen of America, said the studio reflects the company's "long-term commitment to the U.S. market, as well as the worldwide styling influence of California motorists."

Volkswagen, the largest European auto maker and the world's fourth-largest car company, sold 84,362 cars in the United States through July, up from 83,515 at the same point last year. Its Audi division had sold 12,645 in the United States through July, up from 11,970 for the year-ago period.

TAMPA, FL (AUG. 20) UPI - Treasure hunters off the Dry Tortugas have recovered six gold bars with markings that indicate they could be from a royal Spanish cargo fleet lost in a hurricane in 1622, a spokesman said Monday.

Dan Bagley, director of Tampa's Seahawk Deep Ocean Technology, said crews found six 1.5-pound bars during the last two weeks at the company's wreck site about 75 miles west of Key West and under about 1,500 feet of water.

They also recovered a gold and emerald ring and 15 intact Spanish olive jars at the site last week.

''We are delighted to be finding gold this early in the excavation,'' Bagley said. ''Actual excavation of the wreck site has been going on for only about two weeks, and we've uncovered a very small portion of the wreck.''

Three of the bars have ''EN RADA'' stamped into the metal. That Spanish tax stamp also was found on some of the gold bars from the ship Nuestra Senora de Atocha.

The Atocha was part of a royal Spanish fleet that sank in a 1622 hurricane with a load of treasure from the New World. The remains of the Atocha were found off the Dry Tortugas by Key West treasure hunter Mel Fisher in 1985 and proved one of the richest treasure ships ever recovered.

Seahawk has not been able to identify the wreck it is working, Bagley said. But the gold bars and the other artifacts suggest it may be a sister ship to the Atocha.

Seahawk crews also recovered two astrolabes from the site. A precursor to the sextant, astrolabes were used by ancient mariners to measure the angle of the sun or stars to determine the ship's position.

''Only larger Spanish vessels of a treasure fleet would have carried such an important piece of navigational equipment,'' said marine archaeologist R. Duncan Mathewson of Key West.

Other artifacts recovered from the site include silver eight-real coins, musket balls, ceramics and wood. The wreck is the first intact colonial Spanish wreck ever found in deep water.

Seahawk, a publicly traded marine salvage company, is excavating the site using a 200-foot recovery vessel, the Seahawk Retriever, and a $2 million undersea robot called Merlin.

PITTSBURGH (AUG. 20) UPI - An experimental drug helps prevent organ rejection better than standard agents and apparently can even reverse damage caused when the immune system attacks a transplanted organ, researchers reported Monday.

Patients given the drug FK-506 experienced fewer side effects than those who received standard anti-rejection drugs such as cyclosporine, which can cause high blood pressure and kidney failure, the researchers said. The drug also allowed doctors to use fewer steroids.

''We have found FK-506 to be a potent and novel immunosuppressant,'' said Dr. Thomas Starzl, chief of transplantation at the University of Pittsburgh.

''The results of the first studies we reported and those we are reporting here provide further evidence that this drug has superior qualities,'' Starzl said.

FK-506, derived from a soil fungus by Japanese scientists in 1984, suppresses the body's immune system. It was developed by University of Pittsburgh researchers and approved for limited investigative uses by the federal government in February 1989.

Starzl and his colleagues presented the new findings at a crowded symposium at the 13th International Congress of the Transplantation Society in San Francisco. The results were greeted with enthusiasm by other scientists.

''The ability to reduce and possibly withdraw steroids is tremendously exciting,'' said Dr. J.A. Myburgh, chief of surgery at Johannesburg General Hospital in South Africa, who co-chaired the symposium.

Myburgh noted, however, that more research involving patients who are followed longer is needed to fully evaluate the drug.

''What is required is more patients followed for a longer period of time to consolidate the promising early data,'' Myburgh said after the symposium.

In the first tests with pediatric transplant patients, Dr. Andreas Tzakis studied 42 children who underwent transplants of the liver, heart, kidney, multiple organs and insulin-producing pancreatic cells known as islet cells.

High doses of steroids, which are essential with cyclosporine, were unnecessary with FK-506, eliminating problems of stunted growth, facial puffiness and other severe side effects, the researchers found. A similar regimen was found appropriate with adult patients who, when treated with FK-506, were subsequently weaned off steroid therapy.

In addition, organs that were failing in patients who received cyclosporine could be salvaged by giving the patient FK-506, preventing the need for another transplant, Tzakis said.

The patient survival rate for one year may be as high as 90 percent with FK-506, compared with a 70 percent survival rate with cyclosporine, the researchers said.

''Incidents of rejection are much less with this new drug than with cyclosporine, and morbidity associated with treatment is much less,'' said Dr. John Fung, another University of Pittsburgh professor of surgery, before Monday's presentation.

The drug was given to 30 heart transplant recipients, who experienced excellent cardiac function with few instances of rejection and infection. Five other patients were given FK-506 because they were experiencing persistent rejection and toxic reactions to cyclosporine. Rejection in four of those patients was ultimately reversed, and the fifth patient's rejection is now being resolved with FK-506 and low-dose steroids, the researchers said.

Doctors did not anticipate that FK-506 would be capable of actually reversing the rejection process when the studies began, Fung said.

''In the beginning, we actually didn't know what it was going to do,'' Fung said. ''We thought it was going to be like cyclosporine, a good drug to prevent rejection. This drug not only is a good drug to treat rejection but can reverse rejection.''

Researchers believe FK-506 may have other roles, such as controlling ''graft-versus-host disease,'' a condition occurring after bone marrow transplantation in which certain white blood cells from the transplanted marrow attack other tissues of the patient.

''We've given FK-506 for control of graft-versus-host disease to two patients who had manifested liver disease after bone marrow transplantation,'' Fung said. In those cases, the damage was similar to that seen in chronic liver rejection but both patients have responded to FK-506.

''This is an interesting potential application of the drug we hadn't expected to see before,'' Fung said.

(AUG. 20) UPI - Led by a surge in U.S. gasoline, world oil prices rose sharply Monday as the situation in the Middle East appeared to grow more tense. However, U.S. crude began to fall off around midday on profit taking.

Prices moved up sharply on the New York Mercantile Exchange, the world's largest oil trading floor, after President Bush said Westerners being held by Iraq were in fact hostages.

"When (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein specificially offers to trade the freedom of those citizens of many nations he holds against their will in return for concessions, there can be little doubt ... they are in fact hostages," Bush told a Veterans of Foreign Wars convention in Baltimore. Gail Segal, a trader with Paine Webber Inc. in New York, said the speech was "almost a pep talk" for going to war and the market reacted.

On the Merc, the benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for September delivery hit a high of $29.25 a barrel before beginning to fall back. In early afternoon trading, it was being quoted at $28.70 a barrel, only seven cents higher than Friday's close.

September delivery unleaded gasoline was up 3.28 cents at 99.25 cents a gallon after trading as high as $1.0150 cents a gallon on the Merc, while home heating oil was 1.26 cents higher at 81.80 cents a gallon after being quoted at high as 82.95 cents a gallon.

On the European cash market, United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - had gained 46 cents by midday to $25.16 a barrel. Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent had shot up 81 cents to $29.31 a barrel.

Traders said the Merc crude market was being influenced by the fact that Tuesday is the final day of trading the September delivery contract. The October-delivery contract becomes the spot-trading contract Wednesday. Many were taking profits on the $8 a-barrel increase since markets were rocked by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

"There was a lot of profit taking in September crude as a result of the contract going off the board Tuesday," said Robert Martini of Cargill Investor Services in New York.

Traders said the markets appeared to relatively unaffected by the decision of the OPEC oil cartel Monday not to hold a meeting to raise output to make up for the oil lost by the U.N. embargo of Kuwaiti and Iraqi exports imposed after the invasion.

The 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries pumps more than 40 percent of the oil traded on world markets. Saudi Arabia, OPEC's biggest producer and the world's largest exporter of crude, said Saturday it would raise its output two million barrels above its OPEC quota of 5.4 million barrels a day to help offset the daily loss of four million barrels by virtue of the embargo.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater told reporters Bush "is pleased" by the Saudi increase. Fitzwater made the remarks in a brief reprise following Bush's meeting with his advisers, including Deputy Energy Secretary Henson Moore, on forthcoming budget negotiations and energy supplies.

"Overall, we believe we've reached a reasonably stable situation with regard to oil supplies," he said. "We do urge people to use self-restraint however, in their energy use," Fitzwater added.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 20) UPI - The designation of the Americans stranded in Iraq and Kuwait as hostages raised a new dilemma for U.S. policy-makers Monday.

In a speech to the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Baltimore, President Bush said, ''When Saddam Hussein specifically offers to trade the freedom of those citizens of many nations he holds against their will in return for concessions, there can be little doubt that whatever these innocent people are called, they are in fact hostages.

''And I want there to be no misunderstanding. I will hold the government of Iraq responsible for the safety and well-being of American citizens held against their will.''

He didn't specify what action he would take.

But the designation of the trapped Americans as ''hostages'' limits U.S. policy options because of a standing rule stated repeatedly by the Bush administration: ''The United States will not negotiate for the release of hostages.''

Other nations - notably France - have negotiated with Iran in order to procure the release of some of their nationals held by pro-Iranian groups in Lebanon.

House Armed Services Committee Chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., said on NBC Sunday that Bush must strike ''the right balance between concern for the hostages but not letting our policy be driven by the existence of hostages or be paralyzed by it.'' For now, he said, Bush should make clear that Saddam will be held responsible for the Americans' safety.

Aspin said, ''In a sense, this is an easier situation to deal with than, for example, the hostages that are somewhere lost in the morass of Lebanon. We at least know the address of the person responsible. So if we want to send a message, we know where to send it.''

Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., similarly noted that freedom of passage for the 3,000 or so Americans in Iraq and occupied Kuwait was only one of several vital interests at stake in the Persian Gulf, including the restoration of stability and ''the free flow of oil at reasonable prices.''

''Presidents have to weigh those interests as well,'' he said, ''and it does take balance and you cannot let one interest predominate over these other interests that are terribly important.''

Bush, aboard Air Force One after his speech in Baltimore, was asked why he was turning up the heat on Iraq and calling the American detainees ''hostages.'' Bush replied, ''I don't think there's any turning up the heat. It's a recognition of the fact that now demands are being made for the release of people, and that, I think, is the definition of hostages.''

Asked when he decided to use the term, Bush said, ''We had a meeting there (at the White House) last night and then this morning I decided, 'Look, as long as these demands are being made, why, it's semantical. Why not just say that?'''

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher, asked if the U.S. policy of non-negotiation with hostage-takers remains in effect, was guarded, saying that has been the U.S. policy but he did not want to limit the president's options.

But, other officials said that the appearance of willingness to negotiate with hostage-takers will open up a hornet's nest of criticism for the past policy, and give an incentive for other nations to seize Americans as bargaining chips.

Boucher said that there are now 47 Americans known to be in the hands of Iraqi authorities - 35 who had been kept in Baghdad hotels since Aug. 3 and another 12 Americans who showed up at a Kuwait hotel in response to broadcast orders from the Iraqis.

According to the State Department another 2,500 Americans remain in Kuwait and another 530 are in Iraq. Those figures included 130 diplomatic personnel in Kuwait and 28 diplomats in Iraq. The civilian Americans were advised to remain home and to keep a low profile.

State Department officials confirmed that some Americans are now in the U.S. Embassy in Baghdad, but they refused to say how many.

Boucher refused to say if the United States is considering retaliation against Iraqi diplomats and private citizens in the United States in case the stranded Americans are not permitted to leave Kuwait and Iraq.

He also said the United States considers the Iraqi order to vacate the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait to be illegal and therefore ''null and void.''

The Iraqis, since they announced the annexation of Kuwait on Aug. 8, notified the foreign embassies in Kuwait must be closed by Friday Aug. 2 since there is no reason for the embassies to be there.

(AUG. 20) UPI - Led by a surge in U.S. gasoline, world oil prices rose sharply Monday as the situation in the Middle East appeared to grow more tense. However, U.S. crude began to fall off around midday on profit taking.

Prices moved up sharply on the New York Mercantile Exchange, the world's largest oil trading floor, after President Bush said Westerners being held by Iraq were in fact hostages.

''When Iraqi President Saddam Hussein specificially offers to trade the freedom of those citizens of many nations he holds against their will in return for concessions, there can be little doubt ... they are in fact hostages,'' Bush told a Veterans of Foreign Wars convention in Baltimore.

Gail Segal, a trader with Paine Webber Inc. in New York, said the speech was ''almost a pep talk'' for going to war and the market reacted.

On the Merc, the benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for September delivery hit a high of $29.25 a barrel before beginning to fall back.

In early afternoon trading, it was being quoted at $28.70 a barrel, only 7 cents higher than Friday's close.

September delivery unleaded gasoline was up 3.28 cents at 99.25 cents a gallon after trading as high as $1.0150 cents a gallon on the Merc, while home heating oil was 1.26 cents higher at 81.80 cents a gallon after being quoted at high as 82.95 cents a gallon.

On the European cash market, United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - had gained 46 cents by midday to $25.16 a barrel.

Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent had shot up 81 cents to $29.31 a barrel.

Traders said the Merc crude market was being influenced by the fact that Tuesday is the final day of trading the September delivery contract. The October-delivery contract becomes the spot-trading contract Wednesday.

Many were taking profits on the $8 a-barrel increase since markets were rocked by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

''There was a lot of profit taking in September crude as a result of the contract going off the board Tuesday,'' said Robert Martini of Cargill Investor Services in New York.

Traders said the markets appeared to relatively unaffected by the decision of the OPEC oil cartel Monday not to hold a meeting to raise output to make up for the oil lost by the U.N. embargo of Kuwaiti and Iraqi exports imposed after the invasion.

The 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries pumps more than 40 percent of the oil traded on world markets.

Saudi Arabia, OPEC's biggest producer and the world's largest exporter of crude, said Saturday it would raise its output 2 million barrels above its OPEC quota of 5.4 million barrels a day to help offset the daily loss of 4 million barrels by virtue of the embargo.

Saudi Oil Minister Hisham Nazer said his country would raise its daily output by 2 million barrels even if the other members of the OPEC refused to up production.

INDIANAPOLIS (AUG. 20) UPI - Eli Lilly and Co. said Monday it will spend $540 million on an expansion that will add 1,000 people to the company's Indianapolis work force. Lilly said most of the new jobs would be high-paying positions in research and development.

The project involves adding several buildings and major roadwork to Lilly's industrial center on the southeast side of the city. About 3,000 people currently are employed there.

Lilly said the total would rise to 3,500 by 1994 and to 4,000 by 2000. A total of 800 construction jobs are expected to be created during the building phase of the project.

A $120 million biotechnology building to be occupied by 100 scientists and engineers was the first project unveiled by Lilly Monday. Another $235 million will be spent on additional projects and site improvements during the next four years.

Taking all of Lilly's expansions in central Indiana into account, the pharmaceutical giant will make new investments worth about $1.4 billion in the area during the next few years.

"This landmark project is a significant investment in the future of Eli Lilly and Co. and an expression of our faith in the future of both our city and our state," Lilly Chairman Richard D. Wood said.

Gov. Evan Bayh said the program "demonstrates tremendous confidence in the state's economic future. The quality jobs created, both in construction and operation, will enhance the Hoosier economy and the total project will solidify Indiana's position in the important international pharmaceutical industry."

Lilly's 1989 net sales were $4.1 billion, vs. $3.6 billion in 1988. Profits for the fiscal year totaled $939 million, up from $761 million a year earlier.

NEW YORK (AUG. 20) UPI - With thousands of Jews arriving in New York from the Soviet Union, Chase Manhattan Bank said Monday it plans to install Russian language teller machines in branches in Brooklyn and Manhattan.

The program was developed in cooperation with the New York Association for New Americans, an organization founded in 1949 to help Jewish refugees resettle in the United States.

Mark Handelman, executive vice president of the organization, explained that about 18,500 Soviet Jews were expected to resettle in New York this year. He said NYANA provides the refugees with funds to help them get settled into apartments and jobs.

"The concept of banking is completely alien to the typical Soviet citizen " Handelman said. "This program will do an excellent job of getting our clients used to the way banks work."

Chase said the Russian-language teller machines would be installed at a bank branch at 32nd Street and Broadway in Manhattan, as well as the Brooklyn neighborhoods of Brighton Beach, Borough Park, Bensonhurst and Midwood, where many Soviet Jews have settled.

ATHENS, GREECE (AUG. 20) UPI - Iraq permitted some 17,000 Iranians to return home across Iraqi territory over the past two days, the Iranian news agency said Monday.

The Iranians crossed at a border checkpoint that has not been used since the Iran-Iraq war broke out 10 years ago. There was no immediate word on how many Iranians were trapped in Kuwait by the invasion, but about 12,000 Iranians crossed into Iran Monday at Shalamcheh, about 14 miles east of the southern Iraqi city of Basra, according to an Iranian radio dispatch that was monitored in Athens.

Another 5,000 crossed into Iran Sunday. Altogether, more than 1,000 cars have traversed the border so far, the report said.

Iran and Iraq fought repeatedly over the Shalamcheh crossing point during their eight-year war.

Regional analysts said the move to allow Iranians to leave Kuwait was the latest in a series of Baghdad actions since Friday to win Iranian confidence, apparently in a bid to persuade it to stay out of the crisis with the U.S. and conservative Arab nations over Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

Iraq also has released about 4,000 Iranian prisoners of war since Friday, and Tehran reported that 8,000 POWs were waiting at the border Monday to be return home.

Over the weekend, Iraqi troops also continued their pullout from Iranian territory taken days before the August 1988 cease fire.

Iraq and Iran agreed to send 8,000 POWs from each side home, and the official Iranian media said the International Committee of the Red Cross had agreed to boost its staff at the border to handle that many.

The Red Cross earlier said it did not have the facilities to handle more than 1,000 a day. There were estimated 100,000 POWs held by both sides.

The Iraqi troop pullback from Iranian territory began Friday after President Saddam Hussein pledged to meet Iranian demands to end the 10-year-long conflict, allowing Iraq to focus its military attention on the current crisis over Kuwait.

Tehran radio played victory marches as the Iranian POWs returned across the border.

The Iranina news agency IRNA said Iraq's pullback from the Mehran region, in the central sector of the 750-mile front, has been completed and Iraqi commanders handed maps to U.N. military observers informing them of minefields they had laid in the area.

The pullout from other points was still going on and was expected to be completed by Wednesday.

Iranians returning from Kuwait said life in there was increasingly difficult. Tehran radio quoted them as saying the streets were deserted and shops were closed.

NORTH KINGSTOWN, RI (AUG. 20) UPI - President Bush visited a country club Monday to raise money for Rhode Island Republicans, including Gov. Edward D. DiPrete, who is fighting for his political life.

Bush arrived at Quidnesset Country Club shortly after 1 p.m. for a $2,500-per-couple private reception and a $250-per-couple luncheon. The events are expected to raise between $200,000 and $290,000 for the Rhode Island Republican Party.

A visit by the president last November raised $800,000 for the party and for Rep. Claudine Schneider, R-R.I., who is trying to unseat Sen. Claiborne Pell, head of the Foreign Relations Committee. That longer visit included stops at DiPrete's home in Cranston and at the Rocky Point amusement park in Warwick.

Bush spent about 45 minutes at Quidnesset. After the private reception, Bush was introduced at the luncheon by DiPrete and spoke to the gathering for about 14 minutes.

''He is a take-charge leader,'' said Bush. ''I've seen his leadership first hand. I want him there after the re-election, strong at my side as we face the problems coming up in the rest of the '90s.''

Bush also talked about the crisis in the Middle East, saying: ''No sane person likes the spectre of confrontation'' but the United States must provide a moral compass for the world.

The race for governor in Rhode Island has so far centered on the Democratic primary. Polls have shown that DiPrete, who is unopposed in the primary, would lose to all three Democratic candidates if the general election were held now.

The three-term incumbent, elected in 1984, has been staggered by a deteriorating regional economy, budget shortfalls that led to a sales tax increase, and a series of political patronage scandals.

FAIRBANKS, ALASKA (AUG. 20) UPI - Wildfires have burned 3 million acres of Alaska tundra and timber this summer, fire officials reported Monday. Fires still burning on 2.8 million acres of land were expected to smoulder until winter snows extinguish them next month.

''Fires are basically smoldering and smoking,'' said Sue Mitchell, a fire information officer. ''They're likely to keep burning until snowfall.''

Fires burned an area almost as big as Connecticut, approaching 1 percent of the land mass of Alaska. In terms of acres burned, this was the worst fire season in Alaska in 21 years and the third biggest on record.

Most of the 800 firefighters still at work were mopping up around blazes that were just smoking remnants of the fiery walls of flame that devoured forests and threatened towns and villages. But some firefighters were still protecting remote cabins and native lands.

Considering the amount of acres blackened and the intensity of the fires at their peak, there were remarkably few structures burned and no major injuries, Mitchell said.

''These are remote fires,'' she said. ''There are not a lot of structures out there. This is not like Southern California.''

No one was even fighting the state's biggest fire, covering 405,780 acres in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge in northeast Alaska, Mitchell said. Fire officials were monitoring the blaze but expected no trouble from the remote fire above the Arctic Circle along the southern boundary of the refuge.

Seven other fires bigger than 100,000 acres each, four of them on federal wildlife refuges, were burning in the vast interior of Alaska. Fires burned 272,000 acres on the Kanuti Flats National Wildlife Refuge, 150,000 acres on the Koyukuk National Wildlife Refuge and two separate fires burned a total of 392,430 acres on the Yukon Flats National Wildlife Refuge.

Fires also burned state and native lands and lands managed by the federal Bureau of Land Management.

Lightning started the fires and an unusually dry, hot summer provided the fuel.

''There is still a lot of fuel out there,'' Mitchell said. She said 101 fires were burning on 2.8 million acres, bringing to 3 million acres the amount of land burned in the past two months. Fires have consumed spruce, brush and tundra.

Wet August weather in Alaska often helps extinguish summer wildfires. Rains have dampened the landscape and slowed the fires, but Mitchell said that unless heavy rains start, fires were likely to burn until snows smothered them.

BEIRUT, LEBANON (AUG. 20) UPI - A clandestine group claimed Monday that a $2.2 million ransom was paid for the release of two Swiss Red Cross workers held hostage in Lebanon.

Emanuel Christen and Elio Erriquez, both health workers with the International Committee of the Red Cross, were released earlier this month by a group called The Palestinian Revolutionary Cells after 10 months in captivity.

A group calling itself the Organization for Defending the Palestinian People made the allegation in a handwritten note on the back of a photocopy of Christen's Red Cross identification card.

The note said the group would reveal who received the $2.2 million ransom in another statement.

SOFIA, BULGARIA (AUG. 20) UPI - Two men threatened to set themselves on fire Monday unless a huge ruby star was removed from the top of the former Communist Party headquarters, prompting officials to promise all such symbols would be eradicated.

Plamen Stanchev, a member of the radical Initiative for Civil Disobediance and a Bulgarian Orthodox priest, Dimiter Ambarev, had set a Monday night deadline for their demands.

Ambarev said a statue of Lenin in the center of Sofia should also be removed, calling the former Soviet leader ''the moral killer of millions of human souls in the Soviet Union and East bloc countries.''

The Socialist Party, which replaced the old Communist Party, said in a statement that it would remove all ''non-Bulgarian'' symbols and create new symbols to represent the new party and struggling new democracy.

Also on Monday, minor clashes erupted in central Sofia when thousands of opposition demonstrators collided with Socialist Party supporters.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 20) UPI - Enrollment in the food stamp program, the nation's major anti-hunger plan, has surged to its highest level in five years, but there was no simple explanation Monday for the increase.

In the past, participation rose or fell depending on the unemployment rate. But officials noted some months ago the linkage was not as direct as it once had been.

According to the government's most recent figures, about 20.1 million people were receiving food stamps, up 1.3 million from one year earlier. By comparison, the administration forecast an average of 19.3 million people would receive benefits during the current fiscal year.

The food stamp program helps poor people improve their diets by their food-buying power. The maximum benefit for a family of four this fiscal year is $331 a month.

''What is remarkable about the recent growth in participation is that there is no consensus about its cause,'' the Agriculture Department said in a report to the Senate Appropriations Committee.

''It occurred even though there were no major changes in the (program) or in the econony, at least as measured by the national employment rate.''

The department, which runs the food stamp program, said its analysis suggested three factors - expansion in Medicaid, state-level changes in joblessness, and legalization of undocumented aliens - accounted for between 25 percent and 43 percent of the change.

''A large group of other factors might be responsible for the remaining increase,'' the report said.

The chairman of the House Select Committee on Hunger, Rep. Tony Hall, D-Ohio, took a different view. He said higher enrollment showed the fragility of the conditions of many Americans, so that a slight weakening in the economy stretched many incomes too far.

In addition, Hall said, people were forced to turn to public food programs because contributions of private organizations have diminished.

The House has authorized $19 billion for food stamps in fiscal 1991, about $2.2 billion more than the White House requested. The Senate has yet to act.

In addition to allocating funds, Congress also must reauthorize the program this year. The House has voted to phase out the current limit on how much can be deducted for housing costs and to let participants own vehicles worth up to $5,500 without losing eligibility.

In its report, the Agriculture Department said participation levels were up in 44 states and the District of Columbia. Texas, California and Florida accounted for nearly half of the nationwide increase.

However, the report noted that jobless rates were down in Texas and Arizona, despite those being two of the 10 states with the largest increases in enrollment.

It appears, the report said, that most of the increase in enrollment came through more people entering the program, rather than people receiving benefits for a longer period of time.

The department's Economic Research Service, in an analysis published early this year, said one of seven Americans participated in the food stamp program during a one-year period, but most receive benefits for less than 12 months.

Studies have found the program means a 5 percent to 10 percent increase in spending on food by poor households.

MOSCOW (AUG. 20) UPI - Armenian and Azerbaijani extremists fought running battles along the two republics' troubled border Monday on the third day of armed clashes that left at least six people dead and 12 wounded.

Soviet soldiers trying to keep the warring sides apart came under fire and were among the casualties in the violence.

''Gunfire resounded throughout Azerbaijani border areas during the night Sunday,'' the official Tass news agency said. The independent Interfax news service said ''the fire was reopened'' Monday morning.

Levon Ter-Petrosian, the natiomalist leader elected president of Armenia last month, accused vigilante bands of fomenting violence in the Transcaucasian region and refusing the Armenian Parliament's order to disarm, Interfax said.

In the Azerbaijani capital of Baku, KGB officers criticized Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev for holding recent talks with Ter-Petroisian and then extending the deadline of a decree that requires the illegal armies to disband.

Ter-Petrosian told the Yerevan legislature that three Armenians died when Interior Ministry border troops opened fire to try to stop fighting between Azerbaijani and Armenian units. He said Azerbaijani militants captured several Armenians and took them to the Azerbaijani town of Kazakh just across the border.

Tass described ''a dramatic worsening of tensions'' in the border area. It said extremists launched a missile and opened machine-gun fire at a commuter bus traveling from Kazakh late Sunday, killing a policeman and wounding four passengers.

Troops called to the site repelled the attack in exchanges that left one militant dead and two extremists and two soldiers wounded, the Soviet Interior Ministry told Tass. Interfax said two police and one passenger died in the incident.

''Later on Sunday six villages in the Kazakh district came under heavy (crossborder) fire from Armenia,'' Interfax said. ''As a result, a police lieutenant from Gyzndzhi was killed and an Interior Ministry serviceman wounded.''

KANSAS CITY, MO (AUG. 20) UPI - Troubled US Sprint Monday announced a reorganization of its national sales force, including a sharper focus on the middle-market telecommunications user.

The company's National Markets organization was cut from five major marketing and service groups to two, one emphasizing large corporate and medium-sized business accounts, the other residential and small-business accounts.

The reorganization, effective Monday, calls for adding "hundreds of" sales jobs, Sprint said, although specific figures were not released. The plan also required eliminating 500 administrative positions last week.

Sprint pledged in July, after reporting an unexpected second-quarter loss, to beef up sales, marketing, and customer service efforts. Despite the changes, Sprint's international and federal government sales organizations both based in the Washington, D.C. area, will remain intact.

Under the reorganization, Sprint's National Markets organization will include a Business Market Group for customers with annual billings of $100,000 or more, and a Consumer Services Group for residential and business customers spending less than $100,000 a year.

Sprint said its Business Market Group will continue the company's National Accounts program that focuses on the largest telecommunications users, but will add a major accounts program to serve medium-to-large users of telecommunications services.

"The new Business Market Group extends the expertise of our national accounts program into the upper-middle market," said Richard C. Smith, National Markets president. "This part of the market is increasing its use of the more sophisticated products such as virtual private networks...," he said.

Sprint also formed a National Sales Division to augment sales efforts of the Consumer Services group. The division will provide a field sales force focusing on business customers with billings of $500 to $10,000 a month, Sprint spokesman Paul Thibeau said. These accounts will be assigned to a new customer service program called Premier that was designed specifically for the needs of small businesses.

Thibeau said the reorganization recognizes that, with changing technology, more and more products are becoming accessible to medium-and small-business customers. Despite the increased emphasis on lower-end customers, he said, "We're going to aggressively go after all the areas - low, middle, and high."

Analyst Audrey Stepov of Duff & Phelps in Chicago said fierce competition for the high-end telecommunications user has resulted in slim margins, forcing telecommunications companies to take a look at a large, somewhat neglected middle market.

MCI in June introduced a product called Visions, aimed at the middle market, that offers advantages such as customized billing previously available only to larger customers.

Stepov said an important consideration was whether Sprint also would introduce a product or service tailored to the middle market. She said Sprint wisely has refrained from slashing its rates. "It's to their advantage to keep prices stable," she said. "It (growth) will have to be by increasing customers and usage."

NEW BEDFORD, MA (AUG. 20) UPI - A 40-year-old former lawyer pleaded innocent to a murder charge Monday in the death of one of nine women believed to be victims of a serial killer.

Kenneth Ponte, of New Bedford, was freed on $50,000 cash bail after being charged in an indictment with the 1988 beating death of 28-year-old Rochelle C. Dopierla of Falmouth.

The indictment, returned Friday and unsealed before the arraignment Monday charged Ponte with one count of first-degree murder. Prosecutors alleged Ponte killed the woman to keep her from testifying against him.

Ponte, who has long acknowledged he is the prime suspect in the slayings but denied any involvement, entered a plea of ''Absolutely not guilty, your honor,'' at his arraignment in Bristol County Superior Court.

Dopierla was one of nine women killed. Their bodies were found along highways in southeastern Massachusetts between July 1988 and April 1989.

Most of the victims were linked to New Bedford's Weld Square, an area known for drugs and prostitution. Authorities fear two other women reported missing also have been killed.

The slayings have haunted the working class city, once a renowned whaling port, for two years, and triggered the most complex murder investigation since the Boston Strangler case of the 1960s.

As he left the courtroom, Ponte charged District Attorney Ronald Pina was harassing him.

''This has been a two-year long nightmare for me and I greatly, greatly look forward to the trial and my acquittal and the end of this nightmare '' Ponte said.

Pina said he would not comment on any connection between Ponte and the other victims.

The indictment is ''clearly what it is - an indictment on one murder case '' Pina said. ''The motive here would be to get rid of the witness ... (and to keep her from) testifying against him in a court of law.''

Pina did not specify what incriminating evidence Dopierla might have had on Ponte. He called the investigation ''probably the most complex case I've ever seen.''

Dopierla's body was found off Interstate 195. According to court documents filed by Pina's office, Ponte may have been the last person to see Dopierla alive before she disappeared in April 1988.

The indictment ended months of speculation that Ponte, who has said he knew at least four of the victims, would be charged in the serial killings.

Ponte has repeatedly insisted he was not involved in the killings, but told a Rhode Island radio station Friday night he was ready to face any charges.

The special grand jury empaneled to probe the slayings has met at irregular intervals since March 1989 and met for five consecutive days last week - fueling speculation that an indictment was imminent. When the grand jury finally returned a document late Friday afternoon, it was immediately sealed at Pina's request.

The panel took action after hearing for a second time from Diane Doherty, a former girlfriend of Ponte. The 37-year-old woman from Lynn, Mass., told authorities Ponte had held her against her will in his Port Richey, Fla., home, choking her and holding a gun to her head.

Doherty, now serving a jail term for probation violations, recanted her allegations but has since gone back and forth on her story several times.

She has also told reporters that investigators wrongly believe she can implicate Ponte in the serial killings. However, the Boston Herald, quoting unidentified sources, said Doherty had testified that she watched a video at Ponte's Port Richey home in June that showed a killing.

Kevin Reddington, Ponte's lawyer, scoffed at Doherty's credibility.

''If she is their witness against Kenneth Ponte, then it is a travesty, a travesty of justice for Mr. Ponte,'' he said.

Pina spokesman James Martin said the district attorney had kept the indictment sealed so he could notify family members of the victims, many of whom attended the arraignment.

''He had an obligation to inform them before they read it in the newspaper and before it came down in the atmosphere'' of the courtroom, where packs of news reporters ran from family member to family member seeking comments after the arraignment, Martin said.

No date was set for Ponte's pre-trial conference, Martin said.

(AUG. 20) UPI - Gasoline pricing restraint was in little evidence Monday as station operators and motorists braced for another round of soaring costs.

Higher gas pump prices abounded - after a temporary lull last week in the price run-up that has accompanied unrest in the Middle East - as station operators passed on to motorists new hikes in wholesale costs.

Oil companies said higher crude prices are forcing them to put aside President Bush's plea for restraint and raise the prices they charge station operators for gas.

The American Automobile Association said self-serve unleaded gasoline averaged $1.23.7 a gallon nationwide Monday, up 2.1 cents from its last survey Aug. 13.

Since Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2, casting uncertainty and the threat of war in the oil-rich Persian Gulf, gas prices have risen a total of 15.7 cents a gallon, the motor club said.

Gas prices moderated briefly last week in the midst of temporary freezes and rollbacks by some oil companies inspired by Bush's call for restraint Aug. 8. But by Monday - with such giants as Amoco Corp. and Unocal Corp. having lifted freezes late last week - most signs of restraint were a memory. "Pressure at the retail level has increased in the past couple of days," said AAA spokesman Geoff Sundtrom.

In Philadelphia, gasoline prices continue to rise with each oil company delivery, service station owners said Monday. A weekend delivery of fuel at C&R Sunoco pushed up pump prices by a cent each for the five grades of gasoline, ranging from $1.15.9 a gallon to $1.46.9, station owner Raymond Russo said.

"It's gone up about four times in three weeks," Russo said, noting the highest grade of gasoline was $1.35.9 a gallon before the crisis in the Middle East. "They (Sun Co.) don't tell you (the price is rising) until it gets here."

Sun Co. spokesman Dennis Byrne said wholesale prices charged to Sunoco stations on the East Coast last went up four cents to five cents a gallon Aug. 17.

"We've always said we support the president and we'll show as much restraint as we can. But we need to respond to changes in the market, and crude has gone up substantially and is still going up," he said.

Phillips Petroleum Co. raised its average wholesale gasoline prices 2.2 cents a gallon over the weekend, on top of rise of a penny Aug. 17. Phillips has raised its wholesale price a total of 24.2 cents since the invasion.

Crude oil hovered at about $28 a barrel in trading Monday on the New York Mercantile Exchange, up about $8 a barrel - 40 percent - since the Iraqi invasion.

Oil companies have been bombarded with charges of price gouging but have dismissed such claims, explaining that retail gas prices are not rising nearly as quickly as the companies' costs.

One holdout from the upward-pricing trend Monday was Atlantic Richfield Co., which has maintained a price freeze announced Aug. 8. Company spokesman Douglas Elmets said Arco's average self-serve unleaded pump price of $1.16 a gallon - up four cents since Aug. 2 - has lifted business at the company's 1,700 gas stations in five Western states by ten percent.

"We're experiencing about 70 pump run-outs a day," said Elmets, adding it was becoming increasingly difficult to maintain the gas-price freeze when other companies had not.

"We were hoping the marketplace would come down (in price) to where we are but it hasn't happened that way," he said. Arco said Monday it was raising the price of diesel fuel by six cents a gallon and jet fuel by five cents to ten cents a gallon.

Nick Fedoruk, a spokesman for Citizen Action, the nation's largest consumer group, said oil companies bowed to pressure on prices "when there was this combination of the president saying he thought they needed to show restraint and the threat of windfall profit taxes."

Now, with the Congress in summer recess, "if oil companies think they can increase profits and avoid windfall tax increases in the fall, they are sadly mistaken," he warned.

(AUG. 20) UPI - Florida Attorney General Bob Butterworth said Monday he will draft anti-gouging legislation to bar gasoline wholesalers and retailers from overcharging during shortages and emergencies.

Butterworth met in Washington with attorneys general from 19 other states to discuss the spate of gasoline price hikes that followed the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait. He said he would draft a state anti-gouging law in time for the Florida Legislature's organizational meeting in November. "Hopefully we can prevent companies and individuals from taking advantage of emergencies by substantially increasing prices," Butterworth said.

If the law passes, gasoline wholesalers and station owners who charge too much could be prosecuted. Butterworth did not indicate what criteria he would use to define "gouging" or what sort of limit might be placed on profits. At present, the state cannot regulate gas prices. It can only investigate to determine whether there was an illegal conspiracy to fix prices, he said.

"What we can do now is what we have done - we've sent out subpoenaes in Florida to determine if there was any price fixing when prices went up dramatically," Butterworth said.

Florida gasoline prices have increased by about ten percent since the Iraqi invasion. The American Automobile Association said Monday that gasoline prices appear to be leveling off in the state.

"All indications are that they've not changed over the weekend, and they're remaining constant," said William Dodd, a AAA spokesman in Orlando. "Needless to say, the situation in the Middle East is the determining factor in price. It's certainly remaining volatile as far as oil and gas prices."

The average price of self-serve regular gasoline was the highest in the state in the Orlando area on Friday at $1.161 a gallon, compared to $1.098 in Miami and $1.147 in the Tampa area, Dodd said. "There is a significant variance in the price of gas from one station to another, more than you would ordinarily ever see," Dodd said.

"Some of the stations seem to be reacting more to the crisis than others. Also there has been different actions taken by the oil companies and by the wholesalers, and the reactions have been different and have varied from day to day, therefore the prices have differed significantly from area to area, and even within a city," he said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 20) UPI - The United Arab Emirates, which has accepted the stationing of some U.S. forces, has the same features that provoked Iraq's predatory instincts in Kuwait.

It is rich. It has lots of oil beneath its desert landscape, and it has been cheating on its OPEC production quotas for the past several years, the same charge that was used as a pretext for the invasion of Kuwait by Saddam Hussein.

It is estimated that both Kuwait and the U.A.E. had been pumping an extra 400,000 barrles of oil per day, contributing to a global oil glut and driving the price down, to the detriment of countries such as Iraq that could not increase their production or sell it on the world markets.

There is one significant difference between the U.A.E. and Kuwait: When Iraq began making threatening sounds, Kuwait tried to appease Iraq by opening up negotiations in Saudi Arabia on Saddam's demand for reparations for cheating on the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' quotas.

When those negotiations broke down, the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait quickly followed.

The U.A.E., on the other hand, resisted negotiations with Iraq and ostentatiously announced a small joint military exercise with U.S. aircraft last month.

The tiny collection of emirates has one of the highest per capita incomes in the world, about $15,200 annually, almost totally from its vast oil reserves, currently estimated at nearly 100 billion barrels, almost the same as Kuwait has.

The country, with a population of 1.4 million, is made up of seven emirates that joined together in 1971 for protection and political weight. The emirates are Abu Dhabi, Ajman, Dubai, al-Fujayrah, Ra's al-Khaymah, Sharjah, and Umm al-Qaywayn.

By agreement, the shiekh of Abu Dhabi, the largest emirate, is president and the shiekh of Dubai is vice president. They rule through a seven-member Supreme Council.

The U.A.E., because of its strategic postion just south of Qatar and north of the Strait of Hormuz, has become a banking and communication center for the Persian Gulf region.

Ron Hatchett, deputy director of Texas A&M's Mosher Institute for Defense Studies, said, ''Politically, the move shows Iraq and others that U.A.E. oil reserves are under the U.S. protective umbrella. It also takes some of the Arab world pressure off Saudi Arabia as being the only Arab country to have invited American forces onto its soil in the current crisis.''

''Militarily,'' Hatchett said, ''The use of U.A.E. facilities will help the flow of American forces into Saudi Arabia, as forces arriving by air or ship in the U.A.E. could move overland into Saudi Arabia.

''Secondly, U.S. military operations from UA.E. bases could be critical to opposing any Iranian military actions should the Iranians decide to become involved.''

DENVER (AUG. 20) UPI - Rookie power forward Terry Mills of Michigan, the 16th player taken in the NBA draft, has signed a contract to play instead in Greece, the Denver Nuggets said Monday.

The Nuggets had traded veteran center Dan Schayes, 31, to the Milwaukee Bucks for the rights to Mills, who was the Bucks' first-round draft choice. Denver lost a bidding war for Mills.

''We were aware that Terry was negotiating to play in Greece prior to his signing over there and that losing him was a possibility,'' said Nuggets General Manager Bernie Bickerstaff. ''It would not have been financially responsible for us to try and match the offer he received from Greece.''

Mills, 6-10, 240 pounds, had a banner senior season at Michigan after two mediocre years. He averaged 18.1 points and 8.0 rebounds while shooting .585 from the field and earning second-team all-Big Ten honors.

Bickerstaff said the possibility of young players signing to play in Europe was ''becoming more of a risk factor in doing business in the NBA. The precedent was set when Danny Ferry and Brian Shaw, both early draft picks and talented players, chose to play overseas.''

Bickerstaff said Mills had an escape clause in his Greek contract and could return to play for the Nuggets.

Mills had been a major part of Denver's rebuilding hopes this summer, but Bickerstaff said his loss would not cause the club to panic.

Denver actually had traded Schayes to Milwaukee on June 27, two days before the draft, but the deal was not announced until Aug. 1 when the NBA raised its salary cap and allowed the Bucks to acquire Schayes.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL. (AUG. 20) UPI - The repaired and presumably leak-free shuttle Columbia was cleared Monday for blastoff Sept. 1 on a long-delayed astronomy mission, returning the shuttle fleet to flight status after a four-month hiatus.

The official launch date was announced after the early conclusion of a flight readiness review at the Kennedy Space Center that had been expected to last two days.

The review of Columbia's launch processing went faster than expected and William Lenoir, associate administrator for spaceflight, announced late Monday that Columbia had been cleared for takeoff on the year's fourth shuttle mission - known as STS-35 - at 1:17 a.m. EDT Sept. 1.

''Today we conducted a complete review of the STS-35 mission as well as the results of the liquid hydrogen leak (investigation),'' he said in a statement. ''Based on this review, I believe STS-35 is ready to fly.''

Engineers at the Kennedy Space Center made up lost time over the weekend and lobbied for permission to launch Columbia one day earlier, on Sept. 31. But Lenoir elected to stick with Sept. 1, which has been on the books since the ship's trip to the launch pad.

Columbia's countdown now is scheduled to begin at 12:01 a.m. EDT next Wednesday, Aug. 28. The shuttle's crew is scheduled to arrive at the Florida spaceport later that night for final preparations.

Columbia, carrying a $150 million battery of high-tech astronomical telescopes, originally was scheduled for launch May 30, but the flight was grounded the night before during fuel loading when sensors detected hydrogen gas leaking into the ship's engine compartment.

The leak was traced to a massive 17-inch-wide ''disconnect'' fitting where fuel lines from the shuttle's external tank enter the belly of the orbiter.

The disconnect fitting, which allows the tank to be jettisoned in space, could not be repaired at the launch pad, forcing NASA to haul Columbia back to its hangar. In the meantime, the agency attempted to proceed with plans to launch the shuttle Atlantis in July on a secret military mission.

But another hydrogen leak, unrelated to the one that sidelined Columbia, ultimately grounded Atlantis.

In the meantime, Columbia's disconnect fitting had been replaced with one taken from the new shuttle Endeavour and NASA managers decided to proceed with the astronomy mission and to delay Atlantis's flight until late October.

The goal of Columbia's mission is to study high-energy ultraviolet radiation from planets, stars, galaxies and other celestial bodies to learn more about some of the most violent objects in the universe.

Commander Vance Brand, 59, co-pilot Guy Gardner, 42, John ''Mike'' Lounge, 43, Robert Parker, 53, Jeffrey Hoffman, 45, and civilian astronomers Ronald Parise, 39, and Samuel Durrance, 46, plan to spend 10 days in orbit before gliding to a landing at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

(AUG. 20) UPI - Diplomatic sources say the five permanent members of the U-N Security Council failed to agree today on enforcing economic sanctions against Iraq. NO more meetings were scheduled today to discuss the text of a resolution that would call for multi-national enforcement of the embargo. But the negotiations are expected to continue.

China reportedly has reservations about using military force to stop, and possibly attack, suspicious Iraqi vessels. The United States, on the other hand, has said it would enforce the embargo imposed by the United Nations after Iraq invaded Kuwait.

President Bush finally used the word ''hostages'' today to refer to Americans held by Iraq. That creates a policy problem. The United States has a long-standing rule against negotiating for the release of hostages. Bush says he holds Iraq responsible for the Americans' safety. But he did not specify what he would do.

Diplomats in Liberia say a cease-fire has been in force since Saturday between government troops and one rebel group. Witnesses say rebels led by Prince Johnson ran through the streets saying they would join the government of the African nation in fighting rebels led by Charles Taylor. Both government troops and Johnson's rebels carried out looting after the cease-fire.

Firefighters are describing the outbreak of wildfires in Alaska this summer as the worst in the state in 21 years. They say blazes burned across three-Million acres of tundra and timber. That's almost the size of the state of Connecticut. Fires still burning on two-point-eight-Million acres of land are expected to smoulder until snow starts falling next month.

A suspect in what is believed to be a serial murder case pleaded innocent and posted 50-thousand-dollars bond at New Bedford, Massachusetts, today. Former lawyer Kenneth Ponte is charged with the death of one of nine women

ABU DHABI, UNITED ARAB EMIRATES (AUG. 20) UPI - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney announced Monday the unprecedented deployment of U.S. Air Force units in the United Arab Emirates and then met with American airmen who have already set up house.

Cheney later met with government officials in two other small Persian Gulf states, Oman and Qatar, to discuss their defense needs and traveled on to Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, for talks with King Fadh.

In the Arabian city, Cheney discussed a long-standing Saudi request to purchase more U.S. F-15 fighters for the oil kingdom's air arsenal, but U.S. officials said the deal was not nailed down.

The defense chief, making his second trip to the region since the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait by Iraqi troops, also was to stop briefly in Cairo to meet with Egyptian officials before returning to Washington Tuesday night.

As Cheney sought increased Persian Gulf support for the U.S. effort to deter an Iraqi attack on Saudi Arabia and its neightbors, there appeared to be no resolution of how to handle two Iraqi oil tankers that were defying the U.S. naval interdiction program.

A Pentagon official said the two tankers, one in the Persian Gulf and the other in the Gulf of Oman, were continuing to move south and would be monitored by U.S. warships.

The two had ignored warning shots fired Satruday by U.S. ships seeking to enforce the U.N. embargo against Iraqi goods, and no further action was taken.

U.S. officials were believed to be waiting for a vote on a U.N. resolution supporting the interdiction program before ordering more forceful action against the two tankers.

In Abu Dhabi, Cheney met with the ruler, Sheik Zayed bin Sultan al-Nahyan, and then announced the U.A.E. had agreed to allow U.S. forces to operate from its territory for the first time as part of the multinational effort to deter Iraqi aggression.

''Our interests and those of the U.A.E. are the same, and we will continue to work together for the defense of the gulf region,'' Cheney said.

The U.A.E is a federation of small states on the Arabia penninsula at the southern end of the Persian Gulf. Like its neighbors, it is a major oil producer.

Sixteen C-130 cargo planes from the 314th Tacticial Airlift Wing left Little Rock Air Force Base, Ark., and arrived at Bateen air base in Abu Dhabi a week ago. They began flying missions Saturday on an indefinite assignment to reposition supplies in neighboring Oman and elsewhere for U.S. troops going to or already in Saudi Arabia.

The operational presence of U.S. forces in the U.A.E., however, was not disclosed until Cheney's visit Monday.

The deployment of U.S. forces is a sensitive subject in the Persian Gulf, where Arab countries traditionally have distanced themselves from close military ties with outsiders.

''It's a significant departure for us and overall it's part of the logistical support we need to be able to maintain our forces in the region '' Cheney told reporters.

''This is a big step for the Emirates,'' he added while standing next to a camouflage-painted C-130.

''I think it's an indication of the seriousness of the situation and the fact that they are deeply concerned that their very existence is threatened by (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein. And they are eager to cooperate with and work with the United States and the other forces that have joined in the multinational effort to make certain that he doesn't come any farther,'' Cheney said.

Surveying the U.S. planes and airmen, Cheney said, ''This would not have been possible, I don't think, prior to the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.''

Altogether, there are 575 U.S. Air Force personnel, plus the 16 C-130s, stationed at the U.A.E. base. Air Force officers said there were no plans to increase that number.

Cheney talked to some crewmen of the 314th while others stood in jogging shorts and watched from just outside their air-conditioned trailers - set up on the base for them by the U.A.E. government.

''I never drank so much water in my life,'' said Air Force Col. Dave Mason commander of the 314th, as temperatures pushed past 100 degrees. ''We're going through 2,000 eight-ounce bottles a day.''

Mason said his men were carrying supplies, including food and ammunititon, to ''pre-staged areas'' in the region in support of Operation Desert Shield - the massive military undertaking President Bush ordered to head off further Iraqi aggression.

So far, the 314th has carried out 35 missions - about 10 to 12 per day - including the delivery of 30,000 U.S. military MREs - meals, ready-to-eat - on Sunday to neighboring Oman, which overlooks the Strait of Hormuz, the bottleneck entrance to the Persian Gulf.

The U.S. military is believed to be using facilities in Oman but that country has not publicly acknolwedge it.

''When you see what's there, you won't believe it,'' Mason said of the U.S. supplies in Oman, that are thought to be waiting to be picked up by Marines going to Saudi Arabia. ''We're here because there's no room there.''

(AUG. 20) UPI - President Bush Monday called the estimated 20,000 Westerners detained by Iraq ''hostages'' but the United States did not significantly widen military action against the Persian Gulf nation, apparently waiting for the United Nations to vote to enforce an embargo against Iraq.

The five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council met Monday to discuss multinational enforcement of sanctions but reached no agreement. They are expected to meet again Tuesday to discuss the embargo.

So far, only the United States and Britain are participating in an economic blockade of ships bearing goods bound to and from Iraq, but there was evidence of widening international support of a military presence in the gulf region.

The nine-nation Western European Union planned to discuss joining the task force Tuesday, with at least three of its members - Italy, Belgium and Holland - expected to endorse such action. West German leaders discussed Monday joining the force, but concluded its current constitution does not allow such an action.

Greece announced that it would support an economic blockade in principle, but await U.N. deliberations, and Bangladesh said it would send troops to Saudi Arabia to join international forces in defending it from any Iraqi attack.

Iraq gave foreign embassies in Kuwait five days to shut down or face a possible roundup of diplomatic staff. The Iraqi Foreign Ministry was reported Monday to have informed foreign governments on Aug. 9 that ''their missions (in Kuwait) ... had no official tasks with the Iraqi government headquarters in the capital Baghdad following establishment of the full merger unity between Iraq and Kuwait.'' The State Department has said it would not comply.

In other developments Monday, the State Department confirmed that 12 more Americans have been taken into Iraqi custody and moved to an undisclosed location, bringing to 47 the number of Americans in Iraqi military detention. Reports from foreign offices indicate at least 123 Britons, 33 French and 11 West Germans have also been rounded up.

President Saddam Hussein has said will use the estimated some 20,000 Westerners, including 3,000 Americans, trapped in Iraq and occupied Kuwait as a human shield against possible attack until the West withdraws troops from Saudi Arabia and warships from the gulf.

French television reported Americans were being held in mobile homes around an electrical plant near Baghdad.

U.S. news reports said 35 Americans had been rounded up, but that others had sought refuge at their embassies.

OPEC officials, meanwhile, said they could not reach a quorum for an emergency meeting of the oil alliance as requested by Saudi Arabia. Saudi officials during the weekend said with or without OPEC approval, the kingdom would hike oil output by as much as 2 million barrels a day to make up for the shortfall caused by an embargo against Iraq and Kuwait.

Iraq over the weekend offered to release the Westerners if U.S.-led foreign troops left Saudi Arabia, where they were deployed after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion and subsequent annexation of Kuwait. The United States rejected the offer.

''We've been reluctant to use the term hostage,'' Bush said at a Veterans of Foreign Wars convention in Baltimore.

''But when Saddam Hussein specifically offers to trade the freedom of those citizens of many nations he holds against their will in return for concessions, there can be little doubt that whatever these innocent people are called, they are, in fact, hostages.''

Bush, calling on Iraq to ''release all foreigners now,'' said, ''I will hold the government of Iraq responsible for the safety and well-being of American citizens held against their will.''

About the same time, the Iraqi News Agency quoted Iraqi Parliament Speaker Saadi Mehdi Saleh as saying, ''We assure the foreigners we are hosting, their families and friends that they are safe and under the protection of the Iraqi families who host them.''

Iraq's ambassador to France, Abdul Razak al-Hachimi, earlier confirmed to CBS News some Westerners trapped in Iraq were moved to key military installations.

''Their fate, their lives and their safety is in hands of your government ...'' Al-Hachimi said. ''And if they are going to get hurt, they are going to get hurt by your planes, your ships ... and your soldiers.''

CBS earlier reported 35 Americans who had been held by Iraq at the Rasheed Hotel in Baghdad had been split up and sent to various weapons and chemical installations in Iraq. CBS also reported 35 other Americans found shelter from Iraq's roundup of foreigners by hiding in U.S. diplomatic headquarters.

The Iraqi News Agency announced diplomats in Kuwait would lose their diplomatic immunity and be treated as other foreign nationals as of Friday the deadline set by Iraq two weeks ago for all foreign missions to close and relocate to Baghdad.

Also Monday, the private French TF-1 television network in a dispatch from Baghdad quoted a high-ranking Iraqi Information Ministry official as saying ''if just one American pilot is shot down by our forces his body will immediately be eaten by Iraqis.''

In the past, Iraq has warned it would not be able to guarantee the safety of pilots shot down over its territory because of rising anti-American feelings among its citizens.

The United States unilaterally announced last Thursday it would enforce the economic embargo. U.S. warships lobbed shots across the bows of two defiant Iraqi tankers Saturday, but stopped short of disabling the ships, presumably because Washington is waiting for the go-ahead from the United Nations.

Other countries have indicated they too are ready to enforce the U.N. embargo - but only if the United Nations calls on them to do so.

The Iraqi tankers challenged by U.S. ships over the weekend and left the gulf region for unknown destinations, gulf shipping sources said. In related development, the Iraqi oil tanker al Montasiriya, carrying 83,000 tons of strategic oil products, crossed the Suez Canal Monday en route to the Red Sea. It was unclear what tactic U.S. naval forces would use with the oil tanker.

The State Department warned Americans not to travel to Jordan and said non-essential U.S. Embassy personnel and dependents in the Jordanian capital of Amman have permission to leave.

The latest U.S. travelers advisory follows reports that Jordan's King Hussein has prepared his country for war.

Hussein, who visited with Bush in Maine last week, initially sided with Saddam, but said after the meeting he would honor the economic embargo against his neighbor.

Included in Iraq's proposal to trade freedom of Westerners for the pullout of foreign troops, Baghdad said an undisclosed number of citizens from Austria, Sweden, Switzerland, Finland and Portugal would be allowed to leave the country because their nations had not sent troops or weapons to the region.

The Austrian Press Agency reported Monday that about eight Austrians and 30 Swiss had boarded a bus from Baghdad to Amman.

Some 17,000 Iranians returned home from Iraq the past two days, the Iranian news agency said Monday. Iraqi release of the Iranians was part of Iraq's bid last week to end its conflict with Iran, allowing Iraq to concentrate its troops on the Iraqi crisis and to help persuade Iran to stay away from Arab nations that oppose Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

In Moscow, the Foreign Ministry also reported a second group of 124 Soviets evacuated from Kuwait arrived home Monday, a third group of 363 were on their way to Amman and preparations for a final group of 166 were under way for their departure from Kuwait.

And a KAL jumbo jet was due in Seoul Monday carrying hundreds of South Koreans who have fled the country.

The Philippines asked the United States for permission to send a shipment of food and medicine to Filipinos trapped in Kuwait, but were refused, officials in Manila said. They said Thomas Hubbard, the U.S. charge d'affaires, told them ''there is enough foodstuff in Kuwait.''

Despite the tenuous position of Westerners in Iraq and Kuwait, the United States continued to re-enforce its troops in the gulf region, receiving permission from the United Arab Emirates to position military cargo planes on its soil.

The military dispatched cargo planes to the strategically positioned United Arab Emirates, Pentagon officials said, and President Bush said in a speech his ''objectives remain unchanged.''

When U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney visited Monday the UAE, 16 C-130 cargo planes and a squadron form the 314th Tactical Airlift Wing, including more than 500 Air Force personnel, had been moved in. Their main purpose will be to transport food, ammunition and weapons from other parts of the region to U.S troops in Saudi Arabia, the focal point of Operation Desert Shield.

''We are determined to defend our friends in the gulf and face the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait,'' Cheney told the UAE news agency WAM. ''We will find the adequate means to get the Iraqis out of Kuwait.''

The UAE, a federation of seven tiny states formed in 1971, is strategically positioned at the mouth of the gulf, with Saudi Arabia its neighbor to the east and a coastline extending for nearly 400 miles.

Arab leaders continued to press for an internal solution to the crisis, with Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud Al Faisal meeting in Damascus with Syrian President Hafez Assad, who has sent over 1,000 troops to the gulf to join the international force against Iraq.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 20) UPI - A City Council panel, alarmed by reports that hundreds of animals are beheaded, disembowled and tortured in occult rituals each year, endorsed a proposed ordinance Monday outlawing the sacrifice and maiming of animals for religious purposes.

The proposal, based on a model developed by the Humane Society, is designed to curb the practices of Santeria, a secretive African-Cuban religion, and various forms of satanism and black magic.

Devotees who practice the ritual killing and maiming have complained in the past that such a law would be a violation of their freedom of religion but none appeared at the Public Safety Committee meeting to speak against the proposal, which was approved unanimously.

Michael Burns, a supervisor in the Department of Animal Regulation, said the agency received reports of at least 100 incidents in the last six months in which goats, sheep, chickens and other livestock were killed in Santeria rituals.

The killings primarily involve a ''cleansing ritual'' in which a so-called holy person decapitates the animal and then drains the blood on a believer Burns said.

The department has also received reports of more than 150 other animals being used in satanic and black magic rituals during the past half year, Burns said.

These included a cow's tongue being nailed to a tree, a cat being disemboweled while it remained alive and other similarly gory incidents.

''I think it is an absolute insult,'' said the panel's chairman, Councilman Richard Alatorre. ''It is just outrageous that in a civilized society - especially in a city like Los Angeles - that people use animals for such practices.''

Burns said officials believe more than 50,000 Santeria devotees live in the Los Angeles area, making it the third largest center for the practice in the United States, after Miami and New York.

The religion is a hybrid of voodoo and Roman Catholicism and is primarily practiced by immigrants from Cuba, Haiti and Brazil.

The ordinance, which is expected to be considered by the full council in the coming weeks, would make the ritual maiming and sacrifice a misdemeanor punishable by $1,000 fines and six months in jail.

PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 20) UPI - Preliminary results of an autopsy performed on Pearl Bailey indicate the entertainer died as a result of narrowing of her coronary arteries, a Philadelphia physician said Monday.

Emanuel Rubin, head pathologist at Jefferson Medical College, said the 72-year-old Tony-Award winner suffered from arteriosclerotic coronary artery disease, which probably sparked a heart attack last Friday.

''The final anatomic diagnosis will be made when microscopic slides are prepared and examined, which will take several weeks,'' Rubin said in a prepared statement.

Jefferson spokeswoman Elizabeth Samuels said tissue from all of Bailey's bodily organs must be examined to verify a heart attack was the actual agent of death.

Rubin said there was no evidence connecting Bailey's death with her knee-replacement surgery performed six weeks ago. She was in Philadelphia for therapy following that operation when she collapsed in her downtown hotel room Friday evening.

Her husband of 38 years, jazz drummer Louis Bellson Jr., said Bailey was sitting in a chair when she started rubbing her hands and then appeared to hyperventilate.

Bailey, who had a history of heart problems, was brought to Jefferson's emergency room at 5:45 p.m. Friday. She was unconscious on arrival and was pronounced dead about a half hour later.

Funeral services were planned for Thursday in Philadelphia, where Bailey lived most of her early life.

A viewing will be held from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Deliverence Evangelistic Church, followed by a funeral service.

Burial will take place at the Rolling Green Memorial Park, where Bailey's mother and brother are buried.

E.B. Smith, Bailey's manager of 23 years, said the services will be open to the public.

NEW YORK (AUG. 20) UPI - The dollar stabilized and finished mostly higher in New York trading Monday after a week of vertiginous declines, helped by an ominous turn in the Persian Gulf conflict and German domestic political problems. But currency traders said the U.S. currency's improved tone was probably just a consolidation phase in its downward movement.

Dealers said the Iraqi government's use of U.S. and other foreign hostages as pawns in the Gulf standoff had prompted some purchases of the dollar as a safe-haven, or financial refuge, in the crisis.

Global funds also moved into the dollar on the news that the Social Democrats pulled out of the East German coalition government Sunday, raising political complications for the full unification of Germany this year.

Amsterdam Rotterdam Bank chief trader John McCarthy said those developments boosted the dollar, which he said was "probably a bit oversold" after its fall last week setting repeated record lows against the mark.

"We're due for a bit of technical rebound," McCarthy said, anticipating that the dollar could gain further in Asian and European dealings tomorrow "at which time the (dollar) selling should resume."

In late New York trading the dollar was quoted at 1.5650 German marks, up 1.55 pfennigs from 1.5495 marks at Friday's session close, and at 146.50 Japanese yen, down from 147.60 yen late last week.

While the dollar is probably undervalued at this point, McCarthy said, there is still a bias against it. "I think people are still a little bit pessimistic on the relative performance of the U.S. economy."

While dollar-priced financial assets may be a bargain, he said, that has been obscured by higher interest rates obtainable in other currencies. What's more, funds can be shifted into those currencies almost instantly, given new technologies, McCarthy added.

"People can wait until the last moment to make these gigantic decisions to move hundreds of millions around the globe," he said, referring to the money movements which have hammered the dollar in recent days.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2960 Swiss francs, up from 1.2830; 5.2600

French francs, up from 5.2000; and 1,159 Italian lire, up from 1,141. Britain's pound slipped to $1.9140 from $1.9225.

In Europe, the dollar closed higher against the main currencies in a quiet market, with interest focused on the mark and pound.

"The dollar traded within very narrow boundaries, making most of its gains on the back of a weaker German mark," said Geoff Dennis of James Capel.

In Frankfurt the dollar moved up to 1.5580 German marks vs. 1.5532 Friday. It rose in Zurich too, at 1.2915 Swiss francs against 1.2865.

In London, analysts said the pound was fast gaining popularity. High British interest rates and the country's North Sea oil resources hold appeal to global investors seeking the safest currencies for asset placement.

The dollar closed higher in Paris, Brussels and Milan, at 5.2305 francs vs. 5.2815, 32.05 Belgian francs vs. 31.95, and 1149 lire vs. 1145.35.

Earlier in Tokyo, the U.S. dollar strengthened against the Japanese yen in Tokyo on the heightened Mideast tensions. The dollar closed at 147.47 yen, up slightly from Friday's close of 147.35 yen.

Gold closed down in Zurich at $409.50 an ounce against $410. But it was up in London at $409.75 an ounce against $409.50.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $409.75 an ounce, up 50 cents from $409.25 Friday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $410.10, also up 50 cents from $409.60.

Silver was down at $5.15 an ounce in Zurich vs. $5.20 last week. It finished in London at $5.15 an ounce vs. $5.20 Friday.

Republic closed cash silver at $5.145 an ounce, off from $5.195 Friday. Comex silver closed at $5.129, down from $5.179.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 20) UPI - The State Department warned Americans Monday not to travel to Jordan and served notice that non-essential U.S. Embassy personnel and dependents in the Jordanian capital of Amman may leave.

The latest U.S. travelers' advisory connected with the Iraqi invasion and takeover of Kuwait Aug. 2 follows reports from Israel of indications that Jordan's King Hussein has placed his country on a war footing and is losing control of the kingdom because of support among the people for Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. The two Husseins are not related.

But sources in Washington close to the king dismissed those reports as self-serving ''posturing'' by the conservative government of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, and said Jordan is ''teetering on the brink of disaster'' in handling the influx of refugees from Iraq.

There are about 5,000 Americans in Jordan, about 300 of them officials at the U.S. Embassy and their families, the State Department said.

The sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said the United States is putting pressure on the Persian Gulf states and the exiled government of Kuwait to come with an aid package for Jordan as a substitute for its trade dependency on Iraq.

''The administration is being pretty forthcoming in helping (Jordan),'' one source said.

Hussein, who visited with President Bush in Maine Thursday, virtually stood alone in the Arab world in siding initially with Saddam even though, sources said, he disapproved of the invasion. Jordan's economic health depends largely on good relations with Iraq.

''Everybody was angry with him (the king),'' one source said.

Jordan borders Iraq on the east, the Israeli-occupied territory west bank of the Jordan River on the west.

''Due to the Iraqi military invasion of Kuwait and continuing unstable conditions in the region, the Department of State advises all Americans to defer non-essential travel to Jordan,'' the warning said.

''The department is permitting non-essential embassy personnel and dependents to depart Jordan on a voluntary basis. The Department of State advises other American citizens in Jordan to consider doing the same.''

Americans who live in Jordan and travelers to the country were advised to inform the U.S. Embassy in Amman of their presence.

Similar advisories were issued for travel in Iraq, Kuwait, the Eastern Province of Saudi Arabi, where U.S. and other military forces have converged and Yemen, where anti-American demonstrations were held in the capital of Sanaa.

The Jordanian port of Aqaba, situated at the head of the Gulf of Aqaba, will be totally closed to imports to Iraq, but there will be ''a fair amount of wiggle room for the Jordanians so they can maintain their economy'' with imports and exports, sources said.

Aqaba is Jordan's only outlet to the sea.

In the Jordanian view, the United States made a ''grotesque error in moving so fast with such a major (military) presence'' in Saudi Arabia, one source said. The thinking was that Saddam could have been ''bought off and eventually neutralized,'' the source said.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AUG. 20) UPI - An Air Carolina commuter plane with three crewmembers aboard was overturned by a wind gust Monday at the Charlotte Airport and subsequently burst into flames and was destroyed, authorities said.

A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman in Atlanta said the three crewmembers managed to escape the aircraft unharmed, but the SH-6 commuter plane caught fire a short time later and was destroyed.

Authorities said the plane was parked at a terminal concourse when a squall line raced through the area and a strong wind gust overturned the aircraft. There were no passengers aboard the plane when it flipped, the FAA said.

NEW YORK (AUG. 20) UPI - Prices closed mixed in very light trading on the New York Stock Exchange Monday, with the gains concentrated in the blue chips, as the crisis in the Mideast seemed to reach a stalemate.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which plunged 36.64 Friday, rose 11.64 to 2656.44.

But declines outpaced advances, 914-624. A total of 2,000 issues traded.

Among broad market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index rose 0.26 to 180.45. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index added 0.68 to 328.51. The price of an average share rose 5 cents.

Volume amounted to just 129,630,000 shares, down from the 212,556,510 traded Friday when the ''double-witching hour'' expirations of stock-index futures and options boosted volume.

Prices opened lower but the Dow industrials, which tumbled more than 100 points Thursday and Friday, quickly turned higher, which analysts attributed to Saudi Arabia's pledge Saturday to boost its oil output to partially offset the supply lost in the embargo on oil from Iraq and Kuwait.

The blue-chip average rose as much as 16 points, turned lower once again, but then rebounded and was up more than 20 points at its high.

''I think the reason we opened up had to do with the Saudis increasing oil production,'' said Ricky Harrington, director of investment policy and asset management at Marion Bass Securities in Charlotte, N.C.

But even though the Dow posted a modest gain, most stocks closed lower and analysts said the dominant trend in the market was expected to be down for the near term, as investors remained nervous about the Persian Gulf crisis.

In the latest developments concerning the Mideast, President Bush, casting diplomatic caution aside, said Westerners detained by Iraq were ''hostages '' but it appeared American military response to the Persian Gulf crisis hinged on whether the United Nations would vote to enforce its embargo against Iraq.

Later Monday, however, the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council failed to reach agreement on the text of a resolution that would call for multinational enforcement of economic sanctions against Iraq, diplomatic sources said.

But the U.S. military moved to strengthen its position, dispatching cargo planes to the strategically positioned United Arab Emirates, Pentagon officials said.

''The market is marking time,'' said Harrington. ''The only thing that will help would be a surprising resolution to the Mideast situation, which I don't see happening. And in a market like this, the only things people are willing to buy are the blue chips.''

On the trading floor, Texas Utilities was the most active issue, up 1/8 to 35 7/8.

Boeing followed, unchanged at 48 1/2. Wal-Mart was third, up 1/4 to 28 1/4.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T rose 3/8 to 33 3/4, IBM added 7/8 to 102 1/4, Philip Morris lost 3/8 to 44 7/8 in active trading, Sears rose 1/2 to 29 3/8 and General Motors gained 1/8 to 37 5/8.

The oil-related issues in the average - Exxon, Chevron, Texaco, USX and Du Pont - were up sharply. Oil futures for September delivery closed slightly lower after posting sharp intraday gains. Exxon rose 5/8 to 52 3/4 Chevron jumped 1 3/8 to 80, Texaco rose 1 3/4 to 65 5/8, USX, which owns Marathon Oil, gained 5/8 to 33 1/8, and Du Pont, which owns Conoco, added 1/4 to 37 5/8.

Elsewhere, Gitano Group plunged 4 7/8 to 19 3/8. The company declined to comment on the sharp drop.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 159,546,630 shares, down from 262,706,960 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices closed sharply lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex Market Value index fell 2.32 to 331.29. Declines led advances 376-208 among the 797 issues traded. The price of an average share fell 8 cents. Composite volume was 13,596,700 shares, vs. 18,485,095 shares traded Friday.

Corona Corp. Class A led the Amex issues, down 1/8 to 6 7/8.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index closed down 4.90 to 388.59.

(AUG. 20) UPI - President Bush declared today that Westerners held in Iraq are ''hostages.'' Iraq offered during the weeked to release the detainees if the U-S troops pull out of Saudi Arabia. At a veterans convention in Baltimore... the president angrily said he will hold Iraq responsible for the well-being of Americans held against their will.

Diplomatic sources say the U-N Security Council failed to agree today on the wording of a resolution to call for international enforcement of economic sanctions against Iraq. The sticking point in the continuing talks is the role of the U-N Military Staff Committee in the operation. The United States says if it must... it will enforce the sanctions by itself.

MOSCOW (AUG. 20) UPI - Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said Monday that Saddam Hussein's proposals have ''elements deserving serious attention'' and indicated Moscow may be ready to mediate in the release of foreigners held in Iraq.

Shevardnadze held a three-hour meeting with Iraqi Deputy Prime Minister Saadoun Hammadi, who traveled to Moscow to discuss the crisis in the Persian Gulf spawned by Iraq's Aug 2 invasion of Kuwait.

In Baltimore, President Bush told a gathering of war veterans that the 20,000 Westerners, including 3,000 Americans, detained by Iraq should be considered hostages. Saddam has vowed to use the foreigners as a human shield again possible attack until the West withdraws troops from Saudi Arabia and warships from the gulf.

''We care not only for our people, but also for citizens of other states '' Shevardnadze said after his meeting with Hammadi. ''We would not like to claim the role of mediator in settling this question. Nevertheless, we believe that this is also our duty, as it is of any civilized country, to take into account the interests of other states and every citizen of any nation.''

Shevardnadze told the official Tass news agency that he was aware of ''the negative response of many in the West'' to Saddam's latest proposals, but said Moscow is reviewing them closely.

''I believe there are elements deserving serious attention,'' Shevardnadze said. ''We are now conducting intensive work at an expert level. We are studying all details and parts of the Iraqi president's speech and shall respond later in an appropriate manner.''

Shevardnadze said he did not feel ''special concern'' over the 8,500 Soviet citizens remaining in Iraq and Kuwait, explaining that Iraqi authorities were assisting in their ''normal, painless and problem-free'' evacuation.

In a statement Sunday, Saddam provided two ways that all foreigners would be allowed to ''travel immediately:'' a U.N. Security Council pledge that U.S. troops will leave Saudi Arabia or acceptance of his Aug. 12 proposal to tie Iraq's pullout from Kuwait to Syria's withdrawal from Lebanon and Israel's withdrawal from the occupied territories.

The Soviet Union cut off arms deliveries to Iraq, a close ally for four decades, and condemned its invasion of Kuwait soon after the incursion, but it has not joined Western and Arab countries in sending troops to Saudi Arabia to stop further Iraqi aggression.

Details of the meeting between Shevardnadze and Hammadi were not released. Shevardnadze said after the talks that they could not be considered ''negotiations,'' but were simply ''consultations'' - a chance to exchange views on the crisis.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Yuri Gremitskikh said earlier that Soviet special envoy Mikhail Sytenko was continuing his tour of the Middle East and had met with the leaders of Syria, Egypt and Libya in an effort to find a diplomatic solution to the crisis.

Gremitskikh said the Soviet Union continued to support the use of the U.N. Security Council's Military Staff Committee to deal with the crisis, but he refused to say whether Moscow supported the idea of a U.N. military force in the gulf.

A group of 124 Soviets arrived in Moscow on Monday after the overland journey from Kuwait through Baghdad to Jordan, and another group of 363 Soviets from Kuwait was on its way to the Jordanian border, Gremitskikh said.

The remaining 160 Soviets in Kuwait, including employees of Soviet diplomatic missions, will be evacuated by Aug. 23, he said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 20) UPI - U.S. wheat exports are likely to fall nearly 5 percent in the coming year due to a record world wheat crop and intense competition for foreign sales, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

In a quarterly report on the outlook for wheat, the department's Economic Research Service said this year is likely to be the first in four years that world wheat production exceeded consumption. The crop was pegged at a record 584 million metric tons.

The world market for wheat, however, was forecast to rise by less than 1 million tons due to larger crops in countries that traditionally are importers, such as China and the Soviet Union, as well as in exporting nations, such as the United States.

U.S. wheat production is estimated as 2.7 billion bushels, the third largest wheat crop ever. Kansas and North Dakota, the two leading wheat states, are growing record crops.

''Despite the large U.S. crop and lower prices, slack world imports and increased competitor supplies will lead to lower U.S. exports in marketing year 1990-1991,'' the research service said.

However, ''Domestic wheat use is forecast up more than a fifth due to greater feed use,'' the service added. ''This will more than offset the forecast drop in exports and lift U.S. wheat use to the third largest on record.''

The report said exports would fall to 1.18 billion bushels, compared to 1.23 billion bushels in the marketing year that ended May 31. Domestic use was forecast for 1.24 billion bushels, up 247 million bushels from last marketing year.

With this year's larger crop, the U.S. wheat stockpile was projected to stand at 846 million bushels next June 1, compared to the 535 million bushels on hand at the start of this marketing year.

Market prices for wheat were forecast to run about $1 a bushel lower than the average of $3.72 a bushel during the 1989-1990 marketing year.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 20) UPI - The Justice Department and the Consumer Product Safety Commission Monday filed suit against seven of the nation's largest toy importers and distributors to prevent hazardous toys from being sold to children.

The department said the toys, all of which are imported, ranged from rattles and toys with small parts that could choke small children, to toys that are coated with toxic levels of lead-based paint.

Although most of the toys were labeled for children over three years old, the CPSC found they were actually intended for younger children. The agency said nodeaths or injuries resulting from the toys' use were reported to the government.

''The filing of these suits emphasizes that we will vigorously enforce child safety regulations - whether firms are large or small,'' CPSC Chairman Jacqueline Jones-Smith said.

Named in the suits are:

-Toys R' Us, chief executive officer Charles Lazarus and chief operating officer Michael Goldstein.

-Child World Inc. and former chief executive officer Michael Barron.

-Lionel Leisure Inc. and chief executive officer Michael Vastula.

-Value Merchants Inc. and chief executive officer Phillip Cohen.

-Illco Toy Co. USA, and chief executive officer Martin Scheman.

-Beachcombers International Inc. and chief executive officer Harry Chernin.

-Division Sales Inc. and former chief executive officer Morton Marks along with Justen Products, an affiliated partnership.

Toys R' Us' Goldstein said that his Paramus, N.J.-company believes ''it has an excellent safety record, the case lacks merit, the company will prevail in any action and the lawsuit is a waste of taxpayers' money.''

Milwaukee, Wisc.-based Value Merchants' President Mike Mervis said his company has not seen the complaint and voiced surprise at the lawsuit.

''We advised the Justice Department that the action is inappropriate in view of our 40 years record in recall and inspection,'' he said. ''We will continue ongoing negotiations with the CPSC to find a resolution that is acceptable to us.''

Mervis claimed his company has not been importing toys about which it received notice from the commission, and that products about which it did receive notice and already had distributed to retailers were recalled.

Representatives for other companies named in the suit could not immediately be reached for comment.

The suits, which request preliminary injunctions against the seven companies, were developed as the result of an investigation by the CPSC and the Customs Service and allege that the companies sold toys that failed to meet federal health and safety standards.

CPSC officials identified the toys and Customs agents seized them. Some of the toys were found on store shelves and were later recalled by the distributors. Once the toys were discovered, consumers who purchased them were advised via posters in the stores that the products should be returned.

Some of the defendants have withdrawn the toys from their shelves but continue importing them for distribution to other retailers, said Frank Kelly, a Justice Department spokesman.

(AUG. 20) UPI - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said that Iraqi proposals to end the Middle East standoff merit closer inspection. Meanwhile, the U-S force in the region grows. The second squadron of radar-eluding FA stealth fighters is airborne and headed to the Middle East. LANGLEY AIR FORCE BASE, VA (AUG. 20) UPI - A squadron of F-117A stealth fighters streaked across a rain-slickened runway Monday and took off for the Middle East, the second time the radar-elusive jets have been sent to a combat zone.

The bat-winged fighters left in three groups, or cells. The first six took off at 4 p.m. EDT, seven more left a half-hour later, and by shortly after 5 p.m. all 20 were airborne. But one returned for undisclosed reasons.

Before the jets took off, an Air Force official had said the F-117As showed no evidence of any problems while at the base, and by Monday evening investigators were trying to determine why the plane returned.

The journey will require several re-fuelings and likely will take between 12 and 15 hours, said Col. Ron Sconyers, a spokesman for the Tactical Air Command.

''It's a long, tough flight,'' Sconyers said as he watched the arrowhead-shaped fighters taxi down the runway.

The Air Force has not said what the exact duty of the aircraft will be, except to note that its initial purpose is to act as a deterrent against Iraqi aggression against Saudi Arabia. The F-117As were sent to an undisclosed location in Saudi Arabia, where thousands of U.S. troops already have been deployed.

''They are going into a combat environment very similar to where they are based, which is in the desert,'' Sconyers said.

The squadron of F-117A fighters, designed to slip through enemy radar to attack a variety of targets, had flown into Langley on Sunday from their base at the Tonopah Test Range Airfield in Nevada, about 140 miles northwest of Las Vegas. They belong to the 37th Tactical Fighter Wing.

Some of the aircraft flown to Virginia on Sunday were kept as spares in case of maintenance problems.

Monday's departure marked the second time the fighters have been sent into a combat zone. Two of the aircraft were used when the United States invaded Panama in December, dropping two 2,000-pound bombs near a Panamanian Defense Forces barracks.

The plane's unusual angular shape and coating of exotic composite materials are designed to elude enemy radar. The single-seat fighter can carry a variety of weapons, including laser-guided bombs and air-to-ground missiles.

A hard rain fell at Langley after the first group of fighters took off Monday, but it did not delay the departure. The leader of the last cell of F-117As flashed his lights and waved to reporters as the aircraft rolled down the runway.

The Air Force bought 59 of the twin-engine craft, and three have crashed since it first started flying in 1981. They cost $42.6 million each, but when research and development costs are added, the price rises to $106 million.

A dozen KC-135 Stratotankers helped the stealth fighters reach Langley Air Force Base from Beale Air Force Base in California, refueling the fighters in flight.

The air tankers that took off from Beale also will be flown to southwestern Asia to support Operation Desert Shield, officials said. The tankers can fly at nearly the speed of sound and at altitudes of up to 50,000 feet, refueling several U.S. and NATO aircraft without slowing or descending.

The tankers carry 150,000 pounds of fuel; there are 6 1/2 pounds of fuel per gallon.

Also Monday, the amphibious assault ship USS Iwo Jima left Norfolk Naval Station and the tank landing ship USS Manitowac left Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base. The ships were to pick up Marines at Morehead City, N.C., then sail to the Middle East as part of Operation Desert Shield.

The ships are the last of 13 Norfolk-based amphibious ships mobilized to move Marines to the Persian Gulf region over the past week.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 20) UPI - The Iraqi crisis has underscored the nation's need to conserve energy and is likely to work in the favor of environmentalists as they lobby for stricter conservation legislation, the director of the Sierra Club said Monday.

''I think the Iraqi situation will operate to environmentalists' advantage not to our disadvantage,'' Michael Fischer, executive director of the Sierra Club, said in an interview. ''It's a geopolitical fact of life there's limited oil and most of that oil is in other nations.... Saving energy is the wave of the future.''

Fischer said the nation's oil companies are trying to use the United States' standoff with Iraq over Iraq's invasion of Kuwait to open up more public land for oil drilling while citing the nation's need for independent fuel sources.

The nation's oil companies are ''raising prices and more than that - raising the fear of oil shortage and sounding the drum beat: 'We must drill offshore in California. We must drill in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. That's the way to secure national security and independence from the invasions in the Middle East,''' Fischer said. ''We're here to say that's wrong.''

The Sierra Club took out full-page ads Monday in several of the nation's major newspapers, including the New York Times, criticizing oil companies for raising prices at the gas pump and urging support of legislation that would require more fuel-efficient cars.

The environmental group is supporting the Motor Vehicle Fuel Efficiency Act of 1990 that would require automobile manufacturers to produce cars that use 40 percent less fuel than current usage by the year 2000.

The ads say the bill would add $500 to the price of each car, but save more than that in gasoline usage.

''The best way of securing national security independent from the Middle East is conservation, greater efficiency,'' Fischer said. ''There is no reason to rush to kill the Arctic or rush to drill off shore when we have energy conservation as an immediate solution. It would be foolish for us to drain America first.''

R.G. ''Gus'' Ensz, a spokesman for the American Petroleum Institute in Washington, said conservation is not the solution.

''Conservation is very important, no doubt about it,'' Ensz said. ''But it couldn't possibly solve our problem, which is increasing demand in energy and a decrease in our oil production. The wells are going dry.

''Nowhere in the ad is it stated the reason we are now importing over half our oil. It is because American oil production has been dropping year by year and we've been prevented from drilling for oil in areas where there might be some very large oil fields.''

Ensz said oil exploration in the Arctic could reap billions of gallons of oil for the nation.

''We think the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge should be explored,'' Ensz said. ''It (proposed exploration area) is only a sliver of land near the ocean. It wouldn't cover the entire refuge, which is quite large. It could hold nine billion barrels of oil, as big as the crude oil bay fields 60 miles to the west, which had been supplying one-fourth of our domestic crude oil.''

Fischer blamed President Ronald Reagan's ''shortsighted, business-centered politics'' for the nation's increasing dependence on imported oil.

''We were conserving energy 3 percent a year in the '70s,'' Fischer said. ''In the '80s all those (alternative energy) programs were killed or put on hold. Japan stayed on the same trail and now they are twice as energy-efficient. By failing to save, we put our kids in the (Saudi) desert.''

Fischer pledged an all-out war with the oil industry to protect the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge from oil exploration.

''We'll bet the club on the Arctic,'' Fischer said. ''It is so important. We're going to make it (expanding oil exploration) as tough as absolutely possible.''

NEW YORK (AUG. 20) UPI - George Steinbrenner, in perhaps his final act as managing general partner of the New York Yankees, Monday named Gene Michael as Vice President and General Manager of the ballclub.

Steinbrenner, who under an agreement with Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent has to resign as the team's general partner by midnight, named Michael to replace Pete Peterson as the team's general manager. Peterson will remain in the organization as a special advisor.

Meanwhile in Cleveland, a U.S. District Court judge denied a temporary restraining order sought by two of the teams' minority owners, Daniel McCarthy and Harold Bowman, seeking to nullify Steinbrenner's July 30 agreement with Vincent that would end Steinbrenner's 17-year tenure as general partner of the Yankees.

Before introducing Michael, who served as the team's GM in 1980, Steinbrenner said he was ''not in shock'' and that he ''was feeling very good about things.''

Steinbrenner reiterated that he nothing to do with the action filed in Cleveland and that he had told major league baseball that his letter of resignation was coming.

''I will be resigning as general partner sometime today,'' Steinbrenner told a crowded press conference in an auxiliary locker room at Yankee Stadium. ''I've gotten all of my work done.''

Sunday, Steinbrenner extended Manager Stump Merrill's contract for two seasons, the first time the owner has given a two-year extension during his 17 years.

Steinbrenner said he made the decision to hire Michael over the weekend and met with Robert Nederlander earlier Monday to discuss the decision. Last week, Nederlander was named by the Yankees' 18 limited partners to oversee the baseball operations in Steinbrenner's absence.

In a related move, George Bradley, the Yankees Vice President of Player Personnel based in Tampa, Fla. will move to New York to work in concert with Michael.

Steinbrenner's agreement with Vincent, made in connection with an investigation into Steinbrenner's payment of $40,000 to a self-proclaimed gambler, stated that Steinbrenner can still remain involved in certain baseball operations.

Steinbrenner said he would oversee radio and television contracts, banking matters, concessions contracts, leases and government dealings.

Michael, 52, began the 1990 season as a major league scout and became the Yankees' ''eye in the sky'' in June, a week after Merrill replaced Bucky Dent. This will be his second stint as GM, having served in 1980 when the Yankees posted a 103-59 record and won the American League East.

''Michael has been an organization man for many years,'' said Steinbrenner. ''He has been a scout, coach, minor league and major league manager and was instrumental and successful in helping the Yankees to the 1981 division championship.

''No one is more knowledgeable in the organization. He will work with George Bradley very closely.

''Michael, Stump and Bradley will be a good team for Bob Nederlander,'' Steinbrenner said.

Nederlander is expected to take over as managing general partner upon approval by the Commissioner and baseball's owners.

Michael, who served as a coach with Merrill, said he was excited by his new position.

''It's a big challenge,'' said Michael, who played for 11 years in the major leagues. ''I'm very happy to be back in the ballpark on a daily basis.''

Asked about his responsiblities with the club, Michael said he would ''handle the baseball part of it and George (Bradley) would take care of the rest.''

(AUG. 20) UPI - Iraq's ambassador to France today said that the Iraqi government has followed up on its threat to place detained Westerners at Iraqi military installations. The Iraqi official was quoted as saying about the detainees... ''Their fate, their lives and their safety is in the hands'' of the U-S government. Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported that Baghdad also confirmed the placement of foreign nationals at vital installations.

Baghdad also issued a bizarre warning to Washington today. A report carried by a French television station quoted a high-ranking Iraqi Information Ministry official as saying any American fliers shot down by Iraq ''will immediately be eaten by Iraqis.'' America's air force in the Persian Gulf region is scheduled to be increased by 20 radar-eluding FA stealth fighters. The jets left Virginia's Langley Air Force Base this afternoon.

Government and leftist rebel negotiators met for a fourth day of peace talks today. Rebel soures say the talks led to NO agreements and expressed doubt that any significant pact will result from this session. The two sides are discussing the Salvadoran military, with leftists expressing the need for the armed forces to reform extensively. Despite the lack of progress, a rebel officer commented ''The important thing is we're talking.''

The vice president of the republic of Russia today accused Soviet Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov of sabotaging a radical economic plan agreed to by Soviet President Gorbachev . Speaking before thousands of supporters, Russia's number two man said Ryzhkov was trying ''to torpedo'' an agreement between Gorbachev and Russian President Boris Yeltsin.
